Situation in Ravenna, Where a Popular Committee Is in Power.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

E, June 13.—An outstanding feature in the general strike situation today was the news received in the capital of the proclamation of an Italian republic by the people of several towns bordering on the Adriatic, in Northeastern Italy.

thousand soldiers are gradually being spread throughout the province and it is expected that Sunday will see an awakening from the brief dream. The threatened railway strike throughout Italy has been abandoned and order is being gradually restored. The most serious situation exists in the province of Ravenna, where villages and small towns are being ruled by local Republican Committees which have armed the inhabitants, giving the ignorant masses the impression that any kind of violence will be permitted. EARTHQUAKE STOPS CLOCKS.

Flow of Oil Also Affected by Temblor in the Taft District.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TAFT, June 13.—Following a slight earthquake shock here today about sixty clocks in the Midway-Sunset oil fields were reported to have stopped at 1:50 o'clock. Not only were the clocks stopped, but there was a decided decrease in the flow of the giant gusher of the Lakeview No. 2 Oil Company and momentarily in many other wells the oil failed to flow as freely as under ordinary conditions. Tonight, however, all wells were flowing normally again.

BECOMES BRIDE OF A KOREAN.

LOS ANGELES GIRL AND AN ORIENTAL ARE WEDDED AT SEATTLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 13.—A romance which began in California when the principals were children culminated here in the marriage of Miss Laura Smith, a High School graduate of Los Angeles, and Wallie Kim, a Korean, also of that city.

Coming from California, where the law forbids the union of a white woman and a native of the Far East, the couple arrived at the Courthouse yesterday afternoon after closing time in quest of a license. The paper was obtained shortly after 5 o'clock, and the occidental-oriental nuptials were completed.

Kim has been engaged in the hotel business in Los Angeles, he says. He is 27 years old, while his bride is just 24. They attended school together. He expects to close out his affairs in California and make his future home with his bride in Korea.

CITY. Los Angeles has a population of 516,317 with 700,000 persons in the metropolitan district, according to the city directory that went to press yesterday. It is the fastest-growing city in the world. A population of 2,000,000 in 1930 is predicted.

After four young Angelenos, comprising a launch party, had been missing for two days, a fainting lad staggered into Avalon last night to get help. The party, marooned when forced to beach the launch, was brought in by rescuers.

Angelenos were guests of the Panama-California Exposition officials and San Diego yesterday and expressed enthusiasm at progress of work for the exposition.

Political winds blew on the Tenth Congress District yesterday and brought out two candidates, Capt. H. Z. Osborne and Gen. Frank C. Prescott. Another may enter race.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. The people of Long Beach are rising against Mayor Whealton, because of his expensive and allegedly illegally-conducted administration.

Five children were saved from drowning by workmen at the Pasadena municipal plunge.

PACIFIC SLOPE. The disturbances on Mount Lassen were determined yesterday to be of volcanic character. Neapolitan fears are reported to have seizedthe inhabitants of the affected district.

A Los Angeles girl was married to a Korean in Seattle, according to a telegram from there last night.

GENERAL EASTERN. Fierce rioting occurred yesterday in the streets of Butte, Mont., between factions of the Western Federation of Miners over assessments levied by the union.

The Supreme Court of Illinois has decided that the woman suffrage act is constitutional.

WASHINGTON. Suspension of an Espee rate on vegetables has been ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

MEXICO. A belated Saltillo dispatch last night stated that desperate fighting is going on around Zacatecas, but it made no mention of which side has the advantage.

Americans and Englishmen interested in Parral properties are preparing to return to work.

FOREIGN. A London dispatch last night reported that France and Russia are on the verge of a break.

PRESIDENT OUR GUEST.

Will Visit Both the Expositions.

Wilson Will Lead Armada of the Nations Through the Panama Canal.

Greatest Fleet Ever Assembled in the History of the World Is Coming.

Start for the Pacific Coast to Be Made About the Fifth of Next March.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 13.—President Wilson personally will lead the great international fleet of warships next March from Hampton Roads to Colon. He will participate in the formal opening of the Panama Canal by passing through on the bridge of the world-famous old battleship Oregon, as leader of the long line of fighting craft of all nations, and then proceeding northward, enter the Golden Gate at the head of this immense armada and attend the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. A stop will be made at San Diego, Cal., to do honor to the Panama-California Exposition, in progress at that place in connection with the canal celebration.

This announcement was made today by Secretary Daniels, who has been working a long time to bring this notable programme about. Originally, the President was to go from Washington to Hampton Roads to greet the commanders of the international fleet as they arrived and to participate in the ceremonies attendant upon the departure of the vessels on their long cruise through the North American continent. Afterwards he was to make the trip by rail to San Francisco, to visit the exposition at some convenient later date.

The President, however, has determined to do full honor to both expositions if possible by making his advent upon the scene at the head of an armada the like of which the world has never been. Also, he will redeem his long-standing promise to Col. George W. Goethals by not visiting, but formally opening the Panama Canal. In his passage through that waterway on the battleship Oregon,, he will stand shoulder to shoulder with Rear-Admiral Charles E. Clarke, retired, who captained the ironclad in her famous Spanish war cruise, circumnavigating South America. On board will also be most of President Wilson's Cabinet.

The President, according to the present programme, many details of which remain to be worked out, will leave Washington for Hampton Roads, accompanied by his official family on the yacht Mayflower on March 5, 1915.

The international fleet will have been gathering in the roads since January 1, but the President feels obliged to defer his own departure until the date mentioned because of his desire to remain in Washington until the session of Congress closes.

So far, nine of the maritime countries have signified their intention to take part in the great naval parade through the canal, and it is certain there will be other participants announced before the end of the year. The countries that already have accepted are, the Argentine Republic, Cuba, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Portugal and Russia.

The entire Atlantic fleet of the American navy will form the nucleus around which the international naval forces will gather. The officers and men of the fleet will be the nation's guests and will make excursions from Hampton Roads to the capital and to nearby eastern cities while arrangements are being made for the long cruise from Chesapeake Bay to the Golden Gate.

After the ceremonies at Hampton Roads are over, the President will take up his quarters on the superdreadnought New York, which will be at that time the most formidable vessel in the world. Then the start will be made for Colon, with the New York leading. The ships will form a column many miles in length, for it is estimated that there will be between eighty and 100 ships in the procession. Most of these will be the most modern type and there will be no room for laggards or weaklings because it is the intention that the fleet shall proceed at full cruising speed of about fourteen knots.

Arriving at Colon within a week, there will be a delay of a couple of days while arrangements are being made to pass the vesels through the canal. This will be done with all ceremony, the line being headed by the ancient launch Louise, the gift of the American government to the government of France. The Oregon is to follow with the Presidential party, including Admiral Clark, the Cabinet, members of the Senate and House of Representatives and distinguished guests. The admiral of the navy, George Dewey, will be invited to make the passage, but it is doubtful if his health will permit.

Allowing one hour's time for the passage through the locks of each ship, and a day for its transit through the canal, the whole fleet should be transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the course of about four days.

Exact details of the formal ceremonies in connection with the passage of the great fleet of warships as the official opening of the Panama

LORIMER FUTURE IN THE BALANCE.

HINTS AT PROSECUTION IN CHICAGO BANK CASE.

After Preliminary Survey of Conditions Illinois Examiner Remarks There Is Not Much Hope, but Fate of Institution Will Be Settled After Report Is Made Tomorrow.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—The future of the Munday-Lorimer Bank—The La Salle Trust and Savings—rests upon the disclosures that will be made by the report of Bank Examiner Daniel V. Harkin, to be turned over Monday noon to State Auditor James J. Brady.

Closely intertwined with the fate of the bank itself, is the prospect of peace or trouble for the men who were responsible for the bank's affairs until it was closed by the State authorities.

Auditor Brady will reach Chicago Monday morning. The bank examiner's report will be completed after a session with the books and records, which, Mr. Harkin predicted, will require all of tonight to finish.

"Not much hope," was the short comment of Mr. Harkin at 6 o'clock this afternoon as he ended the first general survey of the conditions. The next step, he indicated, will be an application for a receivership to be made by Auditor Brady in the State courts of Cook county, some time Monday.

Opposed to this pessimistic outlook from the bank examiner, Vice-President Munday of the suspended bank breezed into his office at the bank in the morning, shot up his desk lid, pounded his first and declared he is no coward and the bank will be reopened for business without loss to anybody. President Lorimer made no statement.

As had been expected, the State Bank of Calumet, No. 10758 South Michigan avenue, one of the Lorimer-Munday string, went into the custody of a deputy of Bank Examiner Harkin.

An hour later the Southwest Savings Bank, a private concern at No. 4010 West Twenty-sixth street, was closed through an involuntary bankruptcy petition filed in the Federal Court.

On the street and in financial and political circles there was more or less talk of what would happen to the responsible officials of the bank in the event of the uncovering of conditions by the bank examination, not warranted by law.

Mary Quinlan Kuhns Brady, wife of State Auditor Brady, is an important character in the political scandal, which involves the State Auditor's office. Her suit against her husband for $50,000 for failure

William of Sweden Accused in Sensational Charges With Having Paid Marked Attention to Woman in Masked Ball at Stockholm Three Years Ago.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, June 13.—Local society is absorbed this week in a divorce suit brought by Mr. Beamish, the leading brewer of Cork, in which royalty and other blue-blooded persons are involved.

Mrs. Beamish is the daughter of Col. Campbell of the Sixteenth Rifles. In addition to her charms of face and figure, she is one-third the age of her rich husband.

Two correspondents have been designated in the suit. Beamish holds out the prospect of increasing the list by saying he might name many others should it become worth while.

Prince William of Sweden holds the center of the stage at present. His wife, Grand Duchess Pavlovna, ran away from him this year. He got a divorce and she seems to have arranged to marry the Duke of Montpensier.

The present divorce suit recalls a visit of Mrs. Beamish to Stockholm in 1911 to attend a wedding. In the papers of this case, Prince William is said to have paid her marked attention at that time. While Beamish was storming and protesting over it, the Prince invited Mrs. Beamish to a masked ball. Beamish tried to make effective a veto by the forcible detention of his wife at home. She eluded him and went with the Prince.

Some of the letters from her admirers, which have been offered in evidence in the present suit breathe torrid fevor.

"Your love scorches, burns and kills," one of them assured her.

RIOTING IN BUTTE BY UNION MINERS.

Western Federation Factions in a Real War With Each Other.

Acting Mayor of the Town, a Socialist, Is Thrown Out of a Second-Story Window and Officers of the Organization Are Knocked from Their Horses in Parade by Hurled Stones—Martial Law in Force.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUTTE (Mont.) June 13.—A crowd of Federation miners, surrounded by police, started to pull the safe of the Western Federation down Main street in an attempt to save it from rioters tonight. Four hundred rioters later took the safe from the Federation members and put it on a wagon. They carted it to the flat below the city and dynamited it after driving the Sheriff and his deputies from the ground. A wagonload of policemen stood off at a distance while the safe was being dynamited.

BUTTE (Mont.) June 13—Following an attack upon the Miners' Union parade in the business section of Butte today, members of the union under the leadership of Industrial Workers of the World, gained possession of the hall, the interior of which they completely wrecked, destroying all the records not locked within the safes.

Two boxes of dynamite were taken into the hall with the intention of blowing it up, but the plan was abandoned because dynamiting would destroy an adjoining building.

Alderman Frank Curran, a Socialist and acting Mayor of the city, who appealed to the rioters to disperse, was thrown from a second story window of the hall and suffered serious injuries.

The officers of the union escaped from the building and found refuge in the county jail, a block and a half away. Judges and clerks of election, who for more than a week have been engaged in counting the ballots cast in the miners' union election of June 2, fled from the building. The ballots and records were destroyed and the ballot boxes thrown out of the windows.

All afternoon the rioters battered away at safes, in vainly attempting to open them, with police looking on.

UNION MISMANAGEMENT.

Today's demonstration was the outcome of the walkout at the Speculator mine yesterday morning when 400 men refused to show their union cards as a protest against special assessments of the union for the benefit of strikers in other States, and against mismanagement of the organization.

The night shift of the Speculator and the men at the Black Rock mine, a property of the Butte and Superior Company, joined in the movement at night. The meeting last night was in the hands of members of the Industrial Workers of the World, who proposed a union for Butte, independent of the Western Federation.

This afternoon the committee of the seceders called on John N. Pope, manager of the North Butte Company, and James L. Bruce, manager of the Butte and Superior Company. They stated their alleged grievances against the Butte miners' union and wanted to know what their status would be

BAR VILLA AND CARRANZA FROM THE PRESIDENCY.

Neither of Two Rebel Chiefs Has Been Mentioned as a Possible Successor to Huerta by American Delegates at Niagara Falls, and a Scarcity of Men Who Can Reconcile Warring Factions Is Reported.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NIAGARA FALLS (Ont.) June 13.—The crux of the Mexican problem—the selection of a man for provisional President acceptable to all factions in Mexico and foreign governments generally—was reached today in a conference between the mediators and the American and Mexican delegates.

For more than an hour names of various individuals were discussed, but on none was there a semblance of agreement. Tomorrow there will be another conference on the same subject. Details of the peace plan are practically set aside now for the greater task of finding the man of the hour—he who can reconcile the warring factions and maintain peace while a Constitutional election is held.

It can be stated on the highest authority that the American delegates at no time have suggested the name of Gen. Villa or Gen. Carranza, and that they do not purpose doing so. They think someone whom the Constitutionalists will trust should be placed in power, but do not themselves favor a man who is so violently partisan that he might be guided by prejudice in the performance of his functions.

The American delegates have not yet suggested all the names which they think might be considered, but today's discussion has shown them that Mexicans of prominence, who have been active in the Constitutionalist party, will meet with serious opposition from the Huerta delegates. There are no indications that an agreement will be reached on the Provisional President for many days at least.

Incidentally, Gen. Carranza's note, transmitted by Rafael Zubaran, his representative in Washington, arrived today, advising the mediators that Constitutionalist delegates were on their way to the mediation conference with full instructions. The mediators made no comment on the note, but it is certain that the Constitutionalist representatives can be of much service by indicating who will or will not be acceptable, as President.

Adoption yesterday of the first protocol dealing with the transfer of authority from the hands of the present regime to a new provisional government was followed today by informal discussion of the second protocol, defining the composition of the new government, its form and personnel. Various plans are before the mediators, a commission of five with one executive, a council of three, and a provisional president and four Cabinet ministers, probably those of foreign affairs, finance, war, and interior administration.

The last plan will be insisted on by the Mexicans as more nearly in conformity with that provided by the Mexican Constitution. The American delegates realize the importance of form in this connection and probably will offer no objection to that kind of administration.

RUSSIA AND FRANCE ON VERGE OF A BREAK.

LONDON, June 13.—A St. Petersburg special says that the French Ambassador, M. Paleolgue, has created a profound sensation in diplomatic circles by announcing an authorized statement by the express wish of the Czar that the Russian government ardently desired a continuance of the three-year term of military service in France.

This Russian interference with the internal affairs of France at a moment of grave crisis brought about by this very law is regarded by diplomats as evidence of the severe tension through which the Franco-Russian alliance is passing.

Russia has insisted that France must keep a sufficient force on her eastern frontiers to hold the Germans, while Russia, with slower means of transportation, is massing troops on her own frontier.

France can do this only by continuance of the three years.

As an alternative Russia proposed that France might raise a large loan for Russia, but this idea is coldly received by France.

Owing to withholding of expected foreign capital the Rissians' trade balance is turned heavily against her. Exports do not show a growth to pay for the vast amount of capital imported in recent years.

President Poincaire is due for a week's visit in St. Petersburg in July unless the French internal crisis brings about his downfall. Anyway Franco-Russian relations are reaching a delicate, possibly dangerous state.

Fiery Gases Emitted by Lassen.

Neapolitan Fears Seize the Inhabitants of the Affected District.

Fifth Eruption in Cascades Something More Than a Mere Geyser.

Ashes and Cinders Fall from Clouds Shot High in Air by the Monster.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RED BLUFF (Cal.) June 13.—The fifth of a series of eruptions took place on Mt. Lassen this morning. Smoke was sent hundreds of feet from the crater, the earth shook, rumbling and groaning sounds were heard from below and the air was filled with a shower of small rocks, cinders and fine dust. This dust was carried on the breeze to Mineral, sixteen miles away, and was falling for some hours after the eruption.

Now both peaks of Mt. Lassen are covered by dun-colored debris that forms a line with the white snow half way down. The snow lies gleaming in the sun, while above it on the mountain everything is dark and dirty.

The party of six that left here yesterday and were on the mountain at the time the big eruption took place yesterday afternoon, were not heard of at that time, and fears were felt for their safety, particularly as the air was laden with sulphurous gases, dense enough to asphyxiate.

The party reached Mineral safely, however, but much worn out by their experience, about 9 o'clock in the forenoon, and immediately started for their homes in Red Bluff and Los Molinos. They tell a thrilling story of a narrow escape half a mile from the crater when the most terrible of all the eruptions took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

According to the members of this party, when the big eruption of yesterday took place, the mountain shot a cloud into the air a distance of several thousand feet. At first it was of a dense black color. Thick darkness followed immediately and no one could see six feet in front of him. Then gradually the color of the smoke changed to white.

All this was accompanied by terrible noises. The smoke itself was thick with sickening gases. Soon rocks and debris were flying about like rain. Some of the rocks were three hundreds pounds in weight but the most of them were the size of cobblestones.

After the big eruption had partially cleared, there still remained a shower of small cinders and dust. Now the most skeptical admit it was far more than a geyser and that the trouble on Lassen is a volcano.

The party cowered behind a ledge and this saved their lives. They camped all night on the mountain, but no more big disturbances took place.

Every one in the region of Lassen is now apprehensive and during the day it was noticed there was a big flow of stones, sand and mud from somewhere near the crater, though whether this came from the vent or whether it is simply an avalanhce displaced by the internal disturbances, is not known.

SULPHUR FUMES AND VOLCANIC ASH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINERAL (Cal.) June 13.—Sulphur fumes and volcanic ash marked today the fifth and most violent eruption of Mt. Lassen since first the snow-clad peak broke out on May 30. The scent of sulphur was strong in the air here, and ashes fell here today for the first time, at a distance of sixteen miles from the crater. The successive eruptions have been progressively furious, but those of yesterday afternoon and this morning were by far the most serious.

Forest Ranger Abbey and a party of explorers, including a moving-picture man, arrived here safe today. They witnessed both the eruption of last night and that of this morning from close range.

FOREST RANGER'S ACCOUNT.

Supervisor Rushing of the United States Forest Service, who has their report, gave the following account tonight of their observations:

"Mt. Lassen erupted at 3:45 p.m., on June 12, throwing out dense clouds of steam mixed with volcanic ash and boulders. Another eruption took place at 6:30 a.m., June 13.

"Ranger Abbey was half a mile south of the crater when it first erupted. He saw a white-crested column of steam and ashes, with a black core shoot 2000 feet into the air. The black core quickly descended and the ash-laden column of steam bent to the east and drifted in the direction of Chester.

"Huge volumes of steam continued to roll out and rocks weighing hundreds of pounds were thrown a quarter of a mile and more, riddling the roof of the forest service look-out house on the peak.

"The outbreak was accompanied by loud hissing and blowing, but there were no detonations and no lava or flames were seen, although dense fumes of sulphur were emitted. A strong wind carried the fumes and ashes away from Abbey and his party.

"The second eruption (today) was viewed by Abbey from a distance of a mile and a half. It was heavier than the first and continued for half an hour.

"Rocks could be seen falling and heard crashing to the ground. Ash-laden steam drifted twenty miles southward, reeking with sulphur and precipitating a film of ashes over the entire countryside.

"The smell of sulphur was in the air and ashes fell at Mineral, sixteen miles distant, for an hour and a half.

"Last night the crater measured one hundred by four hundred feet. Tonight it is undoubtedly larger.

"Little apprehension is felt for the safety of near-by residents. The only damage to date is the destruction of the forest service look-out station. Moving pictures were obtained of last night's eruption."

PREDICTS FALL OF CARRANZA.

Overthrow of Rebel Leader Is Hourly Expected.

Nephew of Maytorena Says Villa Is a Patriot.

Declares He Is Loyal to the Memory of Madero.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—The overthrow of Carranza as leader of the Constitutionalist forces in Mexico by practically all his supporting generals headed by Gen. Villa, is hourly expected, according to advices received in San Francisco by H. A. Maytorena, nephew of Gov. Maytorena of the State of Sonora.

With the overthrow of Carranza the policy of the Constitutionalist movement will be completely reversed, according to Maytorena's advices, and the work of Francisco Madero resumed where it was checked by his assassination in 1913.

"Carranza," said Maytorena, "has no use for the Niagara Falls mediation. He knows that if peace should be the ultimate outcome he would lose his job and his source of monumental graft would be cut off.

"Carranza is not a patriot. He is in this movement for what he can get out of it. On the other hand, Gen. Villa is a patriot of the first order. His step in receding from Carranza has more back of it than the love of fighting. Gen. Villa, although this was never before made public, is under an everlasting debt of gratitude to Francisco Madero, who saved his life in Mexico during the Madero administration.

"Villa is loyal to the memory of Madero and supports his principles as the only medium by which a lasting peace can be brought about in the republic.

"When Madero was made President, Villa was made Governor of Chihuahua. Villa resigned the position in two months when he was charged by Gen. Huerta, then under Madero at Mexico City in a military capacity, with stealing large sums of money. Villa was arrested and taken to Mexico City and lodged in solitary confinement in the prison. He was a doomed man. Madero was his friend. He asked that Villa be brought to him. Madero then told Villa to say nothing but to go north as fast as possible and make a fresh start. Madero saw that Villa was not molested in his flight. The public never heard of this incident and knew little of Villa until he took the field under Carranza.

"Now that the reign of Carranza is practically over, Gen. Angeles will institute Madero's policies and the work started by Madero will be immediately under the most able leadership in all Mexico."

Reports from the mediators were to the effect that efforts are now being made to agree on a suitable man for the Presidency of Mexico who will be acceptable to both parties.

FIERCE FIGHTING ABOUT ZACATECAS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALTILLO (Mex.) June 13.—Military operations are being pushed by the Constitutionalists with the utmost vigor. Desperate fighting continues at and about Zacatecas, which Gen. Natera assaulted two days ago. Natera's report, received here, simply states that fighting was very heavy, but gave no indication of the progress of the battle, or casualties.

After the dispatch of Gen. Carranza's note to the mediators at Niagara Falls, it was said today authoritatively that the Constitutionalists do not wish even one of their own number to become provisional President under mediation plans, providing to take office can be construed in any manner as legalizing any of Huerta's acts.

The names of the three representatives Gen. Carranza will send to Niagara Falls will not be made public and the scope of their powers will not be outlined until Carranza receives an answer from the mediators in reply to his note advising that he was waiting to send representatives.

WILL GO BACK DESPITE BRYAN.

AMERICANS AND BRITONS WILL RETURN TO PARRAL DISTICT OF MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) June 13.—Americans and Englishmen interested in properties of the Parral district were preparing today to return to Mexico and begin work. Their return was occasioned by a reduction in what had been considered a prohibitive export tax on metals as imposed by the Constitutionalist government. Gen. Carranza has rescinded his order that gold be taxed 14 per cent. and silver 6 per cent., reducing the export tariff to the former 2½ per cent. as a uniform tax.

It was understood here that the reduction had been accomplished through the efforts of the Herrera Brothers, Constitutionalist leaders of the Parral district, who had complained to Carranza that the new tax had paralyzed industry about Parral.

The investigation of the cases of the Englishman, Benton, and Bauch, the American, killed in Constitutionalist territory, has been removed to Torreon, according to official statement here today. The efforts of the Mexican commission to fix the blame of the two foreigners' deaths as yet has not resulted in any report to the Washington government, although both cases have been subject of frequent representation by the State Department.

All records of testimony already taken were sent today to Torreon. It was predicted, however, that the departure today from Torreon of Gen. Villa, in whose territory both deaths occurred, probably would delay the investigation.

Woman In the Jewel Case.

Corinne Lasser,

Woman now in San Francisco, who is said to have received a large part of the jewelry alleged to have been taken by Joseph Fischler from the A. S. Samuels Company, and who has been arrested for her alleged connection with the affair.

DEMOCRATS IN A STEW.

They Apologize to the Mexicans That Departments of Commerce and Treasury Got Confused.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NIAGARA FALLS (Ont.) June 13.—The Mexican delegates to the mediation conference today received through the three South American diplomats the formal answer of the United States government to their protest made last Sunday against the landing of arms for the Constitutionalists at Tampico from the steamer Antilla.

The Washington government in effect sets forth its regret that a misunderstanding over jurisdiction between the Departments of Commerce and Treasury gave clearance papers to the Antilla which it had not been intended she should have. The United States makes it clear that explicit instructions have since been given that no arms shall be exported to Mexico by land or sea.

YAQUIS RAID MAGDALENA.

Band of Three Hundred Said to Have Committed Many Depredations Under Chief Espinosa.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) June 13.—Several daring raids by a band of 300 Yaqui Indians, said to be part of Chief Espinosa's command, have been received here. They are reported tonight to be a short distance from Cucurpe in the Magdalena district.

The band recently sacked the village of Tuape and several other small towns and a number of ranches along the Rayon River. While hardly civilized, the Indians are possessed of a certain crude humor, as, according to advices received here, they recently surprised and overpowered a freight outfit between Mina and Toniche in the Sahuaripa district. After robbing their victims of their supply of food as well as their clothing, they forced the freighters to continue their journey with their cargo of ore.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrahoea Remedy has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use.—[Advertisement.

WOMAN ENTERTAINER HELD IN FISCHLER CASE.

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—Mrs. Corinne Houston, alias Layton, who, as an entertainer is known as Corinne Lasser, and upon whom Joseph Fischler has been showering presents of diamonds and jewelry, for the past three weeks, has been arrested as a receiver of part of the gems, the loot of the A. S. Samuels jewelry robbery.

According to the story told by the woman, she was in company with Fischler in the last few hours of his wild night carousal after he had taken $35,000 in jewels from the safe of his employers. There were many corks popping, and many bestowals of jewels, in the few hours that he was with her. These jewels were all turned over to "Jack," her husband.

"I met Fischler three weeks ago," she said, "and I never saw him before in my life. I came back from Los Angeles with my husband, Jack Houston, six weeks ago. My name is Corrinne Lasser, and I was doing theatrical work in Los Angeles when I met Jack Houston, who is also known as Jack Layton, and who is an automobile man. We were married and came to San Francisco. Three weeks ago Fischler came into the cabaret where I am an entertainer, and asked me to sing for him. At that time he told me he was a member of the firm of Samuels Jewelry Company and he gave me two diamonds to sing for him."

While Mrs. Lasser has been arrested, it is not considered probable she will be prosecuted for connection with the robbery.

been retained by the Mexico City regime. Towne has been in Washington several days, has had two conferences with President Wilson, and today was in communication with Secretary Bryan. He plans to see President Wilson again tomorrow. The New York man also was in touch during the day with the Mexican delegates at Niagara Falls.

Reports were current here today that the Huerta delegates, in view of concessions already made by them in the proceedings thus far, now were asking that the United States make some concessions in the plan proposed by them for the establishment of the new government. It is argued from the Huerta standpoint that he first yielded to the demand for his elimination and that he subsequently yielded the stipulation of his commissioners that he be permitted to name a Secretary of Foreign Affairs who would succeed him as President and then name the provisional government to be selected by the mediation conference. For the Huerta government to agree that a Constitutionalist should be made provisional President, the dictator's friends hold, would avail nothing, because the worst they could expect if they should fight the Constitutionalists to the end would be a Carranzista succession to the government.

That official conferences bearing on this point would be held here tomorrow seemed probable. In considering this point the position of the Constitutionalists will be taken into consideration, some officials averring that to set up a provisional government as a result of mediation which does not amply recognize the revolutionary forces in Mexico would avail nothing.

While the deliberations are going on, the Constitutionalist forces are continuing their advance on Mexico City.

AMERICANS RESUME WORK IN MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) June 13.—Americans and Englishmen interested in properties of the Parral district were preparing today to return to Mexico and begin work. Their return was occasioned by a reduction in what had been considered a prohibitive export tax on metals as imposed by the Constitutionalist government. Gen. Carranza has rescinded his order that gold be taxed 14 per cent. and silver 6 per cent., reducing the export tariff to the former 2½ per cent. as a uniform tax. It was understood here that the reduction had been accomplished through the efforts of the Herrera brothers, Constitutionalist leaders of the Parral district, who had complained to Carranza that the new tax had paralyzed industry about Parral.

The investigation of the cases of the Englishman, Benton, and Bauch, the American, killed in Constitutionalist territory, has been removed to Torreon, according to official statement here today. The efforts of the Mexican commission to fix the blame of the two foreigners' deaths as yet has not resulted in any report to the Washington government, although both cases have been subject of frequent representation by the State Department.

All records of testimony already taken were sent today to Torreon. It was predicted, however, that the departure today from Torreon of Gen. Villa, in whose territory both deaths occurred, probably would delay the investigation.

Anniversary Day

Candy Special—Pound of Delicious Dutch Chocolates 29c

Fresh, pure, crisp chocolates in a pleasing variety of flavored cream and nut centers.

You are invited to join us in the celebration of our 22nd birthday. Regularly each year during June we have made it a rule to hold a series of Anniversary Sales, celebrating the month of our birth. Twenty-two years ago we established our first store.

There will be a special sale each day of the week, and no two days will be alike. Furthermore, no item will be repeated during the week.

We intend to make these sales of such an interesting nature that you cannot afford to miss a single one.

Instead of the usual custom of giving souvenirs, we have deemed it advisable to celebrate the occasion by offering our patrons unusual price attractions all week.

WILLIAM FLINN SUES PARTNERS.

PITTSBURGHER SAYS HE INVESTED IN SALTED MINE.

Noted Political Boss Declares He Put Up Large Sum in Contract to Purchase Property in Sierra County and Learned Later He Had Been Fooled on Ore.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—William Flinn, Pittsburgh capitalist, filed suit in the local Superior Court to recover $26,819.14 from the Twenty-One Mining Company, and J. H. Hunt, Mansfield Lovell and T. M. Phelps, directors of the company. The plaintiff alleges that he was induced to buy the Twenty-One Mining Company's property in Sierra county after Phelps had "salted" specimens of ore in the mine.

According to the complaint, W. A. Bradley, a mining engineer, represented Flinn as purchasing agent in the Twenty-One deal. The engineer examined the mining properties of the corporation and assays of ore, but always in the presence of Phelps, who was mingling constantly with the assayers while they were at work. Bradley found the ore to assay satisfactorily and as a result Flinn entered into a contract to purchase the property for $250,000, and on the 27th of last July deposited $25,000 in the Bank of California to bind the deal.

Shortly after, Flinn avers, Bradley looked over the Twenty-One mine in the absence of Phelps, his investigation proving the ore of almost worthless grade. The plaintiff says that through Bradley he then learned that "said Phelps did then and there 'salt' and impregnate secretly said samples of ore with gold values."

Flinn declares that the directors of the company have refused to return a deposit of $25,000. He also wants $1819.14, which, he says he spent in developing the property.

PRINCE COURTS ANNA HELD.

MEMBER OF CZAR'S BODY GUARD MADLY INFATUATED WITH ACTRESS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, June 13.—The gilded doors of exclusive European courts will be thrown open for yet another actress, when Prince Paul Naklianoff of Russia, a member of the body guard of the Czar, leads Anna Held to the altar. The courtship of the Prince, who was a fellow-student of Grand Duke Cyril, is the talk of Paris.

He is showering magnificent gifts upon the actress, with whom he is madly infatuated and is urging her to name the day immediately. Miss Held said today:

"I don't believe in hasty marriages. Courtship is everything to a woman and she likes to protract it as long as possible. The report of the Prince's attention to me is quite true, but I'd rather no notice be taken of it just now, because nothing is really settled. There's a flirtation, yes; and everybody knows how nice flirtations are. Of course, the Prince, man-like, is for a hurried wedding. Look at this, it cost $180,000," she said as she lifted from a jewel case a superb pearl necklace which the Prince presented to her this week.

QUEEN MARY WORRIED.

May Leave London at Once if the Militant Suffragettes Continue Their Vicious Annoyances.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 13.—Queen Mary has decided in case of further suffragettes demonstrations in the vicinity of royalty to quit London abruptly and leave King George to finish the season alone, according to a source in close touch with the court and the government.

The Queen is represented as being in a state of nervous tension as to when and where the next suffragette will appear. She, it is said, has no intention of allowing her existence to be made unhappy by those she habitually calls the "furies."

Should the Queen be forced to carry her threat into execution, the step will create an unparalleled social sensation.

President Our Guest.

Canal have not been completed. It is expected many prominent foreigners as well as high American officials will take part.

When the many ships have made the passage and have anchored in Panama Bay fresh supplies of coal, oil and provisions will be taken aboard, and the procession will start for the north.

If all goes well the first vessels of the international fleet should pass through the Golden Gate by April 15, 1915, and the gathering of fighting craft in San Francisco Bay, where the other warships will have arrived, will be one of the mightiest ever seen.

Just how long the President will remain in San Francisco and his plans for returning to Washington have not been determined.

Familiars.

"TOM" WILSON AT PRINCETON.

THE PRESIDENT AS ONE OF THE BOYS AGAIN.

Continuous Ovation as He Walks Behind a Blaring Band and Under a Tropical Sun to the Ball Ground, Where Yale Won the Game Despite Handicaps.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) June 13.—With President Wilson—"Tommy Wilson, '79"—as the hero of the occasion, Princeton's greatest alumni day in years was celebrated here today.

From all parts of the country Princeton graduates flocked to welcome their most distinguished alumnus and former president. Beginning with his arrival at noon and lasting until his departure shortly before midnight, the President was cheered, serenaded, shaken by the hand and lionized generally. He entered into the spirit of the occasion and behaved like any other alumnus back at his alma mater.

Washington visitors started when elderly men shouted "Tommy" at the President, but Wilson only smiled and retorted by calling his old classmates by their first names and nicknames. Once or twice he was called "doctor" by some one who knew him as president of Princeton, and many hailed him as "governor."

The climax of the celebration came with the parade of the alumni, several thousand strong, from the campus to the baseball field to see Princeton play Yale. The President walked nearly a mile along dusty roads behind a blaring band and beneath a hot sun, but all the way his face was wreathed in smiles, for the march was a continuous ovation for him. As his class swung out on the field, preceded and followed by other classes, dressed in every conceivable costume from sailor suits to patriotic outfits, the thousands of spectators rose and cheered. He circled the field once with the parade and then went to his section.

The President rooted hard for Princeton and was disappointed when Yale won the game. He asked many questions about the team and joined in the college songs and yells.

Prior to the game the President took lunch at '79 quarters. Dr. C. T. Frayson, the President's naval aide and physician, was made an honorary member of '79. Others who took part in the celebration were Justice Pitney of the United States Supreme Court, Senator Pomerene of Ohio, J. R. Silliman, Vice-Consul at Saltillo, Mex., and William F. McComb, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo, who came to Princeton with the President, visited friends.

During the day and evening the President managed to shake hands with several policemen and other townspeople whom he knew. He laughed at many floats and banners, some of which bore on the Mexican situation. The class of 1907 had a camel and a sign reading, "this is no psychological reunion" and 1909 had a manikin labelled Huerta.

Behind closed doors the class of 1879 gathered tonight for a reunion dinner. The speeches were informal and reflected the Princeton spirit. The President made an address.

ican countries and throughout the world, that cannot be estimated.

"I am opposed to another feature of the foreign policy of the administration, growing out of the building of the Panama Canal. The administration is now negotiating a treaty with the republic of Colombia, which embraces an apology to that country for acts of a previous administration which call for no apology, and for the contribution of a gratuity to Colombia in the amount of $25,000,000.

"I am opposed to the policy of the present administration in Washington and elsewhere in discharging veterans of the Civil War from the civil service without cause other than their advancing age, and for denoting others and reducing their meager salaries, in order to make room for younger men and politicians.

"I am in favor of improving conditions at the National Home for Disabled Soldiers and Sailors at Santa Monica.

"Should I be nominated and elected to Congress the foregoing are some of the things that I favor, and some of the things that I oppose.

"I have been a consistent Republican from my boyhood, when I served as a private in the Union army under Lincoln and Grant, up to the time that I wrote in the names of the Taft electors on my ticket in 1912.

"I have been a citizen of California thirty-six years, and of Los Angeles more than thirty years. I have taken a personal interest and rather an active part in the growth of the city during all that time. I have served in its civic and social organizations, and am familiar with the needs of the people and commerce of the city, as affected by national legislation."

GEN. PRESCOTT STARTS.

Then something else happened of interest to the Tenth and by virtue of that to the State at large. Gen. Frank C. Prescott, an attorney in the Chamber of Commerce building, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to succeed Mr. Stephens. His announcement was greeted with a rousing resolution from the Seventy-second Assembly District Republican Club. The resolutions define Gen. Prescott as a man especially fitted for duties in Congress and for the duties of Federal legislation generally.

"I pledge my support to the regular Republican ticket at the ensuing election in any event," said Gen. Prescott.

The club which indorsed him elected E. W. Britt president and started to strengthen the organization for the whole Republican ticket.

EXCITEMENT IN EIGHTH.

While on this Congress question, be it known that there is going to be a lot of excitement, not to say mudslinging, in the Eighth District, comprising Monterey, San Benito, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and Ventura counties. E. A. Hayes represents the district now, and probably will seek re-election.

L. D. Bohnett of San Jose county announced his candidacy as a Progressive. His platform is that he was identified with the Progressive movement from the start and is proud of it. He was elected to the Assembly from Santa Clara county in 1908 and was twice re-elected and was licked for the Speakership at the 1913 session, contenting himself thereafter with the job of Progressive whip.

That Bohnett will have opposition for the Progressive nomination is shown by the statement that Frank H. Benson of Santa Clara county is to be a candidate, unless a backroom agreement is held meantime to avoid complications at the primaries. Dr. James H. Bullitt of San Jose would not take a chance at the nomination.

Up in the Fifth District, where Congressman Nolan represents a part of San Francisco, George Benham is understood to be considering an announcement that he will seek the Republican nomination.

A LOOPHOLE.

The Attorney-General's office of this State has found a loophole for Congressmen who want to remain on the job at Washington. The ruling is that they are not required to observe the letter of the primary law by coming home and swearing in their own verification deputies. Those Congressmen who seek re-election may take oath in Washington as to the appointment of deputies and the names will be gathered in just as though the candidates had been on the grounds. This ruling has been made for Atty.-Gen. Webb by Deputy Benjamin of his office.

"I heard expressions of confidence everywhere," said Robert Sweeny yesterday, upon his return from San Francisco, "that Capt. Fredericks will have no trouble winning at the primaries and that he will be elected. He is regarded up North as the logical candidate, and the enthusiasm there for him shows no bounds. The Republicans in and around San Francisco are determined to win this year and stamp out the Johnson blight. Fredericks is the man to lead the way."

OLD FRENCH WALL PAPER.

Work of the Earlier Manufacturers on Exhibition at Malmaison, Napoleon's Gift to Josephine.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, May 30.—An exhibition of wall papers manufactured in France between 1795 and 1815 has just been opened at the Malmaison, the country house near Paris which Napoleon purchased for Josephine. The French wall paper industry met its Waterloo simultaneously with Napoleon, and also at the hands of an Englishman. A Londoner, John Williams, invaded the French market after the imperial downfall and opened a wall paper factory in Paris. He turned out papers imitating marble, agate, and grained wood so much more highly finished than the work of the French makers that he drove the latter out of business. The work of the earlier French manufacturers, however, as now exhibited, was most elaborate. Many designs are practically colored wood engravings, possessing real value as works of art.

POSTMASTER ARRESTED.

Embezzlement of Five Thousand Dollars of the Money Order Funds Alleged at Stent.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—Walter P. Smith, postmaster at Stent, Tuolumne county, was arrested at the Goldenwest Hotel today, charged with embezzling about $5000 of the money order funds of his postoffice. On being removed to the Postoffice Building here Smith broke down and confessed that he had been stealing systematically since last September. At the present time, he declared he was practically broke, all of the embezzled money having gone into an unsuccessful business venture.

The disgraced official stated that he had not fled from Stent, but had simply come to this city in winding up the affairs of the general merchandise store into which he had poured most of the government's coin. Smith is about 40 years old and has a wife and three small children at Oroville.

Rioting in Butte.

now that they refused absolutely and unconditionally to admit the authority of the old union.

They were told by the two mine managers that their companies had contracts with the Butte miners' union, in which they were obliged to recognize the Western Federation, and that, until that contract has expired, they could not treat with them.

CLOSE THE SALOONS.

Early in the afternoon the police began sending hurried details enforcing the closing of all saloons, the tenderloin and roadhouses, arresting half a dozen saloon men who insisted upon remaining open. Then the police commanded all hardware dealers immediately to secrete all firearms.

Officers of the Miners' Union were dragged from the line of parade and beaten, and police who attempted to rescue them had their guns taken from them and the officers then were pitched through the nearest window. A beer bottle was broken over the head of Police Chief J. J. Murphy, who went to the rescue of an official being mobbed.

All the mines are closed down today, this being a holiday.

CITY OF BUTTE UNDER ARMED LAW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BUTTE (Mont.) June 13.—Butte tonight is virtually under armed law, with its saloons, that have not been closed in years except on election days, locked tight and with every hardware store cleared of all its arms and ammunition by the police, as the result of the series of riots during the day—Miner's Union day—the thirty-fourth anniversary of the establishment of the union in this camp. The Miners' Union, with upward of 9000 members, is divided against itself.

More than 2000 men have refused to recognize the union further, and under the leadership of agitators of the Industrial Workers of the World, the seceders from the big organization this morning attacked the Miners' Union parade, composed of more than half the labor bodies of the city.

President Bert Riley of the union, and Parade Marshal Michael Conway were knocked from their horses by a volley of stones from the rioters. Other officers of the union were chased from the line of march and took refuge in the Sheriff's office at the Courthouse.

The parade, broken up, and the speaking exercises in the theater abandoned because of the stormy street scenes, the rioters moved on the union hall in the center of the city. Every piece of furniture in the building was demolished and thrown into the streets.

A piano was thrown down a stairway the books, records and two safes of the union were thrown out. The ballot boxes containing the 4500 votes cast at the recent election of union officers, which had not yet been counted were destroyed and their contents emptied into the street.

Alderman Frank Curran, acting Mayor of the city, a Socialist, went to the union hall to appeal to the rioters to disperse and was thrown from a second-story window to the pavement. He was taken to the hospital severely injured. The mob did not cease its work of destruction until even the carpets in the big assembly hall of the union had been torn from the floor and thrown into the street.

A crowd of 10,000 persons witnessed the demonstration. Police and the Sheriff's deputies were powerless. Sheriff Driscoll went to Miners' Union hall, but soon returned to his office in the Courthouse when word came to him that union officers had taken refuge there and were about to be attacked by another section of the crowd.

Chief of Police Murphy, during the midst of the turmoil, sent out a score of officers to close all saloons. Half a dozen saloon keepers, who refused to obey were taken to jail. A warning was sent to the hardware stores to secrete all guns and ammunition. It was also decided to call off the boxing bout scheduled for this evening.

Tonight the disgruntled faction of the miners held a meeting in the auditorium to take steps toward the formation of a new miner's union under the Industrial Workers of the World organization.

ORIGIN OF THE TROUBLE.

The trouble had its origin over the dissatisfaction of the miners with heavy special assessments levied against them by the officers of the Western Federation of Miners and the local officials as benefits for the Michigan copper mine strikers. Some of the miners were said to be paying as high as $8 to $10 a month in assessments. More than $200,000 had been sent from Butte to Michigan. Although the strike here has been called off, the assessments continued. Men failing to pay the assessments were disfranchised at the recent union election.

The climax came yesterday morning when the men employed at the Speculator mine of the North Butte Company refused to exhibit their union cards to the six walking delegates of the union sent there to inspect them. The union officials informed the mine management that the men would not be allowed to go to work. The men marched down from Butte Hill and last night called out the night shift. Men from the Butte and Superior mines also joined the movement.

Today all mines were closed because of the holiday. All mining companies here hold contracts with the miners union and the managers insisted tonight that these contracts must be enforced and that they would look to the regular union to furnish the men for the mines. The seceders from the union declare that by tomorrow morning, when the mines reopen, the union will not be able to furnish more than a fraction of the number of men necessary to operate the mines and that the companies will have to look to the new organization.

Notable Ruins of Mitla.

[Chicago Inter ocean:] Oaxaca and its suburbs has an elevation of 5069 feet above sea level, population 40,000. The city was founded in 1486 and was called Huaxyaca, afterwards softened into Oaxaca by the Spaniards, who first went there in 1521. Oaxaca is an extremely pretty city, well supplied with parks and gardens, and situated at just the right altitude to be neither extremely hot nor cold.

The famous ruins of Monte Alban are within four miles of Oaxaca. These ruins are placed among the most notable of the sort in the world, and are held by competent authorities to be at least 2000 years old. The mountain on which they are situated is literally covered with remains of temples, sepulchers, platforms, open squares and other ruins, said to bear a great resemblance to those found in Egypt.

At Mitla, twenty-five miles southeast of Oaxaca, the ruins are of still more surpassing interest and beauty.

Reality.

THE IRISH LADS VOLUNTEERING.

Nationalist Army Said to Be Growing Rapidly.

Arms Now Being Smuggled in Lower Part of Island.

Clash With Carson Forces Regarded Inevitable.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, June 13.—Irish National volunteers, as a factor in the settlement of the home rule question, have become a stern, serious reality.

The Irish leaders say that in all their experience they never have known any movement in Ireland to "catch on" and spread with such rapidity and enthusiasm as the establishing of this force. It now numbers roughly 130,000, and promises to grow to over 200,000 before the year is out.

The National volunteers in Ulster are in large part fully armed, while in other parts of the country arms are being smuggled in smaller quantities.

The movement is entirely spontaneous and self-supporting, unlike that of the Ulster volunteers, who are heavily subsidized by English Unionist money and are getting $1 a day.

In England the falling off in recruiting for the regular army, despite all sorts of monetary inducements, is a source of perpetual lamentation; in Ireland a national force springs into life in a few weeks at the bidding of the leaders of patriotic sentiment.

PURPOSE OF VOLUNTEERS.

The purpose of the Irish National volunteers is to prevent the Unionists, should they come into power, from curtailing or repealing home rule or attempting to put Balfour's coercion act once more in force, as Lord Curzon and others have threatened to do. The Irish party at first discouraged, then ignored the National volunteer movement, but now it recognizes its value, and, at the suggestion of John Redmond, its Governing Committee is being placed on a representative democratic basis.

Its organizers are Col. Moore, who commanded the Connaught Rangers during the Boer War, a brother of the novelist, George Moore, and Capt. White, and of Gen. Sir George White, the heroic defender of Ladysmith.

The apparition of this formidable force, bettering the Ulster example, gives the Unionists pause. Their own position in Belfast, where the pinch of declining trade and credit is causing a panic in the commercial community, is precarious. While the business men are for accepting a compromise, Carson, who sees his career at stake, is for taking the final step of proclaiming a provisional government the day the home rule bill becomes a law.

ASQUITH STANDS FIRM.

Nothing is being done by the English political leaders toward a compromise, but there are signs that the Unionists are weakening, as Prime Minister Asquith at last declines to give way any further.

The King sent for him yesterday to consult with him about the National volunteers, whose formation is causing the gravest concern at the Palace. But, having permitted the Ulster volunteers to drill and arm, Asquith cannot interfere with the Nationals.

The bias of the military authorities in Ireland, though they are keeping quiet after their Curragh experience, is clear. The only soldier disciplined in connection with the present Irish situation is Sergt. McKenna of the artillery, for not reporting one of his men for shouting "To hell with Carson" out of a railway car window. McKenna was reduced in rank. The perennial interest in the Irish situation is increasing, as the inevitable enactment of the home rule bill into law draws nearer.

Original Neal Treatment For Drink Habit

A Perfect Three-Day Liquor Treatment Without Hypodermic Injections.

There is not a reader of this paper who does not know of relatives or friends who need help to rid themselves of the drink habit. This can be easily and quickly accomplished by taking the Neal Drink Habit Treatment at the Los Angeles Neal Institute, 945 South Olive street, or at home. The Neal Treatment is a safe, sure, vegetable remedy that eliminates the alcohol from the system and neutralizes its effect upon the body tissues. Hypodermic injections are never used. The Neal Treatment removes the craving for drink and makes sober men out of drunkards in three days' time. Call and investigate and you will be convinced. If not convenient to call, write or 'phone G. U. Neal, Manager, for full information. 'Phones: Broadway 4602; A4072. All drug habits treated. Automobile sent for patients day or night.

Diseased Kidneys Poison Blood

How to Tell Whether Your Blood Is Impregnated.

Since the kidneys are of such delicate structure and so inadequately supplied with sensitive nerves, they are quite susceptible to disease. As their function is to remove impurities, any disorder affecting them affects the whole system. Unmistakable symptoms of diseased kidneys are when you arise in the morning with dull, aching pains in your back and feel as if your night's rest had not refreshed you; when you are weak, depressed nervous or irritable; if your head aches, spots appear before your eyes or noises ring in your ears, and your appetite is poor, thirst excessive, complexion sallow; if you have indigestion, biliousness, rheumatic pains and have lost flesh rapidly—all these symptoms are due to unhealty working of the kidneys. To make your kidneys healthy and strong you should lose no time in taking Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy. It acts beneficially on the delicate tissues of the kidneys, stimulates the diseased parts, purifies the blood by increasing the circulation and awakens the torpid liver; assists in digestion and tones the system, enabling every organ to do its work properly and fully. It is sold by all druggists in 50c and $1.00 sizes. Free sample and booklet if you address Warner Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 205, Rochester, N. Y.

EVOLUTION

The Best Has Become the Worst

A great man once said the only permanent thing in life is change. Our methods of life and things in general that were right yesterday are wrong today. The pride of our mothers, viz., the family van, is now passed, along with it into the discard is the turnkey and accompany yells of yesterday dental methods.

Analgesia has taken the place of a stout man holding the patient's head, sometimes hands and feet. Now nerves can be removed, teeth extracted, filled and crowned without shock or pain and that while the patient is awake.

Teeth without plates or ordinary bridge work are now made that cannot be told from nature's own. Plates are constructed to restore natural expression and prevent shrinking gums. Teeth that were loose and gums that bleed easily have been restored to firmness and health.

This has all been accomplished by men devoting their time to one line of endeavor and exchanging ideas with others in different branches of the profession. It is easier to exchange ideas with one working in the same office; this saves time and saving time is known as efficiency.

To make themselves more efficient a number of dentists have associated themselves together at 636 South Broadway in the Orpheum Building, with Dr. Homer, where one treats pyorrhea, while another makes plates or extracts teeth, etc. Their chief interest is centered in treating pyorrhea and making teeth without plates.

Dr. Homer, Whose Address, "Why Dentists Should Advertise," Created a Mild Sensation Among Professional Men of the Old School.

Some of the more prominent so-called ethical dentists have since become advertisers.

The Doctor came into public notice about one year ago through his placing anti-pyorrhea tooth powder and mouth spray on the market, and successfully inventing and planting some platinum roots in the jaw of a toothless old man.

to rewed her after an elopement and secret marriage caused the limelight to be directed toward Auditor Brady and his official record. It developed that inefficient ward heelers had been appointed as bank examiners and chief assistants at the behest of politicians higher up. This expose is thought to have hastened the official action in closing the Chicago banks.

Mrs. Brady says the trouble began when the Sullivan wing of the Democratic party ordered her husband to get rid of her for political expediency. She quotes Brady in this order:

"Get out of here! You aren't my wife anyway!"

Mrs. Brady asserted that if the truth were known, she had been the real auditor of public accounts, as adviser, private secretary, etc., to her husband.

WITHDRAWAL OF FUNDS SUSPICIOUS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 13.—Deposits in the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank decreased over a million dollars, by withdrawals of large accounts, between June 1 and June 12, according to Daniel V. Harkin, State Bank Examiner. The bank, the president of which is William Lorimer, unseated United States Senator, was closed yesterday by the State.

Mr. Harkin said he had in preparation a list of former large depositors who withdrew their accounts since June 1. He said that about that date the deposits exceeded $5,000,000 and they had shrunk to $2,700,000 on the day the bank was closed. To meet these deposits there was less than $50,000 in the vaults. Those who made heavy withdrawals recently will be asked to explain them, the bank examiner said.

Alderman Charles E. Merriam announced today he was going to inquire what "influence" caused the Lorimer bank to carry a maximum city deposit for two years, while no municipal funds were deposited in other banks.

The closing of the five State banks was reflected in deposits of the postal savings banks. More than $30,000 was deposited today in the Main Bank in the Federal building and the forty-two branches reported large increases in the number of depositors.

While experts were examining the records of the La Salle Street Bank and three other State depositories which were closed because of their heavy accounts in the downtown bank, two other small banks closed their doors. One of them, the State Bank of Calumet, probably will be reopened next week, Mr. Harkin said. A receiver was appointed for the Southwest Savings Bank, its proprietor being compelled to cease business because all his money was in the Lorimer bank.

Thirty-five Persons Are Injured When Cars Leave Track on Memphis Line.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHAFFEE (Mo.) June 13.—Thirty-five persons were injured late today when a St. Louis and San Francisco train from Memphis to St. Louis left the track near here late today. The wreck was caused by a loose wheel on the forward truck of one of the passenger coaches.

Three Investigations of the Wreck at Bagdad.

BAGDAD (Cal.) June 13.—A rigid investigation is being made today into the cause of the disastrous wreck of the Santa Fe's California Limited here last night. Supt. J. A. Christie of the Arizona division and General Superintendent I. L. Hibbard of Los Angeles are examining the train crew and passengers.

The inquest over the bodies of B. M. Cram and Charles W. Belden, the two passengers killed in the wreck, will be held at Upland on Monday by Coroner E. P. Fuller of San Bernardino county. A hastily-summoned jury viewed the bodies as they passed through Upland early this morning. Depositions of the members of the train crew will furnish most of the evidence at the inquest.

The statements of Engineers A. Crase of the limited and J. T. Vanderbeck of the freight will be the most vital testimony at the inquest.

Members of the crew of the California Limited have been exonerated from blame by the officials, it is said. The engineer, conductor and brakeman of the freight train, which took the Bagdad switch, are alleged to have left the frogs open through which the limited plunged.

The fireman of the freight train is said to have made a heroic attempt to close the frogs in the face of the oncoming train. He realized that the switch had been left open just a second too late and the limited crashed through the breach into the unsuspecting freight train, dealing death and injury to life and great destruction to the Santa Fe's most palatial equipment.

INVESTIGATIONS TO BE CONDUCTED.

Investigations with the object of fixing responsibility for the wrecking of the Santa Fe's east-bound California Limited at Bagdad Friday night, causing the death of two persons and the injury of twenty others, will be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the California Railroad Commission. Special examiners will conduct these investigations.

In addition to the names of those given in The Times yesterday morning, the following persons sustained injuries:

Mrs. M. J. Muhs, No. 6426 Hillegoss avenue, Oakland, back injured, German Hospital.

Fred Muhs, Jr., same address, hip injured, German hospital.

W. F. King, Hotel Argonaut, Los Angeles, slightly injured, Santa Fe Hospital.

L. Pollock, brakeman, California Limited, No. 1225 West Temple street, injury to right arm, Santa Fe Hospital.

H. C. Kennedy, waiter in dining car, No. 3400 Wabash avenue, Chicago, back seriously injured, Santa Fe Hospital.

Agnes Christian, Santa Ana, bruised, continued journey to Grand Canyon.

SANTA FE INVESTIGATION.

The Santa Fe's own investigation is now under way, with Supt. J. A. Christie of Needles in charge. The salient facts appear to be that the crew of a freight train left a switch open in taking a siding at Bagdad for the limited. As the limited makes no stop at Bagdad, which is a mere dot on the desert, responsibility apparently rests on the train crew of the freight.

Bearing its freight of dead and injured, the Santa Fe relief special arrived here yesterday morning and was met by 300 persons, many of whom had either friends or relatives on the wrecked train. The injured, with the exception of three taken from the train at Pasadena, two men and a woman, who went to the German Hospital, and those who continued East, are all at the Santa Fe Hospital in this city.

The two men killed and many of the injured were in the telescoped dining car. Charles W. Belden of San Francisco, secretary and advertising manager of the Pacific Motor Publishing Company, was seated near Benjamin M. Cram, a San Francisco oil magnate. Both were killed when a sheathed-steel car tore its way into the diner. Robert J. Kerr, an oil operator of New York and London, was seated at the same table with Cram. He miraculously escaped death, though seriously injured. Kerr was on his way to New York for a conference with John Hays Hammond, mining engineer.

UNDER THE DEBRIS.

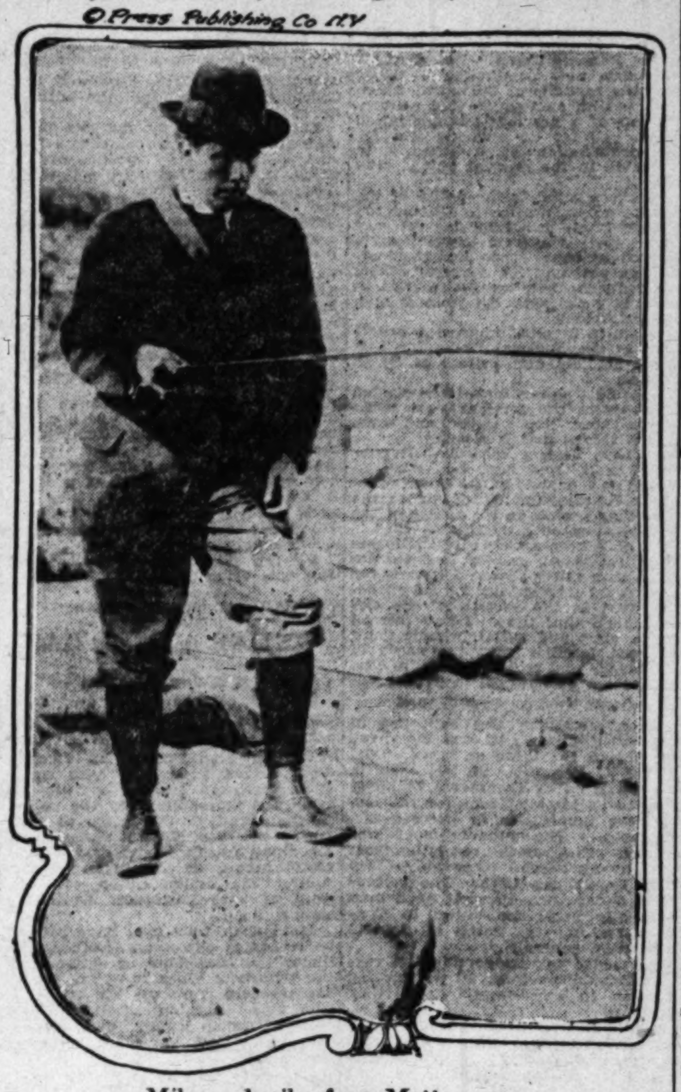
Helen Orendorff, the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Orendorff of Canton, Ill., was buried under debris, but escaped with only a few scratches, and these were made by her mother, who was pinned down and tried to kick her way free. Mrs. Orendorff, who was seriously injured about the head, was one of those taken from the relief train at Pasadena. Orendorff is secretary and treasurer of the Parlin and Orendorff Company, manufacturers of agricultural implements. He and his family were on their way home after a trip to Portland. Previously they had spent some months in Pasadena.

In spite of the damage to the big locomotive pulling the passenger train, its cab being completely ripped off, neither the engineer nor the fireman was hurt.

Conductor E. A. Barrows, No. 1638 Shatto street, this city, was one of the seriously injured, but he worked manfully extricating the injured. The engine and train crew also helped in the work, as did many of the uninjured passengers.

One of the bravest among the injured was Fred Muhs, Jr., of Oakland, a lad of 11 years. He was traveling with his mother, Mrs. M. J. Muhs, who was injured about the back. But his own injury was forgotten as he tearfully besought the rescuers to find his mother for him.

Harry K. Thaw, Luring the Festive Trout.



Miles and miles from Matteawan,

The latest picture of New York's most celebrated "lunatic" shows him in the Moose River at Gorham, N. H., in fisherman's costume, whiling away the time pending the decision which will mean either freedom, or perpetual imprisonment in the future.

Angler.

STANFORD WHITE'S SLAYER A SUCCESSFUL FISHERMAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GORHAM (N. H.) June 13.—Harry K. Thaw, dressed in the most approved costume of the angler, standing knee-deep in the gushing torrent of the Moose River, playing with the flirty speckled trout and every few minutes landing one of them for his shoulder basket, does not look the murderous lunatic that New York State has adjudged him. It is difficult to imagine that this fugitive, who is basking in the freedom and pleasures of this quiet resort, was convicted of murder and sentenced to spend his life at Matteawan. Thaw is officially under restraint here, but in reality he is as free as any boy of the village.

Thaw is living at the Mt. Madison House here, the hero of the summer boarders, the magnet of village curiosity and far and away the most spirited, enthusiastic reveller in the outdoor games. Proprietor Anderson of the hotel fitted up rooms for the fugitive in a tower of the hotel where the summer breezes blow through four windows and where the view is one of pastoral glory. Thaw came here in the "custody" of Sheriff Holeman Drew of Berlin, N. H., who, incidentally, is candidate for Governor of the State, and Deputy Clark Stevens. The latter are having just as good a time as Thaw is, enjoying the country roads in Thaw's new automobile, trout fishing with him and glorying in the porch chairs of the hotel, escaping the afternoon heat.

Thaw spends most of his time with his private secretary, H. J. Rice. Occasionally Thaw walks alone over the White Mountain trails, sometimes doing twenty miles in a day. "I love to explore these stately peaks," he said. Every morning he is knee-deep in the Moose River, branch of the Androscoggin, pursuing the elusive trout. Often he brings a string of a dozen fish back to the hotel, representative of a morning's catch. Thaw became a hero in the village when he stopped a runaway horse and rescued the wife and 5-year-old son of Farmer Harry Colby. Thaw jumped from his machine and grabbed the horse. The animal, however, made a sharp turn and upset the rig, throwing out the woman and child. Mrs. Colby was cut by her glasses and Thaw treated the wound. The boy was unhurt.

Thaw eats with the other guests at the hotel and spends hours talking with the "porch brigade." He is free with cigars and spends money lavishly in the shops. He has given money to a poor family in the town and is called "very sympathetic." Landlord Anderson said: "Thaw is a perfect gentleman and has won our esteem. We would hate to see him leave town."

THAW APPEAL FILED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Attorneys for Harry K. Thaw appealed today to the Supreme Court for permission to remove their client to Pennsylvania in the event their application for his release on bail is not granted. The court began the consideration of the latest request together with the original petition for release on bail.

permission to take possession of their belongings. These have been sold for next to nothing, in order to give the poorer people the impression that the "republic" will maintain its promise to bring back the golden age and end forever the high cost of living.

In some towns like Fabriano and Rimini scenes similar to those of the French revolution were enacted. The inhabitants, misled by reports issued from the headquarters of the anarchist committee at Ancona, an important seaport on the Adriatic, to the effect that a revolutionary movement had been successful in overthrowing the monarchy, proclaimed a republic and substituted for the national flag the black banner of the Peasants' League.

All the newspapers were burned the moment they reached those towns, in order to prevent the people from knowing the real condition of the country, as the revolutionary leaders had stated that King Victor Emmanuel had escaped to Montenegro; that the revolution had mastered the entire peninsula, and that the troops had joined with the people.

In some instances the soldiers were compelled to fire on the people before order was restored, with the result that several persons were killed or injured.

At Ancona, where the first demonstration took place, which resulted in the general strike, bluejackets from the naval division commanded by Admiral Umberto Cagni reinforced the garrison. Ancona has been a hotbed of the revolutionary movement, as the leaders have been spreading the report that King Victor Emmanuel had been forced to flee the country and that Premier Salandra was a prisoner.

The attempt of the anarchists, Republicans and Socialists to deal a death blow to monarchial institutions was frustrated because of the refusal of the railway men to bring about a strike which would have virtually paralyzed the forces of the government; because a great majority of the population refused actively to follow them, and because the army gave a fine example of loyalty.

The troops are now in control of the main centers of the insurrection—Ancona, Fabriano, Ravenna, Forlia and Parma. Train service has not been interrupted to any great extent, although many of the provinces are still infested with revolutionists who are destroying the railroad tracks, stations and bridges and damaging public buildings.

The situation has improved greatly during the last twenty-four hours, but according to Premier Salandra, the government has not yet solved the difficulty because of its desire to gather such strong forces as to be able to re-establish order with the least possible bloodshed.

The Premier, in a statement in the Chamber, gave great praise to the railway men for not joining with the revolutionists and to the troops who, although they had been insulted and often treated aggressively, withheld their fire, showing great self-control.

The latest reports indicate that even at Ancona the railway men have resumed work and all the public services are about to be re-established. Many workmen are engaged in the repair of the railway tracks and telegraph and telephone lines, and it is expected that by Monday the resumption of work will be complete.

MAY OPEN DOOR FOR CHINESE.

Canadian Government Negotiating for Treaty Which May Result in New Immigration Agreement.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) June 13.—It is understood negotiations are in progress between the Canadian government and the authorities of the new Chinese republic for the signing of an agreement in regard to the control of Chinese immigrants entering Canada.

The Chinese government, has, it is understood, intimated that it is willing to enter into some such arrangement as Japan has at the present time, which permits the entrance of 400 Japanese into Canada yearly. The agreement with the Chinese authorities may even be more rigid. At present Chinese entering into Canada pay $500 head tax.

It is believed at Ottawa that if an arrangement was made with China as with Japan it would make it easier to negotiate a similar agreement with India, through the British and Indian authorities. With an arrangement with these three countries there could not be much objection to the amendment to the immigration laws which H. H. Stevens proposes, which would exclude all Asiatics south of the fiftieth parallel, north, whose country had no immigration treaty with Canada.

TWO LINERS IN COLLISION.

PRETORIA RUNS INTO NEW YORK IN HEAVY FOG.

Passengers on Both Vessels Asleep, Are Aroused by Force of Impact and on Rushing to Decks Are Relieved to Learn that There Is No Danger.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

ON BOARD STEAMSHIP NEW YORK, Via Wireless to Siasconset, Mass., June 13.—While the American liner New York, westbound, was motionless in a heavy fog 400 miles east of Ambrose lightship, early today, the Hamburg-American liner Pretoria, bound east, ran into her and ripped a hole twelve feet high and thirty-two feet long in her port side.

The hole is flush with the main deck and is fifteen feet above the water line. So great was the force of the collision that the Pretoria's anchor was torn from her bow and left hanging inside the gap that had been torn in the New York.

Practically all of the passengers on board both ships were asleep.

Immediately after the collision, the engines of both ships were ordered full speed astern and passengers came hurrying to the decks.

The passengers of the New York were able to reach over and touch the bow of the Pretoria as she pulled away from her dangerous position. There was no panic.

Capt. Roberts and Chief Officer Turner were both on the bridge at the time of the collision. They assured the frightened passengers that there was no danger.

The Pretoria was less damaged by the collision than the New York. Several of the plates at her bow were sprung and twisted. After it was determined that no serious damage had been done, the ships proceeded on their way.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Jasper T. Darling, secretary of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Patriotism and a prominent member of the Grand Army of the Republic, complained today a Memorial Day speech he made at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln in Springfield in 1912 was repeated last Decoration Day at Arlington National Cemetery by Reed Smoot, Senator from Utah.

The complaint of Darling was contained in an open letter to Senator Smoot, a copy of which was sent by him to Washington. The letter, couched in sarcastic terms, commented on the similarity of the verbiage and particularly bewailed that a poem, the fruit of "inspiration," had been included in the Arlington speech without proper credit being given the author, Jasper T. Darling.

In simulated generosity the writer informs the Senator that he has other speeches which are "warranted to be suitable for most any patriotic occasion and especially for Memorial Day exercises," which may be had at a "very reasonable price."

Darling says in his letter that he saw the Smoot speech, which he recognized as his own, in a copy of the National Tribune, the organ of the G.A.R., issued June 4, this year.

Four pages of "Deadly parallels," showing his words and the Arlington speech, were prepared by Darling for public perusal, and in another letter the editor of the National Tribune is asked to publish his letter to Senator Smoot.

A postscript to the Smoot letter said that a copy of the Lincoln speech, as delivered by Darling, was inclosed for the perusal of the Senator.

DEATH MYSTERY DEEPER.

Maryland Authorities Unable to Obtain Any Light in Case of Woman Found Dead in Creek.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE (Md.) June 13.—John Rice, the negro arrested in the investigation of the death of Ella G. Winter, whose body was found in Curtis Creek, Monday, was released today. State's Attorney Green of Anne Arundel county said he learned nothing of importance from Rice.

Developments thus far have failed to throw any considerable light on the mystery. D. Meredith Reese, Jr., Miss Winter's intimate friend, said he had given no cause for jealousy within the last year and repeated his previous story as to their motor boat trip up the creek the night she disappeared.

MESMERIZED CLUB WOMEN.

HYPNOTIST RELEASES BOY ONLY AFTER THEY AGREED NOT TO PROSECUTE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GARY (Ind.) June 13.—Arthur Tracy, 18 years old, who was put in a "trance" under an alleged illusion that he was riding a bicycle, by a traveling hypnotist, Thursday night, was awakened early today.

The boy's actions in lying on his back and moving his feet so amused the spectators that the hypnotist refused to awaken the victim, who later was moved to a show window, where he continued pedaling.

Last night the Woman's Club of Gary caused the hypnotist's arrest.

During the night Tracy was removed to the police station and the hypnotist revived the boy after the Woman's Club had agreed not to prosecute.

SALT LAKE CITY (Utah) June 13.—Suit was filed in the District Court yesterday by two stockholders of the Utah-Idaho Elevator Company against that company, the Farmers' Grain and Milling Company of Utah, the Longmont Farmers' Milling and Elevator Company of Colorado, the Globe Grain and Milling Company of California, and several individuals, charging that the defendants and others under the control of J. K. Mullen of Denver, were conspiring illegally to control the price of wheat and other grains in California, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Nebraska and Kansas, and asking for an injunction.

It is alleged by the plaintiffs, R. F. Miller of Salt Lake, and John L. Barr of Denver, that Mullen, operating through the Colorado Milling and Elevator Company, controls about 100 mill and elevator plants in the States named.

MORE SCHOOL CHILDREN MADE HAPPY AT VENICE.

THE boys and girls from the Belle White School, No. 3701 East Side boulevard, were the guests of The Times yesterday in a beach party at Venice. There were fifty-three of them in all and each one of them took full advantage of the occasion to enjoy life at the ocean beach.

The youngsters were up early yesterday morning waiting for the big Times truck to appear. Many of them were so anxious to go that they would not even wait for breakfast, but the instant they arose from bed they clambered into their clothes and hustled out on the sidewalk to wait for the truck.

At 8 o'clock the truck left for Venice with the happy youngsters aboard. It was all the chaperones could do to keep them from pummeling one another for joy.

Upon their arrival at the beach they made one grand rush for the water. For upward of two hours they waded in the ocean, worked in the sand, raced up and down the strand, played games and enjoyed life as only happy children can.

Next came lunch, and how those children did eat! An observer remarked that the amount of food that they put away would have done credit to a crew of harvest hands at the end of a hard day's work in the fields.

Lunch over, the children were taken to the concessions. The merry-go-round caught their eyes first and nothing would do but what they have a ride, not a regular ride but a good big, long one and it was forthcoming. The manager invited them in and they rode and rode and rode.

An instructive half-hour was then put in at the museum of sea-animal life and in the lecture room listening to the tales of the barker.

After another stroll along the water's edge the return trip was made at 2 o'clock.

No Aches or Pains

Peruna Did It for Me.

"I find Peruna an excellent spring and summer medicine and am glad to call the attention of my friends to it. I know by experience that Peruna is a good medicine, and always recommend it whenever I have an opportunity. I can truthfully say that I have no traces of my old complaint, and have neither ache nor pain, and enjoy life. Words cannot express my appreciation for the good Peruna has done me."

PERUNA THE SPRING AND SUMMER MEDICINE.

"I used to get cramps in my stomach. I had sick headaches. My stomach nearly killed me. My family physician only gave me temporary relief. I got out of patience and had given up all hopes of recovery. I then wrote to Dr. Hartman and he advised me to take Peruna. I got a bottle of Peruna and commenced using it. Soon got better and am now entirely cured and feel like a new woman. Peruna is my comfort. I will never be without it." Mrs. Thomas M. Morgan, R. F. D. 2, Wadsworth, Ohio.

FALLS INTO EXCAVATION.

While waiting for a street car at Third and Alexandria streets last night, W. C. Stoss, a wealthy real estate operator, living at No. 2658 Romeo street, fell into a sewer excavation twelve feet deep and was severely bruised on the face and hands. A call was sent to the police, but before the arrival of the ambulance, Stoss discovered that he could walk out of the excavation by means of an inclined plane constructed to permit easy access to the workmen. He declined medical attention and was subsequently taken to his home by neighbors.

BURGLARS POLITE.

Upon discovering a large basket of groceries on the rear porch at the home of H. J. Butterworth, No. 809 South Ardmore street, last night burglars forced open the kitchen door and carefully laid the basket on a table. They then ransacked the house and left with $10 belonging to Mrs. Butterworth.

The "Super-Child" Has Finally Arrived.

Milton Posner,

Three-year-old boy, who lives in the Bronx, N. Y., who knows more than the average child three times his age, being able to read and write, repeat history and perform other wonderful feats of memory.

Intellect.

GOTHAM INFANT PRODIGY, ASTOUNDS HIS TEACHERS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 9.—In the Bronx district of New York City dwells an infant prodigy, whom his friends and parents predict is destined to astonish the world if he continues to acquire knowledge in the future years of his life with the facility that he has done in the first three.

Although but 3 years old, Milton Posner knows more than the average child of three times his age, reads and writes with ease and accuracy and retains in his memory facts and figures that would tax the brain of an adult.

Milton surprises with his almost uncanny knowledge even his parents. With apparent ease he can tell some of the more important events in the lives of such of the country's great men as Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. He picks out their pictures in books correctly without a minute's hesitation. After hearing a story told once, his parents say, he is able to repeat it essentially as told him weeks after having first heard it.

While other boys of Milton's age can only play with the telephone, he, like a man, is able to use it by himself. He remembers the telephone numbers and addresses of numerous friends of the family, and rarely makes a mistake in giving them.

Although this infant prodigy was not taught to read, he recently surprised his mother by reading to her aloud from an American history book. Yet with other boys of his age Milton mixes freely, joining with vim into their games and sports.

Riverside.

OPIUM JOINT RAIDED WITH BOWLS AGLOW.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, June 13.—What is regarded by State officials as the most successful opium raid attempted on the Coast in the past two years, was completed at an early hour this morning when fully $2000 worth of the poppy juice and several hundred of dollars' worth of lottery prizes, pipes and other paraphernalia were gathered up from the vegetable garden camp of the Quong Sing Company and taken, with fourteen Chinese, to the police station.

So successful were the plans of the officers that several of the celestials, one of them a woman, were caught in their bunks with opium pipes showing a red glow. Seven local officers, reinforced by Chief of Police Corrington, Roy Jones, inspector for the State Board of Pharmacy, George Walsh, his deputy, and F. H. Roberts, State inspector of drug stores, surrounded the building, breaking in upon the Chinese at the same moment at five different points.

Deputy Walsh paved the way for the haul by surprising a "lookout" stationed a short distance from the house, gagging him with a handkerchief and foiling him in his attempt to reach a rope used for signalling the inmates.

Twenty-eight boxes of opium, valued at $70 per box, were found cleverly concealed under the rafters, shielded by a bit of cloth ostensibly designed to keep out the wind.

The officers finished their work at 3 o'clock this morning. Before the day was over all of the Chinese arrested were able to secure bail and had deposited more than $3000 cash for their appearance next Monday morning to answer the charges filed against them.

BOY FOLLOWS BOX OF CANDY.

POLICE SEARCH FOR YOUTH WHO DISAPPEARED.

Father Believes His Seven-Year-Old Son Was Kidnaped by Unknown Woman, Who Led Him from Neighborhood With Offers of Candy—Mother in Arizona.

Following the disappearance of Walter Bray, 7 years old, from his home, No. 755 Wall street, early yesterday morning, a general alarm was sent out last night in the belief that the child had been kidnaped by an unknown woman who was seen leading the boy away.

Detectives detailed to make an investigation of the alleged crime discovered that the lad had been playing with Buster McDowell, 5 years old, during the morning and that a well-dressed woman of unusual height approached the children and enticed the Bray child from the neighborhood by displaying a box of fine candies.

A. A. Bray, an electrician, and the father of the child, declared last night that he had no enemies, as far as he knew, who would be likely to steal his son, but the fact that the boy has failed to return forced the conclusion that he has been stolen.

The mother is said to be visiting relatives in Arizona and the police are investigating this lead in the hope that she may be able to throw some light on the identity of the alleged kidnaper.

When last seen the Bray boy was dressed in a black shirt, striped overall trousers and wore neither hat nor shoes.

VACANT HOUSE BURNED.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed last night the three-story frame bungalow at No. 2124 Commonwealth avenue, owned by William Hoegee, involving a loss of about $1500. The house was vacant and as there were no electrical connections on the property, the fire officials are at a loss to account for the blaze.

PORTLAND (Or.) June 13.—[illegible] reached here late today that [illegible] balloon Kansas City III, carrying [illegible] Watts of St. Louis, pilot, [illegible] Fawcett, aide, had landed safely in Marion county, Oregon, [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning. [illegible] accounted for three of the four [illegible] which left Portland Thursday in a long-distance race under the [illegible] of the Aero Club of America. Not since Thursday night has [illegible] been any word to indicate the [illegible] of the Springfield.

The Kansas City III descended on [illegible] mountain slope, after a voyage without serious mishap lasting [illegible] hours, at a point nine [illegible] north of Cascade, seventy-eight [illegible] on a direct line south of Portland. Watts and Fawcett arrived today at Cascade.

[illegible] John Berry of St. Louis, pilot, and George T. Morrison, his [illegible] of the balloon Million Population Club, arrived at Oregon City today with an exciting story [illegible] disaster in a thunder [illegible] about twenty miles southeast [illegible] Thursday night. Berry [illegible] unconscious after his [illegible], which was split open 3500 [illegible] the air by a bolt of lightning, [illegible] dropped into a tree. The [illegible] balloon accounted for, the [illegible], was driven to earth and [illegible] in the same storm, but without [illegible] to its pilot and aide.

While the rain came down in a [illegible] and the lightning played [illegible] Morrison revived his companion [illegible] they hung in the tree top a [illegible] feet above the ground. At [illegible] Berry was sufficiently revived [illegible] with the aid of Morrison [illegible] the trail rope to the ground.

Before they descended, Morrison [illegible] note telling of the mishap [illegible] for aid, which he attached [illegible] carrier pigeon that arrived here [illegible].

Thousands of people throughout [illegible] mountainous region continued today to beat the densely-[illegible] slopes in search of the [illegible], which carried Roy Don[illegible] of Springfield, Ill., pilot, and [illegible] Henderson, aide.

[illegible] in Arizona Argue Re[illegible] on Traffic Should Be Based [illegible] Valuation of Terminals.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

[illegible] (Ariz.) June 13.—Argu[illegible] against the Arizona 3-cent passenger fare law, officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad, who appeared [illegible] before the State Corporation [illegible], contended that the re[illegible] on passenger traffic, intrastate [illegible] interstate, should be based upon the valuation of large terminals, [illegible] they be in the State or out. At 3 cents per mile, passengers in [illegible] would not be paying their [illegible] of the interest charges on [illegible] investments, the railroad [illegible] declared. But G. P. Bullard, Attorney-General of Arizona, raised [illegible] point that intrastate traffic de[illegible] no benefit or advantage from [illegible] terminals in other States, [illegible] therefore should not be charged [illegible] them.

BORAX SMITH FINANCING

Key Route to Be Extended From Oakland to San Jose in Plan to Rehabilitate the Properties.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—The Key route will be extended from Oakland to San Jose, at a cost of $2,125,000, if the contract entered into between W. S. Tevis and R. G. Hanford of the Realty Syndicate and George C. Moore of Detroit, who is endeavoring to refinance the properties of F. M. (Borax) Smith, assembled in the United Properties Company, is approved by the Railroad Commission, to which it was submitted today.

If the extension goes through, it will begin at Haywards, a southern suburb of Oakland. Later it is planned to have the line span a narrow reach of San Anselmo Bay to Bay Farm Island, south of Alameda, whence a ferry line would run to San Francisco direct.

The contract calls for the leasing of the new road to the San Francisco, Oakland Terminal Railways Company (Key route) and it is specified that construction shall be begun March 1, 1915, and be completed a year later.

ITALIAN BANDITS ROB AMERICAN CLUB WOMAN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, June 13.—Mrs. May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis, distinguished founder of the International Congress of Women and one of the foremost club women of the world, was drugged and robbed by bandits on a train between Vienna and Rome several nights ago.

Mrs. Sewall, who is nearly 80 years of age, is just recovering from the shock of her experience. Her countless adherents of all European nationalities are urging a movement for better protection of women on Italian railroads. The robbery of Mrs. Sewall, coming on closely after the murder of Mrs. Flavelle of Chicago, under similar circumstances, has aroused the Americans particularly.

DENIES JOHNSON ENGAGEMENT.

Daughter of Nevada Congressman Says She Is Not Betrothed to "World's Greatest Pitcher."

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—"What! I marry Walter Johnson? It's not so."

That was the exclamation of Miss Hazel Lee Roberts, daughter of Representative E. E. Roberts of Nevada, when informed today there are rumors to the effect that she and the "greatest pitcher in the world" would be wedded soon.

"Please deny it," continued Miss Roberts. Rumors of Miss Roberts's reported engagement to Johnson have been rife in Congressional society circles.

MOVIES THAT'LL NEVER MOVE.

Many Thousand Feet of Film Destroyed by Explosion and Fire in Lubin Company's Plant.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Many thousands of feet of moving-picture film were destroyed, part of the plant was wrecked and ten small dwelling-houses burned today in a fire that followed an explosion at the Lubin Manufacturing Company in this city. The value of the film and the loss on the prospective income from the pictures are estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Otherwise the property loss was about $50,000.

ANOTHER ZEPPELIN WRECK.

Big Air Cruiser Practically Broken in Two While Effecting an Emergency Landing.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

DIEDENHOFEN (Germany) June 13.—Another of the Zeppelin airships of the German army, the Z-1, was badly wrecked near here today. While trying to effect an emergency landing, the air cruiser broke at right angles behind the rear gondola. A lieutenant was injured.

The accident occurred during a flight from Cologne to Metz. The Zeppelin ran into a rainstorm and when the air vessel was within a few yards of the ground a sudden vertical gust of wind forced it violently to earth and it virtually broke in two. The airship will have to be entirely dismembered for repairs.

WOOL YOU'LL NEVER WEAR.

Great Quantity of the Material Is Destroyed in a Fire That Causes Half a Million Dollars Damage.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

SYDNEY (Australia) June 13.—Three large wharves and stores at Miller's Point, together with a great quantity of wool, were destroyed by fire today. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

CHINESE BALL FOR CONSUELO.

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH'S COMING BIG EVENT AT NEWPORT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEWPORT (R. I.) June 13.—The coming of the Duchess of Marlborough to visit her mother, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, is to be the signal for a large amount of social entertaining here in her honor. The largest affair and one that promises to be the early season feature will be the Chinese ball given by Mrs. Belmont at Marble House.

This will be in honor of the duchess and will also serve the double purpose, to open and dedicate the new Chinese theater house which Mrs. Belmont has had erected on the edge of the cliff at her estate. The ball will be Chinese in every respect. All guests will be asked to appear in Chinese costumes, and everything pertaining to the affair will be oriental as far as it is possible to have it. Mrs. Belmont has imported an embroidered Chinese robe for the affair and the duchess will bring her costume with her from England.

NOW IT'S "CHICAGO-HERALD."

Merger of Two Newspapers in the Loop District of Illinois Resurrects an Old Name.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, June 13.—When the present editor bought and consolidated The Record-Herald and The Inter-Ocean, the question immediately presented itself, "which name shall it be?" The process of absorption had brought four former papers into one. Each of the old papers had its following of friends, who undoubtedly would wish to see the combined publication under their favorite title.

Under the circumstances it was decided to leave the matter to a referendum of the readers, members of the family circle. The "Chicago-Herald" won. For the first time in journalistic history the title of a paper has been bestowed by those who read it.

A. H. RAWITZER A SUICIDE.

Head of Tent Company With Branches in Los Angeles and on Coast Takes Poison in Omaha.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OMAHA (Neb.) June 13.—Albert H. Rawitzer, head of a large tent and awning company with branches in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland, took poison today in the garage of his summer home at Carter Lake Club, near here. He died before medical aid could reach him. Rawitzer was wealthy and his family well known in society circles. His health had been poor.

Rawitzer's branch houses on the Coast were operated by his sons. He had spent most of his time on the Pacific Coast during the last three years.

ANGELENOS SEE GREAT WORK FOR EXPOSITION.

Warm Congratulations to San Diegans Are Conveyed by Glad-Handers on Special Train—Wonders Accomplished Cause Surprise—Pigeon Greets and Says Farewell to Guests—Railroad Needs Are Declared.

HOMER, the big dun pigeon that nests between the breasts of one of the naked nymphs who help support the roof of the foreign arts building at the exposition grounds, was the first of the Reception Committee to greet the Los Angeles guests who went by special train to San Diego yesterday.

The train drew into the station at the scheduled minute. There was a hush about the platform. Wonderingly, Louis M Coe, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, stepped to the pavement, followed by a squad. From above, they heard a whirring of wings, and into their midst descended Homer, bearing beneath his beak a message of welcome from the Panama California Exposition committee.

It was not the first novelty to interest the excursionists, who had gone in a special train arranged by the Chamber of Commerce, that the business men of the city might learn more intimately the magic progress of the exposition building in the south.

Before the engineer had well settled himself in his cab, the trip gave prophecy of no ordinary monotony. It was to be a lively trip, and it was.

Knees had hardly shaped their comfort in the rear of the seat ahead when the skirling of bagpipes droze dozing and dullness away. Chester Thompson's kilties, in costumes that knew the heather, drilled down the aisle of the train, and behind them came a lulling quartette of negroes primed with ragtime.

Throats began humming, feet began moving, far down the car came the brush of timed feet, and they were at it again, the tangoers, up and down the car, and up and down again, while many a wondering village passed by, and the hangers-on about the stations were given a treat.

PARADE IN STREETS.

With Homer's coming arrived the activities of the day. A band appeared from ambush, hundreds of members of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce popped forth, an avenue curbed with waiting motor cars developed, but a parade was arranged, and a parade was held. 300 Los Angeles admirers in double rank, single file, with a brass band and an acre of flag before and a bagpipe chorus aft.

Through the center of the city they traveled to the U. S. Grant Hotel, where short ceremonies were observed and the crowd launched into waiting motors to be driven to the exposition grounds.

Up the graded drives they came to view, many for the first time, the wonderwork of San Diego, a clay hacienda suddenly become a metropolitan park. Tilted depths of green, verdant with the foliage from the exposition's own nurseries, swept out from the city's skirts, and soared beyond to the eminence where rests the exposition in the building.

For it is not to be a world fair, not in any sense, as G. A. Davidson, president of the board of directors of the San Diego Panama-California Exposition earnestly expresses it. It is to be the exposition of the resources of a wonderful land, the bewildering variety of which is to be assembled in epitome, comprehensive, compact, amazing.

Up to the west entrance the motorists filed, there to view the famous Puente Cabrillo, or Bridge Cabrillo, a $200,000 viaduct of steel and concrete arched into the glories of old-world design.

Across it is a long, long view of the Canyon Cabrillo's beauty, where sheer distance and sweep compel, and the California State building is directly ahead. It is a domed structure of steel and concrete, also permanent, estimated to cost $250,000 by the State's appropriation, but exceeding that by $50,000. It is to remain there as a depository for State treasures—not financial ones.

Across from it on the main plaza is the Arts and Crafts building, built, like the union of buildings, in Spanish colonial style. It is this architecture that is the most striking feature of the exposition buildings, sitting high on the mesa.

And the buildings continue, the Foreign Arts, with its crouched maids in their nakedness supporting the roof; the Horticultural building, the Educational building.

Past these the excursionists hurried with a brief inspection, to the Southern Counties of California building, where the tables were spread for a luncheon.

INDUSTRY EVERYWHERE.

As the excursionists and their hosts sat down to eat, about them were the sounds of all industries. Sculptors were busy with their chisels, painters were posing their models, the machinery of construction was active, and from the distance were the more peaceful sounds of the landscape gardeners and the agriculturalists.

It was these things that amazed the visitors, and these that they mentioned, the speakers, when they arose under the chairmanship of President Davidson to voice their admiration.

In introducing the speakers, President Davidson reviewed the progress of the exposition, spoke of the coming of a transcontinental railroad, mentioned in definite figures the startling obstacles that had been surmounted, and aroused the hearers to a sense of the magnitude of the undertaking. And again he welcomed the guests.

Next, Louis M. Coe, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, spoke of surprise at the progress.

"We are amazed," he said. "We expected much, but not so much. We knew our brothers in San Diego were competent of mighty deeds, but not such overwhelming ones." Then he referred to the close sympathy between the business men of Los Angeles and those of San Diego.

Frank J. Belcher, the man upon whom has rested the responsibility of arranging the finances for the exposition, was then introduced.

"Money does not talk today," he said. "We have had our troubles, but they are over. We wish to tell you how enthusiastic we are at our success, and to have you share it with us."

Willis Booth, member of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and prominent banker, was next introduced. "While I am speaking," he said, I wish to pay a tribute to the man who conceived this mighty work, and pay to him my respect, and the respect of all of us. I refer to President Davidson, one of our own members of the chamber years ago, who came here and has become a Titan in achievement.

"When these courageous men came to us with their plans, we indorsed them, and this is the only exposition that the Chamber of Commerce has indorsed. Their plans were staggering; we could not credit them at first, but we saw the purposeful set of their faces, and the glint of their eyes, and we knew that here were men who could accomplish things.

"There is no envy among us. We are here to heartily congratulate you on your work, to tell you how wonderful we think you are here. You, with your splendid harbor, your spirit of progress, your undaunted courage and activity, have much to look forward to.

"But, to be great, the cities must have resources, and this great back country of ours must be developed. Already the wonderful Imperial Valley is teeming with industry.

FOR ANNEXATION.

"And here I wish to speak with the greatest seriousness. President Davidson referred to the transcontinental railroad that is soon to be yours. In the building of that railroad that means so much to the industrial future of you here and to us in the North, the line must cross forei territory. That is a grave and unfortunate condition.

"That railroad should be entirely in American soil. I think that any thoughtful and intelligent man will agree with me that we should annex to our country the land adjoining us on the south."

Great applause greeted this suggestion.

Joseph T. Scott was the last speaker.

"To be candid," he said, "we didn't believe you people when you came to us and told us that you were going to build such a place as this. We thought that you were not quite firm in your logic, but now we realize the masterful resources, the wonderful courage and patience. No one in the world can ever say that one of you was a quitter."

Afterward another survey of the grounds was made.

After auto rides through the city the party went back to the special train, ready to return to Los Angeles. As they were about to board the car a halt was called. The Los Angeles people stood wondering. Suddenly through the night came the whirr of wings, a sudden darting from above, and Homer, the big dun pigeon, had flown again from his nest between the breasts of the naked maid, and carried beneath his beak a farewell and thanks to the friends from Los Angeles.

The Hungry Hat.

[Youth's Companion:] A certain Dr. Heim, a German man of science, once stopped for luncheon at a hotel in Wiesbaden. The chair next to him was unoccupied, so he put his hat upon it and sat down. When he came to settle his account he was surprised to find that he was charged for two plates, but the head waiter insisted that he had reserved a second place, because no one could sit where his hat lay; so Dr. Heim paid without a word.

The next day he returned to the hotel, sat at the same table, and put his hat, as before, on the chair next to him. He ate a hearty meal, and as the waiter was about to clear away the dishes, he said: "Wait a minute, friend. My hat here that is also paying for a dinner is very hungry, as you may suppose, since it paid for its dinner yesterday, but didn't eat anything." With these words Heim lined his hat with a newspaper, and filled it up to the brim with bread, cookies, fruit and all sorts of good things. He then placed the bulging hat carefully under his arm, and walked out in triumph.

The lesson had a good effect, for since that time no one in that hotel has had to pay for the seat that was occupied by his hat.

"WAR IS INEVITABLE" GREEK CRIES AT TURK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ATHENS, June 13.—War between Greece and Turkey is inevitable, according to the newspaper Hestia, which is considered as voicing the majority of Greek public opinion.

The government has not as yet received any intimation of the nature of the Sublime Porte's reply to the Greek note, demanding that Turkey cease its persecution of the Greeks in Turkey and make reparation to them for the losses incurred. It is feared here that in accordance with the usual method of Turkish diplomacy, the Turkish note will contain vague promises and denials and will seek to delay a settlement. But public opinion is strongly opposed to dilatory tactics, the Hestia says, and will compel the government to insist that the persecutions cease or war will follow at once.

It is reported that there have been several encounters between Turks and Christians in the Asiatic littoral and that the Turks are concentrating arms and ammunition at various points. Several sailing vessels with Greek refugees aboard, it is also reported, have been captured by the Turks.

WHITTIER FLIES THE FIRST FLAG.

OLD GLORY SENT UP EIGHTY FEET ON HIGH POLE.

Many Ceremonials to Be Conducted in Southern California Cities—Venice Aviator to Carry Stars and Stripes Into Clouds to Wave Over Beach—Good Programmes.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, June 13.—Veterans of the Civil War and "button" boys of the Y.M.C.A. vied with each other in honoring Old Glory here this afternoon in a celebration of Flag Day that was unique. An eighty-foot steel flag-staff was placed on the highest crest of the hills in Alta Park and city officers raised the new flag to the top as soon as relay runners of the Y.M.C.A. had delivered it, starting from Central Park and making the run of seven-tenths of a mile in exactly three minutes.

As a prelude to this unique event a short programme was held in Central Park with an address by Attorney Jeff Wingert. Later, the G.A.R., presented a new flag to the city, which was received by Dr. Flanders, who in turn handed it to Walter Volkmor, champion swift-foot of the Y.M.C.A., from whom it was relayed to Mayor Maulsby and other city officials at the foot of the new flag-pole.

The local Elks' lodge will observe Flag Day tomorrow at 2:30 with a programme in the Berry-Grand. George L. Hazzard and Frank Wright will speak.

VENICE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, June 13.—The birthday of the flag will be fittingly celebrated here today. Thousands of little flags will be pinned on every coat lapel by committees of beautiful Venice maids. At the flag-raising ceremony on the lagoon, patriotic and interesting addresses will be made and other interesting features presented. When the big flag is raised to the top of the high pole, it will rise as a huge ball, bursting as it reaches its greatest height, to drop upon the crowd below thousands of tiny flags.

Thomas J. Hill will probably fly in the afternoon exercises. Pretty maidens on the beach today occupied themselves in decorating his machine with American flags for the flight.

SAN BERNARDINO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 13.—Flag Day will be generally observed tomorrow in this city, the fraternal orders holding several observances and a big celebration is to be held at Urbita Springs. The Elks, the Native Sons and the G.A.R. and W.R.C. will have flag-raising and appropriate exercises, the Native Sons to commemorate the first flag-raising in the State by hoisting aloft the bear flag of the California republic at Lugo Park.

At Urbita Springs there will be a band concert and a musical programme of solos in which Miss Grace Scott of Los Angeles will appear. W. M. Morton will make a balloon ascension and parachute drop. Silk flags will be presented to every visitor at the resort Sunday.

POMONA.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, June 13.—Pomona lodge of Elks has arranged an attractive programme for the celebration of Flag Day tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock when the Elks' Home will be formally dedicated. There will be orchestral music, vocal solos by Miss Hazel Lathrop and Mrs. Grace Starr Burditt, selections by the Ladies' Madrigal Quartette composed of Mmes. Burditt, S. F. Widener and Misses Irma Thomas and Fay Delano. The dedication of the altar will be conducted by the Grand Lodge officers and there will be the presentation of the keys to the Home and remarks by F. W. Balfour, Past Ruler. The regular ritualistic flag programme will be carried out by the officers of Pomona Lodge. The Elks' tribute to the flag will be given by Mrs. W. H. Schureman and the address on the flag will be delivered by J. Vincent Hannon of Los Angeles, a member of Pomona Lodge.

REDONDO BEACH, June 13.—Flag Day will be celebrated here tomorrow. The exercises will be begun at 2 o'clock. There will be daylight fireworks, which will consist of sending up an aerial flag 2000 feet into the air, which will unfold and float in the breeze for a few seconds, co-incident with the national salute of twenty-one guns. The band will then parade, followed by a large number of little girls gowned in white, carrying a large flag which will be presented to the Chamber of Commerce by C. H. Burnett, the former president, who will deliver an address on the "Stars and Stripes."

DASHES PLANE INTO A WALL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, June 13.—Frank Stites, the local aviator, came near being dashed to death this afternoon when his plane struck a small brick building at Wavecrest and ocean front. His motor died while he was swooping down toward Venice preparatory to landing, and as he could not land on the sand without hitting bathers, he swerved, trying to land in the middle of Wavecrest. But owing to a stiff off-sea breeze, he was blown against the building.

His machine suffered a broken wing, smashed radiator, and several other broken parts. The ligaments in Stites's right leg were badly wrenched, but other than that he suffered no serious injury, though he will not be able to fly for a week or more.

RIVALS OUTCLASSED.

The never-failing lead of The Times in advertising patronage continues to be the envy and despair of its struggling competitors.

That there is no dull season for The Times, or its readers or advertisers, is clearly indicated by the volume of advertising The Times printed last Sunday.

On the day mentioned The Times contained 10,365 inches of paid advertising, which is 3673 inches more than the total volume printed on the same date by its nearest local contemporary. In classified or "Liner" advertising alone last Sunday The Times printed 2780 more separate announcements than its nearest local contemporary, and 865 more than the aggregate number printed by the two other local Sunday papers combined.

The Times not only prints the biggest newspaper in the world every day in the year, but it is read by more members of the great middle class of home-loving and law-abiding people than any other newspaper on the Pacific Coast.

The Times' unprecedented advertising business is concrete and rock-ribbed evidence of the fact that shrewd and far-seeing merchants, business men and tradesmen concentrate their advertising in the columns of this newspaper.

The Times' superiority as an advertising medium and its permanent, far-reaching home circulation are the logical results of constantly printing a newspaper so complete in every detail that no man or woman in this field can afford to do without it.

ARSENIC SPRING AT ARROWHEAD.

Only One Other in World and This Beats It.

First Electric Train from Coast in July.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 13.—Arsenic in quantities surpassing the percentage of the only other spring of its kind in the world has been discovered in the waters of the springs at Arrowhead, north of this city, by Dr. F. C. S. Sanders of Berkeley, and as a result the resort in the local mountain foothills is expected to become one of the most famous spots in America.

According to the analysis made by Curtis & Tompkins of San Francisco, leading analytical chemists, as a result of Dr. Sanders's discovery the water at Arrowhead was found to contain one-twentieth of a grain of arsenic to the gallon, while that of the only other known spring in the world, at Bourboule, France, contains one sixty-seventh of a grain to the gallon. This latter percentage of arsenic is found in steam caves in Waterman Canyon.

Prof. Gilbert Ellis Bailey of the University of Southern California is at the Arrowhead today making an investigation of the discovery and his findings will be awaited with much interest by the medical and scientific world.

The springs at Bourboule, France, are considered to be of such value that the government has erected a sanatorium costing $3,000,000 for the benefit of the French people.

FIRST THROUGH TRAIN.

The first electric train on the Pacific Electric new line to this city will leave Los Angeles on July 11, according to the announcement today by President Paul Shoup. On that day the cities of San Bernardino, Riverside, Colton and Los Angeles will join in a monster celebration at Urbita Springs. This city will play the host and the committee, headed by Judge F. F. Oster, is now conferring with C. H. Burnett, manager of outside operations of the Pacific Electric, as to details of the celebration.

The Pacific Electric will open a sixteen-car-a-day schedule on July 11, beginning at 6 a.m., and running at intervals until midnight. The running time will be slightly in excess of two hours and rates, it is expected, will represent a slight reduction over the steam train charges for the round trip.

Prominent men of Southern California will participate in the celebration. Special cars of members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and officials of the Pacific Electric will run over the new line to the celebration at Urbita Springs on that day.

CURVE AND ANGLE READING.

Telling Character by the Thumb. Its Length, Breadth and Point Declared an Unerring Index.

[London Tit-Bits:] Just as the chin gives qualities to the face, so the thumb marks the personality of the hand and is an unerring index to a man's natural strength or weakness of character.

The man with a long, straight thumb, square at the tip, possesses good mental capacity, and can always be relied upon to carry out successfully any work with which he may be intrusted. His temperament is even and judicial; he is a born governor of men, overcomes difficulties, carries himself with dignity, and by his ability to concentrate all his faculties upon the matter in hand, combined with his tenacity of purpose, rapidly becomes a power among his fellows.

If the thumbs be long, thick and heavy at the tip, with the joints prominent, a tyrannical and cruel nature is indicated, everything being viewed from an intensely selfish standpoint. A short, straight thumb shows obstinacy and driving power. If very thick and heavy at the tip, a brutish, unreasoning disposition will be noticed.

A short thumb, tapering at the tip, denotes an inconstant, changeable nature, particularly in matters of the affections. A man with a tapering thumb cannot concentrate, and has consequently little continuity, in addition to being unpunctual and unable to work except in spurts. Such a man takes up many things, but finishes nothing properly, and often makes others suffer from his indecision. If the thumb lies close to the hand, a cautious, timid, mean nature is indicated. If the thumb curve outward at the tip, adaptability to people and circumstances is shown, accompanied by natural politeness and a tendency to make compliments. The owner is broadminded, a good conversationalist, impulsive, generous and easy going.

If the curve be very marked, and thew hole thumb stands away from the hand, extravagance and want of principle in money matters will be found, accompanied by boasting, a desire to "show off" and vain pride in any abilities or accomplishments which may be possessed. The nature is also highly impulsive, erratic and careless. If the first joint—that which forms part of the hand—be full and fleshy, a warm and affectionate nature is denoted; but if very full, sensuality lowers the character.

LONG BEACH CLAMORS FOR MAYOR'S SCALP.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, June 13.—Former Mayor C. H. Windham caused a sensation at the Council meeting last night by declaring before Mayor Whealton that his administration is in an uproar. After a severe arraignment of the Whealton municipal policies, the Mayor had not one word to say in return.

Windham declared that the finances of the city are in a worse condition than ever before; that the city faces bankruptcy because of expenditures in excess of the budget, and that such expenditures constituted a violation of the law. The former Mayor declared that Whealton violated the city charter in the appointment of the acting police chief and other officials, and the Mayor's plea that he made the appointment of Browne guaranteeing that he would be an elector in the fall was a subterfuge and a law violation.

"If, after warning you, gentlemen of the Council, to discontinue payment of illegal salary demands," said Windham, "you continue, necessary steps will be taken to stop further payment of these demands and recover salaries already paid in violation of the charter."

LONG BEACH, June 13.—Former Mayor Windham is leading a band of citizens who, appalled at the financial crisis into which the city has been precipitated by the Whealton administration, will apply for an injunction against the payment of any more alleged illegal demands.

The Mayor has appointed, in the place of city officials and city servants whom he has been instrumental in removing, persons not properly qualified to serve, according to the charter, say they. Salaries paid to these persons, said to be in violation of law, amount to hundreds of dollars. The condition of the city funds was bad enough before these expenditures were made. Now city employees may go without salaries until September, when the new tax money will begin to come in. A deficit stares the people of Long Beach in the face.

"The city finances are in terrible condition," said H. S. Callahan, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Council. "In fact, they are so bad that I ask you not to publish a report regarding them because we want to sell bonds and the buyers, hearing of strife here and of our depleted treasury, will not buy."

The City Council is determined to stop any further extravagances of the Mayor. Two demands were presented last night by the Mayor, one in favor of himself for $570.45 for civil service work, and one in favor of Sam Browne, acting police chief, for $574.75. Neither of these was ordered paid last night and they may never be paid.

Nurse in Attendance on Local Matron Herself Is Attacked by Deadly Insect—Several Doctors Work to Save Endangered Lives. Majority of Cases Are Fatal.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, June 13.—Miss Alma Aldrich, a young nurse in attendance upon Mrs. Gus Steiner, who was bitten, probably fatally, by a centipede a few days ago, was herself bitten today by a centipede and is dangerously ill. Both women are in a precarious condition.

During the first three days following the time that Mrs. Steiner was bitten four physicians were constantly with her, and no hope was held out for her recovery. During the last couple of days she seemed to improve, gaining consciousness and being able to take nourishment.

Although Miss Aldrich was not as seriously bitten as was Mrs. Steiner, centipede bites, in the majority of cases, prove fatal and much alarm is felt for her. Centipedes have been unusually active recently, and it is planned to launch a campaign here against them. They have been exceptionally numerous in the lowlands, where several persons have been bitten during the last few months.

SENATORS AND NECKTIES.

J. Ham Lewis Has Set His Colleagues Such an Example of Elegance That a Black Tie Shocked.

[Washington Correspondence Boston Advertiser:] The English ties that Senator Lewis of Illinois brought to the United States with him for distribution as gifts among the Senators have now been all received and are the cause of varying comment in the Senate wing of the Capitol. When each tie arrived with the Senator's card there was a flutter in the Senatorial offices, in anticipation of a gorgeous sight, and eagerly in the office of Senator Lodge Secretary Clark undid the bundle, only to discover—a plain plack tie.

The effect was magical, but by the reverse process. The disappointing tie was scrutinized for some inapparent signs of Lewisonian elegance, but the most that Clark has been able to say it: "Just an ordinary black tie. Even I could easily afford one of that kind." What Senator Lodge thinks is not available for publication.

Meantime the Senators have become observing students of one another's neckwear. Anybody appearing with what seems a new tie [illegible] once asked: "Is that one of Lewis'?"

And has he set a precedent? it is asked. Will all other travelers of the Senate hereafter have to come back laden with gifts for the ninety-five others?

The wonder is that Lewis selected neckties as his memorabilia and token of regard. Of course, the gift is not to be treasured according to its actual value, but rather by the spirit that prompted it. Had the Senator studied the necktie tastes of his fellow-Senators so as to tickle their necktie palates, or was he ironical?

Senator Lodge is an "elegant dresser" himself, although always in quite good taste. He has not had a penchant for black ties. Perhaps the Illinois Senator thought that the senior Massachusetts Senator needed a black tie in his collection, or, it is asked, did he mean that that is the color that best becomes Senator Lodge, and that it was a hint that he ought to wear this somberest of hues?

Meantime Lewis has come back from the London safety-at-sea conference, where he represented the United States, more of a fashion-plate than ever. He must have made the British tailors feel a wave of prosperity, and the haberdashers must have disposed of a considerable portion of their stock.

A tip of his of coming ultra-English fashion is the immense silk handkerchief in brilliant mauve that hangs from the breast pocket of his coat eight or nine inches, perhaps more. That is the way sensational dressers will adorn themselves.

WAITING DAYS FOR IMPERIAL.

Overflow Waters Spreading Over Waste Places.

Sand-Sack Bulkhead Breaks in Fresh Place.

Mexican Misunderstanding Is Smoothed Over.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, June 13.—The water situation in Imperial Valley has now resolved itself into one of watchful waiting, inasmuch as it is now believed that the water which has been pouring through the break in the levee at Volcano Lake for the past three days will not reach Encina flume for nearly ten days, as it is spreading near the desert acreages adjoining the levee.

The following telegram from Engineer McDonough, chief of the Reclamation Service, located at Denver, was received by A. A. Anderson, engineer of the irrigation district: "River at Yuma should reach 30.5 feet or slightly higher by June 16 or 17, and then fall slowly for a week."

This would indicate that the crest of the high water is yet to come for Imperial Valley. Another telegram received from S. J. Lewis of the Reclamation Service at Needles says: "River gauge is 12.4 feet and stationary. Fell 1.2 feet in last two days. Highest this year, 13.6. In my opinion will reach highest mark on 18th or 20th."

The fact that the Colorado is much wider at Needles accounts for the difference in the gauge. Reports were received here tonight that the sand-filled sacks, which have been placed at either end of the break in the Volcano Lake levee, have been washed out on one end and that the water is widening the break.

A misunderstanding on the part of the men in charge of the work at Encina flume practically stopped all work there for a while today. Depositorio A. F. Andrade, of the California Development Company in Mexico, informed J. D. Bennett, in charge, that the Mexicali court order would not permit Chief Engineer Allison, of the California Development Company in America, to do any work on the canals in Mexico.

Work was stopped but was resumed later in the day when Andrade then said that Bennett could resume and employ whom he pleased. Bennett employed Allison and is using the equipment of the American receiver.

Runabout Overturns on Grade and Pins Aged Driver Underneath; Injuries Are Serious.

W. D. Lathrop of No. 1509 Hawthorne street, Glendale, 71 years old and veteran of the Civil War, lies in the Tropico General Hospital in a critical condition as the result of an automobile accident early yesterday afternoon on Hollywood Hill, Los Feliz road.

He has three ribs and his left collar bone broken, his body bruised all over and he is suffering from internal injuries.

He had bought a new electric runabout and was taking it home from Los Angeles. He lost control of the machine as it went down the rather steep grade at Hollywood Hill and it turned turtle, pinning him underneath.

C. E. Laff of this city, who witnessed the accident, pulled the car from the old man's body and carried him to the hospital.

Dr. Boyer says he has a chance of recovery. The car is almost a total wreck.

CARNIVAL IS BIG SUCCESS.

LAST WEEK OF CELEBRATION OPENS TOMORROW.

Capt. Fredericks to Be Principal Speaktr for "Middle Atlantic States Day"—Programmes Replete With Oratory, Music and Dancing Scheduled for Each Day.

Tomorrow marks the closing week of the Carnival of States which is holding sway at Fiesta Park, Twelfth street and Grand avenue. Programmes replete with oratory, music and dancing are promised for each day, besides a number of especial attractions. Free dancing will also be an added feature. Music for the first half of each evening will be furnished by the "old fiddlers," as they played in the days when they were wont to attend the country dances.

The announcement is made that the carnival is proving a financial success, and that before the week is over the Executive Committee expects to have secured a goodly sum to pay towards its auditorium building fund.

The programme for tomorrow, which is "Middle Atlantic States Day," will be featured by a speech from Capt. Fredericks for Pennsylvania. Other speakers scheduled are: Seward A. Simons and L. G. Guernsey, for New York; Madison Marine, president of the Maryland society, and Fred M. C. Choate, who will be chairman of the day.

A double quartette of men and women in kilts, music by bag-pipers, old Scottish folk dances by Mrs. O. E. Swinerton, solos by Miss Edna Eno, selections from the chorus of 100 voices, and the baby show are a few of the other attractions.

The various States will have their days this week as follows:

Monday — New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia.

Tuesday — Canada, Hawaii and Alaska.

Wednesday—"New England Day," Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Thursday — Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota; also a second reunion for Ohio and Michigan.

Friday—Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Colorado; also a second reunion for Iowa and Illinois.

Saturday — "California Day" and great closing day, all the States uniting. The programme for the evening includes an address by Congressman Knowland for the Native Sons.

ACCOUNTANTS MEET.

The annual meeting of the State Society of Certified Public Accountants was held yesterday in the offices of the society in the Higgins building. Delegates were present from San Francisco and San Diego, as well as this city. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: president, Norman McLaren, San Francisco; vice-president, H. Ivor Thomas, Los Angeles; second vice-president, L. H. Greenhood, San Francisco; secretary, J. F. Forbes, San Francisco; directors, W. P. Musaus, Los Angeles, and William Dolge, San Francisco. The meeting next year will be held in San Francisco. In the evening, a banquet to the visiting delegates was given in the Hotel Hollenbeck. Among the delegates present were J. F. Forbes, L. H. Greenhood and H. Laws, San Francisco; W. R. Blackman, San Diego; H. Ivor Thomas, F. F. Hahn, W. P. Musaus, C. A. Baskerville, P. J. Dubell, W. F. G. Blaikie, E. H. Spencer, A. M. Loomis, J. L. Check the Symptoms of Lung Trouble

Symptoms of severe lung trouble, such as fever, night sweats and loss of weight, etc., should be checked, or serious results will follow. Eckman's Alterative has brought about many recoveries. Read this:

305 W. Thirty-sixth St., New York.

"Gentlemen:—Since I was a very young woman I was a sufferer from Bronchitis. I tried doctor after doctor, getting little or no benefit. Finally I had night sweats, weak spells and lost rapidly in weight and my doctor told me if they were not checked, I would have Consumption. Miss Mary Korhamer, who is a friend of mine, recovered after taking your Alterative, and insisted that I try it. I am now, after two years, perfectly well, strong and healthy." (Abbreviated.)

(Affidavit) MRS. ROSA VOELPEL.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by The Owl Drug Co. and leading druggists. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries.

To Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolised wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the soiling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally absorbs the scorched, discolored, freckled, withered or coarsened cuticle, bringing forth a brand new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity. An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug-store, applied nightly, like cold cream, and washed off mornings, will gradually improve the worst complexion.

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. You'll find this more refreshing than an hour's rest. It is fine for smoothing out wrinkles, even the deeper ones.

USE TWO LARGEST U. S. FLAGS MADE.

ELKS WILL CELEBRATE IN THE LODGE ROOMS THIS EVENING.

Flag day will be celebrated by Elks Lodge No. 99, at 8 o'clock this evening in the lodge rooms, Third and Olive streets. Flag day is the one day which every Elk in the order celebrates at the same time, the flag being one of the emblems of the organization.

The main hall will be decorated with two of the largest American flags ever made in this country. Dinner will be served between 6 and 8 o'clock for the members and their friends, after which the lodge will be thrown open to the public.

One of the features planned for the evening will be the formation of the Liberty Bell with the full Elk's ritualistic service. Among those who will take part in this function, which Admiral "Bob" Evans pronounces the most impressive ceremony of its kind he has ever seen, are the fallowing officers of the lodge: L. L. Broodeen, Exalted Ruler; M. F. Shannon, Esteemed Leading Knight; S. G. Kroesen, Esteemed Loyal Knight; C. C. Pyle, Esteemed Lecturing Knight; E. B. Lovie, Secretary; T. Q. Hall, Treasurer; H. L. Mull, Tyler; B. D. Rose, Esquire; Louis Tappeiner, Inner Guard; and W. A. Woodis, Chaplain.

The programme follows: Salute to flag, by detachment of "White Squadron" Drill Corps, Capt. M. Ray Costerisan, commanding; "Star Spangled Banner," California trio and audience; introductory exercises, lodge officers; prayer, Chaplain W. A. Woodis; song, "Land of Hope and Glory," Brother Earl Houk; altar service, lodge officers; cornet solo, Brother Matt Grennan, Sibley G. Pease at the organ; reading "Flag Record," Brother James S Roche; hymn, "Victorious," "Hail, Stars and Stripes," Miss Melba Melsing; tribute to the flag, Brother D. C. Casselman; flute solo, "Concertino," (C. Chaminade,) "La Carnival Russe," (Cesar Ciardi,) Jay Plowe, the eminent solo flutist, with Mrs. Tobe Newman at the piano; patriotic address, Brother Frank J. Tyrell; "America," California trio and audience; postlude.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, June 13.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.92; at 5 p.m., 29.87. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 57 deg. and 70 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 79 per cent.; 5 p.m., 72 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 5 miles; 5 p.m., south, velocity 10 miles. Highest temperature, 81 deg.; lowest, 56 deg. Rainfall for season, 23.05 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The pressure is gradually decreasing over the central portion of the United States, and it is not so warm. It is 12 deg. cooler at Pittsburgh. Temperatures exceeding 90 deg. were general in Tennessee and easterly to the coast. At Washington city, 94 deg. was registered. The extension of the western area of low pressure brought heavy rain to Nebraska, 1.16 inches falling during a thunderstorm. Thunderstorms are also reported from Montana, Iowa and Kansas. Another area of high pressure is entering the North Pacific and, in conjunction with the southwesterly area of low pressure, will give Los Angeles and vicinity continued fair weather with drying air and increased temperature during the ensuing thirty-six hours.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday; increasing temperature; northwesterly winds, backing to northerly.

For California south of the Tehachepi: Fair Sunday; warmer.

MELON CROP LARGEST EVER.

ALL VARIETIES PRODUCE WELL; PRICES IN REACH OF ALL CONSUMERS.

If you have a hankering for watermelons, get ready to appease that appetite. Southern California has the largest crop ever produced here on the way. It is 8 per cent. heavier than the average for ten years and, according to experts, there will be enough melons raised to fill 5000 railway cars, in addition to those that will be carried by wagon and auto truck.

What is true of watermelons is also true of cantaloupes, which at this time are selling at retail for as little as two for 5 cents. The acreage in cantaloupes around Los Angeles is larger than in former years and this is true of the delectable casaba and Christmas melon, which are scarcely known in other parts of the United States and for which there is a heavy eastern demand.

SOCIAL REFORM THEME.

Authority From Loyola University Will Deliver Public Lectures on Ideals of the Work.

Ideals in social reform will be thoroughly discussed in Los Angeles by the Rev. Frederic Siedenburg, S.J., director of the School of Sociology of Loyola University, Chicago, and one of the noted American authorities on matters of this character. He will arrive here during the first week of August and will deliver a two weeks' series of lectures under the auspices of the Brownson House Settlement Association at the Columbus Club auditorium.

His lectures will cover the social question; fundamental facts and principles; poverty and dependents; crime and delinquents; health and defectives; the labor problem, its legislation and betterment; immigration, the living wage and social insurance; woman and the social problem, and the real value of religion in rising to the necessities of the time. The lectures are not controversial, but educational.

Father Siedenburg is a graduate of the Universities of Berlin, Vienna and Innsbruck in social economics and has had years of practical experience in handling and helping to solve the difficult problems of the day. He has recently been appointed to the national conference of charities and corrections and the National Committee of Social Service and Economics, two great nonsectarian bodies operating in conjunction with the organizations covering this field in all parts of the United States. The local lectures will be open to the general public regardless of creed.

FOR IMMIGRANTS' WELFARE.

Federation of Catholic Societies Plans Reception for Residents Coming Here Through Canal.

Plans for looking after the welfare of the Catholic immigrants to Southern California with the opening of the Panama Canal to general shipping are well under way, directed by the Federation of Catholic Societies of this city. The organization met yesterday and perfected further arrangements.

Every possible effort will be made to divert the arrivals to the country, in order that they may not be in a measure responsible for the coming of congested tenement districts, and at the same time that they may become better men and women from their outdoor life.

Election of officers for the ensuing year was held during the meeting in the St. Joseph's parish hall, largely attended by members of organizations belonging to the federation. John Kearney was named president; Fred Herberger, first vice-president; S. A. McDonald, second vice-president; H. A. Robinson, secretary; Theodore Bussman, treasurer; Mrs. Cecilia Feeney, marshal; Rev. Theophilus Richardt, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Maynard, Mrs. Katheryn McCann and Miss Catherine Creed, directors.

Because of the growth of the city and the insistent calls for the directories, the usual tabulations of the number of Smiths and Joneses and other interesting facts in this line were not made this year. But even a superficial glance over the directory reveals a mine of information—and plenty of Smiths and Joneses.

The miscellaneous information begins at page 21 and runs through page 54. Here is to be found information about State, county and city officials, Board of Education, schools, clubs, hospitals, business buildings, halls, churches and miscellaneous organizations, and a street and avenue guide. 2 The classified business directory begins at page 2497. There are 494 more pages given up to the alphabetical directory this year than last year.

The work of compilation took six months and the territory covered, 193 square miles. In this territory every dwelling, office and factory was visited, often two and three times. The business district was combed again and again, for the tenants of our office buildings are constantly shifting, often twice or three times a year.

CONTINUED GROWTH.

But, as directory officials pointed out yesterday, the shifting in office buildings but points a moral of continued growth. In nearly every case it was found that an office room or suite deserted one day would be occupied the next. In fact, as a finale to the canvassing, a number of men were sent through the business district to correct the office-building lists and they found the number of unoccupied storerooms or offices smaller than it was on the first survey.

The estimate of 700,000 persons within the metropolitan district was made advisedly. As the Federal Census Bureau carved out this district, its limits were certain. As it is a

SMOTHERED IN MUCH VERBIAGE.

GAS ORDINANCE WILL KEEP FOLKS GUESSING.

Two Cents Cut from Price of Manufactured Gas, Forty Cents Fixed as Price for Natural Gas, but Status of the Two Elements Mixed Is Left in Doubt.

The publication this morning of the required ordinance, formally fixing the gas rates for the fiscal year of 1914-15, will complete the official proceedings in this long squabble. The ordinance was adopted by the Council yesterday by seven votes.

The rates fixed are 40 cents per 1000 cubic feet for the maximum price of natural gas, and 68 cents per 100 cubic feet for artificial, or manufactured, gas. A rate for mixed gas is eliminated. At a previous meeting the Council had decided upon a rate of 54 cents for the mixture, but it was decided to drop this out of consideration. An ordinance now in existence provides that when mixed gas is supplied, it must be from 45 to 55 per cent. natural gas.

The final conclusions were long delayed through discussions as to provisions for the use of excess gas over domestic consumption, for use by commercial and industrial concerns.

A conclusion was reached yesterday forenoon that appears to be satisfactory to the Economic and Southern California Gas Companies, but which the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation representatives were not inclined to favor.

When it went to vote, all seven members present voted for it, but Councilmen Bryant and Roberts did so under protest. Councilmen Conwell and Snowden have consistently maintained that the Council should support the rates made by the Board of Public Utilities, and rather than be parties to an action that would discredit the work of the rate-fixing board, they refrained from appearing at the Council session.

Councilmen Roberts and Bryant made a statement that they voted for the ordinance at the suggestion of the City Attorney, in order that it might become effective on June 15.

By the provisions of the ordinance, the rates fixed are maximum, and after the domestic demands are supplied, the companies may dispose of the excess gas for commercial and industrial purposes on a sliding scale, to meet the competition with other fuels, after the scale has been approved by the Board of Public Utilities.

The language of the ordinance is so abstruse and confusing, its verbiage so tangled and meaningless, that the writer of it surely doesn't tell what the situation is regarding the distribution of mixed gas to domestic consumers—the one thing in which at least nine-tenths of the people are directly interested.

HARASSING OF AN INDUSTRY.

CANTALOUPE PRODUCERS MUST NOW BE QUIZZED.

Government Subpoenas Imperial Valley Growers to Appear Before Federal Grand Jury in Chicago to Answer Charges of Violating the Sherman Act.

Deputy United States Marshal Bassett yesterday served subpoenas duces tecum upon A. G. Kornhorst and L. L. Squires of Brawley, and A. W. Phelps and Ward Chapman of this city to appear before the Federal grand jury in Chicago, that body having under investigation the inquiry in regard to the alleged violation of the Sherman law by what is called the "cantaloupe trust."

The subpoenas call for the production of the records of all regular and special meetings held by the Western Cantaloupe Exchange from August 15, 1911, to date, whether in Chicago, Los Angeles or Brawley; all records, sheets and books, showing the number of cars of cantaloupes shipped daily, their destination and ultimate consignee during the seasons 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914; all accounts of sales, freight bills, all extra icing of cars, etc.

The service demanded the production of the witness, books, records, etc., forthwith, but it is understood that the parties will not go East in obedience to the summons for several weeks.

The investigation, the growers declare, is a part of the programme of the Wilson administration to harass legitimate business enterprise. Those familiar with the workings of the Western Cantaloupe Exchange say it is built and carried on along the lines of similar organizations affecting the interests of the bean and walnut growers, that passed muster after an inquiry instituted and carried out here by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham several years ago. That investigation resulted in a recommendation on the part of the government that the methods of operation be changed in a slight degree, so as to conform not only to the letter but the spirit of the Sherman anti-trust law, and this was done. The modus operandi of the Western Cantaloupe Exchange, it is asserted, is built along the lines suggested by the Department of Justice at that time, and there is no fear of the probe now on in Chicago.

The cantaloupe growers have found it necessary to organize, within the law, for the regulation of the supply of cantaloupes, to the end that the market may not be glutted and prices drop to a ruinous figure. An intelligent and satisfactory knowledge has also been secured of localities where prices are most favorable, and this has been taken advantage of, all within the rights of the growers, they assert.

This information for the mutual use of all subscribers to the exchange has been secured through the efforts of the officials of the body, and made use of during every season that the exchange has been in existence.

That there has been any concerted or any effort to control prices of cantaloupes, is vigorously denied, and the probe of the Federal officers in Chicago, is welcomed. It will put an end forever to the unfounded charges that the cantaloupe growers are violators of the law, whereas their only offense is their organization for their mutual protection, within the Federal statutes, built along lines of law observance that were laid down when the government several years ago threatened proceedings against what were known at the time as the bean and the walnut trusts, that after a full investigation were found to exist entirely in the imaginations of a portion of the yellow press.

GOOD WOMAN PASSES.

In the death of Mrs. Francis A. Brown, who died recently at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Neilan, on Wright street, this city, a much-loved woman passed away. Her life was a modest one, but her character is symbolized as a mighty oak affording rest and comfort to all who knew her.

Better.

BABIES OF POOR GET A CHANCE.

Free Medical Aid Furnished Mothers and Infants.

Fresh Certified Milk Provided Daily for Many.

Over Six Hundred Cases Treated Last Year.

The world-wide movement for better babies is operating in Los Angeles through the City Maternity Service under the supervision of the City Health Department. This worthy charity, semi-municipal in nature, exists solely for the babies of the poor.

In the past year the maternity service has looked after the best interests of about 600 mothers and their babes, or an average of about two cases a day. The service is available for all nationalities and is free.

A number of different persons and organizations are co-operating in the work for mother and child. The medical service is supplied by Dr. Lyle G. McNeile, supervising obstetician, and a staff of thirty young doctors of the medical department of the University of Southern California, and by a corps of trained nurses.

Several women's sewing clubs are furnishing clothes for the babies. Each baby at the time of birth is furnished with a complete little wardrobe, supplemented later by other gifts of clothing. This feature of the work is under the direction of Mrs. A. N. Davidson, chairman of the Municipal Nursing Commission. Her home is at No. 997 South Western avenue.

A station at No. 737 North Broadway in charge of Miss J. I. Bund is furnishing certified milk for about twenty-five babies daily. The milk for each baby is prepared from a formula furnished by a physician. There is no stock milk at the station. Each infant gets the milk which is suited to its age and health.

A second milk station, which will be fully equipped, has been built at No. 121 South Utah street and will be ready to dispense milk within a few days.

The chances of the babies for a right start in life have been materially improved by these methods:

Preliminary instruction to mothers in personal hygiene.

Efficient medical service which eliminates the undesirable midwife.

Services of a graduate nurse who looks after the mother and instructs her how to care for her baby in regard to its bathing, food and dress.

Instructions in home sanitation.

While the city contributes to the support of the work it is largely dependent upon charity. Dr. McNeile said yesterday that the medical staff is at present in great need of a lungmotor, a mechanical respirator, which is often needed to save the lives of young babies. The cost would be about $150. He is searching for a kind-hearted person or a benevolent organization or group of individuals who will contribute this needed device.

Notices of the advantages offered by the service, printed in the English, Spanish, Italian, French and Slavonian languages, were distributed recently in the city. Following is the wording of the announcements:

"Maternity Dispensary of the Department of Medicine, University of Southern California:

"This dispensary will care for needy mothers in their homes during confinement.

"All services are under the direction of licensed physicians.

"Nurses will call on all cases.

"Emergency calls attended to at all hours, day or night.

"All services are free of charge.

"Apply to Dr. Lyle G. McNeile, Seventh-street Clinic, No. 2027 East Seventh street. Telephones, Main 9383; 60866."

Mothers who need special attention are taken to the Woman's Alliance Maternity Cottage, No. 127 South Utah street, of which Mrs. Clara Heath Yaw is the resident nurse.

GRAPEFRUIT HELD UP.

Fear of Melanose Causes State Horticultural Commission to Enforce Strict Quarantine.

The railroads have interdicted the sale of Florida grapefrut on all trains entering California for the reason that the State Horticultural Commission is enforcing a strict quarantine against the importation of any citrus fruit which may by any possibility be infested with melanose.

Melanose is close of kin to stem-end rot, a disease for which no remedy has ever been found and which yearly devastates thousands of acres of oranges, lemons, and grapefruit in Florida. Authorities believe that stem-end rot and melanose are caused by the same organism.

But a small percentage of Florida grapefruit is infected with melanose.

CALIPATRIA GETS POSTOFFICE.

The new town of Calipatria, in the Imperial Valley, through its citizens recently petitioned Washington to change the name of the Bernice postoffice and move it to Calipatria.

United States Government Inspector Low stated yesterday that the new postmaster will be appointed in thirty days and has arranged to move the postoffice from Bernice to Calipatria on Monday.

No damage whatever has been done to Calipatria on account of the Colorado River overflow. These north-end lands are in the soft belt about fifty miles from the Colorado River and are served by the new No. 3 High Line ditch, the intake of which is in America and the floods of the Colorado have not affected any of the country around Calipatria.

HOME RULE TAXATION.

R. A. Chadwick will address the Evening City Club at Christopher's tomorrow at 6 p.m., on the subject of "Home Rule Taxation."

SNAKES AND THINGS.

Twenty Thousand of Them to Be Liberated from School Museums at Close of City Schools.

The "hornie-toads," snakes and lizards will have to take a new field census, on the 25th inst., because there'll be 20,000 more of them than there were on the 24th. For why? Because June 25 is "turning loose day" in the public schools — which isn't nearly so reckless as it sounds. It only means that on that day all the school "live" boxes are to be emptied in the nearest vacant lot or field, in order that, the little creatures which have been patiently teaching the children lessons in nature study under Supervisor Edwards, will be given a vacation, under instructions sent out by Dr. Edwards yesterday.

"Can't I keep this ole snake? "Say, this hornie-toad knows me; he comes when I call him. Can't I take him home?" "Say, this here lovely trap-door spider, he follers me all 'round, an' I'm going to take him home." "This here cat ate up my white rat, so why can't I keep the cat, teacher?" These are some of the requests that will come to the teachers in the various schools, and of course where a child is sincerely attached to his school pet, he will be allowed to take it home.

WHO OWNS STRIP OF NO-MAN'S LAND?

QUESTION INVOLVING SIX ACRES TO BE SETTLED IN FRIENDLY SUIT.

A friendly altercation over the ownership of six acres of land on the east side of the river, which the Salt Lake desires to acquire for a much-needed extension of its freight yards will be staged before Judge Houser of the Superior Court the 22nd inst.

The six acres lie between Seventh and Ninth streets, about on the line of Hollenbeck avenue, and have no apparent owner, though both the city and the Simons Brick Company are claimants, the first through its pueblo rights, the second through riparian rights alleged to have accrued to it with the purchase of adjacent land.

As the land was subject to periodical overflow before the Salt Lake built its levee, the railroad company also has a shadow of title.

But the Salt Lake is ready to waive all claims provided a tangible owner can be found with whom it can negotiate for the acquisition of the property. The suit before Judge Houser is an effort to settle ownership through the medium of condemnation proceedings.

The Salt Lake owns the property on either side that which is in dispute. These strips were acquired about a year ago with an eye to the future extension of the freight yards. With the strip of no-man's land wedged between, the company claims the utilization of either is impossible.

THE MAIERS ARE WELCOMED HOME.

RETURN TO FRIENDS AFTER SIX WEEKS' TOUR TO THE EAST—"E.R." TO THE PARK.

A large company of friends gathered at the Santa Fe station yesterday afternoon to greet E. R. Maier and his mother, Mrs. Mary J. Maier and Mrs. Isabel Maier, who returned to Los Angeles on the "limited" after a six weeks' tour of the East. They visited friends in Pennsylvania and elsewhere and made many excursions through the Eastern States, having taken their automobile with them. They received many attentions along the line. Mr. Maier accompanied the Shriners to Atlanta. Immediately after their arrival here, Maier, the indefatigable president of the Venice Baseball Club, jumped into a machine and hurried to the ball park, where he was accorded an ovation. All the members of the party are in splendid health.

Rehabilitation.

OLD MINE CAMP TO LIVE AGAIN.

New Population Will Waken Sleep of Years.

Busy Village Forty Years Ago; Now Ruins.

Active Development to Be Begun at Doble.

The breath of new life is stirring the deserted mining camp of Doble. Forty years ago, after "Lucky Baldwin had made a strike there, a rush into Bear Valley followed, and soon the settlement at the foot of Gold Mountain had a population of 5000 and was the metropolis of San Bernardino county.

While the mines were yielding millions, men came from everywhere. Saloons and dance halls flourished. Painted women, gunmen and all the other figures who gave glamour and excitement to the mining camps of the early days assembled there. The population lived in tents.

The time arrived when Baldwin turned his energies to other enterprizes. The goldvein ran low. Gradually the adventurers folded their canvas and went away. The click of the glasses, the ribald laughter of rough characters, the earnest talk of men seeking gold, faded. Doble became a memory, "deserted village" on the rim of the silent desert.

Now daring capital purposes to make the almost forgotten ghost of Doble into a living thing. It appears that probably there may be another rush into Bear Valley and the old scenes may be renenacted at the foot of Gold Mountain.

The once noted camp is to be rehabilitated and its name replaced on the maps. The buildings will be remodeled and new structures erected. The population is expected to increase hundreds in a day, the whole district to feel the new life and the famous Gold Mountain Mine to again yield a treasure.

Active work toward developing the property has begun. A force of fifty men under the direction of Manager Oxman, will soon begin the effort to restore Doble to its former place of prestige in the mining world.

Doble is at the head of Baldwin Lake, about twelve miles from the pleasure resorts of Bear Valley proper, and one mile from the summit of the range.

The camp gets its water supply from Baldwin Lake. The owner of the mine has a pumping plant on the edge of this shallow body of water which is fed by the snow on Sugar Loaf Mountain and which in turn drains into Bear Lake, around which cluster a number of mountain pleasure resorts.

Capt. Delmar acquired the Gold Mountain mine property twelve years ago. The old stamp mill will be superceded by the cyanide process of ore reduction. Thirteen cyanide tanks have been installed and are ready for use.

Forest rangers are marking trees in the vicinity of Doble which may be used for cord wood. Five thousand cords of wood for use at the mine will be taken from the forest at once.

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors is preparing to open a new road to the valley from the desert side, to be known as Cushion Berry highway. The difficult grade of 25 per cent. on the present road from Victorville will be reduced to about 8 per cent.

The rehabilitation of Doble is part of a larger movement that has poured back, in recent years, much of the life that left the mining towns of the State when veins began to play out

CHILDREN PLAY IN WONDERLAND.

Henry Home Scene of Frolic on Grand Scale.

Troupe of Entertainers and "Movies" There.

Guests Have Truckload of Ponies to Ride.

Helen and John Henry, the 10-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Henry of Oak Knoll, were host and hostess yesterday afternoon at the largest and most elaborate children's party ever given in Pasadena.

The Henry home, No. 1119 Oak Knoll avenue, a mansion built with as much consideration for the pleasure of the children as for the comfort of their parents, the top floor of which is a private motion-picture theater, was the youngsters' for the day, and sixty-four boys and girls from Oak Knoll, Orange Grove avenue and other fashionable parts of Pasadena and Los Angeles were present. A large retinue of professional entertainers, including an entire theatrical troupe, provided them with amusement. A truckload of Shetland ponies were also supplied, and the large grounds about the house were converted into a juvenile Midway Plaisance for the day.

The afternoon's pleasures began with a circus on the lawn, followed by the feats of a wonderful magician who drew guineapigs from children's pockets and burned their handkerchiefs in a silk hat without injuring either, and who was put to a test no magician ever experienced to escape the sharp eyes of his onlookers; and, in their turn, an acrobat, a clown, a Punch-and-July show and no end of other amusements. The greensward was dotted with the tents of fortune-tellers and wonder-workers, and finally, supper was served at many small tables on the grass.

The kewpie doll was the motif and decorated tablecloths, napkins and all. They were also used for favors, the children finding their partners by matching the sashes that adorned them.

After the supper the entire party ascended to the motion-picture theater, where wonderful stories of fairy tales and adventure were depicted.

The costumes of the children were elaborate. The streets about the house were lined with automobiles. Many of the fathers and mothers also attended to look on at the merrymaking.

Mrs. Henry, who is the wife of one of the largest paper manufacturers in the country, and who since they established their winter home at Pasadena, several years ago, has made it a point to see that the children of Oak Knoll have their share of society affairs, was assisted yesterday by Mrs. Everet W. Adams, Mrs. F. Mason Baker, Mrs. L. P. Hitchcock, Mrs. R. C. Holbert, Mrs. Don C. Porter, Mrs. Elmer Gray, Mrs. Paul Holm and Mrs. C. W. Pitcairn.

Arraignment.

CONSISTENTLY VIOLATES 'EM.

ALL CARDINAL BUSINESS RULES HONORED IN BREACH.

"Efficiency" Burks Flays Municipal Management in Los Angeles—Special Fitness Not Basis of Appointment—Officials Shackled Rather Than Trusted.

Jesse D. Burks, head of the Municipal Efficiency Commission, addressed the City Club yesterday on the subject of "Business Methods in Public Business."

The speaker set forth the conditions of the present organization of the municipal government on lines which he recently exploited in The Times, and declared that these conditions make it difficult or impossible for city officials, however high their ability, to make good according to modern business standards.

Burks declared that the most highly developed private enterprises today are organized in accordance with seven well-defined principles, and that these principles of organization are consistently violated by the city government of Los Angeles. He said:

"The number of elective officers is larger than citizen-stockholders can intelligently elect. Important groups of citizen-stockholders are practically disfranchised by having no representation in the Council board of of directors. The Council board is made accountable for many matters of administrative detail, which causes confusion and divided responsibility to the citizen-stockholders. Administrative responsibility is dissipated and scattered as between the Mayor, the Council, twenty commissions and twenty department heads, not responsible to commissions. There is overlapping, illogical classification of municipal functions. Special fitness is not uniformly the basis of appointment and cannot be under a system of disintegrated authority. Highly-paid officials are performing duties of a routine character that might be better performed by subordinate employees at lower salary cost.

"Los Angeles, like most other American cities, has developed its organization on the theory that its officers ought to be shackled rather than trusted. Private enterprise has been so organized as to encourage initiative, centralize authority, place a premium on economy, efficiency and fidelity and a discount on waste, incompetence and dishonesty.

"The only way to correct defective organization is to reorganize. The business reorganization of the municipality is therefore one of the most urgent problems to which citizens and officials of Los Angeles will be called upon to solve during the next few years."

SEARCH CITY FOR BIRD.

Sunning on Fire Escape, Canary Escapes—Woman and Hotel Management Hunt in Vain.

A canary bird was the object of an extensive search in the downtown district yesterday by Mrs. C. B. Boyne, a visitor from Omaha. She brought the pet all the way from home for fear that the cat might get it while she was away.

Mrs. Boyne gave the bird a bath yesterday morning and placed the cage in the sun on the fire escape at the Hayward. Somehow the bird escaped.

When Mrs. Boyne discovered her loss she immediately notified the management of the hotel and began a search in the neighborhood. Mrs Boyne continued her quest along Broadway and other downtown streets without success.

MUST WEAR MORE CLOTHES.

Prosecutor Warns Manager of Theater that Female Costumes Exhibited Are too Scant.

Because of objection to costuming of girls appearing on the stage, which he said was in instances much too scant, the City Prosecutor yesterday warned the management of the Princess Theater, First street between Main and Spring, that the performance should be modified. One of the girls, said McKeeby, was so scantily dressed that it was becoming a matter of comment about town.

"Such performances can no longer take place in Los Angeles," he said. "It would be well for all theater managers to take warning. I do not think it will work a hardship on any place of amusement."

LIBEL BRITISH SHIP.

Two libels in admiralty against the British ship Pectan, Capt. G. H. McKenzie, commanding, were filed in the United States District Court yesterday, growing out of the boiler explosion that occurred on the vessel while lying in this harbor last Tuesday. One action is in behalf of Roland A. Moberly, by his next friend, Etta Smith, and the other for Leon Kiihl, by his next friend, Otto Kiihl, both boys being minors. They were severely burned when the water was turned into the boilers through the alleged negligence of an employee of the company owning the vessel, and in each case, $15,000 is asked. A libel of the boat, its tackle and equipment, for the payment of the damages, is prayed for.

POLICE JUDGE ASKS INDEMNITY.

INSURANCE ADJUSTORS REFUSE TO ALLOW CLAIMS NOT COVERING WORK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PONOMA, June 12.—Police Judge John A. Gallup, who was knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile a while ago, as he was crossing Second street, and who has been making strenuous efforts to collect indemnity accident insurance which he claims is due him under the terms of the employers' liability insurance carried by this city in accordance with the recent State provisions, has just learned that it will be about two months before the State Railroad Commission, to which body he carried his grievance, will decide upon the matter.

The city pays annually hundreds of dollars in premiums to the State indemnity insurance department, to protect its employees against accident, and when Judge Gallup put in his claim for damages, it was promptly denied by the State expert adjusters on the grounds that he was not at his desk in the City Hall when the accident occurred. Judge Gallup claims that he was performing a part of his official duties when he was struck by the motor car and therefore believes that he is entitled to compensation.

Since the denial of Judge Gallup's claim by the insurance adjusters, the City Councilmen and other City Hall employees are wondering what their State insurance policies amount to, if they are only insured against accident when sitting quietly in their office chairs at their desks in the City Hall.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Children's day will be generally celebrated in most of the church Sunday-schools here tomorrow, and it is estimated that 3500 kiddies will attend the services. Special programmes have been arranged at the First Presbyterian Church, in which there will be a number of recitations and songs by the little folks. There will also be special exercises at the First Methodist, First Baptist, Christian and Pilgrim Congregational churches. In the afternoon at the churches there will be special baptismal services for the little folks. Many of the Sunday-school classes have been rehearsing for weeks for the exercises of children's day.

This city is about ready to call for bids for the $150,000 worth of street paving provided for in the recent bond election. It is hoped that the work will be under way by August 1. Contractor L. Fleming is progressing well with the paving work on West First street, and Street Superintendent Baker has completed the repairing of all of the roadways which were washed out during the February floods, including parts of Grand, East End, Franklin avenues and Phillips boulevard.

Vacation Days.

"TIMES" COOKING SCHOOL CLOSES FOR THE SEASON.

TWO hundred pupils yesterday afternoon attested to the popularity of Mrs. Bertha Haffner-Ginger when at the close of the lesson they voted her their thanks and gave her a rousing cheer at The Times School of Domestic Science.

Yesterday was the closing session of the spring term of the cooking school and the large attendance on such a warm afternoon proved that the housewives have been pleased with the series of lessons given by the clever instructor.

So popular have been the lessons that Mrs. Haffner-Ginger has been urged to continue a series of private lessons in The Times modern kitchen. These lessons will not be connected with the paper, but as this kitchen is such an attractive place, Mrs. Haffner-Ginger could not find a more popular location for her private school. The private school will be conducted on Thursday of each week and will be in two sessions, one from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and the other from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Thus, those wishing to bring a lunch can come for the morning session and remain for the afternoon lesson if they desire. Terms can be had by telephoning Mrs. Haffner-Ginger at her home in Glendale or at The Times Building.

The twelve-pound fruit cake which Mrs. Haffner-Ginger mixed and baked for the class yesterday was a decided success. There were seventeen ingredients, and the cake gave forth a most appetizing odor, while baking and made the class all hungry for a slice of the mocha cake, which had been baked the early part of the lesson. This lovely cake was served with a cup of the Earl Cowan Company's coffee, Stoll brand, and was, of course, baked in one of Mrs. Haffner-Ginger's patent cake pans, which allow such perfect baking of loaf cakes.

Among the fruits used in the fruit cake, which is not to be cut until Christmas, are citron, candied lemon and orange peel, figs, sultana raisins, currants, English walnuts, blanched almonds and preserves. For the moistening of the cake, only brandy and sherry was used, Mrs. Haffner-Ginger explaining the reason why these liquors kept the cake moist and by escaping "cured" it so that by the holiday season it would be quite the most delicious dessert imaginable. The big fruit cake took five hours for the baking, so the class did not see it when it was taken, brown and steaming, from the oven—the perfection of cake baking.

The cooking lessons, which have been held three times a week, have been very popular, and the attendance has never dropped below 100 and has averaged close to 200 for every lesson, but the warm season means that many families will move to the beaches and mountains, so the vacation was called.

Notice will be given two weeks before the re-opening of The Times School of Domestic Science.

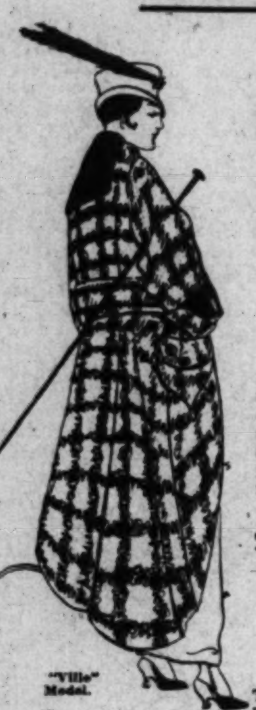
NOBBY NEW COATS



"Ville" Model.

Early Fall Models

Although the calendar points to June time, we are showing advance Fall models in coats for street and motor wear. The new styles are very chic, the distinguishing features are longer coats that are very full around the bottom. Also capes and coat-capes are decidedly modish. Plaids are very fashionable; note the sketch of a "Ville" Smart Model on left. White chinchilla, checks, mixtures and plain colored cloakings are very desirable fabrics. Prices range $12.50, $15.00, $18.50, $22.50 to $45.00.

New Summer Dresses

$6.50, $8.50, $12.50 and Up to $35.00

Dainty and Cool Frocks for Women and Misses

A very attractive collection of pretty Summer dresses, made from the most fashionable materials, including figured voile, dimity, ratine, plain or figured crepes, linen, and crepe ratine. They are designed in the latest modes, with the fashionable long or short tunics. Many have contrasting colored collars and cuffs. Others have net or lace collars or frills, that add such a soft and pleasing effect. Some have white batiste vest and high collar. We show many dainty frocks in the popular black and white effects—

IT EATS DIRT

An Inexpensive, Efficient Drudgery Eliminator

$32.50

THE Invincible Mfg. Co., makers of the celebrated Vacuum Systems that are preferred by the United States Government, perfected the "Invincible Baby" to meet the demand for an efficient cleaner at a moderate price.

The "Invincible Baby"

The "Invincible Baby" is light, easy to manipulate, and sure in results. Weighing only 10 pounds, it can be easily carried from room to room. It runs over the carpets easier than a carpet sweeper. Constructed of aluminum, it is durable and easy to clean. This splendid little Cleaner differs from the larger and more expensive members of the "Invincible Family" only in power and capacity. Its suction is amply powerful to clean any household thoroughly without the use of brooms or brushes. Tools can be attached for cleaning walls, curtains, etc.

If you are in the market for a low-priced Vacuum Cleaner, come to our Display Rooms and let us demonstrate the "Invincible Baby." In no other Cleaner at anywhere near its price will you get so much value.

323 SOUTH SPRING ST

323 SOUTH SPRING STREET

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

After about five years of effort plans have been carried through that will open Santa Barbara avenue as a thoroughfare for a distance of about four miles, Hoover street is to be widened, railway tracks moved and brought to grade, and a large area of territory in the southwest is to be given convenient outlets.

The City Engineer has sent to the Board of Public Works a statement on the use of Beacon street as a part of the projected harbor boulevard. He objects to the use of this street as a permanent part of this boulevard.

The inner workings of a bunco gang that operated at Redondo Beach were told yesterday by victims, who were witnesses in the trial of an alleged leader of the swindlers. It was a story of the new friend, a "sure thing" horse and a telegraph instrument in a back room.

At the City Hall.

SANTA BARBARA FINE AVENUE.

OPENING IS EFFECTED WITHOUT COSTLY CONDEMNATION.

Work on Project Begun Almost Five Years Ago Culminates in Property Owners Deeding to City Necessary Lands for Opening of Large District in Southwest.

Efforts to open up through streets that will give convenient access to a large area in the southwestern part of the city have been in progress for about five years, and during the past week have been brought to a successful culmination, mainly through the persistent efforts of J. R. Prince, chief draftsman of the City Engineer's office. Prince has been giving much attention to this enterprise for about four years, and largely through his efforts conditions have been brought about whereby the property owners have dedicated to the city lands necessary for the opening of Santa Barbara avenue.

Thus is avoided the expenses of condemnation proceedings and it is estimated that probably more than $200,000 has been saved to the property owners of the entire district through this action. In addition to this, Santa Barbara is in the way of becoming a very important thoroughfare and is now opened up from the western city limits to Griffith avenue, a distance of about four miles. Plans are about completed for its improvement and paving.

The new section of the street extends from Grand avenue to Vermont avenue. The highway will be ninety feet in width from Figueroa street to the western city limits.

The maps have been placed on record during the past week, dedicating the necessary lands for this opening.

The proceedings have also been carried through for an eighty-foot width of Hoover street from Santa Barbara avenue to Vernon avenue, and Menlo avenue is made sixty feet wide from Santa Barbara avenue to Exposition Park. The street railway is to be moved twenty feet to the north on Santa Barbara avenue and to the west on Hoover and is to be lowered to official grade.

HARBOR BOULEVARD. BEACON-STREET OBJECTION.

The City Engineer has sent to the Board of Public Works a statement in regard to the use of Beacon street as a portion of the Harbor boulevard, in which he states that he considers this plan objectionable.

This communication is based on the movement proposing to widen Beacon street from Seventh street to Crescent avenue, San Pedro, and using such portion as a boulevard to reach the outer harbor.

The proposed boulevard would also necessitate the widening of Front street from Fourth street to the San Pedro City Hall. The City Engineer says that this portion of the proposed Beacon-street boulevard is in part within the lines of the boulevard along the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks, as contemplated by the Board of Harbor Commissioners, and for which condemnation proceedings are now pending. He believes it would complicate matters to start other proceedings. The City Engineer says:

"In my opinion the boulevard to the Outer Harbor should be as direct as possible, and the jog from Front street to Beacon street at the City Hall would be objectionable. In addition, the exact location of the roadway and grades of the boulevard contemplated by the Board of Harbor Commissioners have not yet been fully decided upon."

The recommendation is made that Beacon street be not considered as a permanent harbor boulevard to the outer harbor, but that the grade of the street be changed and the street improved if the property owners so desire.

City Hall Brevities.

The Council believes that money can be saved to the city by the street department, instead of contractors, doing the underpinning of the Aliso-street bridge piers. The Finance Committee has been asked to investigate.

The Harbor Commission yesterday decided to send Secretary Matson to Seattle this week to take part in the proceedings of the convention of Pacific Coast port authorities. Commissioner Gordon is now in Seattle.

The Board of Public Works is asking the Council to allow it to purchase three oil-burning fifteen-ton steam rollers, to be used in the department that is to handle the resurfacing of streets where utilities companies make excavations.

The city is to resurface Central avenue from First to Twelfth street and the City Engineer recommends that when this work is in progress a sewer be constructed in the street from Seventh to Industrial streets.

The Board of Public Works yesterday adopted the resolution requiring the Pacific Electric Railway Company to apply for a franchise to legalize the operation and maintenance of two tracks of its four-track system on Long Beach avenue, between Ninth street and Slauson avenue. A resolution was also adopted requiring the company to lower its tracks on Long Beach avenue at street intersections.

JURORS PRAISE JUDGE.

Discharged for the Term, They Adopt Resolutions of Friendship, Appreciation and Regard.

Judge Frank R. Willis of Department Seventeen was accorded high praise for his fearlessness and merciful sense of justice in a resolution adopted yesterday by the trial jurors in his court, after they had been discharged for the term.

Following is the resolution:

"We the undersigned men of the trial jury cannot omit this method of conveying our personal friendship and regard and appreciation of the courtesy, ability, patience, and, above all else, the keen but merciful sense of justice which ever characterizes the official acts of Judge Willis.

"Indeed, we cannot but congratulate our fellow citizens of Los Angeles county in having in Judge Willis a jurist so eminently fitted to sit in one of the criminal departments of its court, and bespeak for the judge a long career of usefulness in the public service."

It was signed by the following: C. F. Barker, Glendale; T. J. Sutton, Azusa; G. W. Coolman, Covina; O. C. Willoughby, Covina; M. H. Harper, Long Beach; D. B. Howell, Long Beach; J. D. White, C. A. Brown, W. O. Reid, F. W. Taylor, J. C. Benedict, Chester A. Miller, George Drake, R. M. Douglas, Charles Hyde, G. W. Weeks, T. H. Thompson, Milton Cheney, John Frackelton, George Kellogg, George Armstrong, J. M. Kuhlmann, A. G. Clement, N. M. Van Brundt, Edward Thomas, Jesse H. Arnold, S. Grant and W. T. Keiser of Los Angeles.

WON'T BRING GIRL HERE.

Warrant for Runaway Withdrawn by Judge Because Foster Mother is Not Guardian.

Judge Taft of the Juvenile Court yesterday withdrew the warrant issued for the return of Madeline Bram from San Francisco.

The warrant was issued on a complaint charging Miss Bram with being a dependent child, stating that she needed a guardian.

The withdrawal of the warrant against her was the result of information received by Judge Taft, that Mrs. Ada Bram, with whom the girl had been living in this city, had never been appointed guardian of the girl.

The runaway girl was given her choice in the San Francisco courts, of returning to her home or becoming the adopted daughter of Mrs. Leon C. Eubanks.

On the ground that Mrs. Bram had no legal authority over the girl, and that a similar complaint had been filed in the San Francisco court, the judge withdrew the warrant.

Herbert W. Lewis, superintendent of the Children's Home Society, where the girl was when adopted, sixteen years ago, by Mrs. Bram, left for San Francisco, yesterday, to investigate the new home which Madeline will have. Mrs. Eubanks is a San Francisco settlement worker.

At the Courthouse.

TELL SAD TALE OF "SURE" BETS.

VICTIMS GIVE INNER WORKING OF BUNCO RING.

Three Witnesses Swindled, They Say, After They Were Led to Bet on Horses that Brought Up Rear of Races—Alleged Gang Leader's Trial to Continue Tomorrow.

The inner workings of the bunco gang, the members of which are reported to have swindled scores of wealthy farmers and tourists out of large sums during the past sixteen months, were brought to light yesterday by victims on the witness stand in the trial of James W. Byrnes, one of the alleged ringleaders, in Judge Finlayson's court. Byrnes is charged with grand larceny.

G. P. Friesz, a bronzed farmer of Mascoutah, Kan., recited the methods by which the unsuspecting were ensnared by the buncoers. He testifier he was swindled out of $5140 in February, last year.

J. A. Torline, a farmer from Sperryville, Kan., was relieved of $6090 by the gangsters, on February 7, 1912. Torline came here to put his hard-earned cash into legitimate investments and met Byrnes shortly after his arrival.

A. N. Koehler of Spokane, Wash., told how he gave $1500 over a year ago to bet on a "sure-thing" horse and the horse finished far in the rear. The story was markedly similar to that related by Torline. Koehler met a man who gave his name as Kingsley. A trip to Redondo Beach was suggested. At the beach they saw a man named Redmond, who was later identified as Lee Rial, now serving a ten-year term in San Quentin for the part he played. Kingsley professed to remember Redmond as a successful plunger on the races. The three became acquainted. The rest is the moss-back story about the "new friend," the telegraph instrument in the back room and the "sure thing."

Court adjourned until Monday morning.

DOCTOR DEFENDS LICENSE. ALLEGED OFFENSE ANCIENT.

Dr. H. B. Crocker yesterday applied for an injunction in the Superior Court to restrain the State Board of Medical Examiners from taking legal action to have his license revoked.

Dr. E. A. Somner of the Medical Board filed a complaint against Dr. Crocker on May 8, last, asking for the revocation of his license on the ground that he had sent certain alleged objectionable matter through the mail to prospective patients.

Dr. Crocker wants to enjoin the State board on the ground that the alleged offense took place over two years ago, or more than a year before the medical practice act of 1913 was passed by the Legislature. Furthermore, that it is a matter for the Federal authorities to handle, if it is a matter for court action.

TWO THOUSAND A WORD. SUIT FOR ALLEGED SLANDER.

G. W. Sheasby in a suit filed yesterday in the Superior Court asks $30,000 damages from Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Roberts of Long Beach. The complainant alleges that on April 22, last, the defendants in the presence of several persons, said: "He is a thief and a liar and he ought to be in the penitentiary."

On May 28 he complains that he was arrested charged with stealing certain household goods which Mr. and Mrs. Roberts declared belonged to them. The case was dismissed a few days later.

MUST STAND TRIAL. GAVE SWEETHEART BEER.

Nick Bell, a young salesman, was held to answer to the Superior Court by Judge Taft in the Juvenile Court yesterday, charged with contributing to the delinquency of Amy McAllister, 16 years of age. Bell took Miss McAllister to Eastlake Park one afternoon in May and, according to her testimony, Bell gave her beer to drink and kissed her. He says the girl is his sweetheart and he did not intend to harm her when he gave her the beer.

KODAKING THROUGH LIFE.

Keeping Picture Record Complete, Couple Photograph Every Stage of Courtship and Nuptials.

The marriage of Harry Hall and Miss Mayme A. Keller, school teacher, both of Victorville, and the different preliminary features connected with the union is to be fully illustrated with kodak pictures. When they applied for a marriage license yesterday morning they took a picture of the Courthouse, the interior of the Marriage License Bureau and B. S. Sparks, marriage license clerk.

Hall announced that the picture campaign would be continued and that they would take "snap shots" of the minister who is to marry them, the place of marriage and other features. Previous to yesterday, Hall and Miss Keller had taken numerous pictures of each other. They said that they expected to add to the collection of pictures the likenesses of their home and of all of its future occupants.

INOPPORTUNE.

We are afraid that the Mormons have not selected a very good time to predict a famine. One of their prophets says that a pound of wheat may soon be worth a pound of gold. The way the wheat is rolling in this year a pound of gold would go a long ways toward filling a grain elevator.

STILL THEY COME.

Something far more wonderful than the wireless telegraph is on the way. Adding to his past laurels, Signor Marconi is making the human voice travel through the ether waves by means of induced electric currents. There is no end to the triumphs of modern science; every day the pace quickens.

A TALL OBJECTION.

Some of the women in the United States propose an invasion of England to help out in the suffrage fight. To this there is a double-barrelled objection. We Americans do not want our women learning the English methods, nor do we care about having the Englishmen discover just how charming American women can be. They might never let them return.

A GREAT CHARGE.

The world will have much sympathy for the hundred men bound for the harvest fields of Kansas who overpowered a freight crew and had themselves delivered in the midst of activities. They didn't need the two or three dollars a day any worse than the farmers needed their labor. Men usually do not fight for a chance to work. It is a pardonable crime, especially when the crops are spoiling.

NOT WORTH IT.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, there was a surplus in the Federal treasury of $8,221,000. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there was a deficit of $34,462,316. That makes $42,683,416 that the Princeton schoolmaster and his lickspittle Congress have cost the American people directly in one year, besides more than $1,000,000,000 in shrinking of values and crippled industries. Really, doncherknow, Woodrow is not worth the money.

WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT.

It is an old story, this falling-out of thieves among themselves, and the result has ever been the same. Wickedness is inconsistent to start with and, of course, it betrays itself at every crisis. Amos Pinchot, member of the New York State Progressive committee, has written a 4000-word letter demanding that Chairman George W. Perkins retire for the good of the party. There isn't much of the party, and it isn't any good, so the public will not worry as to whether Pinchot gets Perkins or Perkins gets Pinchot.

BUSINESS SHRINKAGE.

New industrial enterprises in the East are exceedingly scarce. New companies incorporated in the Eastern States with $1,000,000 or over, according to the New York Times, were in May $109,500,000 less than in May last year. From figures compiled by the Journal of Commerce it appears that the total of incorporations for the first five months of 1913 was $1,060,898,000, while for the first five months of the present year it was only $428,210,000. The country would do well to take into consideration Grover Cleveland's epigram: "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us."

OUR PUBLIC MOUNTEBANK.

You would rightly consider it very incongruous for a bank president to vacate his private office during banking hours to peddle apples, grown on his suburban lot, through the downtown streets of the city. Or for a preacher to hand over his Sunday pulpit to one of the vestry while he tried to dispose of his left-off clothing. Or for a great general to desert his army on the eve of battle while he designed new epaulets for his subordinate officers.

Yet this is exactly the misconduct of which our Secretary of State has been guilty; and to guard against any repetition of such an indecent proceeding Representative Britten of Illinois has introduced a bill in Congress to make it a penal offense for any Cabinet minister to lecture for pay while the House is in session.

It is humiliating to the dignity of the United States that such a move should be necessary. Previous to the injection of Bryan grape juice into administration affairs the important duties of Secretary of State have always been undertaken by honorable men, too jealous of their country's reputation to distort so high an office for petty gain. Gaby des Lys might use ex-King Manuel as an advertisement, and people could afford to shrug their shoulders. But for our Secretary of State to boost his value as a vaudeville performer on the strength of his public position—faugh! give us some carbolic acid to disinfect the office furniture.

Probably Representative Britten's bill will be laid on the table. The schoolmaster will produce his birch rod and the little children will attend to their knitting. And the mountebank will continue his antics. Oh, yes! Billy Bryan has a perfect right to increase his bank roll after the manner of Billy Sunday, or Harry Lauder or Willie Ritchie. But he should do so as a private citizen, not as a paid employee of the people.

THE FALSE GOD MAMMON.

The era of Rockefeller-Carnegian fortunes of incredible size, hastily and often ruthlessly made, is over. We venture the pragmatic statement, however, that the time will never come when men of financial ability will not accumulate wealth to the exasperation of those who do not get it because they cannot. The outrageous financiering tolerated during the past decade, of which the recent exposure of the Mellen-Morgan crookedness in the New Haven furnishes a specific instance, made possible the accumulation of money by methods not only unjust but rascally. The mushroom fortunes of Wall street have incited men in every part of the country to feverish speculation and inspired the get-rich-quick enterprises that were often successful and, if not actually illegal, were frequently dishonest.

The pendulum of money-madness swung toward the extreme in which a few Napoleons of commerce sought to dominate the industrial world and abrogate power and wealth with absolutely no limits. Those men were not wholly bad; they did much to build up industry; but they also caused much harm. They lost sight of the responsibilities they owed to the state and to small investors with whose money they operated. They were undeniably greedy.

At present, clinging to the pendulum of money-madness and endeavoring with all of their weight to swing it to the other extreme, are the socialistic zealots. They admit their greed, but proclaim it is altruistic. They would confiscate and apprehend fortunes for the benefit of the shiftless and the incompetent, as well as for the unfortunate and industrious. This extreme would be as vicious as, and even more destructive of, national welfare than the other. The agitators claim that the immense manufacturers have exploited labor and that it is all wrong; but the same agitators also demand that they be allowed to exploit the brains and energy and genius of the commercial giants who have made possible the means of livelihood for the many thousands, the many millions of workingmen and women.

We assert unequivocally that either extreme is wrong, that either is injurious to the commonwealth, and should be opposed by every man and woman who believes in law, order and justice.

But why this interminable agitation in the name of Greed? It is a false, we are almost tempted to say a barbaric, standard that measures success by dollars, and estimates happiness according to wealth. From babyhood up men and women are earnestly and sadly instructed in the fallacious theory that the acquisition of money is about the only essential to a successful life. We measure the merchant by the money he makes; we judge a man by the salary he gets; we proclaim an author great according to the riches he acquires through the sale of books; and we hail our divas as paragons of excellence—when the record price for seats is paid by those wishing to hear them.

There are some men who have a genius for making money. They have skill in business and succeed though they turn from one enterprise to another. There are others who, no matter how they try, seem preordained to fail in any money-making business where they depend on their own initiative. There are men who can raise fine vegetables and yet not dispose of those vegetables at a high price. That man is considered less successful than another who raises inferior produce and gets better prices.

When men and women come to an understanding that it is the joy of doing good work rather than the money that is gotten out of it that really counts they will come closer to an understanding of how to secure and maintain happiness. The reason that certain men make so distinctive success in the business world and get so much money is because they enjoy the work of the business—and the money is actually incidental. There is a close analogy in the joy that comes to the men who build railroads and to the men who paint pictures. The returns in money are unequal, and by our monetary standard the railroad builder is generally considered to be the more successful and the happier man. He is not; it is an error to believe that bcause he has several million dollars that he is happier than the artist with a few hundred. The man who enjoys his work the most is the happiest.

But the temple of Mammon is cluttered with votaries. Men and women seem to think that unless they get into some form of activity that makes big money for them there is no chance of being happy. How many ultra rich men are happy? Some. But the people who really find life worth living are those who get joy from their work doing things. Wants grow with luxury, and the rich often suffer acutely from worries that only money can buy. It is cultivation of the joy of work and helpfulness, not the joy of making or spending money, that would bring relief to the social disorders of this nation.

DEMANDS OF RAILROAD EMPLOYEES.

Unless a compromise is effected, or railroad employees shall take counsel of their common sense, 55,000 locomotive engineers and firemen will vote shortly as to whether they will engage in a general strike unless their demands are granted.

The wages now paid these men amounts to about $67,750,000 per annum. They demand an increase of $33,000,000 per annum, or about 50 per cent. They demand an increase in the number of arbitrary allowances reducing the number of hours of work after which overtime would be paid by 50 per cent. in passenger service and 20 per cent. in freight and other service, increasing the rate for overtime 100 per cent. in passenger service and 50 per cent. in freight and other service, and in addition advancing substantially the rate per hundred miles for all service, as well as requiring the employment of a large additional force and an addition to the pay rolls of the railroads represented of more than $33,000,000 per annum.

The railroad employees knew that it would be impracticable to reduce the actual day, in train service, to eight hours. To do so it would be necessary to shorten practically all railroad divisions, to relocate yards and shops and largely to reconstruct the railways at a prohibitive cost. They knew that the only effect of changing the basis of a day's wage from ten to eight hours would be enormously to increase the overtime paid.

There has been no change in conditions the past year to warrant the exorbitant advance in wages demanded. If granted it would absolutely necessitate an advance in rates of fare and freight. The Interstate Commerce Commission has thus far refused an advance. With an increase of 50 per cent. in operating expenses and no increase in income the railroads would either be compelled to go into the hands of receivers or else discontinue operations. In either event the public would pay the bills and suffer the most of the loss and inconvenience.

Locomotive engineers are men of a high order of intelligence. It is to be hoped that they will take a common-sense view of the situation and vote down the strike.

The public generally have not appreciated the fact that many railroads have not been managed with prudence. The Denver and Rio Grande was for twenty years, beginning in 1880, among the most prosperous and successfully-managed roads in the country. Its gross earnings increased during that period from $7,000,000 to $24,000,000 per annum. The control, through stock ownership, passed into the hands of Mr. Gould, and in 1900 he was seized with an ambition to build a line from Salt Lake to San Francisco instead of continuing to use the Central Pacific. That extension of 924 miles cost over $60,000,000, and the money was obtained by a sale of the first and second mortgage bonds of the new company—the Western Pacific—guaranteed by the Denver and Rio Grande Company. The Western Pacific has never earned the interest on its cost and has proved a drag on the Denver and Rio Grande.

The Missouri Pacific, which has always stood behind the Denver and Rio Grande, for it owns a large portion of its stock, is now trembling in the balance financially, and the St. Louis and San Francisco, with its 5000 miles of track, is in a receiver's hands.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company, formed in 1880, paid until 1902 dividends on its common stock of $75,000,000, which had at that date a market value of $100,000,000. Then a party of speculators bought up the stock and sold it for $270,000,000 to holding companies. When this was accomplished the fixed charges were $3,000,000, now they are $11,000,000. The result is that dividends have stopped and surplus revenues have been used for betterments.

The great Wabash Company has become bankrupt.

Other instances of mismanagement may be cited. If the trust-busting bill shall pass and the great Southern Pacific Company be divided into seven or eight corporations disaster must inevitably overtake it.

A strike of locomotive engineers and firemen for an advance of $33,000,000 per annum in their compensation may, if it takes place, be the last straw that will break the back of the overburdened camel, and we may see the railroad service reduced to one or two locomotives a day, hauling only mail cars.

LIGHT AND SHADOW.

Here, in California, the sunshine trickles softly earthward from the opal blue, gentle breezes rock the roses, sport with the swinging pepper branches and scatter the pale yellow petals of the sweet wild mustard; summer steps lightly over the threshold of spring; dreams melt into hopes and hope quickens into action. Nature throbs with the spirit of fertility and man's blood runs stronger in response to nature's challenge. Here, in California.

Not all men, however, have felt the light. There are millions, herded in far-off overcrowded cities, threatened with unemployment in New York, wandering in ragged wretchedness through the streets of Paris, trembling on the brink of starvation in grimy London, strangled with scarlet vice in the bazaars of Cairo. Hunger and underwork, idleness and inebriety breed anarchy where men seek excitement rather than life, dark slums rather than sunny fields. And so sullen discontent listens to the ravings of an Emma Goldman.

Socialism does not seek to bring people out into the open, the free air, the fields of opportunity. It hems its dupes closely in with hills of delectable promises. Beyond these hills, it tells them, are happiness, opulence and freedom. Nor need they do any hard climbing, aeroplanes will be provided.

Discontent firmly believes that behind the distant hills, visioned by socialism, the distribution of wealth will be according to the needs of each individual, irrespective of intellectual or moral strength; that behind the distant hills no wages will be first earned, but all good things will be held in common, that gold will be no longer minted, whether it be the gold of character or the gold from the mine. The entranced listener lifts up his eyes unto the hills and falls into the gutter on the streets.

As long as men follow false gods and grope blindly after unearned joys, so long for the duped and discontented there will be truth in the verse:

> "Our life is like a narrow raft,
> Afloat upon a hungry sea;
> Herein is but a little space
> And all men eager for a place
> Do thrust each other in the sea;
> And so our joy is wan with fears—
> And so the sea is salt with tears."

THE COLONEL'S RIVER.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

The colonel, afar in Brazil, has found a new river, they say; it's deep, and it travels uphill, and broadens out into a bay. Its borders are ruggedly bluffed, it has some preposterous falls; the colonel will soon have it stuffed, and brought to Smithsonian halls. It has a most wonderful bend, this river the colonel has found; and sometimes it stands upon end, then burrows down into the ground. Its waters are yellow and pink, it's covered with glittering foam; they say it's lots better to drink than any old grape juice at home. And sirens recline on its shore, their music is heard through the mist, and down on its beautiful floor the mermaids are playing bridge whist. We've always felt sure in our mind the colonel would do things in style, and any old stream he might find would beat other streams by a mile. Good-by to the old Mississipp! Its fame and its glories will flee! The Amazon henceforth may slip unsung to its grave in the sea! The Rhine and the Danube, I fear, must down to Oblivion flit; the colonel has captured their peer, and broke it to saddle and bit! Good-by to famed streamlets and burns, the Afton, the Avon, the Po! Just wait till the colonel returns, and mark how such rivers sing low!

LESE MAJESTE.

"Is It Worse to Say 'Piffle' or Just to Piffle?" Burdette Asks.

"In jurisprudence, any crime committed against the sovereign power in a state." In school, making faces at the teacher, or anything like that. In Germany, drawing cartoons of the Emperor on the barrack walls. In the United States, under the Wilson administration, calling a "horseneck" a "Daniels cocktail," or speaking of the Secretary of State as "themanhoo," or "the next number on our programme."

At the second capture of Vera Cruz the United States Navy promptly and gallantly captured, among other harbor property, two tugs. Because of the general insignificance of the prize, the sailors with the aptitude of the rank and file of the army and the men behind the guns christened them the "Piffle" and the "Grape Juice." Snooping around in his gum shoes to note what the sailors do in off hours, what newspapers they read, and with what manner of books they improve or degrade their minds, the Secretary of the Navy, whose duty it is to attend to such things, overheard the use of these undignified names.

The official skies were overcast with black clouds of disapproval, and the orders fulminated from headquarters commanding the instant discontinuance of these names. The use of them constitutes "lese majeste."

This is not the first instance of lese majeste in the navy of the United States, but I think it is the first time official notice has been taken of it. Admiral Robley Evans was never known to keel-haul a sailor who had been overheard to speak of him as "Fighting Bob." It has even been thought that he rather liked the title, else he had not so commanded ship and fleet as to earn it. Among the generals who went down into Mexico some sixty years ago for the purpose of "licking" somebody rather than turning alternate cheeks for insolent buffetings, were two who were designated by the conquerors of Molino del Rey, Churubusco and Mexico City as "Old Fuss and Feathers" and "Rough and Ready." Yet there were no arrests.

A man's nickname is a truer title than the one given him at his christening by his idolatrous mother. The smiling baby in her arms she may name "George Washington" at the sacred font if she will, but in spite of his name he may grow up to be the worst liar in the precinct. Or, she may name him "Ananias" and so train him that when he grows up if he says he was the author of the gospel accredited to St. John, people will believe him. A name doesn't prove anything. But a nickname does. It proves that the man earned it. If, in the presence of a mighty, thundering fleet of battleships an entire navy calls two little two-horse-power tugs and an equal number of Secretaries "Piffle" and "Grape Juice" the inference is very strong that the names for the tugs had been suggested by a similarity of tonnage by the Secretaries.

If, indeed, those undignified nicknames refer to the Secretaries. I haven't said that they do. The Secretary of the Navy seems to think they do. Somebody must have told him. Or he may have overheard the sailors talking at some length.

However, what a foolish thing it is for a man occupying a position so prominent in the eyes of the nation as the Secretary of the Navy to pay any attention, beyond a good-natured laugh, to a sailor's fun. Didn't the administration like the publicity given such a joke by the sailors? It has called into the service of the navy and the army and the civilian population of the country, the Associated Press and its million tongues to spread the jest far and wide, into circles where it had never otherwise penetrated. For one, I, a newspaper man and a newspaper reader, had never heard of these new names for the Mexican tugs until Secretary Daniels issued his order forbidding their use. Straightway another man began to use them for the first time. And I will never use any other names for them. Not that I desire to entertain disrespectful thoughts concerning two gentlemen of ability, refinement, dignity; gentlemen worthy of national respect, but because I do not know the other names of the craft, and because the sailors' names seem to fit so happily as applied to these captive tugs, which at one time formed the defense of the harbor of Vera Cruz, and an important part of the Mexican fleet.

When a man, even a Secretary, begins to take official care of his dignity, he is saying good-by to it. What he has of it. When an administration permits a creature like Huerta to kick it in the face as often as opportunity offers, and makes the opportunity when none presents itself, when it permits him to spread the national flag in the dust of the street that it more easily spit upon the Stars, it makes a vain and belated attempt at official dignity if it "double tuts" the men behind the guns for the use of a phrase which reflects disrespect upon their excellencies, the Secretaries.

Oh, smile, Mr. Secretary, smile! Everybody else does. Let the sailors talk "sailor" if they want to. They earned the right to name a captured tugboat "Piffle." One of these days you will ask these men to shake up a fleet of hostile battleships just as easily as Dewey tore the Spanish fleet to pieces at Manila, and just as completely as Schley sank the Spanish fleet at Santiago. And you'll be glad to let them rename the ships as fast as they take or sink them, anything they please. Don't criticise their grammar in their letters home. Let them split their infinitives up the back. Don't require Jack to submit his little joke to the official humorist of the department before trying it on his messmates. A man may triumphantly pass the civil service examination for a schoolmaster's appointment as head of the Navy Department and have no more sense of humor than a cow. If the heads of departments don't want the rank and file to cry "piffle" as they go down the line, let them quit "piffling." That's the easiest way to reform that form of disrespect. U. S. Grant, in his autobiography, tells how, on a certain campaign when the men were very hungry because the supply trains were cut off, the soldiers saluted the general as he rode down the column with sarcastic shouts of "Hard tack! Hard tack!" Now, Secretary Daniels would have issued orders from Washington, a very safe place, forbidding the use of such language by the private soldiers. And the soldiers would have shouted it louder, and added worse language to it. But Grant smiled, reined in his horse long enough to assure the men they should have full rations in a few days, and rode away amid thundering cheers. And they got their rations. Nobody ever named anything "Piffle" for U. S. Grant.

But then, Lincoln didn't have such a ladylike administration as we have now. Nobody ever thought of renaming the Hartford or the Kearsarge, or the Cincinnati, or the Monitor—"The Piffle."

Reward.

BRAVE WOMAN ENJOYS GREAT MINE'S WEALTH.

Romance, Fraud, Intrigue, Adventure and Pluck Blend in Story of the Yellow Aster, Richest Producer in Southern California, Saved to Its Discoverers by Hard Battle of Their Grub-Staker.

"GOD has fixed the Yellow Aster all right on top and if he's done as good a job underground, we've got the richest mine in all creation!" said C. D. Lane of Angel's Camp, mining expert, as he kicked a stone glistening with yellow ore, and tossed a handful of nuggets in the air. "Yes, ma'am, in my opinion, God did a good job when He made the Yellow Aster!"

It was a dazzling prophecy to a woman and three men standing in the glorious sunlight of a land so desolate that it seemed to have been forgotten by the Almighty. And yet in the midst of the desert they had found one of the secrets of the Most High. Since the recent death of John Singleton, one of the men who [illegible] there, only the woman is left to enjoy its proceeds.

Dr. Rose L. Burcham of this city, physician and learned in mining lore, had the grit to resume her practice that she might "stake" her husband in a two-year search for gold, and the moral courage to steadfastly refuse to relinquish her rights, though the three men had signed to sell the undeveloped Yellow Aster mine for a few thousands, when she knew it was worth millions. She had the wisdom to formulate an agreement for the men to sign that they would stand together for five years and the courage to fight the greatest legal battle ever waged between a woman and [illegible]. Today, her companions, F. M. Mooers, John Singleton and C. A. Burcham, her husband, have passed over the great divide.

Dr. Burcham has been sold out by her lawyers and been the victim of innumerable conspiracies, but is today regarded as the most practical woman mine owner in the country. Through the combined interests of Dr. Burcham and her late husband, C. A. Burcham, she holds the controlling power in the Yellow Aster, whose riches are practically untouched, though it has already yielded over $7,000,000. There are 8,000,000 tons of the richest ore in California lying above the mill level and the treasure that lies below is past human calculation.

But what the Yellow Aster has cost her in blood and brain can never be estimated—her agony of soul through all the distracted years when every effort had seemed to be out to snatch the prize. But the greed of lawyers and the impatience of her associate owners was like a flail to her indomitable will.

PASSION FOR MINING.

It was the old story of a man's infatuation for mining, for like millions of men, Charles Austin Burcham had a passion for prospecting and for years spent his spare time among the hills of California. The call was so strong that his wife agreed to furnish the funds for two years in the mountains and desert. He was free to choose his own companions and be untrammeled by family responsibilities or financial obligations. The doctor returned to her practice to give him the opportunity to succeed, the only stipulation being an equal division should his quest be successful. But if he failed, he was never again to follow this will-o'-the-wisp.

For eighteen months, Burcham, John Singleton and Frederick M. Mooers searched for gold. For months they camped where they could see the Yellow Aster, then known as the Tehachepi—two hills thrust up out of the desert like twin sugar loaves. Silhouetted against the sky, they could be seen for miles, burnt red with oxidization. Day after day they dug in the hills for a trace of gold dust, while across the valley Tehachepi hid uncounted millions in her heart.

Like a page out of a story book was the finding of the Yellow Aster. Burcham and Singleton were at their monotonous task of washing gold in the "glory hole" of their little camp. They were tired of their humdrum life, weary of the meager returns from their toil and aghast over the fact that there were only six months to "make good" or go back to the grind of the city. It needed only Singleton's suggestion, "I always wanted to prospect in Tehachepi," to send the two men over the desert to the red hills.

As they walked up the gulch they found a slab lying at an angle like a huge tombstone held in a fissure of rock. Singleton carried a pick and knocked off a corner.

"Say, Austin, look at this. You've got a good eye for gold."

Burcham took the fragment of rock and instantly saw the gleam of free gold.

"By George! We've got it!"

GOLD EVERYWHERE.

He could scarcely speak, for there was gold in every rock and stone. Almost beside themselves with joy, they staked off their claim and named it "Discovery Rock." It was greater than any monument ever made by man, for it was rich in gold. But it has crumbled, the precious ore is in the melting pot and the place where it stood has become the "glory hole" of the Yellow Aster, named by Singleton, who was reading the novel when the mine was discovered.

Burcham made a dash for the nearest town, fifty miles away, to have the gold assayed, register his claim, buying mining tools and wire his wife:

"Come at once. We have 'horned' free gold."

It was like a trumpet call to the woman who had made this splendid find possible and she immediately prepared to join her husband. She had a vague idea of her destination—that it was in Randsburg, Kern county; that she was to take the train to Mojave and then drive fifty miles across the desert. She faced the appalling possibility of taking the desert trip alone, but by a chain of fortuitous circumstances, her husband got her telegram and met her at the station with a team and buckboard. The tired horses that had just made the dangerous trip across the hot sands, took their slow way back to the Yellow Aster.

Dr. Burcham's ride on that hot July night in 1895 was only the beginning, for years she made the trip every thirty days and sometimes twice a month. Suffocated by dust, tormented with thirst, she has carried thousands of dollars in the long, lonely drives across the desert, generally traveling by night to avoid detection and robbery and always in peril of her life from desperadoes that haunt a mining camp.

"I knew nothing of rocks and nothing of mining," said Dr. Burcham, "but the oxidization of the red hills looked very beautiful to me when we saw them in the sunshine as we drove across the desert. We could see it for miles, and though I was a novice in the signs of rich ore, I knew that great treasures were hidden in Tehachepi when I 'horned' a handful of dirt and saw the stream of free gold.

"The gleam of gold fresh from the hand of the Almighty thrills one as nothing can that is produced by the art of man. All the grace of the filigree, all the beauty of the finished product is nothing compared to a piece of rock zig-zaged with gold as sharply outlined as lightning in a stormy sky.

NOT ELATED.

"Were we elated?

"No, for while the virgin gold appeals powerfully to the imagination, I knew one 'horning' was nothing, and as I looked into the future, I saw ahead of us years of toil, anxiety and untold hardship. But my wildest imaginings never encompassed what the future held for the owners of the Yellow Aster mine."

In all the life of the Yellow Aster mine, the supreme hour was the milling of the first ore. They were fifty miles from human habitation—the three eager men, an anxious woman and a toy retort bought three years before by Mr. Burcham because he was in love with the mining profession. It held $150 and the retort was emptied five times before they milled $850.

But all the $7,000,000 taken from the mine never looked as big as that little buckskin sack full of gold. The faithful horses were hitched to the buckboard and Dr. Burcham and Mr. Mooers started in the darkness on the fifty-mile ride across the desert with the precious gold in Dr. Burcham's lap. It was a journey full of dangers, for the milling of gold is known to desperate characters, even as vultures scent a creature dead in the wilderness.

Dr. Burcham says she was not afraid. "No, I do not know the pain of fear for as a little child I conquered it in its most terrible form. I was a little girl when I first went to a funeral. My mother lifted me up to see our friend as he lay in his casket. He had died of a wasting disease and even now I thrill with the old horror as I looked into that fleshless face—the half-opened, sightless eyes and the thin lips drawn from the yellow teeth. I saw that terrible vision every time I went into the dimly lighted cellar—it was behind every box and barrel and peered from the dark corners.

"It was months before I argued myself into the belief that he was not there but at rest in the grave where I saw him buried. Months passed before I could walk slowly, oh so slowly, out of that pit of horror instead of rushing with wild screams up the stairs. It was a frightful experience for a timid child, but I was too proud to admit my awful fear when sent to the cellar. But like every experience in life, it saved me hours of unspeakable agony in the real peril of driving across the desert when there was always the haunting possibility of Indians and desperadoes."

The Yellow Aster is the richest mine in Southern California. There are 400 acres under patent and up to date they have drilled only into the heart of the mine, which is like a quarry with less than twenty miles of completed underground work. Above the mill level are 8,000,000 tons of rich ore, according to the conservative estimate of mining experts. A big percentage of the money already milled has been spent in the development of the mine and the town. The company has established a water system, stamp mills, built churches, schools, a hospital and a boarding-houses. The offices are in Los Angeles under the management of Dr. Burcham.

VIGILANCE WINS.

The Yellow Aster has the distinction of being the only big mine that has never been shut down, and is one of the few mines in the world still in the possession of the original owners—which is due to Dr. Burcham's eternal vigilance. It has been a coveted property. Many hands have been stretched out to snatch it, and as one lawyer remarked in the midst of a fierce legal battle: "I've got them all on the run but that—blank woman!" The three men were inveigled into signing away their rights but Dr. Burcham stood at bay in spite of threats and cojolery.

And now Dr. Burcham holds the balance of power and in the courts it is one of the most conspicuous cases on record for breach of trust on the part of lawyers who acted on the basis that anything worth having was worth going after. There were black conspiracies, suits for partition and schemes of the most fraudulent character. Cases were settled by compromise, suits were thrown out of court and lawyers were threatened with disbarment for legal irregularities. It involved men high in the profession, men who had hitherto lived up to their solemn pledge to protect the rights of the people—men bartered their honor and were false to their sacred trust under the lure of the Yellow Aster.

An experience that paralyzes a mine owner is an order to shut down. In the midst of the legal battle, the dreaded commands came, but Dr. Burcham rose to the emergency.

"You all stay at the mine and keep a man in every hole and I'll go to Los Angeles and get a new attorney, for our lawyers have sold us out."

But her brave heart was heavy as she drove away from the Yellow Aster, for these complications practically involved the loss of the mine. She engaged Judge John S. Chapman, who saved the desperate situation. The tears stood in Dr. Burcham's eyes as she paid tribute to the dead jurist.

"Judge Chapman was the most sincere, honest and conscientious lawyer I ever met. I attribute the saving of the Yellow Aster mine to his integrity and ability. The other lawyers looked out for themselves, but Judge Chapman looked out for the Yellow Aster!"

There were five firms of lawyers concerned in the fight for the Yellow Aster and all but one of the principals are dead. Probably one of the most dramatic episodes was one day when a suit was being tried in the Federal court. The chief counsel, whose fingers itched to possess the mine, was ill in San Francisco and his partner came to Los Angeles to take charge of the case. When he saw the filed affidavits and realized that his partner had betrayed his client, he rushed to the long-distance telephone and men affirm that the blue smoke poured from the booth as he demanded a compromise or he would dissolve the firm, expose the intrigue and bring disgrace and disbarment—a threat that brought the infuriated lawyer at the other end of the 'phone to terms.

TROUBLES, SETTLED.

After five years' battle, all litigation was settled and the Yellow Aster company was formed with Dr. Burcham as secretary, a position to which she was entitled, as, according to a private agreement, she owned half of her husband's share. Stock had never been sold, as the members took stock in exchange for individual claims.

It has always been a close corporation with an equalization of the owners' interests. Dr. Burcham believes that what must be done can be done and though lawyers declared it was a mathematical impossibility to make a decimal into a compound fraction, yet she figured out each share on the percentage basis of a decimal split into compound fractions, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned, including the experts, who regarded it as an extraordinary feat in juggling with figures. When results have been challenged, her reply invariably settled the controversy:

"We had heaps of trouble before this was filed and now we have none."

The greatest factor in saving the Yellow Aster is epitomized in Dr. Burcham's argument:

"If we control half the stock, we can hold level, but nothing more. But if thirteen-twentieths of the stock will stay together for five years, we will make the situation impregnable."

And the three men and one woman signed an iron-bound contract to this effect and for more than twice the term held steadfastly to it and the result has shown the wisdom of a combine of the owners.

Dr. Burcham's strength lies in a strong, combative nature, backed by a keen sense of justice. All through the terrible legal complications she stood on this platform:

"There is a time to let go and a time to hang on! The courts may take the Yellow Aster, but I won't give it away!"

She has a quality of energy and brains and ability that is almost masculine and she has the rare faculty of getting people to do what she cannot do herself. "I am like the man who gave me a curt order when I was a child: 'Bring me that book—please!' When I obeyed, he said, 'Pardon me for speaking so cross, little Rose, but I was born in the imperative mood and remember my manners last!'"

Though Dr. Burcham may have many of the finer mental qualities of men, yet today she is essentially the finest type of a womanly woman. Her clear eyes are true to a great purpose; her manners are wonderfully gentle, and her voice singularly low and sweet.

There is not a trace of her hard life in the desert; of the wearisome and dangerous journeys in the buckboard; of the battles where her wits were pitted against the keenest and most unscrupulous minds in the legal profession. What she has lived through and what she has borne would have made any other woman wrinkled and old.

But Dr. Burcham sits at her desk, handling the enormous details of the Yellow Aster Mining Company as serene as anyone who has been unvexed by responsibility and untouched by care. And this is the creed of the woman who furnished the money to discover the Yellow Aster mine and who had the brains to save it from the machinations of many men.

"My first duty is to myself and, as a physician, I know the danger signals and though the universe should stand still, though everything should go to ruin. I would take the rest demanded by my body and brain. It is a crime against nature to break down, a sin to become a burden to others. Life is very precious and the work of the world must be done by men and women with unclouded brains and healthy bodies!"

POSTPONE SALE PENDING RULING.

L.A.I. DIRECTORS WIN A POINT IN COURT OVER TRANSFER.

Upon the question of the legality of the proposed sale of old directors' stock of the Los Angeles Investment Company, scheduled for next Wednesday, hangs the ultimate result of a controversy between 122 stockholders and the present board of directors.

The board has advertised the stock for sale and the stockholders have asked an injunction on the ground that the proposed sale would work an irreparable injury upon the stockholders.

Judge Works yesterday declined to countenance this contention, saying it could not be considered in pleading for an injunction restraining the sale. However, upon the legality, said Judge Works, he would look into the matter further before making a ruling.

Meantime, the directors of the company announced yesterday that they would postpone the advertised sale of stock, pending a decision of the legal questions that have arisen.

"The stock was pledged for notes which are now long overdue," said Attorney Tuller, representing the company, and in reply to the contention of Attorney Thomas Ball, for the protesting stockholders, that there was no consideration. Upon this point Judge Works seeks further information and he gave Attorney Ball until Tuesday evening to present further evidence to show that no consideration was shown in the transfer of the stock to the old board of directors.

SUSPECT "BLACK HAND."

Insurance Agent's Home Entirely Destroyed in Early-Morning Fire. Incendiarism Is Belief.

The "black hand" is suspected of responsibility for a fire which destroyed the home of George Gilbert, a fire insurance agent, No. 3678 Second avenue, early yesterday morning. According to statements made by Gilbert to the police he suspects two Italians. They are now sought. The house was valued at $1800 and the furniture at $1000.

Gilbert discovered the fire just before daylight as it was racing up the side of the house. It had started at the front porch and the strong smell of oil gives credence to Gilbert's belief that the fire was the revenge of foreigners who were dissatisfied with an adjustment he made for them.

The Gilbert family's escape from the burning house was accomplished with difficulty as the flames were eating their way around windows and doors.

A week ago Gilbert found a fire in his clothes closet just after he had words with the suspected Italians. The garden hose had been cut.

THE CULTURE OF LAVENDER.

The Thin Rocky Soils of Southern France That Will Grow Nothing Else Give Satisfactory Returns.

[Consular Reports:] Lavender culture is engaged in extensively by farmers in Southern France. Barren soils, unproductive for other purposes, will grow lavender. Vice-Consul-General Cram, at Marseilles, writes that thin rocky soils, well exposed to the sun, situated at an altitude of 1200 to 4000 feet, are best adapted to lavender culture. Suitable soils at lower altitudes, unless properly fertilized, seldom give satisfactory results. Experience shows that flowers cultivated at altitudes of 3000 feet produce the best essence.

Young shoots or seed may be used for planting. In the former case the planting may take place in either the autumn or spring. If the field is at a high altitude, it is preferable to plant in the spring in order to avoid the heavy, frosts. If the ground is sown with seed, it is advisable to plant in the autumn, unless the winters are severe. The plants are set out about twenty-four inches apart. The ground between the rows may be advantageously utilized for the cultivation of truffles. The flowers are gathered during August. In the department of the Vaucluse, where about 9884 acres are under cultivation, the gatherers receive $1.35 for 220 pounds, which represents somewhat less than one day's work. The blossoms are never picked when wet, owing to the fact that in this state they produce an inferior grade of essence.

Immediately after the flowers have been gathered they are placed in a cylinder pierced with holes, which in turn is placed in a boiler, the diameter of which is only slightly greater than that of the cylinder. In the boiler is a tripod upon which the cylinder rests. Water is introduced to a level with the top of the tripod, and the steam therefrom passes into the cylinder containing the flowers, and thence into a serpentine pipe, where it is condensed.

Miss Constance Mogan and her "party box,"

A feminine novelty fresh from Europe. The miniature trunk is carried by a handle without the use of a chain and it is expected to supersede the "vanity" and other common means for conveying a "beauty kit." The young woman, who is a visitor in Los Angeles, is the daughter of Attorney Richard F. Mogan of San Francisco.

OPPOSES PROHIBITION.

Governing Committee of Realty Board Adopts Resolutions Against Proposed "Dry" Amendments.

Declaring that their adoption would cause the loss of millions in revenue to investors, would throw thousands out of employment and increase the tax rate throughout the State, the governing committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board has declared against the prohibition constitutional amendments to be voted on in November. Resolutions to this effect were adopted as follows:

"Whereas, there will be placed before the electors of California at the general election in November, 1914, a proposition to amend the constitution of the State by adding thereto two new sections, numbered 26 and 27, respectively, which proposed amendments provide for the prohibition of the manufacture, sale, transportation, etc. of intoxicating liquors within the State, and

"Whereas, said proposed amendments, if adopted, will become effective immediately, and

"Whereas, there are devoted to the viticultural industries of this State more than 300,000 acres of land, representing an investment of approximately $150,000,000, and yielding annually the sum of $25,000,000 in revenues, and directly employing more than 150,000 people, and

"Whereas, the adoption of these amendments will not only destroy the wine industry, but also severely injure the raisin and grape industries, which find an outlet for their surplus production through the wineries; throwing out of employment thousands of people engaged in these industries; wiping out millions of dollars in revenue and causing considerable increase in the tax rate throughout the State, and

"Whereas, this organization is bound by its constitution and by-laws to do all within its power to protect the property interests of the city of Los Angeles and the State of California;

"Now, therefore be it resolved, that the Los Angeles Realty Board vigorously opposes the adoption of the said proposed amendments as being inimical to the industrial, viticultural and agricultural interests, and to the general development of California, with the resultant general depreciation of real estate values, and that suitable measures be taken by this board to institute a campaign of education in opposition thereto."

DECREES WOMEN CARRY TRUNKS.

LATEST FAD TO SUCCEED THE VANITY CASES.

"Party Box," Direct from Europe, Introduced to Los Angeles by Society Maid—Contains Full Assortment of Feminine Necessities Fit to Cope With Any Emergency.

It's direct from Europe, and the latest thing in its line. The women call it a "party box" and it is expected to succeed the "vanity" as an important part of feminine equipment.

Miss Constance Mogan of San Francisco, daughter of Attorney Richard F. Mogan, and niece of Judge E. P. Mogan of the northern city, believes she brought the first of the novelties, a gift, to town. She and her brother, Richard F. Mogan, Jr., are guests at the Lankershim.

The party box has the outward appearance of a miniature trunk, about four by four inches in size. It is carried by a leather handle without the use of a chain, such as adorns colors. The boxes come in different colors. The particular one carried by Miss Mogan is lavender.

The following are among the mysterious "kit" in a party box: Powder puff, rouge, smelling salts, perfume, card case and purse. This is regarded by the women as sufficient for emergency use.

"One must have a good memory to carry a party box," says Miss Mogan. "It is not fastened to one with a chain or anything of that kind, and it is easy to lay it down and go away and forget it. It is more roomy and consequently more convenient than the vanity, chatelaine bag, or other appurtenances of that kind in common use. The equipment it offers is faily complete.

"I have been having a jolly visit in Los Angeles. At the hotel my brother and I have frequently been taken for bride and groom. We travel together a good deal and chaperon each other very successfully. He is a kind brother and rather devoted and this arouses the suspicions of strangers and often we are taken for newly-weds. This is great fun."

Miss Mogan is a member of the Phi Alpha Sigma Sorority and popular socially in San Francisco.

SCHOOL BONDS CANVASSED.

Teachers Appointed for Elsinore Schools—Manual Work May Also Be Added.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ELSINORE, June 13.—The grammar school trustees have canvassed the bond election vote, which resulted in 116 votes for the $8800 bonds for schoolhouse and other purposes and 56 against. One hundred and seventy-three votes were cast and one thrown out.

The High School teachers next year will be Prof. F. L. Carrier, Miss Delta Garst, Miss Ruth Frothingham, with Mrs. Carrier as teacher of domestic science. Five or six hundred dollars will be spent by the board in equiping sewing and cooking rooms.

Miss Mattie Himes will be principal of the grammar school, with three assistants as follows: Miss West, Miss Lovell and Miss Anderson, a fourth teacher having been necessary this year on account of the growth of the schools. It is desired that manual work can be added.

NEW FEDERAL OFFICE.

Entire Row Now Occupied by Harbor Forces—Steamer Elder Taken Off Southern Run.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, June 13.—The United States Treasury Department has rented three rooms on the second floor of the State Bank building fronting on Sixth street, and will move the customs and immigration offices from the old Banning building at the foot of Fifth street on July 1. This will give the Federal officers the entire row of rooms fronting on the street in the bank building, the United States inspectors of hulls and boilers now occupying the offices fronting on Palos Verdes street.

REBUILT BOAT.

News has been received from Portland that the steamer George W. Elder of the North Pacific Steamship Company's fleet is not to be returned to the San Pedro-Portland run for the present. She has been practically rebuilt since she was taken off the run and will be placed on the run between Eureka and Portland, taking the place of the steamer Alliance.

HONEY-BOUND BARGAIN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, June 11.—Porterville contractors, who bought the old Vandalia school building, inadvertently made a fine purchase. It was discovered today that the spaces between the walls of the building are a mass of honey and several hundred pounds of the honey have already been uncovered in dismantling the structure. The Vandalia school is one of the old buildings of the suburban district and it is believed that several swams of bees have been at work in the structure for the past several years.

GARDEN GROVE WATER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GARDEN GROVE, June 13.—A solution of the local water problem seems to be at hand. As a result of the hearing before the State Railway Commission, which was represented by Commissioner Phelan, a plan has been put on foot to consolidate the three companies now doing business. Each of the old companies would, under the plan, take stock in the new company for their domestic water equipment at a valuation to be set by the State Commission. It would be necessary, in addition to sell stock enough to raise funds to complete the new plant. The total capital stock would be $15,000. The new plan calls for six and four-inch mains along the principal streets, and a tank holding 20,000 gallons. The Elliott Company has applied to the county for a franchise, which would be taken over by the new company.

COMBAT SEWAGE MENACE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, June 13.—The Municipal Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been requested to act with County Health Officer Tucker in whatever steps are necessary to prevent the running of San Bernardino's sewage into Warm Creek and polluting some of the irrigating water that is used in the Riverside Valley. The sewage is purchased from the city of San Bernardino by a private firm, which is responsible for its later disposal.

In the towns of the famous Central and Southern mines of the Sierra Nevadas, in Jamestown and Sonora and other "camps" known the world over in early rush days, old houses have been reoccupied, the population has increased by leaps and bounds and "old timers" who left decandent towns a few years ago are astonished to see the rejuvination.

TARIFF AIDS BRITISH TRADE.

Leeds, Dundee and Belfast Have Noticed a Distinct Improvement. Other Stocks Were Already in Bond.

[London Times:] The Times today (December 15) publishes reports from leading commercial and industrial centers in the United Kingdom on the actual or prospective effect of the Underwood tariff on British trade with the United States. In a majority of the towns from which reports were received no appreciable expansion of business has been experienced, but in several places, notably Leeds, Dundee and Belfast, the lowering of the tariff has given a distinct fillip to trade. In all, however, the Times says, there is an expectation of great improvement in the future.

Among the reasons assigned for the absence of increased trade are the shortness in time the tariff has been in operation, the fact that large stocks of British exports were held in bond in the United States pending the passage of the tariff bill, the determination of American firms to keep prices up until all hoarded stocks are sold and the general deadness of the American markets owing to the Mexican trouble and the disturbance caused by projected currency and banking reforms.

CATALINA'S LID LIFTED TO PAY CITY'S EXPENSE

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AVALON, June 13.—The Board of Trustees have voted to grant Sunday opening for saloons and restaurants and also a second-class license to the owners of the Chinese junk, Ning-Po, which will be used an an oriental cafe.

That the Trustees need the money to run the city as an incorporation, now that the Banning Company refuses to keep up the town any longer, is said to be the cause of the board granting more liquor licenses. Since March 1, three saloons licenses have been granted, one first-class restaurant license and four second-class table licenses.

The "dry" faction now claims that this summer the streets of Avalon will be "sprinkled with beer" instead of the regular street-sprinkling wagon, a necessity, it is stated, the city treasury cannot pay for. Many of the "dry" faction now claim that they supported "incorporation" a year ago but had they only known that it would have added power to the liquor men, they would hav

Artistic Viewpoint.

SAYS MAN IS MARRING BEAUTIES OF NATURE.

YOSEMITE VALLEY needs a censor of good taste more than any other place in California today, according to Mode Wineman, famous nature photographer, who has just returned after a month in the valley catching with his camera's eye some of the unusual and hidden beauties of that remarkable place. The heavy snows in the high Sierras last winter and the rather sudden warm weather have created an immense fall of water, and Mr. Wineman was unable to secure even an average picture of Bridal Veil Falls, the mist rising from its basin nearly three-fourths of the way to the top and making it impossible to approach within a quarter of a mile without being drenched.

The photographic artist is much disturbed over the signs of carelessness on the part of overseers of the valley, which to many persons may seem trivial, but which will strike forcibly the eye of the exacting nature lover who visits the place. "Vandalism sticks out all over the spot which bears the name of the San Francisco donors of an inexpensive iron fence around a giant sequoia erected by the Native Sons several years ago," declared Mr. Wineman. "Vandalism has allowed the designating marks of red paint to remain on the two granite boulders placed over the grave of Galen Clark. The wire fencing around the 'grizzly giant' in the Mariposa grove is in exceedingly bad taste, as are the absurd names hung or tacked against the various giant trees. The only one that should retain special recognition with a name is the one that has been given the name of Clark, which was formerly the 'forest queen'—a name given by the discoverer. To photograph any of the big trees is a very difficult matter on account of their close proximity to each other.

"While at the grove I happened across an old man one day, who immediately gave me the thought of Edward Everett Hale having come back to life and standing before me. It was John Conway, one of the first visitors to the big trees after their discovery, and from that time a close friend of Clark and the man who made easy travel through the valley possible. He went there in 1869 and was so overwhelmed with the beauty of the place that he has remained practically ever since. In 1871 he completed his first big trail, the one running from Nevada and Vernal Falls to Glacier Point. Three years later he had finished the first wagon road into the valley and the first vehicle over it was a butcher's cart. In 1875 he started what was long thought an impossibility—the Eagle Peak trail leading from the floor of the valley to the top of Yosemite Falls.

"Conway has met innumerable great men and women of the world. He called to mind numerous past Presidents who had visited there. In the early days he was friendly with John Muir, who was then working in the sawmill of J. M. Hutchins at the foot of Yosemite Falls; Prof. Whitney, well-known geologist, after whom Mt. Whitney was named, and numerous others. While developing the trails over which so many have traveled since, Conway would always go home to his little ranch at the edge of the big trees. He frequently had to walk the entire distance of thirty-six miles, starting at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning and arriving home late that night. On Sunday afternoon he would start back and arrive in time to go to work on Monday morning.

"Others than Clark had probably seen the Mariposa Grove, but paid no attention to it. Among these may have been Gen. Fremont, whose camp was located at the foot of Mt. Bullion, just a few miles distant. Remains of several camps, probably belonging to the '49ers, were also found at the trees. Conway in all his years has never carried a weapon other than a pocket knife."

Another interesting visitor in Yosemite during the sojourn of the local artist was Francois Emile Matthes, government geologist, whose surveys of Yosemite National Park, Glacier, Rainier and Grand Canyon National Parks have placed him eminently in the ranks of his profession. He has just returned to Yosemite to definitely and for all time determine the exact nature of formation of the valley. "It was probably formed by stream erosion and weather conditions, he told me," said Mr. Wineman, "and not by earthquake, as is frequently supposed."

One of the great mistakes of the traveling public is not taking the right road to Yosemite. "The man or woman who misses a first view from Inspiration Point will never know the real thrill that should inspire the visitor. The trip should be made from Wawona to Inspiration Point, then through the valley and out through El Portal," Mr. Wineman says.

His new photographs with their unusual interpretations of the mood of nature will be first shown at the Rosamond Borde gallery at Santa Monica and in a short time may be exhibited at the gateway to Yosemite at Wawona.

"No place has so much beauty in as small a confine as this California wonderland of Yosemite," is Mr. Wineman's verdict.

New Treatment That Knocks Rheumatism

Hundreds Use It. Call It a Wonder. Offers to Send a 50c Box Free to Any Sufferer to Prove It.

Just because Rheumatism has you in its grip and you are suffering either chronic or periodic attacks which leave your joints all stiff and swollen and so sore and achey you can't work or sleep from heart wrenching pain, don't despair or consider your recovery hopeless.

Up in Syracuse, N. Y., a treatment for Rheumatism has been found that hundreds of users say is a wonder, reporting cures that seem little short of miraculous. Just a few treatments even in the very worst cases seem to accomplish wonders even after other remedies have failed entirely. It seems to neutralize the uric acid and lime salt deposits in the blood, driving all the poisonous clogging waste from the system. Soreness, pain, stiffness, swelling just seem to melt away and vanish.

The treatment first introduced by Mr. Delano is so good that its owner wants everybody who suffers from Rheumatism or who has a friend so afflicted to get a free 50c package from him to prove just what it will do in every case before a penny is spent. Mr. Delano says: "To prove that the Delano Treatment will positively overcome Rheumatism, no matter how severe, stubborn or long standing the case, and even after all other treatments have failed, I will, if you have never previously used the treatment, send you a full size 50c package free if you will just cut out this notice and send it with your name and address with 10 cents to help pay postage and distribution expense to me personally, F. H. Delano, 101-U Wood Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y. I know what this treatment has done and can do, and I want you to try it at my expense. Write now and you will receive by return mail a regular 50c package free without incurring any obligation other than you agree to use it. I can send only one Free Package to an address."

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS.

Wide Range and Greater Liberality Offered by U.S.C. in the Interest of High School Graduates.

The University of Southern California has made changes in admission requirements, in the form of greater liberality in the range of elective preparatory subjects, which will be of interest to High School graduates.

To the former list of admission subjects have been added: general science, one unit; three units of well-established courses in vocational work in accredited schools, and social science (made up from economics, sociology, industrial history, economic geography, commercial law) one unit.

Preparatory subjects presented for admission to the course leading to the A.B. degree must comprise fifteen units, of which eight are prescribed and seven elective. For admission to the courses in engineering, thirteen units are closely prescribed, leaving only two elective. Unconditional credit is given the candidate only for entrance subjects in which he is specifically recommended by the principal. Conditional admission may be granted where a deficiency is not in excess of two units; but such conditions must be removed by the end of the freshman year.

The registrar's office of the university will be kept open throughout the summer in order that students wishing to enter may be given careful individual consideration before the crowds of September throng the halls.

"Times" Joy Riders.

MORE KIDS TO VENICE EVERY DAY THIS WEEK.

THE TIMES joy riders on the Rialto de Venice—Alice in Wonderland or Through the Looking Glass, with the funny White Queen and the Mad Hatter and all the rest, hadn't anything for adventure and excitement on those 200 kids on whom the joy ride was wished last week.

The newsies had the time of their fair young lives on Monday. Those young excitement experts, after insisting on running the car to the beach themselves, fairly over-ran the Rialto. They helped the ballyhoo devil out in front of the inferno, they captured the jungle beasts of the merry-go-round, they insisted on manning the Ferris wheel themselves, and they "glid the rapids." And as for that popcorn palace out on the pier—

"Say, I'm goin' to buy dat joint when I get rich!" exclaimed a wizened-faced little newsy.

The kids of Macy-street school, on Tuesday, anxious to please teacher, each brought her home a sand-flea! It was very touching, she admitted, but still as a present for a young lady, fleas aren't rated high in the market this year. She falteringly admitted, in fact, that while she valued the present, she feared she'd have a hard time running a flea garage.

But the kids, who tied the can to dull care, and put the merry in merry-go-round, were the youngsters from the Belle White Home, who went down on Saturday. They certainly were some in the joy specialty. They dug their pink toes in the nice cool sand, and built sandcastles, and bumped the bumps, and a little girl, championette ragger, tangoed adown the center of the midway to the delight of all onlookers.

The cruise next week in the big auto will include round trips for the youngsters of Hewitt-street, Alpine and Ann-street schools. Some little youngsters of Russian parentage at Alpine, the principal reports, have never seen the ocean, and they are wondering if you can't see across it, honest!

Dr. Charles L. Edwards, supervisor of nature study, will accompany the children of Hewitt street on Monday, give them some pointers on the ocean flora, and explain the unscientific construction of the merry-go-round fauna.

DELEGATES TO THE N.E.A.

Superintendents and Teachers Will Cross the Continent to Attend Educational Meeting.

Twenty teachers of this city will themselves go to school at the National Education Association meeting, to be held in St. Paul, July 4 to 10. The party will leave June 26 via San Francisco and the Canadian Pacific. Supt. J. H. Francis and Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, assistant superintendent, will be among the number. A partial list of the teachers who will attend is as follows: Miss Jeannette McGorray, Mrs. Harriet Hollingsworth, Misses Mary Nable, Serena Christensen, Evarena Mayne, Nellye de Vault, Blanche Vance, Jessie Fraser and Mrs. Mary Belle Murray. Supt. Francis and Mrs. Dorsey are both on the programme of the big meeting, and the teachers named are delegates of the City Teachers' Club.

NAZARENE CAMP MEETING.

The annual camp meeting of the Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene will open in University Park, Pasadena, June 25, and continue ten days. Preachers, evangelists and people from all parts of Southern California will be in attendance, and among the special workers will be men and women noted in the denomination.

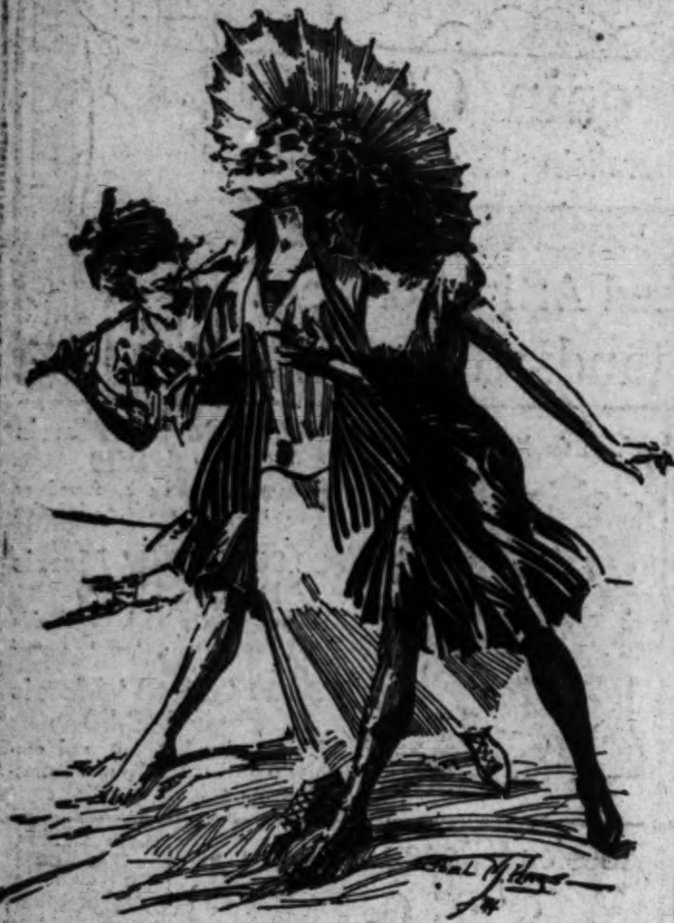
DANISH COMEDY.

Dramatic Society Will Present Musical Play in Mother Tongue and Give a Ball.

The Danish Dramatic Society will present "Valbygaasen," a musical comedy, in Swedish-American Hall, Pico and Santee streets, on Saturday evening, under the management of A. Asmussen. A bill will follow the play, and there will be singing by C. A. Milbach and the Danish Dramatic Society. The entertainment will be in the mother tongue.

Reduced 40 Pounds!

Mrs. A. Laval sends two photographs showing her before and after a weight reduction of 40 lbs. She writes that she can now go up and down stairs without puffing like a steam engine, that she thinks nothing of taking a rapid walk of several miles, that she can do her work so much quicker, her health is greatly improved, complexion clear and she feels like a different person. Mrs. Laval learned about a safe, pleasant, reliable method of fat reduction which so often succeeds when all else fails. Any man or woman who wants important information about reducing weight should write to Dr. H. C. Bradford, 20 East 22d St., 219 N. New York, N. Y., for the free book, free proof treatment and big collection of voluntary testimonials that will be sent in plain wrapper. Those who have tried in vain to get thin are likely to be surprised and delighted by accepting this free offer.



The bathers.

From a pen and ink drawing by Miss Ethel M. Hays, a pupil of the Los Angeles School of Art and Design, who graduates this week, and whose ambition it is to become a newspaper and magazine illustrator.

Art.

SWEET GIRL GRADUATE AMONG ILLUSTRATORS

ONE of the cleverest of this year's graduates from the Los Angeles School of Art and Design is Miss Ethel M. Hays, a young girl whose dexterity in handling the pen is far above the ordinary. She also promises to became a painter of distinction, though when she entered the school she thought she had no talent in this direction, and wished to follow drawing only.

The judgment of her instructors, L. E. Garden Macleod and Achille Hamilton Wolf, prevailed, and Miss Hays went through the regular curriculum of the school, which includes drawing and painting from plaster casts and from life, outdoor sketching from nature, modeling, perspective and anatomy. The young artist is now glad that she acted upon their advice, for she has discovered, in herself, a quite unexpected feeling for color, and this, with her keen perception of form, has made her into a good all-round artist—a painter as well as an illustrator.

In the exhibition of students' work held yesterday in the rooms of the Los Angeles School of Art and Design, some of the strongest and best things exhibited were from the pen, the pencil and the brush of Miss Hays. There were a few penciled heads of much charm, a delightful water-color portrait of a fellow student, a young Japanese boy with his palette on his arm, and some remarkable anatomical drawings done without the model and entirely from knowledge and memory. In these anatomical drawings the human figure, stripped even of its skin, is shown in many positions; walking, bending, climbing, are disclosed, all the muscles correctly indicated in Miss Hays's firm penlines.

But it is in illustration, after all, that the gifted young artist shines most brightly. On the walls were placed many excellent examples of her work in this direction, among them "The Bathers," three laughing figures seen and caught on the beach at Venice. In this the line is firm and sure, yet with a feminine refinement, the figures are truly proportioned, at the same time possessing much action. The composition is admirably rhythmical. The very spirit of youth and joy breathes through the picture.

Why They Like It.

BOY'S GOOD DESCRIPTION OF "THE TIMES" CAMP.

WHEN the Santa Monica High School held its annual composition contest this year, Jewell Jones chose a subject that would interest any boy, and won first honors with an essay on The Times Catalina Camp. As a result the Jones Club has been formed, consisting of a dozen members who will visit the camp en masse. Here is the bright boy's essay in full:

Jewell Jones,

Whose essay on The Times Catalina Camp won first honors in the Santa Monica High School.

"Fifty hungry boys arrived at Catalina Island by boat on a hot July day. They had each obtained six subscriptions to The Times and are now taking a four days' vacation at the expense of that paper. They immediately start to camp and on the way meet a group of camp boys who tell them all kinds of false stories and have the boys fully discouraged when camp is sighted.

"The camp is situated back of Tent City on a knoll about a half-mile from the bay. It is laid out in military fashion, there being two rows of tents with a street between and a table in the center under a long canopy. At the end of the street is the kitchen. Surrounding the whole is a high wire fence. On the south side of the street all four tents are for boys and on the north side first is the music and matron's tent and then comes two for boys and the last is reserved for camp manager.

"After arriving at camp and looking around the boys are assigned a bed. The average tent contains nine cots, one for each occupant, and is about twenty feet square. After this they are shown the wash tent, which contains showers, basins, soap and other essentials.

"Following this they are conducted to the table, well-filled with the best of food, and eat as hungry boys will after an ocean trip and a half-mile walk.

"Dinner is soon finished and the boys are given their bathing suits and are instructed about the boats, fishing lines, tramping trips and general rules of the camp.

"The other side of the island is about five miles distant. It is a fine tramp to leave camp about 8 a.m., reach the other side by noon, and on returning arrive in time for supper.

"There are abundance of fish in Avalon Harbor and the industrious boys furnish plenty of them for the table.

"Golf links are also near, and before they have been in Avalon two days all hav at least two golf balls and some have obtained employment caddying for players.

"Once every two weeks the glass-bottom boat Empress takes them for a trip either to Seal Rocks or to Moonstone Beach to view the many colored fish of different sizes and the extensive submarine gardens that surround the island.

"Avalon is one of the finest swimming beaches, fast becoming known the world over, and Times boys appreciate it, some so well that they were laid up in bed with sunburn.

"There is offered every year a prize for the first goat captured and brought to camp. Rivalry between the boys is very keen. Almost every group bring to camp an old sheep and tie it up, thinking they have a goat, till Manager Gillette tells them the difference and turns it loose. Every year there is a goat captured and some proud boy claims the prize.

"There are also many lively games between picked teams of baseball, indoor and horseshoe experts for Times prizes.

"Besides this continual round of amusements there are boxing matches which never fail to attract an audience, a first-class show, a phonograph and a player-piano, both of which work overtime to the boys' amusement. Each night the celebrated Catalina band furnishes music for the entire population in a natural amphitheater made by hills. A very beautiful park, where one may view the surrounding country and sea for miles, is near this amphitheater.

"Most persons are in bed by half past eight and lights are out at 10, but a large number of boys do not go to sleep before 11 because of pillow fights.

"Before leaving camp the boys are given paper and pencil and are asked to write their opinion of it, and all are hearty in their praises.

"All are sorry to leave and many secure subscriptions and are soon back, others wait on the table, and all return the following year."

Now is the time to get busy, boys. For every six new subscriptions to The Times you will be awarded four days at the camp absolutely without cost to you. Turn in your orders and sign up for your trip as soon as possible. They are filling up fast! If you haven't already started, come in or write for illustrated circular and subscription blanks.

Free Life Readings To All Who Write at Once

The well-known London Astrologer, Prof. Roxroy, has once more decided to favor the people of this country with Free Test Readings of their lives from his new address in The Hague, Holland.

Prof. Roxroy's fame is so well known in this country that he hardly needs an introduction from us. His power to read the lives of people, no matter at what distance they may be, is described as simply marvelous. Even Astrologers of lesser reputation all over the world acknowledged him to be their master, and follow in his footsteps. He tells you what you are capable of, and how you can be successful. He mentions your friends and enemies, and describes the good and bad periods in your life.

His description as to past, present and future events will astonish and help you. All he wants is your name (written by yourself,) your birth date, and sex to guide him in his work. Money not necessary. Mention the name of this paper and get a Trial Reading free.

Herr Paul Stahmann, an experienced Astrologer, of Ober Niewmdern, Germany, says:

"The Horoscope which Professor Roxroy worked out for me is quite according to the truth. It is a very clever and conscientious piece of work. As an Astrologer myself, I carefully examined his Planetary calculations and indications, and proved that his work in every detail is perfect, and that he is up to date in his science.

Baroness Blanquet, one of the most talented ladies of Paris, says:

"I thank you for my Complete Life Reading, which is really of extraordinary accuracy. I had already consulted several Astrologers, but never before have I been answered with so much truth, or received such complete satisfaction. With sincere pleasure I will recommend you and make your marvelous science known to my friends and acquaintances."

If you want to take advantage of this special offer and obtain a review of your life, simply send your full name and address, the date, month, year, and place of your birth (all clearly written,) state whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss, and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting:

"Your advice is useful,
So thousands say,
I wish success and happiness;
Will you show me the way?"

If you wish you may enclose 10 cents (stamps of your own country,) to pay postage and clerical work. Do not enclose coins in your letter. Send your letter to ROXROY, Dept. 73-N, No. 24 Groote Markt, The Hague, Holland. Postage to Holland 5 cents.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce need for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—[Advertisement.

Home Wrinkle Recipe—Astonishing Results

Such startling sensational results come from a very simple, harmless home-made wrinkle-remover, there's no excuse now for anyone wearing those hateful marks of age, illness or worry. No need fooling with worthless pastes, creams, nor "skin foods," which don't feed the skin. No need rubbing, massaging, steaming—senseless methods which expand and loosen skin and underlying tissue, aggravating a wrinkled, flabby condition. Better, saner, surer, is the scientific saxolite formula. Thousands have successfully tried it—thousands freed of wrinkles, enlarged pores, saggy cheeks, double chin—thousands younger looking, happier.

All you need do is to dissolve one ounce of powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel, and bathe your face in this. The effect is almost magical. Even deepest crow's feet completely, quickly vanish. Skin becomes firm, smooth, fresh looking—bears no trace of treatment except enhanced beauty. Get these inexpensive ingredients at your druggist's, try this marvelous saxolite lotion today.—[Advertisement.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE?

Bail of Late President of Fish Company to be Forfeited Unless He Appears Tomorrow.

Whether Charles E. Williamson, late president of the National Tuna Fishing and Canning Company, is a fugitive from justice, and whether his bond of $2000 will be declared forfeited, will be determined in the United States District Court tomorrow, when Williamson has been ordered to plead to the charge that he used the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Williamson disappeared some days ago, and ever since his attorney, George E. McCullough, has been trying to locate him. The missing man was in Dallas, Tex., when last heard from. His bond of $2000 was furnished by a local surety company, after the wife of L. D. Cannon, a friend, had given the bonding company a trust deed on her property on Boyle Heights. McCullough said yesterday that he had not heard from Williamson, and that the chances of his appearance in court were slight.

His arraignment on the order of the court is as much of the legal proceedings to which he must answer, as to be present when his trial is called. The case has not yet been presented to the Federal grand jury.

GANG'S CRIMES ARE CONFESSED.

BURGLAR SUSPECT TELLS TALE OF THIRTY "JOBS."

Held in Connection With Robbery and Burning of Casa Verdugo Store, He Breaks Down and Names Alleged Confederates and "Fence" Now Sought by Police.

Louis Vincent, alias Joe Castro, one of the Casa Verdugo burglars, yesterday broke down in the County Jail, where he has been confined for six days, and made a startling confession involving several ex-convicts in thirty or more safe-blowing jobs and robberies in this county within the past six months.

He told his story to Deputy Sheriffs Wright and Williams, who are working on the case. Vincent declared that he was assisted in the robberies by Walter Walton, Louis Carl and C. V. Peck. Carl and Walton are ex-convicts, while Peck is a barber. Sam Martranza, a merchant, was the "fence" for the gang, according to Vincent. Deputy sheriffs are now looking for Martranza and his arrest is expected at any hour.

Vincent has served two terms in San Quentin for burglary and was released on parole last January and discharged a few weeks later. He is 26 years old. The officers searched his home at No. 224 North Olive street yesterday and found several hundred dollars' worth of stolen property, including shoes, groceries, cigars, tools, etc.

Vincent gave the officers the name of an ex-convict who worked with him. Detectives Rico and Williams are assisting Deputy Wright. Sheriff Hammel has been in active charge of the case since the Casa Verdugo fire and robbery.

Walton, Peck and Vincent will have their preliminary examination Thursday before Justive Reeve.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

The Week.

WILLIAM HODGE AT MAJESTIC

"Isle of Bong Bong" Is Next Morosco Show.

Burbank Company Will Offer "Fortune Hunter."

Bessie Wynn at the Orpheum; Other Bills.

Next week's attraction at the Majestic Theater, commencing Monday night, will be William Hodge in the play in which he has just finished the longest run of the Chicago season, "The Road to Happiness."

In this play Mr. Hodge will be seen as a young country law student, who manages to eke out a living for himself and mother by doing odd jobs about the small village in which they live. His evenings he spends in the study of law, under the tutorship of an old country lawyer, and so well has he progressed in his studies that, at the end of the play, just a year after the first act, he is shown as a successful young country attorney, of the same type as Daniel Vorhees Pike in "The Man From Home."

"The part of Whitman in 'The Road to Happiness,'" said Mr. Hodge a few evenings ago, "is identically the same as Pike in 'The Man From Home,' only that a different period in the life of the character is shown. Whitman is given as a young country lawyer, just starting upon his career, while Pike is shown the same character, after having made a success. Both are of the type that I call the 'real American.' To me they are the same sort of men as Abraham Lincoln. Pike's love for his country, Whitman's affection for his mother, and the willingness of both to 'go the limit' for a friend, are characteristics that go to make up real men."

The play is similar in many respects to those in which Sol Smith Russell won fame. In fact, it has been said that Hodge is the logical successor of Russell in this sort of role.

The story of the play concerns the everyday happenings in a small upstate village in New York. A young girl returns home two weeks late from boarding school. Simultaneously with her arrival an apparently parentless infant is found on the front porch. The girl's stepfather accuses her of being the mother of the infant and drives her from home. She is taken in by Whitman and his mother. Hardcastle, the girl's stepfather, then attempts to drive Whitman from the town.

Mr. Hodge is supported by Gertrude Hitz, Scott Cooper, Reeva Greenwood, Adin B. Wilson, Taylor Carroll, Marion Brust, George Lund and Marie Haynes.

Morosco.

An event of unusual importance in the theatrical world of Los Angeles is scheduled for Tuesday night, when "The Isle of Bong Bong," a big Gaiety production, opens at the Morosco Theater for its local engagement.

"The Isle of Bong Bong" is the first production of the new regime of the Gaiety Theater organization, under the managing directorship of Col. E. A. Braden.

Upon its appearance in San Francisco it was acclaimed unanimously by the critics there as the most perfect production of musical comedy ever presented by a Coast company.

"The Isle of Bong Bong" is by Frank Adams and Will Hough, with the score by Joseph Howard, and is produced under the personal direction of Walter Lawrence. Lawrence also has an important role in the production, and the musical comedy is declared by San Francisco critics to be brilliant in lines, wonderfully dressed, with great music and specialties galore.

A cast of unusual prominence appear in "The Isle of Bong Bong." Heading that cast with Walter Lawrence is the beautiful and popular young prima donna, Frances Cameron, whose work in "The Merry Widow," "The Prince of Pilson," the big-time vaudeville and in a host of prominent productions throughout the country has made her one of the most desirable attractions that any musical comedy or light opera could secure.

Miss Cameron is cast in the role of Paquita, which suits her beauty and ability in a marked degree. Will H. Sloan, the popular comedian, will appear in an important role, as will Margaret Edwards, the little California girl, who has been declared by

WILLIAM HODGE PREDESTINED.

Hoosier Star Who Comes to Majestic Tomorrow Night Was Picked as Sol Smith Russell's Successor in this Sort of Role, While Playing a Peruvian in Musical Comedy.

WILLIAM HODGE, who comes tomorrow night to the Majestic Theater in the bucolic comedy, "The Road to Happiness," is at present the only actor on the American stage who is successful in the line of parts made famous by Sol Smith Russell, Joseph Jefferson, James A. Herne, John E. Owens and Denman Thompson. Not that the call for such players has in any way become smaller, or that the market for pastoral plays is any less great, but simply because Hodge is the only actor of any note left on the stage who has made a study of the interpretation of such roles.

Styles change on the stage as in every other line of endeavor. A few years ago the German dialect comedian was the most prominent figure in the American drama, and many of our best actors and actresses received their early training as members of supporting companies of such players. But today, with the exception of Weber & Fields, there are no really great German dialect comedians left, out of a list that but a few seasons ago included such names as David Warfield, Louis Mann and the Rogers brothers.

William Hodge's first role on Broadway was as a Peruvian in one of the Rogers Brothers' comedies. Previous to that the actor had played for several seasons in small barnstorming repertory companies, playing towns in Northern and Northwestern New York State. During these seasons of "hard work and little pay" Hodge had always one ambition in mind, and that was to see Sol Smith Russell. He finally dared to visit New York, and applied to Ben Teal, the famous old terror of the choris-

Real Star.

VELVET VOICED VENUS HERE.

Tights Drove Bessie Wynn Into Vaudeville.

"Am Own Boss Now," Declares "Toyland" Star.

Is the Girl Who Made Teddy Bear Famous.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

Dainty, dazzling Bessie Wynn, "the Venus With the Velvet Voice," who bolted from musical comedy to vaudeville because she discovered that she was apparently doomed to sing "pretty boy" parts all her life, and who is credited with being the most popular "single" girl act in the two-a-day, has strayed so far from the Gay White Way as to reach the Orpheum, Los Angeles, tomorrow.

Strayed is the right word, for Miss Wynn is one of that handful of fortunates whom New York City adopted as its own especial property quite some time ago, and seldom does she get more than a day's journey from the Flatiron building.

In fact, this will be her first appearance in Los Angeles in vaudeville, though many will recall her last appearance here as the star of "Babes in Toyland," which was the great musical comedy success of several seasons.

Acclaimed "the prettiest woman on the stage" and possessing a figure such as sculptors rave about, it fell to Miss Wynn to play the dainty Prince Chap, and so wonderful was her success that when it came time to present her in a new show, she found that managers, while willing to concede everything in or out of reason in the way of salary, were absolutely insistent that she must wear tights.

"I won't wear 'em, and I won't be bossed," was her retort, and there is a limitless amount of downright obstinacy back of that guileless smile which is one of Miss Wynn's multiple charms.

BOLTS INTO VAUDEVILLE.

And the upshot of it was that B. F. Keith booked her as headliner on his circuit and she has been headlining ever since.

To be sure, she has taken flyers since in musical comedies, but backed by the assurance that she could reenter the two-a-day at a moment's notice, she was able to realize her ambition, to be sweet and pretty, wear girl's clothes, and be adorably feminine.

Some of her successes were "Miss Nobody from Starland," and "The Sun Dodgers" though she appeared only in New York and Chicago in these productions.

MAKES SONGS FAMOUS.

A pretty and clever girl can do almost anything, whether it be shaping the destinies of empires or delighting vaudeville patrons, and Miss Wynn was scarcely launched on her vaudeville career when it was discovered that her record for song hits eclipsed that of any one in the business.

She it was who introduced the Teddy Bear to the stage, "Bessie and Her Little Brown Bear" being as much responsible for the craze for the inanimate pets as any other one thing.

One gets an idea of her versatility from a glance at some of her song successes, among which are included "The Girl Who Threw Me Down," "Tell Me," "Won't You Be My Baby Boy," "All That I Ask Is Love," "If the Wind Had Only Blown the Other Way," "Are You Sincere" and a host of others.

Bessie Wynn believes that femininity is the greatest asset of stage success. In fact, that was one of the reasons why she insisted on discarding tights, though she looks mighty chic in them, and being as pretty as she is, it is only natural that she should be one of the best-dresed women on the stage.

Like many another, she has a penchant for designing her own costumes and coiffures and there is a certain big department store in New York that has exclusive control of all the Bessie Wynn creations.

Yet she is never ultra mode or inclined to the bizarre. Like Fritzi Scheff, she believes that what is becoming is best style and that prevailing modes can always be made to conform to the individuality of the wearer.

She has a leaning to old things, too, and on this occasion brings to the Orpheum the replica of one of Jenny Lind's gowns worn by that wonderful songbird in the fifties.

Miss Wynn includes the original costumes among her choicest treasures, but absolutely refuses to wear it on the stage as it would last but a short time.

REAL FARMER.

And yet, with all her daintiness, Miss Wynn has a leaning toward the soil. Detroit is her home and not far from there she has a cute little farm, which she manages to inspect about once in so often and which is the home of the many pets accumulated on the road.

Among these is a bear, now as large as a garage, but a real live Teddy, when B. F. Keith gave it to her, while another is a goat, the gift of one of the fraternities at Princeton College.

This goat was one of the real surprises of Miss Wynn's career. She was playing at Trenton, and of course, on the afternoon of the opening sang her "Teddy Bear" song. That night in the middle of her act some of the boys threw something which looked like a miniature tiger onto the stage.

On picking up the little beast, however, the singer discovered that it was a tiny goat all swaddled in an orange and black blanket (the Princeton colors) on the side of which was this sign, "You've got our goat."

Despite statements to the contrary from many sources, Bessie Wynn declares that the stage is advancing and the public is asking for songs of far higher class than it used to.

"It is my business to cater to the public," she writes, "and the fact that I am using with success a far higher brand of song than I used to, speaks eloquently for the advance in public taste."

Forthcoming.

MUSICAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

THIRD AND LAST LYRIC CLUB SEASON'S RECITAL.

Homer Grunn's Pupils' Recital. Herr Adolf Tandler in London. Pavlowa Prizes for Dancing Music, Offered to American Composers, to Be Awarded in August.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

The third and last concert of the Woman's Lyric Club will take place at the First Congregational Church on Hope, between Eighth and Ninth streets on the evening of Friday, June 19.

The club will be assisted by the Philharmonic Quartette, composed of Leroy Jepson, tenor; Sheldon Ballinger, tenor; Harold Ostrom, baritone, and J. Lester Adams, basso.

For soloists, five artists will be heard: Miss Julie Kie Christin, contralto; Miss Beatrice Cooper, Mrs. Carlton Stockwell and Mrs. Mary O. Graves, sopranos.

Selections from Chaminade, Rosemund, Johnson, Neidlinger, Kurstimer, Hadley, Shelley and Foote will be heard, under the musical direction of J. B. Poulin, with Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson as accompanist.

Homer Grunn's Pupils.

On the evening of Monday, June 22, Homer Grunn, assisted by Leona Walton and Faye Gooch, pupils of Oskar Seiling, will present Marcia Adelman, Harold Gleason, Leona Walton, Mrs. Charlotte Andrus-Brown, Irvina Shanklin, his advanced pupils in selections from Mozart, Grieg, Chaminade, Chopin, Liszt and others.

The concert will take place at Symphony Hall, Blanchard building.

Herr Adolf Tandler in London.

Herr Adolf Tandler, director of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, who left a few weeks ago to visit his mother in Vienna, and incidentally secure orchestral novelties for the next season's concerts, sends me greetings from London.

Herr Tandler spent several days in the English metropolis, arriving there in the heighth of the social season. The musical offerings he found "pretty good—nothing extraordinary," an opinion in which the English critics themselves seem to concur. He will visit Paris and several of the leading German musical centers, returning early in September to Los Angeles to commence rehearsals for next year's programmes.

San Luis Obispo Operatic Star.

San Luis Obispo is the latest California city to claim an operatic star for its own. Miss Helen Mills, of that place, has just sailed for Italy to take a special course of study and make some operatic appearances.

Miss Mills is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Easton Mills, of San Luis Obispo, and grandniece of the late D. O. Mills, she is also cousin to Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

On her return to this country next winter she will fill a number of concert and operatic engagements. Her voice is a rich contralto of marked beauty.

Benson Starr Recital.

On Tuesday evening, June 16, the advanced pupils of J. Benson Starr will be heard at the Ebell Clubhouse.

Alice Farrell Bowen, Bernice Dempster, Helen Guilford Stadden, Dudley Leavitt, Lillian Buffington, Frederick C. Conrad, Jr., will be heard on that occasion with Grace Abbie Andrews, as accompanist.

Thomas Taylor Drill.

Thomas Taylor Drill, to better direct his new enterprise, the Amateur Opera Association, has severed his connection with the Egan School and has opened studios in the Majestic building. The founder of the famous Irish Choral Society of Chicago, of the Musurgia Oratoric Society and the L.A. Festival Choir is going to devote his future attention to the developing of his own chorus and amateur opera productions.

Ogilvie Recital.

On Saturday, June 20, at 2:30 p.m., Mrs. James Ogilvie will present her advanced pupils in recital at Cumnock Hall, assisted by Mrs. Charles G. Stivers, soprano, accompanied by her nine-year-old daughter on the piano.

Bandsmen University.

One of the most unique music classes in America is that under the direction of the Institute of Musical Art of New York City, in charge of A. A. Clappe, for the purpose of training bandsmen of the United States Army, with a view to raising the standard of army music.

Free scholarships are placed at the disposal of the War Department each year, so that there may be ten students always in attendance upon the Institute of Musical Arts' "United States Army Bandmaster Class." This year the graduates are Alfred J. Thomas, chief musician, Tenth Cavalry; George A. Horton, Third Cavalry; James B. Prewitt, Twenty-sixth Infantry; and Einar V. Sorenson and William C. White, privates in band.

The Symphony Sale.

Although summer is commencing, and society people are getting ready to depart to seaside and mountain resorts, they are still keeping in mind the fact that fall and winter will come again, and with them, the concerts of the Symphony Orchestra. No matter how busy, time is found to send in requests for season seats for next year's concerts, and we find among the list of those who have made requests for seats the following: Mrs. E. W. Martindale, Miss Mira Hershey, Mrs. L. Lindsay, Miss Anna Hall, Miss Eleanor Lowden, Arthur Maude, Miss Constance Crawley, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Behrendt, Mrs. Ben B. Mayer, Mrs. Beatrix Duane, T. C. Low, A. B. Clafen, C. D. Cheeseman, Mrs. George C. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. John Bartow Montell and Mr. and Mrs. George Miller Millard.

Three Pavlowa Dancing Music Prizes.

Pavlowa, famous Russian premiere danseuse, has announced her intention of heading a crusade against the "pirouetting, kicking and confusion" of modern dancing. To that end she is seeking to establish a standard which will eliminate the suggestive and ungraceful elements that prevail in the dances popular in the United States and Canada.

Mlle. Pavlowa is busy in her London home this summer reconstructing certain of the popular dances whose principal elements she deems artistically sound and practicable. It is also her purpose to originate three new society dances for introduction in America next fall, when she returns to commence her third tour.

That the petite dancer's intentions are most serious is indicated by her having commissioned her manager, Max Rabinoff, to offer $1500 in cash prizes for three pieces of dance music, which in open competition shall be found best suited for the introduction of the dances she is devising.

Composers of any nationality residing in the United States or Canada are eligible to compete for one of the three $500 prizes, contest for which is now officially open. Manuscripts may be forwarded to Max Rabinoff, at the Metropolitan Operahouse building, New York City, any time prior to August 1, when the competition closes.

No restrictions are placed upon those who may wish to submit compositions, so long as the themes are in dance form, melodious and strongly marked in rhythmic character, but no composer will be permitted to enter more than one piece of music.

After being passed upon by Mr. Rabinoff the manuscripts will be forwarded to Pavlowa, who will herself be the sole judge. Announcement of the winners is to be made as soon after the contest closes as is possible, and certified checks for $500 each will be forwarded the three fortunate musicians whose work shall have satisfied the intended purpose of the dancer. Absolute secrecy is promised the unsuccessful contestants, so that any musician may enter this undertaking without fear of his failure being proclaimed to the world. It is Mr. Rabinoff's intention to feature the composer's names in conjunction with the dances, so that a newcomer in the field of musical composition stands a chance of obtaining speedy recognition if successful in winning one of the prizes.

Pavlowa intends presenting all three of the dances she is now originating at every performance on her forthcoming tour, and when it is remembered what immense popularity some of the dance music she has previously employed has achieved, the present contest offers splendid possibilities to American composers.

We have in Los Angeles a number of musicians whose compositions have received more than local approbation, the spirit of the dance is as natural to Californians as their love for sunlight and all things joyous and beautiful, why should not one of our own composers be among the fortunate winners of a $500 check and all the consequent distinction?

Lelia Holterhoff, "Berlin" Soprano.

Lelia Holterhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Holterhoff, of West Adams street, who will spend the summer with her parents in Los Angeles, has been visiting her uncle, Ferdinand Willius, of St. Paul, on her way West.

While in the northern city Miss Holterhoff gave an invitation recital to a number of friends, delighting her audience with her beautiful interpretations of German lieder, and displaying a charming quality of voice.

Miss Holterhoff is designated "a distinguished Berlin soprano," by the St. Paul reviewers, although, since most of her life was spent in Los Angeles, California still claims her as its own. For several years she has been studying and appearing in concert in Germany, and her visit home will be a brief one. It is to be hoped that she will find time to appear in concert while here, for Miss Holterhoff in Germany is recognized as a teacher and lecturer as well as the possessor of a lovely voice, and her friends are looking forward to her visit with pleasurable anticipation.

Stillwell Hotel Musicale.

Last Thursday evening the Stillwell musicale was of unusual interest, besides the original programme by Mrs. Jane Catherwood and Theodor Gordohn, several interesting features were added. Mme. Bona read two selections. Miss Marjorie Woods Hicks, Mr. Gordohn's accompanist, played some piano numbers. But the surprise were the numbers of his own composition, played by M. Raoul Laparra, the celebrated French pianist and composer, who was a guest of the evening and graciously consented to play quite impromptu some of his Spanish dances.

Mr. Gordohn's numbers were all of his own composition; Mrs. Catherwood's programme was varied, as she sang two groups of several numbers, the first composed entirely of American compositions; the second group comprised several French songs that were especially well received.

Fowler Song Recital.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. Robert Fenton Fowler will be heard in a song recital at Symphony Hall, Blanchard building, accompanied by Mrs. Ethlyn Walker at the piano.

Anna Yaw Thorpe.

Miss Anna Yaw Thorpe will be heard in a song recital at the Y.W.C.A. auditorium at 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 20.

Lillian Adams Recital.

Miss Lillian Adams will present a piano programme for the students of the Santa Monica high schools on June 17, to be followed by a concert to be given by the students in her school later in the month at the Merritt Jones Hotel, Ocean Park.

Madrigal Club.

The Madrigal Club's last meeting was held on June 4 at Music Hall. Mrs. L. W. Thompson, Mrs. G. F. McKinney, Miss Helen Simpkins, Mrs. Haylett, Mrs. B. P. Sewall and Mrs. L. E. Sutherland participated in the interpretation of songs studied during the season.

Matinee Musical Club.

With its last meeting, Thursday, the Matinee Musical Club launched its projected activities for next season.

The first Thursday of every month will be given to students and the third to the presentation of local talent of merit and that of members of the club.

The organization indorsed the work of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra by officially deciding that a season box to be known as the "Matinee Musical Club" would be secured for the benefit of twelve members, in rotation.

On the first Thursday of October it was planned to have a symphony matinee, at which officers of the Los Angeles Symphony would speak on the musical plans of the season.

The following officers were also elected to serve for the following year: Mrs. James Henry Ballagh, founder and first president of the club, was re-elected to the presidency, and with Mrs. Fred Jungquist, second vice-president; Miss Agnes Woodward, third vice-president; Mrs. Edwin Arnold Bemis, recording secretary; Miss Marguerite Ratzer, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Newton Graves, treasurer, and Mrs. Peyton J. Hinman, director, were installed in office.

Nell Lockwood McCune.

Miss Nell Lockwood McCune, soloist of the Al Malaikah Temple of Shriners on the recent eastern pilgrimage, has returned home, and will appear before the Santa Ana Ebell Club on June 27.

Miss Etel Azard, ... portion of the act, is said to be a remarkable pantomime artist and acrobat. They were recently imported from the Follies of Bergere of Paris, for a tour of the S. & C. time.

The last feature on the new bill will be the whirlwind wizards on roller skates, Bert and Hazel Skatelle, who make roller-skating a science and do their work with such exceptional expertness that they are pleasing to look upon, while the always new and exclusive first-run Keystone comedies will complete the new bill.

Pantages.

"The Soul Kiss," with George H. Ford in the double role of Mephisto and the aged tragedian, is promised for this week at Pantages, after an absence of two years. "The Soul Kiss" was such a tremendous success at Pantages when here before that the wise ones looked for its immediate return, knowing Alex Pantages's fondness for repeating his lucky numbers. The act has an entire new scenic equipment, removing the one subject for adverse criticism when it last appeared here.

Ford has surrounded himself with a company which does full justice to the opportunities for vocal and terpsichorean effort, and his attention to details of the production has been rewarded by a marked degree of success all along the circuit. In the cast with Ford appear Billy Dodge, Josephine Claremont and Jeanette Lockwood in principal roles, with Virginia Drew as Marguerite, the leading character of the act.

Skipper, Kennedy & Reeves, three men, annex the comedy honors of the programme. Their act is distinguished for its clean and wholesome humor, pleasing vocalism and original fun. A blackface comedian keeps the audience in uproariously good humor throughout the act.

Wartenburg Bros., foot jugglers and musicians, have an act with many novel features. Scott & Wallace, a man and woman in cross-fire comedy, also have a snappy singing and dancing act, with some very lively "cross-fire" comedy.

Joseph Remington and company, presenting "The Millinery Salesman," introduce a number of modern social problems, hinging on the changing family and sex relations of the day. The millinery salesman and his wife are mutually suspicious and jealous, and these strained relations are aggravated by a friend, who is not so disinterested as she appears to be. Ollis Marshall and Beatrice Thorn play the female roles, and Remington is well supported in both the comedy and serious situations of the act.

A sixth act is in preparation by the San Francisco producing department of the circuit and will be announced later.

Hippodrome.

A dainty, passionate operetta, and one that all Southern Californians may justly take a paternal interest in, is "The Bells of San Gabriel," which will be one of a trio of superlative headliners at the Hippodrome this week, beginning with the matinee Monday.

It is founded on fact, and is a vivid, picturesque and tuneful story of early mission days in California, with its scenes laid in the San Gabriel Mission, which has been reproduced on the stage with gratifying fidelity. Up north, when it was first produced, "The Bells of San Gabriel" was described as being, in tabloid form, as good as "The Girl of the Golden West," so much is expected of it.

Another big feature will be a laugh offering by Jane O'Roark and Broderick O'Farrell, called "All for a Hundred." Miss O'Roark is as jolly in comedy as she is intense in melodrama, and has long since demonstrated that she can be relied on to delight her audiences.

Third of the big three will be "The Merry Masqueraders," another of those fascinating Bothwell Browne girl shows which have grown so popular at the Hippodrome. Banking on the fact that each of the Browne offerings has been better than its predecessors, would indicate that "The Merry Masqueraders" will be unusually jolly, tuneful and picturesque.

The Savolas, often styled demons on the high wire, will add their efforts to the programme, and Viola Farrell, with dandy gowns and charming repertoire, will contribute high-class vocal numbers.

Not the least interesting feature of the new bill promises to be Lee & Noble in "The Newsboy and His Girl," an amusing skit that has a high batting average of genuine laughs. The usual quota of motion pictures will complete the programme.

Republic.

Al Watson and company have scored so great a success this week as headliners at Bert Levey's Republic Theater, in their satire on local social conditions, "Temptation," that the management has decided to cancel their bookings for next week along the Levey circuit, and hold them in Los Angeles for another week. The organization will present a new skit, however, the title of this week's show being "The Dog Catcher." This is a rip-roaring farce comedy from start to finish, and one of Al Watson's greatest comedy successes. It is being produced by popular request, and should be no less of a hit than "Temptation."

Reynold and Carpenter will present a harmony singing and saxaphone playing act, decidedly above the ordinary. They are artists both at close harmony work and on the saxaphones, and are favorites wherever they go. Sadie MacDonald and company have a spectacular comic absurdity, "Cafe de Luxe," that is far above the ordinary vaudeville act; Doro and Wolford, "those two girls," come as novelty entertainers extraordinary; De Metric, sensational handbalancer, is an added feature, while a special act is being held unannounced as a surprise by the Bert Levey management. The Selig news weekly and an orchestral concert complete the bill.

Clune's Auditorium.

That the flash of a pair of brilliant eyes and the smile of a beauteous woman can change the history of a world, is more than illustrated in George Kleine's spectacular production of the Cines photo drama masterpiece, "Antony and Cleopatra," which has been secured by W. H. Clune at enormous cost, for the Auditorium.

Who knows what might have happened had Marc Antony stayed at home in Rome and shared the home government with Octavius and Lepidus, instead of yielding to the wiles of Cleopatra, spending his time in idleness and pleasure in Egypt, and forswearing his duty to his wife, his home and his country. It was his defection that practically turned Rome from a republic back to an empire, for it was the popularity achieved in defeating Antony and Cleopatra and conquering Egypt, that created an Emperor of Octavius. Had Antony remained in Rome, the republic might have remained unchanged, and from that angle the whole history of the world been altered.

This point and many others of historical value can be gleaned from the truly wonderful film drama production. It is a series of exquisite pictures in which the principals are all famous historical characters, and is acted with consummate skill.

Antony Novelli as Marc Antony, and Signora Giovanna Teribili Gonzales as Cleopatra do such splendid acting before the camera that if portrayed in flesh and blood on the legitimate dramatic stage, would cause them to be recognized among the very greatest actors of the world and undoubted favorites everywhere. Yet, as actors before the camera, their fame will be perpetuated for ages, while on the stage it would almost be forgotten with the sound of their voices. Irrespective of all this, however, the point is—"Antony and Cleopatra" is the photo drama supreme to date and commands the attention of everybody who searches for convincing realism in art. It is a stupendous and astounding production, surpassing Kleine's "Quo Vadis."

Clune's Broadway.

The "Adventures of Kathlyn" close this week at Clune's Broadway Theater. "The Court of Death" is the title of the last number of the successful series. In this number all of the climaxes are reached and the happy ending is recorded only after the heroine has gone through enough spectacular scenes to make an entire novel. This great story has had a wide following both as a newspaper serial and as a motion picture thriller. Miss Williams is well known in Los Angeles, where she is loved by a vast following of friends.

"A Terror of the Night" is another big feature to begin at the Broadway. The pleasure of having two big features on the programme is due to the desire of W. H. Clune to place "The Mountain Rat," produced under the supervision of D. W. Griffith, on the programme next Thursday. Therefore the big feature booked for that date goes on with the new show.

There will be a number of good comedies. "He Changed His Mind," or "A Bargain Automobile," is a sidesplitter with thrills thrown in. The "Accomplished Mr. Thompson," for clean-cut wit, could not be surpassed.

"A Terror of the Night" is one of the delightful Edison "Dolly of the Dailies" numbers with pretty Mary Fuller in the leading role. This series is unusually thrilling and is particularly enjoyable.

The pictorial news service now includes both by-weekly and daily pictures. There is a set of news pictures received each day by both the Clune theaters.

Woodley Theater.

When Charles Klein's greatest modern drama, "The Gamblers," made its first appearance on the stage, it was freely predicted that if it ever became a film subject it would make the greatest motion picture of the day.

This prediction has been realized, and tomorrow at the Woodley Theater it will form the big feature.

Many may recall the play as presented at the Majestic about a year ago. Surely none who saw it then but remember vividly its dramatic force, its wonderful love story, its great suicide pact and the masterly struggle of the cornered millionaires to escape the engulfing vortex of Wall-street speculation.

How "The Gambler" loses the woman he loves to a successful lawyer, and how fate brings it about that this very man shall have the conduct of the case against the financiers, and how the woman in the hour of peril goes to the man she really loves, and the surprising climax of it all make

FOR WOMEN AND MEN.

Facts, Features and Fancies.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPER'S HINT: The oiled papers which come around your cakes of naptha soap are excellent for smoothing your flat irons.

If you do not feel as though you and your family could take a vacation this summer, try the home vacation plan.

Reverse the order of things as to housework. Reduce the hard work of living to a minimum and increase the fun of it. This may be done by simplifying the regime. Pretend that you are living in camp and serve your foods in camp fashion. Every member of the family will enjoy this, you may be certain. When you come to think of it, each needs a change quite as much as does the housewife herself and you will doubtless learn that the change from the conventional will be joyously hailed by them.

Serve breakfast on the porch. Serve dinner out in the yard. Use dinner viands for breakfast and breakfast viands for dinner. Even put up a picnic lunch and carry it out in baskets to the summer-house or tent and make the place, however simple it may be, seem like the great out-of-doors. Someone has said that it is all in the attitude of mind, and this may be your way of proving the truth of the saying.

If you have planned to use a trifle of money for some kind of trip for a part of the family, you may be able to secure summer comfort and a summer change for all, by purchasing instead a tent for the back yard, a swinging seat for the porch, or by selecting piazza furniture which will create there an out-door room to be enjoyed by all. There are many articles which at small cost will add materially to comfort. At a trifle of expense you can construct an arbor and have it in a very short time so overrun with vines that the shade will be complete. Or if you are in great haste for your outdoor sanctuary, you may use a thatch of palms as a roof. The fresh-air sleeping porch has become, in most homes, a matter of course for both summer and winter use. If you have not achieved this, it is a good time to plan it now. Whatever you do, make it a point for both yourself and your family, to live in the open all that you possibly can, during the next few months. You and they will profit greatly by the experience, both in pleasure and in health.

Visit the Gift Section.

In that Broadway furniture house which makes a point of carrying only the very best in quality, I was browsing around in the well-arranged gift section recently, and I thought how wise for everyone looking for bridal gifts to visit here.

It is amazing how inexpensive and how beautiful as well as useful are the articles to be purchased here for a very few dollars. There are a number of things such as candlesticks in solid mahogany, trays in the same material, book ends and magazine racks and quaint footstools, as well as dozens of articles in French cretonnes and gilt galloons which can be had for so little that one wonders that they do not more often form a part of the wedding giving.

I think, when I start out with a list for the bride, I shall make my first visit to this interesting gift section. Possibly I shall also make my last visit there, for I doubt if elsewhere I shall find articles so well suited to this especial gift purpose.

Ambulators.

A broad window in a high-class Broadway store is devoted to the display of a new type of go-cart for little ones. The scene is very ingeniously devised. A motherly lady is pushing a cart; there are carts for "doublets;" and I believe some are large enough for trios; and all seem to be extremely well finished and of utmost convenience as to construction. This is "go-cart" season, too.

Newly Furnished.

The bungalow in one of the big Broadway stores, is when newly furnished, the mecca of those who intend fitting up homes or refurnishing those which they already have.

Yesterday, there was a constant stream of people passing through the well-arranged rooms, commenting upon the innovations and deciding as to what they would have. This miniature home—and yet not so very miniature, since it is about the size of the usual cosy California bungalow—has furnished an inspiration for many a cosy abiding place.

The room, which at present attracts most favorable comment, is the dining-room, since the furniture shown there is of a novel design in fumed oak of the lighter tint now so popular.

For Your Eyes.

Have you heard it said that the ordinary hard water is bad for the eyes? A girl who was troubled with granulation of the lids tells me that after she procured distilled water and used it exclusively in bathing her eyes, a cure was effected.

A First-Class Hike.

The Strollers found upon a recent walking trip that it was best to enter Topango Canyon from the San Fernando Valley, as one is thus more certain as to car time and also the trip is pleasanter since one gets the steepest grade at first. Taking the 7:15 car for Owensmouth, one has the cool of the morning for the open road and the shade of the canyon during the heat of the day. The Strollers made the jaunt in leisurely fashion, taking two days for it, and loafing along to enjoy every detail of the lovely roadside. There is probably not a trip in the vicinity of Los Angeles so replete with beauty as is this one. Wild flowers, ferns and vines abound, and at every turn of the road a new scenic beauty is revealed.

It is about twenty-five miles from Owensmouth to the Santa Monica wharf, according to the pedometer, although it has been variously estimated at from much more to less.

The Strollers had arranged to spend the night at a well-known ranch, but upon reaching there, late in the afternoon, after many loiterings and a return of a mile or more from the right-hand canyon which they had traversed, they found the place fully occupied. It looked for awhile as though it would be a night hike or to sleep in the open, but they were so fortunate as to find a little ranch in charge of a caretaker who hospitably took them in and vacated the house for their convenience. It was a beautiful spot and they enjoyed the stay there quite as much as the remainder of the hike, which they resumed in the morning. So lovely was the place that even yesterday's sandwiches tasted good for breakfast, and they vowed to pass that way again and possibly make a longer stay in the vicinity.

Fashion's Limning.

Many of the newest tunics are constructed upon straight lines, and are extremely full and gathered or shirred, plaited or accordioned from the waist line. The skirts which show slightly below these full tunics are extremely scant, and resemble a single trouser leg more than they do a skirt.

Tailored hats grow more and more severe both as to outline and as to trimming. When becoming they are extremely smart, but in many instances it takes a girl of truly classic features to endure their severity.

Summer gowns of fine net, edged with embroidery upon tunic and trimmed more or less elaborately with the same upon the blouses, are finding favor for the forthcoming season. Some of these are very lovely, and the severity of line exacted in the more substantial frocks are in these softened and modified to a gratifying extent.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLU

BY SYDNEY FORD.

SURELY "the world do move." Remember the days when our sweet girl graduates chose such topics as "Over the Alps Lies Italy," "Tongues in Trees, "Sermons in Stones and Books in the Running Brooks," "Who Can Tell What I May Be?" and kindred sentimental subjects for their graduating essays? Yes, that's what they called 'em in those days—now the graduating essay is a "thesis"—and the subjects! Just listen to this, taken from a programme I hold in my hand of a recent commencement:

"The Parliamentary History of the Irish Home Rule Movement." This was tackled by a young woman whose major subject was history and who already holds the degree of A. B. from Cornell and captured the degree of M. A. at the University of Southern California the other day.

Another topic which headed the thesis presented by a young woman who received similar honors from the above university, whose major subject was English, was "The Technique of the Photo-Drama as Conditioned by Its Medium of Expression."

"Studies in Variation With Special Reference to Fishes" was the subject of a young woman who majored in zoology and already had an A. B. from Hamline University tacked onto her name.

"Thomas Lovell Beddoes's Literary Relations to John Webster and Cyril Tourneur as Evident in His Tragedy 'Death's Jest Book,'" was the thesis presented by another young woman candidate for a degree.

As for the young men, such practical subjects as "A Survey of the Mexicans in Los Angeles," and "A Social Study of the Church in Rural Southern California" were the live topics presented by two candidates who wrote on sociological subjects, while the subject of botany was presented—not in an essay on "Spring Flowers," but rather a thesis on "An Ecological and Taxonomic Study of the Freshwater Chlorophyceae of Los Angeles and Vicinity"—whatever that may be.

The young fellow who majored in biology gave as his thesis "A Contribution to the Study of the Habits and Anatomy of the Sand Crab." Altogether, this swapping of sentiment for science is but another indication of the evolution of our time.

COULD NOT REST ECZEMA ITCHED SO

On Face, Hands, Feet and Knees. Lost Most of Hair. Almost Unbearable. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed Quickly.

R. F. D. No. 2, Box 152B, Ontario, Cal.—"Ten years ago eczema first made its appearance on my face in the form of a little yellowish blister on my nose. It itched and burned so I thought it was a spider bite. Since then I have been subject to attacks on the face, on my hands, feet and knees, and have lost most of a luxuriant head of hair. The eczema itched and burned so I could not rest day or night. Sometimes my eyes were swollen almost shut, then the fever would go down a little leaving ugly scars which were a long time in healing. It spread into my hair. At times it would break out on my hands and knees and the lower part of my legs. If I became a little bit too warm it would itch almost unbearably.

"I tried many treatments which did not seem able to heal it up. At last I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment which healed it up quickly and I have not had an attack since. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are restoring my hair which had all dropped out and was very gray." (Signed) Mrs. Edwin Cadd, July 12, 1913.

A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

When You Are Troubled With Hairy Growths

(Modes of Today)

No woman need longer endure ugly, unsightly hairs on her face, neck or arms, for a simple and very effective method is here given to quickly banish such objectionable growths and leave the skin smooth and free from spot or blemish.

A thick paste, sufficient to cover the offensive hairs, is made by mixing a little of the powdered delatone with water. This is then spread over the hairy surface and in about two minutes rubbed off and with it comes every trace of hair. After this treatment the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No danger or inconvenience results from this treatment and rarely is the second application required, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package. Any good druggist has it in stock.

a wonderfully graphic and tense action story, thoroughly up to date and American in all its detail.

There will be some splendid music, too, on the mammoth pipe organ, together with a new display of the unique invention which controls a grand piano from the organ keyboard.

Mason.

It has been many months since there has been so much activity around the Mason Operahouse box office. The reason is plain at a glance—Annette Kellerman, she of the form divine, is appearing in the most wonderful photoplay of the age—"Neptune's Daughter"—and a succession of crowded audiences has been the rule since the opening. The engagement ends Thursday night.

Heralded as a modern venus, Miss Kellerman has lived up to the announcements, and has also relieved any doubt that existed regarding her ability as an actress. In a semi-mythical and exceedingly difficult part, which does not permit her to be absent from the picture for any length of time, she gives a performance that is remarkable. Attired first as a mermaid and later as a mortal, she participates in 500 scenes on both land and in water, the like of which have never been produced in motion photography. The play carries a beautiful, mythical atmosphere, which is made possible by being produced amidst the natural surroundings of Bermuda.

Miller's.

Today and tonight are the last opportunities for Los Angeles picture fans to view that greatest-of-all college dramas, "Strongheart," at Miller's Ninth, Spring and Main Street Theater. The work of Henry Walthall, Blanche Sweet and the other members of the big cast is being highly commended by the large crowds that have greeted this unusual offering.

Monday and for three days only the offering of film masterpieces is headed by the gorgeous natural-color romantic drama, "The Hand of Destiny." No more beautiful picture has ever been shown in the city, and as a work of art in motion it even surpasses "Loyalty," the most-talked-of photoplay ever shown in Los Angeles. Good comedies and latest news events complete the programme.

For Thursday the management announces G. M. Anderson (Broncho Billy) in his great four-part dress-suit play, "The Good-For-Nothing."

Tally's Broadway.

Bruce McRae, the distinguished and popular star, makes his first appearance in motion pictures at Tally's Broadway tomorrow in Cyrus Townsend Brady's famous story, "The Ring and the Man," which is one of the greatest political dramas of the decade. The commanding personality and splendid poise of Mr. McRae fit him peculiarly for the role of Gormly, the man whose bravery and self-possession in the face of crucial circumstances enable him to successfully oppose the corrupt forces of the gigantic political ring that is trying to ruin him.

How he defeats the vicious ring, forces and wins his election and his bride, is dramatically visualized in this gripping four-act photoplay. Music specially selected for this production by Mr. Strobridge for both organ and orchestra will be a big feature of this week's programme at Tally's.

Hamburger's Arrow.

An extraordinarily good programme will be shown at Hamburger's Arrow Theater, fifth floor Hamburger building, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week.

A two-reel Imp drama, "The Man Who Lost, but Won," with Alex Gaden and Dorothy Phillips leading.

"The Jealous Husband" is a Sterling comedy with the famous Ford Sterling as the husband.

The other reel is a joker comedy, "Their First Anniversary."

The latter part of the week a two-reel Powers, "The Last of His Race."

Richard Bennett Coming.

The biggest dramatic event of the waning season will be the coming of Richard Bennett and his associated players to the Mason Operahouse for two weeks, beginning June 22, when for the first time in Los Angeles will be presented the most-discussed play of the age, "Damaged Goods."

The star, the company and the production, as well as the play itself, have held New York and the East enthralled; discussion has been rife everywhere they have been seen, and it is little to be doubted that the same sensation will be noted here that has been in evidence elsewhere. The seats for the entire engagement of Mr. Bennett in "Damaged Goods" will go on sale at the Mason on Thursday, June 18.

C. C. Potchernick, who is known as the "bee king of Southwest Texas," never uses anything but his bare hands in handling his bees, where others use smoke, veils and gloves. Bees cover his hands, face and body, yet they seldom sting him. There is something in his soft touch and calm manner that impresses the bees immediately, and accordingly he is their friend.

EARTHQUAKES ON THE WANE.

Dr. Perret Holds Out Hope for Jap Islands.

But Says It's a Matter of Centuries, Not Years.

American's Life Nearly Lost at Sakurajima.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, May 5.—Dr. Frank A. Perret, the American volcanologist, has come to the conclusion that the volcanic and earthquake activity which has been the source of continual worry and frequent devastation in Japan is on the wane. But the hope he holds out is not for immediate cessation of these troubles. It is a matter of centuries.

Dr. Perret is one of the few scientists who devote their whole time to the study of the earth's convulsions. He represents the Volcanic Research Society of Springfield, Mass., and the Volcanological Institute of Naples, spending most of his time under the shadow of Vesuvius. He came here last February to visit the scene of the volcanic eruption on the Island of Sakura, the month previously, when Sakurajima's molten lava caused a great loss of life and property.

Details of an accident which befell him during his investigations make it appear that he had a very narrow escape from death on Sakurajima in March. He was taking notes of a lava flow when suddenly a small crater, only sixty feet from where he was standing, burst forth with a terrific explosion, sending a column of lava and red hot rock thousands of feet into the air. A tongue of lava struck one of Dr. Perret's knees and several stones burned into his flesh. That his injuries were not more serious, or even fatal, was due only to the fact that he was able to shelter himself behind a large boulder.

"I have taken many chances," he said, "but certainly I have never been so near death as I was at Sakurajima."

While the full report of his investigation will not be drawn up until later, Dr. Perret is convinced that the study of volcanic and seismic conditions in Japan has been well worth while. For one thing, he said, "it adds to our knowledge of the mode of action of an exploding lava in causing a horizontal blast, which is one of the most destructice of all volcanic manifestations, as was shown at St. Pierre, Martinique, in 1902, when 30,000 persons lost their lives."

Speaking of the general situation, he continued: "We must remember that volcanoes form a constructive means for the upbuilding of this archipelago which began ages ago, and which is continuing. If we look from the standpoint of a large number of years—say centuries—we can say that volcanoic phenomena is waning. Consequently earthquakes, always considering them as a whole, will become fewer in Japan rather than more numerous."

During this waning period, however, he added, it was always possible that severe disturbances would occur, and that many communities took risks, as at Mount Aso, where 4000 people actually live in a crater.

SPIRITUAL UPLIFT.

A movement designed to vivify the Japanese nation with a new spirit of normal spiritual determination is under headway with many prominent men and women taking up the cause. As a beginning there has been organized the Self-Reliance League, toward which Ichizeamon Morimura, a prominent reformer, has contributed $100,000 and Baron Shibusawa $50,000. President Naruse of the Japan Women's University is also one of the leaders of the movement.

The situation is outlined as follows by one of the officials of the league:

"The sway of materialism in Japan is almost killing the national spirit of Bushido. We must have a spiritual force to vivify the nation, a moral determination to resurrect the upright national character. Each individual must be given the spirit of independence and self-respect, at the same time respecting others. We desire to create a new force in the moral atmosphere of the people. Our movement will begin with individual character building, but it will stop at nothing. We will insist on strict morality in commerce, politics and every branch of natural activity. We are determined, all of us, to devote our lives and property to this great work of purifying, reforming and reconstructing the national character. The movement will be pushed on with religious fervor and reverence, and we will carry on a campaign of education with military precision and effectiveness, through the press and from the platform. 'Save the Nation' is our motto."

MYSTERY OF MENELIK.

British Minister to Abyssinia Unable to Report Whether or Not the Emperor Is Dead.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, June 1.—The mystery of Menelik, the Emperor of Abyssinia, whose death has been reported innumerable times, only to be denied, remains unsolved. W. Thesiger, British Minister to Abyssinia, has reported that even in Adis Adeba, the capital of Abyssinia, the facts are still unknown. No one will admit that the Emperor is dead and outside the palace there is complete ignorance on the subject.

The diplomatic corps has been unable to get at the truth; all the ministers can say is that they have not seen Menelik for years. The general belief is that the Emperor's embalmed body lies in the innermost room of Gebi.

The capital is, however, completely tranquil and it is believed that any danger to foreigners is past.

Mr. Thesiger has just completed a three months' march along the Abyssinian frontier of British East Africa to inquire into the wounding of two British officers by raiders. He was accompanied by an Abyssinian escort over a hundred miles of lava-strewn plain where thirty-eight camels had to be employed to carry water for the caravan. The party marched to Nairobi, a total distance of 1116 miles.

BERLIN PUZZLED OVER REICHSTAG.

GOVERNMENT'S ACT IN CLOSING IT A CONUNDRUM.

Many Measures Advocated by Administration Will Not Be Issued as Result of Closing of Assembly. Next President of Body Is Likely to Be of Clerical Party.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, June 1.—The action of the government in closing the Reichstag, instead of adjourning it, has furnished a conundrum which the political experts have not yet been able to answer. The government's object is not known, and its action is wondered at the more because it meant the extinction of numerous pending measures desired by the government, most of which were certain to be passed, and on all of which much hard work had been done. Equally mysterious was the government's covert threat to dissolve the Reichstag, making new elections necessary, if it adopted, as it seemed for a time likely to do, a Socialist measure providing an increase in pay of $24 yearly for certain postoffice employees. Even the newspapers friendly to the government ridiculed the idea of going to the people on an issue so trivial.

Foremost among the measures thrown into the waste basket by the closing of the Reichstag was the petroleum bill. Others to suffer the same fate were the measures to regulate bookmaking, to define the rights and duties of aviators, to establish a juvenile court, to sharpen the laws against "filth in word and picture," to regulate Sunday employment, to establish a colonial court, to amend the business law, the new excise bill, and many others. Against this list of uncompleted work the accomplishments of the late Reichstag are very small. So long as it had to deal with broad national questions, such as the armament and taxation bills, where the non-Socialist parties were united against the Socialists, the work went ahead smoothly, but as soon as these were out of the way, shifting alliances of factions prevented any real work from being accomplished.

Not all the blame for the little done during the long session rests upon the Reichstag. So monarchical a paper as the Tagliche Rundschau sharply criticises the government's "doctrinarianism, passing the bounds of the permissible," and its "stubbornness." It declares also that from the first there was a lack of intelligent direction of affairs on the side of the government. It is also a fact that the ministers of various departments on many occasions failed to show the tact necessary for dealing with the representatives of the people, and on more than one occasion made unfortunate blunders.

Another source of the Reichstag's weakness was its presidency. Herr Kaempf, the chief presiding officer, is an estimable and able man, but even his own party—the Progressives or Radicals—were not satisfied with his conduct of the affairs of the House. He exhibited a lack of resolution and decisiveness fatal for the presiding officer of a legislative body. It is most unlikely that he will be mentioned as a candidate for the office when the new Reichstag, which will convene in the autumn, elects its president and two vice-presidents. Conjecture has it that the next session's president is likely to be a member of the Clerical, or Center party.

WIFE ESTRANGED FROM MANUEL.

AFFAIRS OF EXILED MONARCH AND BRIDE HAVE REACHED ACUTE STAGE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, June 1.—Although the repeated rumors of a divorce between the deposed King Manuel of Portugal and his German Princess lack confirmation, friends of the family in Paris declare that their affairs have reached an acute stage. Manuel and his wife have never understood each other, and in spite of praiseworthy efforts on the part of both to arrive at an honorable arrangement of their life, they have never succeeded in bridging the gulf which opened between them immediately after their marriage.

The marriage was an idyll. Queen Amelia looked upon the daughter of her old friend, the Prince of Hohenlohe Sigmaringen as the ideal wife for her son, possessing all those qualities which were lacking in his character. The little Princess had a will of her own and was not devoid of ambition. Might she not be the means of bringing Manuel back to his throne? Such a role, however, demanded, first of all, experience, and in this the Princess was totally lacking. She found that Manuel was a careless, easy-going, almost irresponsible youth, irresolute, but yet capable of sudden and unforeseen obstinacy. He, on his side, saw in her a narrow-minded authoritative young person, with ideas which appeared to him out of date and provincial—a passion for housekeeping and other domestic virtues which fell in neither with his tastes nor his requirements. Under these circumstances a quarrel was inevitable.

The Thing to Do.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] She shouldn't have worn that sort of a gown, anyhow.

It was at a college dance, and there was more beauty and chivalry to the square foot than has been seen at such an affair for quite some time.

The tango was indulged in—decorously and in perfectly academic spirit, but still the tango.

The lady who shouldn't have worn that sort of gown danced the tango with an ex-right guard, who should have been more careful where he stepped. And when it was all over he bowed and grinned delightedly.

"Miss Blank," he said, "that was the most delightful tango I ever had. How can I ever repay you for the pleasure it has given me?"

She glanced at the poor remnants of her train.

"Don't try to pay me," she said; "settle with my dressmaker."

ROMANCE HIDES BACK OF SIGN.

HOHENAU, DENTIST" CONNECTION OF KAISER'S FAMILY.

Woman Who Repairs Teeth in Berlin Is the Baroness Von Schonberg Who Was Used by Hungarian Conspirators to Make Their Peace With Franz Joseph.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, May 30.—A plain brass plate, inscribed "Hohenau, dentist," outside a flat on the Nuremberger Platz, conceals, if the statements of the "dentist" are correct, one of the strangest stories of the feminine political intrigue in Ruritanian romance and final failure that has ever been known.

This dentist is Countess Claire von and zu Hohenau, who seems to have been married in London by special license a year or two ago to Count Wenzel Sternau zu Hohenau. His mother was a Princess Hohenlohe, and therefore a connection of the Princess of Hanau and Waldeck-Pyrmont, and also of the imperial family.

That a distant connection by marriage of the Hohenzollerns should be doing dental work in Berlin is perhaps not surprising nowadays; but the "Hohenau, dentist" of the brass plate is none other than Claire von Wallenstein, sometime Baroness von Schonberg, the famous "Coalition" beauty, protege of Austrian archdukes, and especially of Prince Rudolf Liechtenstein, Court Marshal of the Emperor Franz Josef, whose sudden death on the steps of the royal palace will be remembered by students of contemporary Austrian history. Here is the story of Claire von Wallenstein as she told it:

Claire von Wallenstein was the daughter of a Hungarian gentleman whose marriage with a handsome Jewess caused him to lose his standing. She grew up into one of the most beautiful girls in the Hapsburg empire, and married at the age of 18, Baron von Schonberg, a great Hungarian land owner, and a keen politician. Her dowry was a little matter of $415,000. Youth, beauty and wealth soon made the Baroness von Schonberg one of the best-known hostesses in the empire.

Among those who marked her social progress was a solicitor named Polonyi, who had drawn up Claire's wedding settlement, but who was also a fellow politician of Franz Kossuth, the well-known son of the revolution hero of Wekerle, and others of the Hungarian group. The object of the Hungarian group at the time (about 1906) was to bring about a reconciliation of their leading members with the Emperor, so that in return for a guarantee of peace in the everlasting struggle, the Hungarian party might gain the concessions especially dear to them.

Baroness von Schonberg was selected by Polonyi to make the peace of the conspirators with Franz Josef. It seems fairly clear from her own account that she was fully aware of the role she had to play and the two men whom she set out to captivate were (to quote her own expression) "the handsomest archduke who ever lived, and the Emperor's Court Marshal, Prince Rudolf, or Rudolf zu Liechtenstein.

In a letter which she claims still to possess the Baroness received an offer of marriage from the Prince if she would divorce her husband, and it appears that the Court Marshal was willing to carry out her slightest wishes. Obedient to her promptings, the Prince, aided by the "handsome Archduke," succeeded in effecting a reconciliation between the Emperor and Kossuth, Apponyi, Andrassy, etc. The opponents of the Coalition party lost their hold, and finally, at a historic meeting at the

by Betty Dean

Dolly: When my scalp is itchy I use a scalp and hair tonic which can be made at home for little cost by adding 1 ounce quinzoin (get from your drug store,) to ½ pint alcohol, then ½ pint water. This gives you a full pint of a very superior tonic. Rubbing a little into the scalp twice a week quickly and permanently relieves irritation, overcomes dandruff and corrects faulty condition of the scalp. The continued use of quinzoin tonic restores the former luster and soft fluff to faded, "stringy" hair and insures an abundant and beautiful growth.

Worried: Here is a harmless and highly satisfactory way to banish superfluous hairs: Make a paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread on hairy surface and in two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left smooth and hairless. Have a package of delatone handy and you can keep your skin free from ugly hairs.

Frances: When your eyes smart and ache, try this harmless and very excellent eye-remedy: Into 1 pint clear water put one ounce crystos. Dropping 2 or 3 drops of this in each eye relieves smart, strain or ache. It also strengthens tired muscles and banishes granulated lids. Using it restores the youthful sparkle and expression to dull, listless eyes.

Miserable: Here is a simple formula for relief from over-fatness and a genuine flesh-reducer: Into 1½ pints hot water dissolve 4 ounces parnotis. Take of this 1 tablespoonful 3 times a day. This parnotis treatment is gradual and positive in its action and does not require dieting or vigorous exercising. When the weight is sufficiently reduced the figure will be plump and the skin smooth and clear.

Niad: Here is a very fine lotion for cleansing and beautifying the skin: Dissolve 4 ounces spurmax (from your druggist,) in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply to face, neck and arms and rub lightly until it vanishes. This is invisible and imparts an exquisite tint and velvety smoothness to the skin. The use of this spurmax lotion will remove the oily, sallow, unhealthy color and add a touch of refined elegance to the daintiest complexion.

Mrs. A. T. B.: No woman who prizes her hair will use soap, which, because of its very nature, makes the hair streaky, brittle and unmanageable. Try canthrox—just dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and rub briskly as you pour it on the hair and scalp. This makes an abundance of rich, cleansing lather that is very soothing to tender, itchy scalps. Rinsing leaves the scalp immaculately clean, and each strand of hair will be soft, shimmery and full of health. Canthrox shampoos are splendid for correcting unnatural conditions—excessive oiliness, dryness or profuse dandruff.

Julia: The pimply, blotchy condition of your skin is due to accumulated poisons. Take the following old-fashioned blood-cleanser and body-builder and this unsightliness will vanish: Into ½ pint alcohol put 1 ounce kardene (which you get from the drug store,) and ¾ cupful sugar, then add hot water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful 3 times a day is the dose. This tonic acts gently on the organs of elimination and thus increases your appetite and assists you to get the full strength-giving value of your food and tones the entire system and fortifies it against disease.

Mrs. Jack: Wrinkles and fine lines are easily removed with almozoin cream-jelly, prepared as follows: Into pint water put 1 ounce almozoin and 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Let stand until entirely dissolved. Cleanse the skin and dry thoroughly before using. For wrinkles, apply freely and massage gently the long way of the creases. This treatment stimulates the stunted tissues and they soon resume their normal condition. When this is done the wrinkles or lines will have vanished. As a skin-cleanser and complexion rejuvenator an almozoin cream-jelly is not equaled, and its use not only restores the refined loveliness of youth, but protects it against the ravages of time.

TOMB OF OSIRIS THE KING-GOD.

Prof. Naville Believes He Found It in Egypt.

Temple Is in Desert Between Cairo and Assouan.

Funeral Chamber's Inscriptions Prove Its Purpose.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, May 30.—Prof. Edward Naville, the Egyptologist who has been directing 600 men and boys in excavations to unearth the temple and tomb of Osiris, has returned to his chair at the University of Geneva elated with the belief that he has penetrated to the actual funeral chamber of the ancient Egyptian king-god, and that another winter's work, which is already assured under auspices of the Anglo-American Egyptian Exploration Company, will bring to light important details bearing upon the history of Osiris.

The legend is that Osiris, a wise and beneficent King who reclaimed the Egyptians from savagery, met a sudden and premature death by the scheming of his wicked brother, Seth, who, with seventy-two fellow-conspirators, invited Osiris to a banquet and induced him to enter a cunningly-wrought coffin. They shut down the lid and cast the chest and its body into the Nile. Isis, faithful wife of the beloved King, recovered the body.

The legend continues that Seth and his fellow-conspirators then cut the body into fourteen pieces, and scattered the parts all over Egypt—each piece being entombed by worshippers of Osiris—which accounts for the numerous tombs to him. The faithful Isis, however, regathered the pieces and brought them back to the Temple of Abydos.

This temple, where Prof. Naville has been conducting the excavations, is, he is sure, the true burial place of Osiris. The place is about equidistant between Cairo and Assouan, in the desert about eight miles westward from the Nile.

OLDER THAN PYRAMIDS.

Prof. Naville believes this temple is older even than the pyramids. Relating some details of his work to the Associated Press correspondent at Geneva, he said:

"We worked from December 24, 1913, to March 11, 1914, and during the eleven weeks we experienced some anxiety and excitement. At nine yards under the soil we found a large building constructed of granite and very hard red sandstone. This edifice is divided into three naves, which are surrounded by sixteen large cells, all identical in size and shape. They have no inscriptions on the walls, whatever. This proves that the building is very ancient, as the walls of more modern edifices in Egypt are covered with inscriptions.

"In front of the cells is a stone platform supported by ten huge blocks of granite. Skirting this platform, we came upon the reservoir, or well of Osiris, which undoubtedly is that mentioned by the Roman historian Strabo. While the reservoir has not yet been explored, it is probable that its waters had been popular at one time for their supposed curative virtues.

"On the opposite side of the temple to that where we entered we found the burial place of Osiris, as the book of the dead and the inscriptions on the walls of the funeral chamber, twenty yards by five, proved to us beyond all doubt. You can imagine that we were greatly delighted at the discovery.

"We found also that in some remote past Egyptian thieves had been at work there. They had entered the funeral chamber by piercing a hole in the wall, but of course it will never be known what the thieves carried away. Did they take the sarcophagus of Osiris? All Egyptologists in the course of their researches in the ruins of Egypt have come across traces of thieves who were considered to be the cleverest in the then known world. They formed themselves into associations and gangs with the special object of robbing tombs, as it was the ancient custom among Egyptians to bury valuables with their dead. There was a supervision of the tombs, but this the thieves seem to have avoided easily, judging by their exploits.

"The whole of the vast edifice we discovered is in a bad state of ruin, because it and its surroundings were used as a quarry in the time of Rameses II."

Prof. Naville, who is an elderly man, insisted upon paying honor to his "brave assistants," Messrs. Wainwright and Gibson of London, and Thomas Wittemore of Tufts College, Massachusetts.

ODD, OLD SIGNS.

Exhibition in Paris Museum Has Many Examples of the Beautiful, the Quaint and the Facetious.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, May 30.—M. Georges Cain, curator of the Carnavalet Museum, treasure-house of Parisian antiquities, has just arranged an exhibition of old signs rescued from under the pick of the demolisher.

Some are examples of exquisite iron work. Others are delightfully quaint, such as the sign of the old Latin Quarter barber which announces that he "works quickly and silently." Following the name of a herbalist in the same old-world district is the request that he be not mistaken "for the other impostor living across the street." A Belleville store proclaimed itself "a raw and cooked pork butcher."

Among signs intentionally facetious is that of a little cafe which stood opposite the gate of a Parisian cemetery, announcing to passers that they would be "more comfortable here than across the street."

PLUME DEALERS' CONGRESS.

Delegates Advocate Repeal of the United States Law Against the Importation of Aigrettes.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 12.—Determination to bring pressure to bear upon the various governments to call an international conference for the protection of birds useful in agriculture was expressed at the final meeting of the International Congress of Plume Dealers. It was pointed out that such action would mean protection of the feather dealers' interests.

A resolution was passed advocating the repeal of the section of the United States tariff act prohibiting the importation of plumes, against the similar pending bill before the British Parliament, and also the recent Canadian decree.

NOTICE—everything for the autoist but the auto. See our automobile advertisement in the Pink Section today. It's brimful of economy news.

June Sale of Silk Petticoats

—Co-operation with two prominent manufacturers brings to us over 400 modish petticoats which we have marked to sell for about the average cost of production. Indeed, the values will show that we are stating the facts most conservatively. Shop for silk petticoats Monday; when these are gone it will be impossible to duplicate them at these exceptionally low prices.

Messaline Petticoats } $1.95
Crepe de Chine Petticoats }

—Those of messaline are of superior quality—beautifully made and finished with unusually pretty accordeon plaited flounces; all colors. Those of crepe de chine, of which there are just a hundred, are the newest styles in delicate pink or blue, trimmed with pretty laces in a dozen different ways. Just $1.95 for any skirt in this group Monday.

Tango Trouserettes, $3.95

—Dainty styles of soft silk jersey, messaline or crepe de chine—it's the fashionable vogue, Miladi!

(Hamburger's—Second Floor)

Wash Silk Petticoats } $2.95

—At last, silk petticoats that will wash!—and they're offered in Los Angeles first by the Great White Store. Petticoats of imitation Pussy Willow taffeta, soft and luxurious, and with the silken sheen that will not disappear in tubbing. All colors, too!

Crepe de Chine Petticoats } $2.95

—You've never paid less than $3.95, probably $4.50 and even $5.00 for skirts of their beauty and quality! The crepe de chine is exceptional and there is the witchery of soft laces and ribbons to make them irresistible. Monday, in pink or blue, at $2.95!

(Hamburger's Lingerie Salon—Second Floor)

MOVE TO SAVE AFRICAN GAME.

"Elephant and Rhinoceros" Congress to Be Held.

Gambling on Derby Assumes Large Proportions.

Sexes to Be Placed on Equality in Divorce Court.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, June 1.—An "elephant and rhinoceros congress," in which delegates representing all of the great powers directly interested in Africa have participated, has finished a week's sitting at the Foreign Office, and, as a result, it is probable that effective action will be taken to preserve these animals from extinction in Africa.

The conference met at the suggestion of W. Woosnam, game warden of British East Africa, who pointed out that the elephant and rhinoceros were in greater danger of extermination than any other species of big game in Africa. Delegates came from Germany, Belgium, Spain, France, Italy and Portugal, all of which countries have colonies in the African continent.

Although the proceedings of the conference will not be divulged until the delegates have reported to their home government for ratification of the proposals, it is understood the most important item in the plans of the meeting was the formation and maintenance of absolute sanctuaries for the elephant and rhinoceros in suitable localities. The shooting of these animals would then be permitted only on licenses, the conditions of which would be made as nearly identical as possible in the different territories. Absolute protection for the rhinoceros would be given for a number of years, and the standard weight for ivory for export would be raised to twenty-two pounds.

The various laws in the different territories have not only proven vexatious to the hunter, but have given refuge to the poacher and illicit ivory dealer. Every year the need for adequate protection grows more urgent. Both the elephant and rhinoceros take long to attain maturity, and, like the American bison and elk, seem unable to protect themselves from the modern hunter. They breed slowly and the stock is becoming dangerously reduced. Herds have been wiped out because of their occasional raids on plantations, a course which Selous, the great game hunter, declares unnecessary, for the killing of their leaders would effectively frighten away the rest of the herd. But the greatest destruction has been due to ivory hunting in the case of the elephant, and horns, hide and meat in the case of the rhinoceros.

INCREASE IN GAMBLING.

Gambling on the Derby—recently won by an American horse—is believed to have attracted more money this year than ever. The first prize of the Calcutta sweepstakes, which is the most popular method of risking one's money, amounted this year to about $300,000. Ten years ago the investments in this warranted a prize of only $100,000. The prize as it now stands is probably the largest offered by any similar form of chance.

The Calcutta Turf Club started it as a mere club affair many years ago, but when the sale of tickets was thrown open to all applicants the investments rapidly grew until this year saw them coming from all parts of Europe, all the British colonies and the Orient.

The London Stock Exchange had a sweepstake this year which offered a first prize of $12,500. This also was originally a friendly affair among members, but it has become almost a public business. Members subscribe for batches of tickets and sell them to outsiders at a premium. At par value of $5 the tickets brought five-sixteenths premium this year.

Nearly all the London clubs have their Derby pools. One pound ($5) is the favorite price for a chance, but in some wealthy clubs there are five-pound tickets as well, while in the less opulent clubhouses chances may be taken for $1. Many of the gamblers are men who know nothing about racing, and in some clubs practically every member has a small investment. Even the King's name is put down at the clubs to which he belongs.

THE DIVORCE QUESTION.

The findings of the recent Royal Commission on Divorce, so far as both majority and minority reports agreed, have been incorporated in a bill introduced into Parliament by Lord Gorell, former president of the divorce court. The most radical departure is a provision that the sexes shall be on an equality before the divorce court.

Under the existing law, a wife must prove both misconduct and cruelty on the part of her husband, while a husband need only to prove misconduct in order to get a divorce. The new clause provides that any married person may dissolve marriage upon proving that the other party thereto has committed adultery.

The bill also provides that a judicial separation may be granted on the ground of habitual drunkenness, which includes intoxication by drugs.

GENESIS OF ABSINTHE.

Old Moor Declares the Famous, Though Deadly Drink, Is the Invention of the Evil One.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, May 30.—One of the first things that Gen. Lyautey, the French resident general in Morocco, did in taking office was to prohibit the sale of absinthe. This measure, aimed at both the French troops of occupation and the natives, considerably affected business interests and steps were taken to try and stir up a movement of opposition.

An old Moor to whom a trader tried to explain the tyrannous nature of the general's order, took a wholly unexpected attitude.

"Absinthe," he said, "is an invention of the evil one. On its roots he pours the blood of a peacock; then, when the leaves begin to grow, he sprinkles them with the blood of a monkey; then he dips the stalks in the blood of a bear; lastly he mingles with the juice of the plant, the blood of a pig.

"So that when the faithful drinks absinthe, at the first glass his appetite awakes, and he arises, proud as a peacock; at the second glass, he becomes excited and gesticulates like a monkey; at the third he becomes quarrelsome and spiteful, like a bear; at the fourth he becomes besotted and falls to the earth, and rolls like a hog in the mire.

"May Allah protect us, Sidi Lyautey is right."

Hotel Bristol, in Vienna, on April 8, 1906, the "first Coalition Cabinet," which included Kossuth, Wekerle, and Geze Polonyi, was duly formed.

Baroness Claire received the news of the triumph at her house in Budapest. But the triumph was short-lived. The Archduke died shortly afterwards, and a faithless lackey stole from his papers certain compromising documents, which he sold to the leaders of the opposition, who, in turn, took them to the Emperor. The Emperor was indignant when he learned of the intrigue. He sent for his Court Marshal, and demanded his resignation. Next day the Viennese papers contained a note stating that the Court Marshal, whose health had long given cause for anxiety, had a stroke shortly, after leaving the Cabinet meeting, and died in a few hours. Actually, according to the Countess, he took poison as soon as the door closed behind him, and died on the steps of the palace.

The opponents of the coalition were now masters of the situation, but they were anxious to obtain possession of the compromising papers which they knew must be in possession of the Baroness. At midnight a friend of the Baroness, the manager of the bank in Budapest, where her papers were deposited, brought them to her and warned her that at daybreak the house would be searched by the political police. The Baroness concealed her papers in matresses and among the springs of a Chesterfield sofa. When the police arrived with a search warrant they found no papers, but a tearful woman, who was already apprised of the sentence of banishment against her. At her pitiful request she was allowed to take some furniture with her into exile, and the police themselves arranged for the safe dispatch to Paris of the Chesterfield sofa and the mattresses.

Baron von Schonberg secured a divorce, whilst Claire tried to restore her shattered nerves at the once fa- cruise. On the deck of an English later in the Palais due Solail at Monaco.

After various adventures Claire went to Switzerland, where she narrowly escaped losing her precious documents through the agency of Austrian spies.

Claire, who retained much of her youthful grace, and had won the prize of beauty at Monte Carlo and the prize of the Concours Hippique at Brussels, now left for an eastern cruise. On the deck of an English passenger steamer she met and captivated Count Wenzel zu Hohenau, who, in consequence of the political disturbances connected with the Eulenburg camarillas, had been sent first to a sanatorium and then for a long cruise. Claire and the Count were married by special license in London. Her reception by her German relatives was, perhaps, not unnaturally, very chilly.

The Countess is reticent regarding the days which followed her arrival in Germany. There was, however, something resembling a "scene" at Wiesbaden or Baden-Baden, in consequence of which Count Hohenau once more betook himself to a sanatorium, whilst Countess Claire shone for a time at her salon in Wilmarsdorf. Then she began to feel once more the difficulty of making ends meet. Her salon was abandoned, and a few days ago her identity and her history were concealed beneath the unpromising brass notice, "Hohenau, dentist."

part of this month. The authorities have been delayed in the minting, as the existing plant had to be furnished with new machinery to handle the less malleable nickel.

IN ENGLAND.

Pokes Fun at Militants.

An anonymous jokesmith recently spent several shillings to have his fling against the militant suffragettes by inserting the following advertisement in the personal or "agony" column of a morning newspaper:

"Scion of noble family has island for sale. Wild scenery and precipitous cliffs; single gun on adjacent mainland would dominate only possible place of disembarkation. Ideal for colonization by suffragettes. Though advertiser is conservative he would gladly come to bargain terms with present government or high-minded philanthropist with country's weal at heart."

Why Judges Play Golf.

Judges of the criminal courts who have been criticised for playing golf on Sundays have found the excuse that noxious odors and gases of the New Bailey, as the court buildings are called, drive them to get all the fresh air possible in the time they have free from the courts. A century ago the Old Bailey was notorious for its odors. The New Bailey is little improvement. The poor ventilation has caused many a judge's headache and undoubtedly many prisoners have suffered an extra heavy sentence because of judicial irritation.

Try Boy Conductors.

Boy conductors will be placed on some of the municipal street cars as an experiment. Much opposition was expected from the union to which the street car men belong, but when it was explained that the boys would only assist the regular conductors and that as far as possible they would be selected from the families of street car employees, no protest was raised.

It is almost impossible for the conductor of a double deck street car to collect fares and watch his stops without neglecting one or the other and the boy assistants will be expected to relieve the regular conductor of part of his duties. The boys will be tried out on the Tooley street line, which runs to Greenwich, through one of the most thickly populated districts of London.

Cricket Anniversary.

The one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the supreme legislative body of the English national game, is to be celebrated this month at Lord's, the club's headquarters in London. The club was founded by Thomas Lord, a well-known cricketer of those days, who acquired the grounds at St. John's Wood, which now bear his name. The first recorded match on the grounds was held in June, 1814, and to celebrate this a cricket festival will open on June 22. The first match of the festival will be between the English Cricket eleven which visited South Africa and the team representing the rest of England; while the second match, which it is anticipated will be attended by King George, will be between the army and the navy.

RISKIEST WORK IN THE WORLD.

Recruiting Laborers in Isles of the South Seas.

System Akin to Slavery Is Still in Existence.

But When the Natives Arise Trouble Is Frequent.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

SYDNEY (N. S. W.) May 10.—A dispatch just received from Thursday Island tells how the labor schooner Maryborough, while lying off one of the smaller islands of the Solomon Archipelago, was attacked by natives who, after killing all the crew, looted the vessel and burned her to the water's edge. The news was brought out by a missionary who himself had barely escaped with his life. A gunboat, with orders to take stern punitive measures, has now sailed from Sydney for the scene of the trouble.

At any time within the next month or two it is possible that a few lines in the American papers may record that the marines from a British gunboat have burned a coastal village on some island with an unpronounceable name in the Solomon Archipelago, cut down so many thousand cocoanut trees and driven all the natives to their impenetrable fastnesses in the interior. More likely we will see nothing about it—our news service is slack in that part of the world and it is only occasional odds and ends of items that come through to us.

At any rate, the burning of the village and the cutting down of the cocoanuts will end the episode. As soon as the gunboat is out of sight, the natives will slip quietly back to the coast and employ the cocoanut trunks for frames and the leaves for thatching the houses of a new village which will arise inside of a fortnight. Recruiters will avoid the islands for a year or two. Then gradually they will resume operations again, and at the end of a decade, perhaps, or even a shorter period, history will repeat itself and another schooner will be "cut out."

CALLED "BLACKBIRDING."

The work of the South Sea labor recruiter is the riskiest and most picturesque calling in the world today. "Blackbirding" it is popularly called in Australia, and "slaving" it is always referred to by the missionaries; but both of these terms are resented by the recruiter as survivals of the time when the blacks were actually taken by force and sold into slavery to the planters of Fiji, Samoa and Tahiti. The latter system has long been discontinued, but it is through abuses of the theoretically well-regulated labor traffic, and the uncertainty of the natives dealt with, that the life of the labor-recruiter of today hangs by quite as slender a thread as did that of the slaver of forty years ago.

Black labor was introduced into Northern Australia for the same reason that it was brought to the West Indies and our Southern States—for the sugar plantations. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that no Caucasian can stand for more than a few weeks the heavy work in the stifling atmosphere of the growing cane, and, in spite of the clamorous fight made by that continent's strong socialistic element for a "white Australia," the black is a fixture in Queensland as long as any endeavor is made to grow sugar. His importation dates back to the setting out of the first plantation and will not end until the last one has been choked out by the primeval bush. The traffic has been responsible for many of the most exciting chapters in the history of the South Pacific, and, if its two principal enemies, the missionaries and the Australia labor party, are to be believed, some of the blackest.

MISSIONARIES' OBJECTION.

The missionary is opposed to the recruiting of black labor because it removes the native from his influence and, inoculating him with all the evil of a rough plantation camp, not only renders him hopeless as a subject for conversion himself, but makes him a baleful contrary influence among the natives who have stayed at home. The London Missionary Society's representative in the Micronesian Islands, while undoubtedly well intentioned, is a man of far less liberality and breadth of mind than the average American and British missionary in the Far East. A zealot of the first order, his "fight-the devil-with-fire" methods with the labor recruiters have resulted in a number of very harmful and unjust falsehoods being traced to his door. The Australian laborite has fought the importation of blacks merely because it interferes, if only in theory, with his plan for a "white Australia," not because he would do the work the Kanaka does at any wage. When all is said and done, however, the "blackbirder" will be found to be by no means as black as he is painted by either missionary or laborite.

Far from being a slave, the Queensland Kanaka is nothing less than a regular contract laborer, the principal difference between him and the Hindu, who is brought from India for the Fiji sugar plantations being that, since he comes from a savage island which has practically no government—and therefore has no one to look after him—his contract is a verbal one. After his arrival in Queensland, and on the recruiting ship to a certain extent, he is looked after like a child by the Australian government; it is only in the manner in which he is induced to join the ship that he may be got the better of, and even this is supervised by the government officer.

TYPES OF ISLANDERS.

The labor recruiting grounds are all west of the 180th meridian, the islands of which seas are populated by a native of the Papuan type, whose black skin, kinky hair, thick lips and sullen disposition differentiate him very sharply from the straight-haired, fair-skinned, handsome, happy-go-lucky Kanaka of the eastern islands of the South Pacific. New Hebrides and the Solomons are the principal groups drawn upon, the former being under a nominal British protectorate, while the latter, though French interests predominate there, are really under the wing of no country at all. Practically, all of the islands of both groups are as savage today as when Cook and De Bougainville first pushed tentatively amongst them. For a white man, in fact, most of them are more dangerous now th[illegible] the black has grievance[illegible] he did not have in the eig[illegible] tury, and today he carr[illegible] or even a repeating rif[illegible] he was armed with but a sp[illegible] and arrow. There is no such [illegible] as an island king, and a chief [illegible] lord of more than one vill[illegible] tribe, more often than not [illegible] perpetual war with its nearest [illegible] bors in all directions. It is [illegible] these people that the recruiter [illegible] work, and the methods he has [illegible] are quite unique.

The fighting power of a New He[illegible] bridean tribe, for instance, is [illegible] more than from twenty to eighty [illegible] so that if a warrior elects to [illegible] Queensland, his departure is [illegible] a serious loss, to make up for [illegible] it is only natural that his tribe [illegible] demand, and receive, a quid pro [illegible] The latter formerly took the [illegible] knives, hatchets, beads, tobacco, [illegible] calico—the usual run of trade [illegible] then muskets and powder [illegible] came to be expected, and, [illegible] cently, even repeating rifles and car[illegible] tridges. One never gets service [illegible] this part of the South Seas with[illegible] paying for it. Your necessity is [illegible] native's opportunity. To take a re[illegible] cruit without "paying" his friends [illegible] him is called "stealing," no [illegible] how willing to go he is himself, [illegible] it is the not infrequent endeavor [illegible] do this and save the "pay" that [illegible] responsible for most of the [illegible]

COMMON TRADE TERMS.

The common use of the [illegible] "buy," "pay" and "steal" of the [illegible] birders parlance has, of course, [illegible] turned to good use by the missionaries and others in endeavoring to [illegible] that a real slave trade is carried [illegible] "You buy boy?" is often [illegible] question asked a recruiter after [illegible] makes a landing. This [illegible] means, "Do you wish to engage [illegible] The latter term signifying men of [illegible] age. If a recruit, anxious to [illegible] in the face of opposition by [illegible] friends, swims off to a ship and [illegible] carried away without the [illegible] "pay" being sent ashore, he is [illegible] of as having been "stolen." [illegible] ly, this term gives rise to a great [illegible] of confusion. The case of a [illegible] Hebridean woman, who was [illegible] ious to go to Queensland [illegible] braved a mile of the tide rip [illegible] and darkness in swimming [illegible] labor ship, and for whom no [illegible] was sent ashore, was in the courts [illegible] the commonwealth for two years, [illegible] ing the government and a [illegible] sugar company, first and last, [illegible] $50,000.

Recruiting is carried on much [illegible] dog-catching in those A[illegible] cities, where the worthy p[illegible] ter's assistants find their own [illegible] and get so much for every dog [illegible] in. The recruiter outfits at [illegible] expense, provides the trade [illegible] which is to be used as "pay," [illegible] cures the blacks and boards them [illegible] Queensland, receiving there so [illegible] a head for every one lawfully recruited. Here they are turned [illegible] to the plantation men, who [illegible] $25 a head with the government [illegible] cover return passage, and [illegible] these for three years at a stipulated rate. At the end of this time the laborer may re-engage for three [illegible] or be sent home, his passage [illegible] paid for out of the planter's [illegible] Each labor ship is compelled to [illegible] a government agent—[illegible] spoken of as the G. A.—whose [illegible] it is to see that no blacks under [illegible] over the age limit, or physically [illegible] mentally unsound, are taken [illegible] any conditions, and that [illegible] kidnaped.

Up to the eighties kidnaping, "wooling 'em," the blackbirders [illegible] it—was quite as frequent as [illegible] mate recruiting, the principal [illegible] fenders being French ships [illegible] ing the plantations of Samoa, [illegible] Caledonia and Fiji. The common practice—popular on account of [illegible] simplicity—was to anchor off a [illegible] lage, entice all the natives [illegible] aboard with a feast or the [illegible] of trading, there to surprise [illegible] force them into the hold under [illegible] threat of a ring of cocked rifles. [illegible] the already shortened anchor [illegible] hove up and the getaway made [illegible] quickly as possible. When the [illegible] tives were starved into a state [illegible] comparative submission they [illegible] sorted over and the unfit—those [illegible] flicted with leprosy, elephantiasis [illegible] kindred diseases—put ashore [illegible] practicable, and, when not possible, overboard.

HAIR-RAISING STORIES.

Those are hair-raising stories [illegible] they tell you "on the beach" at [illegible] and Suva of the doings of the blackbirders. "Bully" Hayes, a [illegible] tive of Cleveland, O., and an [illegible] whaler, was the king-pin of them [illegible] For years he was the most [illegible] ful slaver in the South Pacific, [illegible] the tales of his blood-[illegible] exploits are still whispered [illegible] wide-eyed horror in every [illegible] habited lump of coral from the [illegible] quesas to New Guinea. His [illegible] method of recruiting was to collect a dense crowd around a pile of [illegible] on the forward deck and then [illegible] them with a charge of scrap [illegible] from his suddenly unmasked [illegible] pounder. The survivors, [illegible] with fright, were then bundled [illegible] the hold, and the dead and hopelessly wounded were tossed to the [illegible] "Bully" Hayes would often secure [illegible] load of blacks in a fortnight's [illegible] from Apia, where a legitimate recruiter might be gone six months; [illegible] it was the custom, even at that [illegible] to condemn his methods as "[illegible] ful," because of the number of able-bodied laborers that were [illegible] for "effect."

There would be even more [illegible] in recruiting work than there is [illegible] it not for the fact that the natives [illegible] the groups drawn on look upon it [illegible] regular institution, and one that works as much for their benefit [illegible] that of the recruiter. The visit of the ship to their shores is a break in the dull monotony of their lives. [illegible] have an opportunity of [illegible] their surplus food and [illegible] curiosities to white men for [illegible] tools, tobacco and other [illegible] which they are extremely anxious to possess.

On the other hand, they lose a few warriors out of each village but [illegible] extra rifle in the tribe makes up that deficiency. (The determining factor in the issue of a recent war between two New Hebridean [illegible] was the possession by one of [illegible] a Winchester.) The proportion [illegible] female emigrants is very small [illegible] since polygamy is universally [illegible] ticed, this is not a serious [illegible] consideration. Ninety-nine per [illegible] of the recruits are between the [illegible] of 16 and 20, and when one [illegible] from his three-years' service he [illegible] still a young man, strengthened and set up by his late labor, and possessed of a knowledge and experience of the world which raises him above his stay-at-home fellows.

Thirteen Murder Witnesses [illegible]

Of thirty-three witnesses cited in a murder case which has just begun at Versailles, thirteen have died since the crime was committed nineteen years ago. The nineteen [illegible] will now be heard. The accused, Louis Louis, had already [illegible] demned to death by default [illegible] after the murder, no trace of him being found at the time. He [illegible] was arrested, having lived under an assumed name.

Important to Visiting Buyers

When you have purchased your goods from the first merchant, ask him to enter the sale on a transportation check. He will do so and give you the check, on which you will have recorded any subsequent purchases you may make in other FREE FARE STORES.

When your shopping is finished, present this check at the refunding office, The Los Angeles Times (First and Broadway) and they will cash it without red tape; delay, or formalities. They will refund the full amount of your round trip fare if your purchases are sufficient; and if not, the percentage to which you are entitled.

The Los Angeles market offers an assortment of merchandise at all times equal in extent and variety to all possible demands of all classes of buyers. Los Angeles merchandise is suited to the special requirements of the people living in Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. It is sold at prices, quality for quality, at least as low, and in many cases lower, than the same class of goods can be obtained from any other available source of supply. The visiting buyer in Los Angeles will be treated in such a way that he will come again. He will see and examine the merchandise before parting with his money, and a responsible local dealer will be answerable for its quality. The visitor will be considered as under the protection of the merchants whose names appear in this advertisement, and each one of them will see that his visit is made both pleasant and profitable. Moreover, each merchant will be as much interested in protecting the interests of the visiting buyer while he or she is in Los Angeles as the visitor himself could possibly be.

more dangerous now than then, for the black has grievances today which he did not have in the eighteenth century, and today he carries a musket or even a repeating rifle, where then he was armed with but a spear or bow and arrow. There is no such thing as an island king, and a chief is never lord of more than one village, each tribe, more often than not, being at perpetual war with its nearest neighbors in all directions. It is among these people that the recruiter has to work, and the methods he has adopted are quite unique.

The fighting power of a New Hebridean tribe, for instance, is rarely more than from twenty to eighty men, so that if a warrior elects to go to Queensland, his departure is felt as a serious loss, to make up for which it is only natural that his tribe should demand, and receive, a quid pro quo. The latter formerly took the form of knives, hatchets, beads, tobacco, pipes, calico—the usual run of trade stuff, then muskets and powder and ball came to be expected, and, more recently, even repeating rifles and cartridges. One never gets service in this part of the South Seas without paying for it. Your necessity is the native's opportunity. To take a recruit without "paying" his friends for him is called "stealing," no matter how willing to go he is himself, and it is the not infrequent endeavors to do this and save the "pay" that are responsible for most of the trouble.

COMMON TRADE TERMS.

The common use of the terms "buy," "pay" and "steal" of the blackbirders parlance has, of course, been turned to good use by the missionaries and others in endeavoring to prove that a real slave trade is carried on. "You buy boy?" is often the first question asked a recruiter after he makes a landing. This simply means, "Do you wish to engage boys?" The latter term signifying men of any age. If a recruit, anxious to engage in the face of opposition by his friends, swims off to a ship and is carried away without the customary "pay" being sent ashore, he is spoken of as having been "stolen." Naturally, this term gives rise to a great deal of confusion. The case of one New Hebridean woman, who was so anxious to go to Queensland that she braved a mile of the tide rips, sharks and darkness in swimming off to a labor ship, and for whom no "pay" was sent ashore, was in the courts of the commonwealth for two years, costing the government and a prominent sugar company, first and last, over $50,000.

Recruiting is carried on much as dog-catching in those American cities, where the worthy poundmaster's assistants find their own cases and get so much for every dog turned in. The recruiter outfits at his own expense, provides the trade stuff which is to be used as "pay," secures the blacks and boards them to Queensland, receiving there so much a head for every one lawfully recruited. Here they are turned over to the plantation men, who deposit $25 a head with the government to cover return passage, and employ these for three years at a stipulated rate. At the end of this time the laborer may re-engage for three years or be sent home, his passage being paid for out of the planter's deposit. Each labor ship is compelled to carry a government agent—commonly spoken of as the G. A.—whose duty it is to see that no blacks under or over the age limit, or physically or mentally unsound, are taken under any conditions, and that none are kidnaped.

Up to the eighties kidnaping—"wooling 'em," the blackbirders call it—was quite as frequent as legitimate recruiting, the principal offenders being French ships supplying the plantations of Samoa, New Caledonia and Fiji. The commonest practice—popular on account of its simplicity—was to anchor off a village, entice all the natives possible aboard with a feast or the promise of trading, there to surprise and force them into the hold under the threat of a ring of cocked rifles. Then the already shortened anchor was hove up and the getaway made as quickly as possible. When the natives were starved into a state of comparative submission they were sorted over and the unfit—those afflicted with leprosy, elephantiasis and kindred diseases—put ashore when practicable, and, when not practicable, overboard.

HAIR-RAISING STORIES.

Those are hair-raising stories that they tell you "on the beach" at Apia and Suva of the doings of the old blackbirders. "Bully" Hayes, a native of Cleveland, O., and an ex-whaler, was the king-pin of them all. For years he was the most successful slaver in the South Pacific, and the tales of his blood-thirsty exploits are still whispered with wide-eyed horror in every inhabited lump of coral from the Marquesas to New Guinea. His favorite method of recruiting was to collect a dense crowd around a pile of "trade" on the forward deck and then rake them with a charge of scrap iron from his suddenly unmasked [illegible]ounder. The survivors, paralyzed with fright, were then bundled into the hold, and the dead and hopelessly wounded were tossed to the sharks. "Bully" Hayes would often secure a load of blacks in a fortnight's voyage from Apia, where a legitimate recruiter might be gone six months; yet it was the custom, even at that time, to condemn his methods as "wasteful," because of the number of able-bodied laborers that were sacrificed for "effect."

There would be even more danger in recruiting work than there is were it not for the fact that the natives of the groups drawn on look upon it as a regular institution, and see that it works as much for their benefit as that of the recruiter. The visit of a ship to their shores is a break in the dull monotony of their lives. They have an opportunity of bartering their surplus food and what are curiosities to white men for weapons, tools, tobacco and other things which they are extremely anxious to possess.

On the other hand, they lose a few warriors out of each village but an extra rifle in the tribe makes up for the deficiency. (The determining factor in the issue of a recent war between two New Hebridean villages was the possession by one of them of a Winchester.) The proportion of female emigrants is very small, but [illegible] polygamy is universally economic[illegible] this is not a serious consideration. Ninety-nine per cent. of the recruits are between the ages of 16 and 20, and when one returns from his three-years' service he is a young man, strengthened and developed by his late labor, and possessed of a knowledge and experience of the world which raises him above the stay-at-home fellows.

[illegible] thirty-three witnesses cited in a [illegible]er case which has just begun at [illegible]ailles, thirteen have died since the crime was committed thirteen years ago. The nineteen remaining will now be heard. The accused, Jean Louis, had already been condemned to death by default, shortly after the murder, no trace of him being found at the time. He recently was arrested, having lived under an assumed name.

"THE KING OF DARK CHAMBER."

[illegible] Poet and Playwright Offers a Drama of Symbolism Both Pleasant and Clear—The Story is Charming and Threaded With Verse of Exquisite Quality—Parker's New Work Discussed.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

"WHAT do you want?"

"Which way should we go? We are strangers here. Please tell us which street we should take."

"Where do you want to go?"

"Where those big festivities are going to be held, you know. Which way do we go?"

"This street is quite as good as any other here. Any street will lead you there. Go straight ahead and you will come to the place."

This is the way Rabindranath Tagore begins the "King of the Dark Chamber," and it is an excellent key [illegible] blind alley, according to how [illegible] understand the play. As this author is his own translator it cannot be claimed that his subtleties are lost in English transposition.

"Chitra" was written when Tagore [illegible]. It foreshadows the feminist [illegible], even in India; and to this [illegible] it provide the symbolism which [illegible] the bulk and the charm of "King of the Dark Chamber," in fact, the most of Tagore's [illegible]

It is easy enough to imagine these [illegible] staged in India, practically [illegible] scenery. People over there [illegible] to meet symbolism and mysticism where they stand for spiritual [illegible] but in America, where we have [illegible] and feel everything, Tagore's [illegible] would have a poor chance. We don't know what they mean [illegible] we don't care. They mean as [illegible] as Maeterlinck and they have [illegible] hope; but then we have not [illegible] been convinced by Maeterlinck [illegible] Hauptmann.

Any way one has to concede that [illegible] is possibly something to these [illegible] or all three of them would [illegible] have received in turn the Nobel [illegible] for the ideal in literature. Of [illegible], we don't understand the ideal [illegible] literature, but the $40,000 cash [illegible] each of these three writers [illegible] appeals to us all as reality, [illegible] set about trying to collect [illegible] worth of good from them. As [illegible] as possible we would like to [illegible] the transaction a "value-received" proposition.

[illegible] proceed, therefore, with all [illegible] and skepticism, to [illegible] "King of the Dark Chamber." [illegible] is not in sight and never [illegible] Tagore elects to have him [illegible] invisible throughout the play. [illegible], however, something compelling about his presence which [illegible] him a personality of great [illegible]. The men on the street [illegible] this kingdom whose [illegible] shows himself to his people [illegible] of them sings:

"We are all kings in the kingdom of our king.
[illegible] not so, how could we hope [illegible] heart to meet him?
[illegible] what we like, if we do what [illegible] likes;
[illegible] not bound with the chain of [illegible] at the feet of a slave-owning [illegible].
[illegible] not so, how could we hope [illegible] heart to meet him?
[illegible] honors each one of us, [illegible] honors his own very self.
[illegible] can keep us shut up [illegible] walls of untruth for aye.
[illegible] not so, how could we hope [illegible] hearts to meet him?
[illegible] and dig our own path, [illegible] reach his path at the end.
[illegible] never get lost in the abyss [illegible] night.
[illegible] not so, how could we hope [illegible] heart to meet him?"

[illegible] we find a band of men [illegible] singing:

"[illegible] is ever in my heart;
[illegible] why I see him everywhere;
[illegible] the pupils of my eyes;
[illegible] why I see him everywhere."

[illegible] imagine from this that the [illegible] all transparency and goodness. [illegible] are full of doubters. One [illegible] telling as a great secret that [illegible] is hideous and dares not [illegible] himself. Even the queen, who is [illegible], and who has been led to a [illegible] chamber, is curious and hurt [illegible] her lord will not show his [illegible]

[illegible] attendant is satisfied, having [illegible] in the service of the king. [illegible] is patient and lovely, and [illegible] the queen through the [illegible] crushing search for her [illegible] with cherishing humility and [illegible], as the soul of a man [illegible] labor with his flesh. She is like [illegible] self of the queen, gliding [illegible] with soft feet.

[illegible] king promises the queen an [illegible] to find him that night in [illegible], among the festival [illegible], but the queen mistakes a [illegible] pretender who is taking [illegible] of the fact that the king [illegible] show himself, and who has [illegible] himself with a gay fol-[illegible]

[illegible] is the king of a neighbor-[illegible], who has come with the [illegible] of stealing the queen's heart. [illegible] the pretender as a tool [illegible] purpose.

[illegible] unscrupulous visitor sets fire [illegible] that in the confusion [illegible] gain audience with the king. [illegible] fails, for only the queen [illegible] real king reach the palace. [illegible] they are together in the dark [illegible] the Queen confesses that she [illegible] on the face of her lord and [illegible] was black and hideous. He [illegible] her free to leave without celebrating their union, and she does so, [illegible] back to her father's kingdom, [illegible] by her faithful attendant, [illegible] understands that when she [illegible] the erring woman she will [illegible] the King.

[illegible] not always nearest peace [illegible] ministering to the discomfort of [illegible]

[illegible] Queen's father will not receive [illegible] as a servant, and when the [illegible] King comes to lure her away, [illegible] followed by six other kings and [illegible] make war for her hand. Then [illegible] that the King of the [illegible] Chamber is there and straightway [illegible] is great confusion and the [illegible] all the enemies vanish, or [illegible] fight among themselves until [illegible] have vanquished one another. [illegible] not the truth always dispel [illegible] and every other enemy [illegible] goodness, and does it not [illegible] this merely by being itself [illegible] quite without violence?

[illegible] the King does not come to the [illegible]. It is only after all rebellion [illegible] are crushed out of her [illegible] she realizes that she must [illegible] the King and not expect that [illegible] come to her. She starts on [illegible] afoot, with her servant [illegible] her side. On the way they [illegible] by the designing king who, [illegible] has conspired most of all, is in search of the real King to pay homage and crave pardon.

When the Queen again enters the dark chamber the King receives her with joy, and tells her that there will be no more darkness, but that they will now walk in the light.

The King is the light which always smites with blindness those eyes that are unprepared.

The aspect of truth is always forbidding to those who are slow to believe. Its simplicity is emptiness to those who seek illusions.

Selfishness and pride cannot stand before the King. That is why so few have found him.

Tagore is a poet above everything else and the snatches of verse scattered through the play are of exquisite quality. At one point a band of boys sing to the Queen:

"My sorrow is sweet to me in this spring night.
My pain smites at the cords of my love and softly sings.
Visions take birth from my yearning eyes and flit in the moonlit sky.
The smells from the depths of the woodlands have lost their way in my dreams."

Somewhere else there is another line which says:

"The fairy of the light from the dawn to the dark is done for the day;
The evening star is up.
Have you gathered your flowers, braided your hair,
And donned your white robe for the night?"

The Parker Production.

Sir Gilbert Parker is out with a new story not yet dramatized, but to my mind closely paralleling the "Right of Way,' which was a good novel and is a good play.

That "You Never Know Your Luck" will be dramatized goes without saying. The setting and the people are enough different from the "Right of Way" to make it attractive, but the deep reader will recognize a striking likeness in the two stories.

The new novel has a young English Nobleman who owns Irish estates and is next in line for a baronetcy. He is in Canada trying to put over a big land deal along the route of a new railroad so that he can make $150,000 and have money of his own without living on the money of the rich young wife he left five years before, after betting all he had on the wrong horse.

Right here there is a subtle bit of irony. He has been shot for giving testimony at a trial and is telling his life story to the doctor and his landlady and her daughter because they have been good to him and because some of his story has already been brought out in the trial by the unscrupulous lawyer for the defense in an attempt to discredit his testimony. He tells about his last big race and of how a woman sprang out of the line, grapplied at the horse's reins so that both lay dead as the racers swept over them.

The girl exclaims "Oh, the poor horse", and the man sees in this a perfect understanding of the situation.. The horse was nobly making a winning race when brought to this bitter defeat by a crazed woman. Was Sir Gilbert remembering the suffragette who threw herself in front of the King's entry?

The landlady's daughter loves the Englishman, but while he is fighting for life after the operation she writes for his wife and there is a subtle and beautiful duel of words between the two women when the pretty little foreigner arrives. This promises to be one of the most intensely dramatic scenes in late productions.

Afer she reconciles husband and wife through much sacrifice and subterfuge, the pretty western girl marries a former gambler who has been the Englishman's friend. The Englishman's wife, who bitterly opposed gambling, took her husband's money and made a bet in his name against his own horse, so that he has a lot of money he knows nothing about, and is now able to turn his big land deal without borrowing from her. Then they sail for home and native land.

The play has seven vivid characters, making an ideal cast. While it is an echo of the 'Right of Way," it will not suffer serious opposition on this score.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

The Bayonne (N. J.) Board of Education and officials of the Standard Oil and General Chemical companies, which have large plants in that city, are planning to educate many workmen who are unable to speak English. Superintendent of Schools Carr has learned that there are 909 men employed at the two plants who cannot talk English. The company officials will allow the men time off to gain a vocabulary of 600 words, believing that better results can be accomplished this way than if the men studied at night. The companies will provide classrooms and the school board the instructors.

Engineer Robert C. Dewar of East Orange, N. J., gave up his life in an endeavor to save that of a fellow-workman in a huge cassion in the Norwalk River. When the walls of the cassion were seen to tremble, Dewar realized his danger. He was nearer the top than some of the other workmen, but went back to shut off the motor, and was caught and pinned down to death by tons of twisted steel and splintered timbers.

The St. Bernard monks gave shelter and food to nearly 40,000 persons last year. The average voluntary contribution dropped into the box at the gate was equivalent to 2 cents a person. The monastery finds itself in financial difficulties, and the chapter is considering whether a fixed charge must not be made in the future for the rich travelers who visit the monastery during fine weather, stay for the week-end and drop a franc or two into the box in payment for themselves and chauffeur for two days' keep. The monks have carried on their charity for nine centuries without asking any visitor to pay. They have been able to do so by the income from lands vested in the monastery. But during the last ten years the cost of everything has gone up about 40 per cent., while rentals have remained stationary.

"We hope to continue," says the Abbot Bourgeois, the head of the chapter, "giving free hospitality as we have done since the eleventh century. Although if the burden becomes too heavy for our means we shall be obliged to charge a small sum, much against our inclination and our principles."

Gaskill suggests that the beneficiary's life has been "rather dull," and because she was "his friend and a friend of his mother" he wants her "to feel free to spend the money."

In a letter to the directors of the Detroit General Hospital, now in course of construction, Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer, has announced his willingness to take over the property, complete the work and provide Detroit with a creditable hospital.

Mr. Ford is chairman of the board and his generous offer was unanimously accepted by all the members. His offer involves the expenditure of about $3,000,000, and he will repay to every person who has contributed every dollar he or she has given for the building of the hospital, which numbers about one hundred and totals over $400,000.

About $300,000 has been expended on the building, the service building, laboratory and private patients' building and an operating-room being now under construction. At least $250,000 will have to be expended before a patient can be received, but the work will be pushed rapidly upon the delivery of the deed of the property.

Mr. Ford will assume all outstanding debts and contracts, and he asks in return that he be relieved of all obligations, such as employing particular individuals and everything of that nature.

In returning the contributions and asking that he be relieved of employing any individual, Mr. Ford merely desires to be unhampered and untrammeled in what he thinks best. He is working out a plan and wishes to be free to carry it out.

Charles P. Steinmetz, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, who ranks among the two or three greatest experts on electricity in the world and who receives a huge salary, landed in America as a poor immigrant boy. Before he was 40 he had taken out more than 100 patents for electrical inventions. He is now 49 years old. His father managed to send him to the University of Breslau, where he distinguished himself in mathematics and chemistry. His leisure time at home he devoted to mechanical and chemical experiments. His was an inquiring mind ever seeking an outlet for its ceaseless activity.

300 Wooltex Suits and Coats at Less Than Cost to Make

On account of the early heat wave that has well nigh paralyzed the garment business in the East, H. Black & Co., the makers of noted Wooltex Garments, received cancellations for many of their handsome late model suits and coats. We made them a spot cash offer for the lot and we've purchased them most advantageously.

The suits and coats are here. Thousands of women will need no word of introduction. They know what Wooltex Garments are. It's an actual fact that duplicate models of these garments are at present selling in many style centers at double and triple the prices.

Wooltex Suits
Which Ordinarily Would Sell to $39.50—on Sale Monday
$14.75

A wonderful range of pretty styles, two of which are here shown. Materials are fine woolen poplins, serges, gaberdines, Bedford cords, Venetian cloths, diamond and shepherd checked materials. Colors are Copen, navy, tan, rust, brown, mahogany, tango, wistaria and greens of various shades. Minaret, Norfolks, novelty and tailored styles; hardly two just alike—sizes 16, 18, 36, 38, 40 and 42; smaller sizes predominate.

The Coats

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, June 12.

Juliet dearest: We are all so delighted to hear that you mean to come down for a nice long visit. Of course you will stay at the Harry Bordens, and we are looking forward to spoiling you and Irving shamefully. We have had plenty of pretty and popular girls in Los Angeles, but none that have been more loved and appreciated than yourself, cherie. They tell us you are leaving Charlotte behind at Mare Island with grandma—so sorry, we should all like to have seen her again soon.

As you know Barbara is down here, too, but Mamma and Papa Stephens are monopolizing her for the present.

The Smith-Doheny wedding came off on Wednesday—Lucy looked quite charming and tremendously distinguished. Probably one of the smartest brides of the season, and that Spanish heirloom certainly lent the proper cachet to things. American Beauty roses seemed to blend so well with the dignity of the occasion—the gentle lily of the valley atmosphere that weddings have a weakness for as a rule was wholly missing. All the same, Lucy seemed just a wee bit frightened, which made her hold up her head a bit more haughtily.

Mamma-in-law Doheny was resplendent in silver—very mermaidy and shimmery. Little Laura Ann looked such a darling, arrayed in fluffy ruffles of pink and carrying pink Cecile Brunners. She looked just like a little Cecile Brunner herself.

In fact, weddings dominate the situation down here just now, the usual June epidemic thrice multiplied. Martha Woolwine became Mrs. Banks on Wednesday, and she had bespoken all the charmingest bridesmaids. Eleanor Banning looked very serious in white satin. They had three white and three green bridesmaids—quite an innovation. Elizabeth Wood looked fetching in green frou-frou and a net cap edged with pink roses. Florence Johnstone, Mary Hughes, Dorothy Williams and Dorothy Lindsley made up the picturesque bridal train. Dorothy Lindsley was maid of honor in pale pink—such a young, dainty maid of honor. The Bannings entertained the whole party for a fascinating week-end at Catalina prior to the wedding.

And Santa Monica had a gorgeous military wedding on Wednesday, too, when Ruth Heppe annexed a handsome naval lieutenant in the person of Jimmy Logan. Ruth is decidedly a buxom beauty, radiating health and joie de vivre.

You will observe how all these brides choose Wednesday—Wednesday for wealth!

The Sumner P. Hunts have been doing the sociable down at their Venice place. Heard someone remarking caustically the other day upon Mrs. Hunt's wonderful diplomacy in asking all the different kinds of bores on the same occasions so that they could bore each other and not spoil the more sprightly parties! But was intensely amused to hear who considered who were bores—what a mercy tastes differ!

And Juliet dear, did you know kissing has gone entirely out. It is now voted thoroughly bad form. In fact, it isn't done. You mayn't kiss anyone, not even Aunt Jane, in public. This may cause a sigh or two, but in a general way I think public kissing is rather ridiculous, don't you? The sort of female friend that greets me with a gushing kiss always makes me feel thoroughly touchy. Besides, it always transfixes one's hat and millinery poise is so important.

Two of the brides cut out the kissing. Said if the men would excuse them it made them feel cheap. We have moved a long way from that period in history—seventeenth century—when it was not only perfectly proper, but good form and the prescribed custom for the wedding guests to put the bride to bed. Is this reform in the direction of reserve part of the feminist movement? That period, you will recall, followed immediately upon the Puritan reign of Cromwell, the swing of the pendulum.

As father would say in politics. Father is getting positively eloquent on politics lately and says it's a thousand pities they are not fashionable in the States like they are in Europe. Wants the mater and me to join the Young Republican Club, if you ever heard of such a thing, and advises our taking politics more seriously. And the dear old pater was a rabid anti not so very long ago.

Aren't the new capes a horrible pitfall for the unwary. Capes are either very distinguished or very dowdy. That old friend of the Davidsons is the most interesting example, but one must confess she doesn't profess to be smart. She wears the weirdest clothes—and knows it. She generally has a gasoline-home-cleaned atmosphere about her and hopes we don't object to the perfume as she did not hang the garment in the air long enough! Wears an obviously false switch which she laughingly assures you used to be a good match a few years ago! She is a most delightful person to talk to and manages to convey a wonderful impression of breeding with fabric chamois gloves and repaired shoes. They say she is a woman of fortune and magnificently generous. She came down to the garden bridge party on Thursday in a black cloth cape lined with white silk, which she said her maid had fashioned out of two old skirts. Said she always had loved capes and was so glad they were in again as one could just flip them on over an old house dress without bothering about deails! Yes, dear, she's English. We all scream at her clothes, but she is asked everywhere and we all like her immensely.

Did you hear that Virginia talks of going on the stage? Her people pooh-pooh the idea, but she is deadly serious. And she is rather clever at the amateur affairs, you know. A good deal better than some of the professionals we've been seeing lately. I'll tell you more about that later—she's a determined little soul.

Give our love to Charlotte and the mater. And, of course, to dear Irving. The pater is saving up some good stories for Irving, so you had better watch out.

Ever your affectionate,
BETTY.

Dr. Peter J. Latz of Chicago has sailed for Trieste to submit to European scientists proof that he had discovered an antitoxin that makes one inoculated with it immune to the diseases caused by the bites of mosquitoes. Dr. Latz carried 1200 specimens of mosquitoes with him. "My antitoxin will give immunity to many of the diseases of tropical countries," said the physician, "and I believe it will be efficacious in fighting the famous sleeping sickness of Africa." Dr. Latz will pursue his experiments abroad, and expects to do much work in the swamps of the Tiber River in Italy.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TALKS HEART TOPICS.

Men Bound—Yet Free—India Rubber Tires.

"The love that is past did once very well.
Today it is rusty and stale.
Your love for a maid you were sure would last
Proved futile; 'twas bound to fail.
So cramped can we be in our mental state,
So burdened with might-have-beens.
That life will become a woeful waste
With its many outs and ins."

The girl who consents to a long engagement when she is young and her charms are at their height does so without stopping to think of the future. She has perfect faith in her sweetheart, is sure of his love for her. His reason for not asking her to set an early date may be of the best. His intentions were good—to wait and put her in a home of her own when she should become his bride, a raise of salary, waiting for the time to come when he should be free from supporting his younger brothers and sisters. All this seems very logical to the sweetheart.

She leaves everything to him. Winters pass and summers come. He is devoted to her. He would miss everything rather than stay away one of those courting evenings, as he affectionately terms his visits. He would not have their engagement a secret one. He was eager and proud to have his friends know that they were to wed some day. In their earlier acquaintance he was put out if he found someone else calling upon her when he came.

But as years rolled their slow lengths by he seemed relieved if he found someone else in her parlor to help carry on the conversation.

His calls grow less frequent, and he seldom takes her out. She makes no complaint, thinking he is saving for the cottage home he used to speak of so often, but never mentions of late. She does not realize that they are drifting apart. She does not renew her chain of acquaintances when a break comes here and there, while he makes new friends and considers it no harm to enjoy their company. He is not wont to talk of them to his old sweetheart, possibly because they are young and attractive women and are apparently pleased with his society. He realizes that these young girls believe he must be heart-whole and fancy free—and may entertain certain hopes regarding him. He admires them, but it ends there, for he knows that, though seemingly free, he is bound.

't must not be imagined that all men worry ere long of that sweeness of bonds—betrothal—but, like rubber, there is an end to its stretching-out possibilities. The fragrance of the opening bud of courtship is far more delightful than that of the fading flower. Girls, beware of long courtships.

Nagging a Mother-in-Law.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am so interested in your helpful chats and advice that I am venturing to ask your opinion of the following. I am a widow, living with my son and daughter-in-law. My state of health is such that I am unable to earn my own living. My boy has a good business and is only too pleased to do for me, but his wife appears to object bitterly to my being beneath their roof. She takes every occasion to worry me, scolds me if I am a moment late for breakfast. I am served last at table—I get the leavings—but make no complaint, thankful that he is so absorbed that he does not notice it. She nags me continually, though I make no reply. What ought I to do? Shall I break my silence and complain to my son?
MRS. ELLEN B.

Your case is certainly an unhappy one. The break of dependence is proverbially bitter. It is best not to arouse hard feelings between your son and the wife he must spend his future with. Use diplomacy. Tell him you would be greatly benefited if he could see his way to allow you a small amount to pay your board in a different locality where you could have a change of air and the companionship of some quiet old lady for awhile. You could extend the visit elsewhere indefinitely. All's well that ends peacefully.

Pity the Girl and Baby.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am a girl of 20 suffering under a cruel and unjust cloud. I beg of you to advise me. A year ago the only one belonging to me—my brother—died of consumption. His wife soon followed, leaving their child, a baby, 14 months old. On her death bed she sent for me, asking me to promise to take the child and rear it. I am a working girl and live in a small town near where they lived. I took the baby back with me, and am paying for its keep at the place I board. Some unkind young man, and girls, too, are talking cruelly about me and the baby, because it so resembles me. Shall I send the baby to an orphanage, or keep it with me? Please answer soon.
BROKENHEARTED MARY.

You should not notice the cruel slanders directed against you. Keep your promise to the dead—protect the helpless infant, and heaven will surely reward you.

The Wife's Bonnet.

Dear Miss Libbey: Please answer this. Is the wife of a working man, earning $18 per week, justified in paying $15 for a hat, or bonnet, or whatever you may call a woman's headgear?

No—not if it is a strain on the husband's purse.
LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

June Night.

These are nights when fairies fly and the magic spring
Sits beside the hills of dream to hear the pixies sing;
June night, when my lady dear
Comes on feet of trance
All in the magic moonlight clear
Upon the sea to dance.
These are nights when nightingales their silver spell prolong,
And love is in the bowers of bloom with lips of melting song;
June night, when the heart's in tune
Through all time's wonderment
To music of the mystic moon
In an azure firmament.
These are nights when life goes out to hunt the fairy tree,
And soft as steps of silver dew the moonlight walks the sea;
June night, when arms are clinging close
And lips are ready, Miss,
To crown the romance of the rose
With lyric of a kiss.

The unusual privilege of [illegible] his own monument belongs to [illegible] ville H. Freas, a veteran of the [illegible] War and a pioneer of Germantown, Pa. The unveiling took place on [illegible] morial Day. Freas, in his old [illegible] and carrying the musket he [illegible] during the Civil War, went [illegible] relatives to the monument [illegible] caused to be erected over his [illegible] pective grave. After firing a [illegible] and reading aloud Lincoln's [illegible] burg address he unveiled the [illegible] of himself that tops the [illegible] The monument was built with [illegible] the old soldier saved from his [illegible] sion. On a base of two [illegible] stones stands a life-size figure [illegible] ite of Freas, clad in his [illegible] clothing.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Lady Gray, who has arrived [illegible] York is one of the twenty-[illegible] esses in their own right [illegible] Britain. She is nineteenth [illegible] the Scottish Barony of Gray, [illegible] in 1444 by King James II, [illegible] land. She inherited it from [illegible] uncle, who was also thirteenth [illegible] of Moray. Her maiden [illegible] Evelyn Pounden, her mother [illegible] a sister of the fourteenth [illegible] Moray and of Jeremiah [illegible] Pounden. From her father [illegible] Gray inherited Brownswood, [illegible] beautiful country seat at [illegible] in County Wexford, as well as [illegible] fortune. She married in 1863 [illegible] Maclaren Smith, who, with the [illegible] mission of the crown, assumed [illegible] additional name of Gray, and [illegible] died in 1900.

Miss M. Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr College, says if the [illegible] tutions of higher education [illegible] United States expect to meet [illegible] tively and successfully the [illegible] mands that are being made [illegible] them for more advanced and [illegible] tific teaching methods, they [illegible] make the teaching profession [illegible] lucrative and more attractive [illegible] ally. By this means, she said, [illegible] and women capable of becoming [illegible] liant teachers will not be [illegible] from the educational field by [illegible] wards offered by business, [illegible] and industry. Dr. Thomas [illegible] the text-book and lecture [illegible] the colleges are no longer [illegible] and those antiquated methods [illegible] be surplanted by more [illegible] teaching systems that will [illegible] the reasoning power in students. [illegible] educators do not realise this, [illegible] said, "colleges will become places for the dead, not for the living."

Mrs. John C. Mayo, widow of [illegible] Kentucky capitalist who died [illegible] ly in New York, will be elected director in all the big business [illegible] panies in which her husband [illegible] interested, and will carry out [illegible] plans, with which she is [illegible] According to her plans, given [illegible] day, colleges and churches will [illegible] dowed, new ones erected, and [illegible] philanthropic movements will [illegible] her attention. Mrs. Mayo is [illegible] of her husband's estate without [illegible]

MEN AND EVENTS.

Dr. George A. [illegible] rubber bands to fasten a [illegible] penholder to the right arm, [illegible] is able to write neatly. [illegible] Jones uses his tongue to turn [illegible] pages, but he has acquired such [illegible] terity that he experiences little [illegible] venience.

n Social Circles, Squares and Triangles neted ladies included the bridal party—Mrs. Ernest Davids, Miss Florence Mahoney, Miss Margaret McGee and Miss Mae Hamilton—and Mrs. John R. Splane, Mrs. Ernest Davids, Mrs. Joseph H. Call, Mrs. Fred A. Hines, Mrs. O. O. Witherbee, Mrs. Ben E. Ward, Miss Francesca Loftus, Miss Ruth Cass, Miss Agnes Whitaker, Miss Florence Rowan, Miss Beatriz Burnham, Miss Katherine Torrance, Miss Adeline Kellogg, Miss Viola Hamilton, Miss Marion Nichols, Miss Margaret Daniel, Miss Lucy Lantz, Miss Dorothy Lindsey and Miss Cecil Call. The gowns of beautiful women, the fragrance of the flowers, and the soft strains of music, palpitating to the notes of the latest dances, all combined to make the affair one of the most brilliant of the week.

Enjoyable Luncheon.

Shasta daisies and ferns enlivened the luncheon table presided over, Thursday, by Mrs. J. H. McClure of the Rutland apartments. Covers were laid for Mrs. F. B. Northrup, Mrs. Anna Otto, Mrs. Marie Leach, Mrs. Harry H. Turner, Mrs. J. F. Christopher, Mrs. G. Benham, Miss Jeanette Beaver and Miss Marguerite Beaver. A delightful musical programme followed the luncheon.

Musical Evening.

Commodore and Mrs. H. A. Mitchell entertained with a musical evening at their home, No. 1109 St. Andrews place, Wednesday evening, honoring Capt. and Mrs. Barrison, who have been spending some months in this city, and are planning to return to their home in San Mateo. The rooms were aglow with Shasta daisies and ferns, with the exception of the den, which was done in American Beauty roses, nodding from long stems in crystal vases. A delightful musical programme was furnished by Miss Alice Lohr, contralto solos; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Laughlin, piano and tenor selections; Mr. Wood, violin solos, and Mr. New, piano numbers. Elaborate refreshments followed. Guests included were Capt and Mrs. Barrison, Miss Barrison and her guest, Miss Dolan, Mr. and Mrs L. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Marmont, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barham, Dr. and Mrs. C. M. O'Leary, Mrs. Bri Kelley, Mrs. J. E. Conroy, and Messrs. Morgan Adams and Arthur Levitt.

San Francisco Guest.

Mrs. L. A. Boynton of San Francisco is the house guest of Mrs. R. R. Bancroft, No. 2314 Raymond avenue. Many informal affairs are being planned in her honor during her stay in this city.

Herr Tandler's Trip.

Letters received from Herr Adolf Tandler, conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, state that he sailed early in May on the R.M.S. Olympic, and that he found a number of Los Angeles people on board, including Mrs. Irving Ingraham and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sartori, the latter bound for Paris. Herr Tandler will remain for a time in London, to hear the music of the London Symphony, and then continues his journey to Austria, where he will spend the summer months, returning to Los Angeles some time in August to begin work for next year's symphony concerts.

Luncheon and Auction Bridge.

A charming hostess of the week was Mrs. Wesley Severson, who entertained with a luncheon of thirty-two covers, Friday, in the sun room of the Rampart apartments. All the appointments for the function were carried out in lavender—the redolent sweet pea centering the small tables. Cards marking covers were adorned with daintily-gowned women, wearing lavender hats. Games of auction followed the luncheon and assisting ladies were Mrs. George E. Morrill and Mrs. Carrie du Four.

Quiet Wedding.

Miss Hazel B. Davidson, daughter of Mrs. E. Davidson of West Twenty-third street, was married Tuesday evening to Dr. J. N. Greenbery of Mayville, N. D., Dr. Farber reading the service. The wedding, a quiet affair, took place at Mt. Sinai, which was embellished with Shasta daisies.

The bride was attired in a blue silk traveling gown and carried a shower of white orchids and valley lilies. Only the immediate family were present. Following the ceremony dinner was served at Levy's, where covers were laid for twelve, the table dainty with pink sweet peas. Apropos to the occasion, strains of wedding music were played by the orchestra. The young couple have gone on an extended eastern trip. After August 15 they will be at home in Mayville.

To Hemet.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harbert, No. 1400 Gramercy place, left Tuesday for Hemet to witness the graduation of their niece, Miss Mary Prince. Accompanying them was Miss Alice Prince, who has been attending U.S.C. the past year, and made her home with the Harberts

Catalina Trip.

Mr. Evans of the Westminster Hotel entertained a congenial coterie of friends with a Catalina trip Wednesday. Those included were Mr. and Mrs. William Boothby Stringfellow, Mrs. Miriam Morgan, Miss Peggy O'Connell and Messrs. Arnold Salisbury and Carl Blackmore.

Honors Shared.

Mrs. Frederick Pike, No. 2313 Tenth avenue, entertained a few days ago with a luncheon honoring her mother, Mrs. Anna Hewitt of St. Louis, who is her house guest, and the mother of Mrs. E. W. Skinner, Mrs. Anna Shepard of New York. Glass baskets filled with the blue corn flower and yellow coreopsis, with the same blossoms spread over the snowy cloth, formed an effective decoration for the table. The affair also honored the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Shepard and place cards held appropriate birthday greetings. After luncheon cards were enjoyed. Guests invited to meet the honorees included Mrs. Lucy Thatcher, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Mary Otte, Mrs. Mary Engleman, Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. Kate Lewis and Mrs. Fultz.

Barbecue at Ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brent, No. 20 Berkeley Square, are entertaining today with a barbecue at their 200-acre ranch adjoining the Castle Crags Club. One hundred guests have been included, all making the journey in automobiles, and dinner will be served on long tables under the trees. Mountain hikes will be enjoyed.

Theater Party.

The last formal affair given for Miss Helen McCutchan before her marriage to Will Johnston, June 23, was the theater party at the Orpheum presided over by Miss Anna and Miss Lydia Kellam, No. 926 South Olive street, followed by tea at the Alexandria Hotel, where the table was decked with a mound of pink sweet peas, gypsophila and huge bows of tulle. Cards marking covers held hand-painted sketches of bride and her attendants. Miss McCutchan shared honors with Miss Edith Guest, who is visiting the hostesses. Others included were Mrs. Harry B. Winchester, Mrs. Mamie Young Moore, Mrs. Harrison G. McDonald, Mrs. Aldam M. Culver, Mrs. A. T. Newcomb, Miss Birdetta Wilson, Miss Ora Wilson, Miss Mary McGarry, Miss Anna McGarry, Miss Nellie Beacom, Miss Ethel Rebman, Miss May Rebman, Miss Lulu Page, Miss Alice Atwell Flint, Miss Lucille Jackson and Miss Mattie Stratton.

The Misses Kellam also entertained with an informal afternoon at their home Wednesday, honoring their house guest, Miss Edith Guest. Spring blossoms with ferns and tulle adorned the tea table, and over seventy-five guests called during the afternoon.

To Chicago.

Mrs. Charles Allen of the Duke Apartments left Friday for Chicago, where she will be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Hary Roberts, for the summer. Mr. Allen preceded Mrs. Allen by a fortnight.

Wallis-Mahan Wedding.

A handsome arrangement of baskets of Shasta daisies, tied with fluffy bows of tulle, was used in decorating Wednesday for the wedding of Miss Louise Mahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Mahan, No. 1106 South Normandie avenue, and William Stanley Wallis, which was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock in the Central Baptist Church, with Rev. Kramer officiating. Huge bows of pink tulle topped the pews, which were linked together with the ribbon. During the ceremony, the bridal party stood in a semi-circle of palms.

Miss Mahan, who was given away by her father, was attractive in a white silk crepe de chine, with trimmings of chiffon, silk shadow lace and pearls. Ropes of pearls and old point lace, a family heirloom, caught the silk tulle wedding veil into cap effect. Her only ornament was a pearl brooch, worn by her mother on her wedding day, and the picture was completed by a shower of valley lilies. Miss De Etta Hitchcock, bridesmaid, was attired in a shell pink chiffon, fashioned over a foundation of rich crepe, and trimmed with pink rosebuds. She carried an arm shower of Cecile Brunner roses. Little Dorothy Hitchcock made a dainty flower girl, wearing a French frock and carrying a basket filled with Cecile Brunners. Attached to the basket by satin ribbons were the two gold rings used in the ceremony. Edward Fisher stood with the groom and the ushers included John Bannon, Earl Daniels and Oliver Davies. Just before the ceremony, Mrs. Earl Georgia sang "Because I Love You."

Immediately following a wedding supper was served at the Mahan home for the bridal party only. The electroller over the table had been festooned with greenery to represent a wedding bell. Hanging from this was a hand-painted jardiniere filled with pink roses, and satin streamers extending to the table, ending in huge bows, surrounding a mound of the rosebuds.

The young couple are away on their honeymoon and will be at home to their friends after July 1 at No. 1027 Grand avenue, San Pedro.

Alpha Rho Luncheon.

Honoring their two graduates of U.S.C., Miss Hope Ainley and Miss Gertrude Millard, the Alpha Rho Sorority entertained at Hotel Clark with their annual luncheon Thursday, when covers were laid for forty. The sorority colors, gold and green, were effectively carried out in the table decorations by coreopsis and ferns, and cards marking covers were miniature senior caps.

Bridge Tea.

Mrs. M. S. Strohn presided over an informal bridge tea at her home, No. 2620 Menlo avenue, Friday afternoon, when twenty guests were included. Sprays of Dorothy Perkins roses embellished the rooms given over to the affair.

Dancing Party.

Complimenting her niece, Miss Louise Keeney, who has just returned from Berkeley, Mrs. T. W. Robinson entertained informally with a dancing party Tuesday evening at her home, No. 270 Harvard boulevard, to which the sorority friends of the honoree were included. The home was abloom with enchantress carnations and pink roses, with the exception of the den, which was in yellow. Delightful music was furnished for the dancing and assisting the hostess was Mrs. Elmer Pascoe. Supper was served at midnight to thirty guests.

Theater Party.

As the closing event of the year, a congenial coterie of friends who have been enjoying games of auction, attended the matinee at the Burbank Saturday afternoon, followed by tea at the Alexandria. Included were Mrs. George McCaskey, Mrs. James McCaskey, Mrs. Edward Double, Mrs. Katherine P. Winter, Mrs. Will Ransdell, Mrs. F. S. Griffis, Mrs. Clement Flower, Mrs. Frank Stiff, Mrs. T. L. Patterson, Mrs. William Mayne, Mrs. Charles Stavnow and Mrs. John H. Spence.

Dinner Party.

As a farewell for Mrs. Genevieve Morris, who has been a guest in the city for the past three months, and is returning to her home in Nevada, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Purviance entertained with a dinner party at their apart-

Wedding Supper.

Distinctly naval in its decoration, the bridal supper for the attendants at the wedding of Miss Ruth Heppe to Lieut. James Alexander Logan, U.S.N., on Wednesday evening at the Merritt Jones Hotel, at Ocean Park, was one of the smartest affairs of the season at the beach.

The centerpiece was a large miniature battleship, bearing the inscription, "The Good Ship Love," with a diminutive Kewpie in the bow. Flowers were strewn everywhere, and hand-painted place cards marked covers.

In the bridal party besides the bride and groom were Mrs. E. R. Pape, matron of honor; Elizabeth and Mary Heppe, bridesmaids, Ensign Fred Sherman, Ensign Howard Benson, Lieut. Kenneth Herron and the bride's brother-in-law, George B. Bates.

Immediately after the supper the couple left for Washington, D. C., from where they plan to

To the Bride in the Home

WORTHY furniture, like people of refinement and culture, never loses its charm. And as enduring as its charm is its serviceability.

Your first pieces of furniture will, or should be, your household companions for many years to come. They will be mute or eloquent—serviceable or not—according to the thought and consideration which precedes the purchase.

The "California" offers for your selection the best in furniture—both as to artistic design and worthy construction—which the most noted cabinet shops of America afford. Every piece is selected by us only after the most critical, personal inspection—be it merely a cricket or a set of book blocks to sell for a few dollars, a big, restful deep-upholstered fireside chair, or a fine Oriental rug.

Yet—considering the "California's close-margin system of pricing—this is the most economical furniture you can buy. We mark every piece at the very lowest price for which it can possibly be sold—and that price never changes.

Experienced, conscientious men are always at your service to advise and assist in securing the best results in furnishing the home.

We cordially invite you to call and see these values for yourself—then compare them with any others in the city. This, we know from experience, is our most effective method of making permanent friends for the "California."

SOCIETY.

Charlestown, S. C., to visit the parents of the bridegroom.

Plans Musicales.

A series of society musicales during the summer season at Ocean Park are being planned for the entertainment of visiting Angelenos and beach society folk by Maryedna Larimer White, noted vocalist, formerly of Salt Lake City. The musicales will be given in the ladies' reception salon of the new Merritt Jones Hotel at Ocean Park.

Her first appearance here is to be held tonight, followed by a special matinee programme for children next Saturday. Mrs. White has taken up her summer residence at the Merritt Jones, and will give these entertainments complimentary to the guests and their friends weekly throughout the summer season.

The more popular of the classics and the more classic of the popular songs will be rendered. Mrs. White plays her own accompaniments.

Lawn Fete at St. John's.

The Woman's Guild of St. John's Church has been making extensive preparations for the annual lawn fete to be held next Saturday, from 2 to 5 p.m. The church lawn, rectory and parish house will be made gay with many bright-hued lanterns and pennants. There will be mystic shrines of the fortune tellers, games for children and an entertainment in the Parish House, consisting of piano selection by Miss Josephine Heintz, costume dance by Ruby Hammer, fancy dances by Miss Mary Meyer, accompanied by Miss Lothrop, a reading by Mrs. Preston Hopper Ackerman, dance of the fairies by Warene Sweetland, Carita Ackerman and Virginia Brown and a vocal solo by Miss Adelaide Walton.

The rector's mother and sister, Mrs. and Miss Davidson, will serve tea and cake in the rectory. A table of home-cooked delicacies and another of serviceable aprons will be placed on the lawn, and a bon bon table from which happy, dainty children will dispense candy as they float with their baskets among the guests. These will form the major portion of the afternoon's attractions, and the whole accompanied by music from a stringed orchestra will make a very complete and pretty affair.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

QUITE the largest social function of the week was the Valley Hunt last evening at the Valley Hunt Club which was given at the end of the annual tennis tournament on the club courts. The entire week was given up to tennis which was witnessed by crowds each afternoon and yesterday afternoon the finals in men's and women's singles, women's and mixed doubles were played off and at 7:30 o'clock dinner was served in both dining-rooms and the drawing-room, covers being laid for 150. Tennis nets dotted with ferns and gay blossoms, tennis racquets and other suggestions of the game were introduced into the decorations and the club colors, red and white were shown in carnations on the tables. The ballroom presented a gay scene after the dinner and dancing was kept up until a late hour. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. James S. Macdonnell, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Elmer Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Mrs. Frederick Henry White of South Orange Grove avenue gave an afternoon tea and bridge party Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. May Scott Brokaw announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Natalie Brokaw, to Walter P. White, son of the hostess. The bridge party was arranged in honor of the bride-to-be, and others present were Mmes. Grosvenor L. Wotkyns, F. H. White, Jr.; Chester Norris, Harvey Bissell, M. S. Jones, Raymond B. Mixsell, Alexander Nottmeyer, Misses Clara Baker, Marjorie Mhoon, Bessie Dodge, Wilhelmina Helmer, Wilma Sill, Drusilla Allen, Dorothy Hinds, Catherine Wright, Marilla Bragdon, Bertha Taylor, Sarah Latimore, Olivette Marsh, Dollie Ellsworth, Ada Black, Charlotte Blow, Carol Green, Mary Cushing, Marie Miller, Elizabeth Jones, Jessie McCament, Margaret and Louise Flemming, Ruth Detwiller, Dona Andson and others.

Mrs. James Montgomery Bell of Atchinson street entertained Wednesday afternoon with a bridge luncheon complimentary to Mrs. Allison, wife of Capt. Allison, U.S.A., who, with her mother, Mrs. A. B. Johnson, is a guest at Mrs. Bell's home. The luncheon was given at the Altadena Country Club, and covers were laid also for Mmes. Hampton L. Story, Thaddeus Jones, Frank H. Long, Alexander Shephard, Charles S. Gilbert, Charlton Brooks and Daniel Craig. After luncheon tables were provided for bridge and the prize-winners were Mmes. Shephard and Brooks. The prizes were dainty flower baskets in which embroidered handkerchiefs were concealed. The decorations everywhere were Shasta daisies combined with wood ferns.

Many who are conspicuous in the social life of Pasadena departed last week or are leaving this coming week for eastern or summer vacation trips. Among those leaving last week were Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Murphy, Mrs. Mary W. Armstrong, Miss Marion Armstrong, Miss Mary Ranney, Miss Margaret Hale, all of whom have gone east for three or four months. Tomorrow Mrs. Anna M. Azarian of South Pasadena avenue leaves for the Atlantic Coast for three months, Mrs. John Bakewell Phillips of Bellfontaine street leaves also this week for the East, and Wednesday, Mrs. James H. McBride and daughter, Miss Emily McBride of Bellfontaine street, leave for Carmel-by-the-Sea for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Storrow of Palmetto drive leave tomorrow for an extended trip through the Yosemite.

The Rose Tree Teahouse was the scene of a prettily-appointed afternoon tea Tuesday when the St. Cecelia Musical Club entertained there in honor of its retiring president, Miss Willie Smyser, whose place this coming year will be filled by Mrs. Henry Baxter. Covers were laid for Mmes. Harry Ross, Roy Kellogg, Elmer Grey, Phillip Zobelin, Edward Jones, Loraine Bernard, Benjamin Blosser, Harry Dussill, Jesse P. McKnight, Henry Baxter, Misses Myrtle Otlett, Isabel Isgrig, and Edith Morgan.

Two weddings added gayety to the social life of Pasadena last week, the first being that of Miss Grace McAdam of North Orange Grove avenue who married Gordon Bligh Johnstone of Santa Monica Tuesday evening at the home of her parents, Rev. J. A. Wachob performing the ceremony. The floral decorations were unusually elaborate. White Canterbury bells and Shasta daisies with white tulle decorated the room of ceremony and delicate touches of pink were given in other decorations by pink Canterbury bells and carnations. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. E. Snoddy as matron of honor and little Lawrence McAdam was ring-bearer and Katherine McAlpine, flower girl. The bride wore a robe of white crepe de chine with ruffles of shadow lace caught with pearls and her bouquet was white sweet peas and bride roses. Supper followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone left for their wedding journey. There were seventy-five friends and relatives present at the wedding.

Elegant in its appointments was the wedding of Miss Lucy Smith, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith of Columbia street, and Edward Lawrence Doheny, Jr., of Los Angeles, who were married at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening in the presence of relatives and intimate friends only. Dr. E. L. Conger performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Anson Lisk as matron of honor and Mrs. Smith's little daughter Laura Ann as flower girl. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Warren Smith, as best man. The bride wore an exquisite Lucile gown of white satin chiffon with court train of Spanish lace, a family heirloom, and her tulle veil was fastened with orange flowers. Her bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Doheny left Wednesday for an extended eastern trip and will be at home in Chester place, Los Angeles, after October 1.

Mrs. George W. T. Lord of South Madison avenue gave a small luncheon Tuesday at the Altadena Country Club followed by bridge. Sweet peas were used in adornment of the table where covers were laid for Mmes. Frank V. Rider, Charles D. Snyder, Benjamin Preston, H. B. Van Duesen and R. L. Sigmund, Rhom and Miss Katherine Power.

Mrs. Theodore Coleman of East California street entertained yesterday afternoon with an informal tea given in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank Coleman of Phoenix, Ariz., who is spending a few weeks here. Garden flowers were used in decorating the rooms and there were about fifty present between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Mrs. A. Scott Ormsby of Garfield avenue gave an enjoyable musicale Wednesday evening complimentary to Miss Sarah Furnas who added to the evening's pleasure by giving several groups of songs.

Miss Elva Huntley of North Raymond avenue entertained Tuesday with a shower party given for Miss Susan Cope, who is to marry George Pooley June 23. The guests were requested to bring as gifts pins in many varieties and seldom has a bride-elect been the recipient of so many pointed gifts in such attractive receptacles. Refreshments were served after the shower and those present were Mmes. L. H. Salisbury, Herbert Miller, Herman Foltz, Park Upton, Ernest Branson, R. P. Garmon, J. P. Welles, E. B. Bailey, Ned White, Misses Mae Flathers, Martha Koch, Margaret McCoory, Harriet Boyles, Nell Sitter and others.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Davis of South Lake avenue entertained last evening at the Altadena Country Club a number of young people in honor of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Davis.

Among those who soon leave Pasadena for the summer are Gen. and Mrs. James Montgomery Bell, who are going abroad for three months, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Goodyear of Oak Knoll, who leave within ten days for their summer home on the Atlantic Coast.

Claremont.

IN THE banquet-room of the Claremont Inn, the Philomathia Debating Society met for the last time this year and celebrated the end of the year with an elaborate banquet. F. F. Palmer was invited to be present as the special guest of the evening. After dinner Mr. Palmer made a short address, as well as several members of the society. Messrs. Robert Witter, Halsted White, Clifford Smith, Emanuel Young, Clarence Stover, Gerald Sanford, Rex Ragan, Austin King, Donald Ingham, George Hopkins, Harold Howery, Dale Healy, Robert Hagar and Allen Hastings were the members attending the banquet.

Miss Anna K. Peterson, accompanied by Mrs. A. M. Smith of Berkeley, left last week to attend their class reunion at Wellesley College. On the way East Miss Peterson expects to stop off at her home in McGregor, Iowa.

Mrs. E. H. Sanford complimented her guest, Mrs. Cora Woodward, of Stanford University, and Mrs. H. E. Daniels, who with a party of several others leaves soon for a summer in Europe, with a most delightful reception Saturday afternoon. The lovely rooms at the home of Mrs. Sanford were effectively decorated with wild flowers. Dainty refreshments were served the guests at the end of a very pleasant afternoon.

Mrs. J. E. Cowan, accompanied by Miss Martha Cowan, Jack Cowan and Earnest Lord, motored 600 miles from Prescott, Ariz., to Claremont, where they spent one day with friends and then continued to Long Beach, where they will spend the summer. In the fall Mrs. Cowan and her children will return to San Dimas, where she has recently purchased a home.

The three lower classes of the High School performed the honors of the evening at the annual senior reception, which was given Saturday evening in the High School building. The parents of the senior class and the alumni were guests of the evening, as well as the seniors in all their carefully assumed dignity. Green pepper boughs and red and white flowers, the senior colors made the halls and rooms very attractive. A splendid orchestra obtained for the occasion, furnished entrancing music. A very interesting programme had been arranged to furnish entertainment for the guests. While every one was gathered in the auditorium, Miss Melva Archibald opened the programme by giving a humorous recitation. Several very good musical numbers followed, a violin solo by Miss Mildred Palmer, a vocal solo by Alan Kingman, a piano solo by Miss Gensag Santikian and a vocal solo by Miss Edythe Ernst. After another recitation by Wayne Gardner, which was a burlesque on "The Charge of the Light Brigade," a delightful one-act comedy, entitled "Obstinacy" was given. At the close of the programme refreshments were served in the artroom, where all the year's work of the art classes was on exhibit and made a very creditable showing. The different class banners decorated one wall and the color scheme was carried out in the bouquets of red and white flowers at each of the small tables.

Miss Mabel Day was hostess last Friday evening at a small, but delightful party given in honor of her guest, Miss Lutie Murphy, of Long Beach. The invited guests included Misses Elsie Ranney, Mary Bell, Messrs. Lowell Pratt, Lewis Plush, Donald Ingham and Elmert Clark.

The Afternoon Five Hundred Club was entertained by Mrs. R. A. Lewis Thursday afternoon. The guests included Mmes. Howard Geer, L. M. Hudson, J. B. Anderson, R. D. Chisholm, L. A. Koch, J. R. Bradley, F. C. Harrison, R. D. Roe, Bradley, J. B. Vaile and Walter Stoll.

Miss Rachel Dowd and her mother, Mrs. Dowd, invited the inmates of the Summer Hall Annex to attend a picnic supper at Ganesha Park Saturday. The party included Misses Marion Warren, Harriet Coman, Katherine Sharpless, Alice Cranston, Lydia Neilson, Dorothy Shade, Georgia Smith, Rachel Dowd, Mrs. Matlock and sons, and Mrs. Dowd.

A farewell party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Clayes and Miss Belle Hawley was given by the members of the High School commercial department, at Indian Hill Tuesday evening. A picnic supper was greatly enjoyed and wieners and marshmallows were toasted around a bright fire. Besides the honored guests there were present Misses Susie Case, Melba Case, Helen Holabird, Amy Swoveland, Ethel Johnson, Athelia Johnston, May Sassard, Lula Clevenger, Esther Parsons, Viola Williamson, Marie Becker, Helen Powell, and Messrs. Gerald Sanford, George Cree, Harry St. Clair, Maurice Rockwell, Alvin Hickox, Donald Ingham, Alfred Clayes, Paul Bentley, Dee DeLapp, Dale Healy, Robert Witter, Howard Parsons and Selden Eakin.

The Merry Wives had another one of their very delightful social events Tuesday evening. In the afternoon they passed a pleasant time at the home of Mrs. H. D. Roe and in the evening the husbands were the guests at a picnic supper, held on the east side of Indian Hill. Each one brought a lunch for two and supper was a pleasant occasion, eaten around a cheerful fire. Those in the party were Mmes. and Messrs. J. B. Anderson, Charles Baynham, R. D. Chisholm, Howard Geer, L. M. Hudson, J. D. Johnson, C. R. May, J. H. McConnell, E. E. Jones, R. D. Williams, W. A. Hilton, R. A. Lewis, Mmes. H. D. Roe, Rose Bradley and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bradley, and Messrs. W. S. Smith, M. G. Frampton and H. S. Rider.

Watts.

ETHEL MAE PERKINS was married to James R. Wilson last Thursday evening at 9 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Perkins, on Main street, Rev. G. S. Madden officiating. Mr. Perkins was the first settler of Watts, and is a member of the present City Council. The bride was dressed with becoming effect in a simple gown of white satin trimmed with Irish lace, and her long veil was caught with orange blossoms. The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Perkins, sister of the bride, was daintily attired in pink crepe de chine. The bride carried white bride roses and the bridesmaid carried Cecile Brunner roses to the altar. Jack McCartey of Los Angeles was the best man.

The room was decorated with carnations and maidenhair fern and altogether the effect was one of simple beauty. The guests, about fifty in number, will long remember this as one of the most charming little weddings ever witnessed in Watts.

The happy couple are on their honeymoon trip to San Diego and other places of interest. They will make their home at No. 239 East Diller street.

WHEN Mrs. Dwyer resumed charge of the Five Hundred Club Monday, the high score was made by Mrs. H. R. Jones, her record for the day being 4790, but owing to her record for previous awards, the first and second awards went to Mrs. H. A. Perkins, who made 4420, and Mrs. E. M. Reed, who had 4230. The day coupon was drawn by Mrs. Racine. The fifth Monday of this month, the 29th, will be a company day, and each member is urged to introduce a guest, or a new member, and all will play during the afternoon with the same partners.

Friday evening the Auditorium Chair Committee of the Women's Club held its twice a month dance in the pavilion on the Fraser pier. Owing to the High School class play, "As You Like It" the club fared rather lightly with High School students. However, the society people of the bay are enthusiastic over the club dances, and a good crowd was there. The pretty pavilion is winning back its lost followers, for the music is better than ever, the floor smooth, and not too slippery, and the place is well decorated, and above all, is cool and pleasant. The club ladies are working hard to get the necessary funds for the auditorium chairs, and their success has been made through the dancing pavilion.

One of the prettiest appointed parties of the season of the Breakers Club was that given by Mrs. C. H. Davis, in the elegant new quarters of the club in the Fraser building on the pier. Luncheon in the anteroom at tables heaped with sweet-peas, was followed by auction, at which nearly a hundred guests participated. Mrs. O. A. Kirkelie won first prize. Every second Tuesday in each month the members gather in the clubrooms and enjoy a pleasant afternoon, luncheon being served at one, and cards started an hour and a half later.

A DELIGHTFULLY informal afternoon was spent by a few former pupils of Miss C. Bertha Palmer Monday afternoon at her home on First avenue. The affair was in honor of Miss Palmer's niece, Miss Vinal Palmer of Claremont, who leaves soon for Europe to study under Moszkowski. A musical guessing contest was the amusement of the afternoon and with several musical numbers made the afternoon pass rapidly. Those present were Miss Fannie Wallino, Miss Onnie Eymann, Miss Marie Podrasnik, Miss Ione Casey, Miss Elsie Duley and the guest of honor, Miss Vinal Palmer.

Mrs. M. L. Thompson was a delightful hostess on Thursday afternoon, when she entertained the "G. T." Club at her home on Third avenue. The guests spent the afternoon working on fancy work and gossip and at a late hour refreshments were served to the following members and guests: Miss Mabel Myers, Mrs. William Tuttle, Mrs. N. I. Hamer, Mrs. Fred McMullen, Mrs. P. H. McQuillen, Mrs. Wilbur Spicer, Mrs. Bert Spicer, Mrs. H. O. Brohm, Mrs. Earl Maurer, Mrs. R. R. Wisely, Mrs. John Short, Mrs. E. B. Reynolds, Mrs. Edelblute, Miss Teresa McQuillen.

Duarte.

THE forfeit party given under the patronage of Mrs. C. Henry Sarwine, Mrs. Arthur Church and Mrs. Ludie Gerhart Cross was an entire surprise to the guests, who assembled Saturday in response to invitations and were urged to step into the line of waiting motors, which took the company by a circuitous route to the San Gabriel Canyon, near Azusa. Here a fish barbecue was ready for the outdoor feast, and seated about long tables brightened with wild flowers, the honored guests, who had been the winners in the recent Buena Vista Whist Club's tournament, were royally feted. After the al fresco luncheon the diversion of the afternoon was whist, followed by a ride to Glendora, where a special matinee was given late in the afternoon for the Duarte merry-makers. The return trip was made in the early moonlight and the losing side was declared to have fully paid its score.

Mrs. John Dickie, who is soon to leave for her new home in Riverside, was assisted in giving a farewell party Thursday afternoon by her sister, Mrs. Mary Hoagland.

Mrs. Dickie and Mrs. Hoagland entertained at Oakleigh, the spacious home of Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, and about twenty-five ladies shared the generous hospitality of the hostesses.

Lovely June blossoms and ferns were used in baskets and vases and after the informal reception the ladies were each given a card decorated with a skeleton. Under the caption, "The Study of Mankind is Plain" many questions were placed, and the contestants told to find the answers on the cover. Much amusement resulted, and the remainder of the afternoon was spent with needlework, followed by tea.

Many expressions of genuine regret were voiced relative to Mrs. Dickie's leavetaking and other farewell companies are planned in her honor in the near future.

The recently organized Foothill Club met Tuesday with Mrs. Montague Graham, who tendered the members and a few guests a delightful afternoon. The guests assembled at 1 o'clock about Mrs. Graham's luncheon table, which was decorated with Matilija poppies and golden coreopsis was arranged in graceful baskets. After the repast the guests devoted the afternoon to auction bridge and Mrs. Ernest B. Rivers, one of Duarte's society matrons, received the prize for high score. Beside the regular members the guests of the club were Mrs. Frank Neal Robinson and Mrs. Porter Carpenter.

The thirty-five ladies of the Duarte Reading Circle were graciously entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. John Graver at her home on Orange avenue. Lupin from the canyons was used in a pretty decorative scheme and during the afternoon Mrs. Baylis W. Gerhart contributed readings while the members busied themselves with needle-work.

Mrs. L. Harris opened her home Friday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock for a June reception tendered to the ladies of the Methodist Church and their friends. About fifty guests shared Mrs. Harris's generous hospitality and the afternoon was specially enjoyable in the manner in which friends were brought together under enjoyable circumstances.

Mrs. Bruce Radabaugh has as her house guest her mother, Mrs. Gibler of Huntington, Ind., who arrived last Friday for several weeks' stay in Duarte.

South Pasadena.

THE First Congregational Church of Pasadena was beautifully decorated Tuesday evening with pink gladiolus, enchantress carnation, pink and white canterbury bells, huge bows of tulle and garlands of asparagus plumosus, the occasion being the wedding of Miss Elizabeth M. Rust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Rust, and Ralph J. Roth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roth of Claremont. The wedding is the culmination of a college romance, and all their attendants were classmates at Pomona.

The bridal gown was a dainty affair of white Canton crepe meteor, made en traine, with trimmings of real lace and pearls. With this a long tulle veil was worn, caught with orange blossoms, and a shower bouquet of pink orchids and valley lilies was carried.

Miss Helen Austin of Santa Ana was maid of honor. Miss Marje Lockwood of Pasadena, cousin of the bride; Miss Gertrude Bacon of Claremont, Miss May Hatch of Alhambra, Miss Marguerite West of Santa Ana, Miss Florence Wheeler of Los Angeles, and Miss Lillian Reid of Long Beach, bridesmaids, were all attired in pink crepe gowns, with trimmings of lace, and carried arm bouquets of pink sweet peas. George L. Henderson Ash was best man, and Donald Fox and Raymond Call of Pasadena, Williard Stover of Claremont, Edwin McFadden of Santa Ana, Clyde Holly of Los Angeles and Harry Roth of Chico, were ushers. The officiating clergyman was Dr. Daniel F. Fox, pastor.

A reception followed at the home of the bride, No. 1303 Lyndon street, South Pasadena, to which only close friends and relatives were included. The young couple are away on their honeymoon, and after September 1, will be at home to their friends in this city at No. 1717 Bank street.

Miss Ina Eulalia Carlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Carlow, No. 1919 Marengo avenue, was married Wednesday evening to Charles Alden Ryder, the Rev. George Carol King, pastor of the local Methodist Church, reading the service. The wedding, a quiet affair, took place at the Carlow home, where the house was a bower of pink, white and green for the occasion. The mantel in the living-room was banked with Shasta daisies and ferns, while enchantress carnations and sweet peas were placed around the balance of the home in baskets and vases.

One of the largest affairs of the current week was the dancing party given at the Women's Clubhouse Thursday evening for the benefit of the furnishing fund. Hostesses of the occasion were Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. Walton J. Wood, Mrs. W. E. Tussing, Mrs. A. J. Padan, Mrs. Harold Allen, Mrs. Howard Kelley, Mrs. George C. Bush, Mrs. Jonathan S. Dodge, Mrs. George Werden, Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mrs. Clinton De Witte, Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. W. H. Harrison, Mrs. Harvey Smith, Mrs. J. H. Copelin, Miss Anne Mumford, Mrs. Leo Longley, Mrs. Grace Hudson and Mrs. B. F. Huntington.

Mrs. Ernest V. Sutton complimented the members of the Las Amigas Club with a luncheon at her home, No. 1625 Oak street, Tuesday. Centering the small tables were pink, white and lavender canterbury bells, and placed around the rooms were Shirley poppies. Rose cards marked covers. Tables were arranged for games of auction, following the luncheon, the prize falling to Mrs. Shoebottom. Special guests present were Mrs. Alice Green and Miss Ellen Butterfield, and members Miss Charlotte Butterfield, Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. Robert Hardy, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Mrs. Norman F. Marsh, Mrs. A. B. Cass, Mrs. E. F. Hobert, Mrs. W. D. Newerf, Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mrs. Mary Stringfellow, Mrs. Grace Hudson, Mrs. Carl McStay and Mrs. John C. Paine.

Entertaining with the first of a series, Mrs. P. A. Lord presided over a dinner party of seventeen covers at her home, No. 1104 Fremont avenue, Tuesday evening.

An auction dinner was the pleasure provided by Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hobert at their home in Oneonta last evening. Those included were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. William Council, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest V. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cass, Mmes. Walter Sebree, Grace Hudson, Thomas A. Sanson and Frank Cass.

Venice.

IN HONOR of Miss Ruth Heppe, who was married Wednesday evening in Santa Monica, to Lieut. Logan of the United States Navy, Mrs. Walter V. Pomeroy entertained with a larg reception for the bride-to-be at her beautiful home on Menlo avenue, Los Angeles. There were about 250 guests present.

The Greeters Club was royally entertained when they paid a visit to this city early in the week. The dancing palace on the pier was the lively scene of the club doings, and every member left the city with happiness in his heart. The club was taken through the amusement section, and then a large box party followed in the dance hall. A banquet in the ship cafe was the first number of the varied programme.

There was an all-day session of the Working Women's Vacation Home on Grand Canal when many members got together for a lively business and social meeting. Much important business was transacted. Luncheon was served in the clubroom while the ladies were busy with their work. This organization is a lively one and is doing much good work, and the members are striving to make it one of the best in this vicinity.

Whittier.

SOCIAL events of the week have centered largely around functions incidental to the closing work of the school year High School and college. Commencement week at Whittier College was ushered in with the baccalaureate sermon Sunday afternoon; class day followed Monday, Tuesday evening was given the annual spring recital of the music department, formal commencement came Wednesday forenoon.

The class presented as a part of class day, Mrs. C. F. Baldwin in a reading of "Enoch Arden," assisted by Miss Elizabeth Lum at the piano. Both artists are local people and are well known for their ability in dramatic reading and piano.

Tuesday evening the Choral Society presented a varied programme, among the numbers being Newton C. Graves in vocal work, Miss Agnes Barnhart was at her best in readings, Mrs. Ray Woodard was heard in "Joy of the Morning," Miss Faye Gooch in violin, in which her ability is well known. Added to these artists was the work of the chorus of thirty voices in "Elijah."

Whittier High School opened a commencement week auspiciously with the annual recital by the departments of music Thursday evening. The programme included the work on the piano, work of the violin and orchestra pupils, and that of the pupils in vocal work under Prof. Fred G. Ellis. The annual school exhibit followed Friday evening, the main buildings of the group being open to visitors for the entire evening, and patrons and friends of the school responding in large numbers to the invitation to inspect the work. The exhibit ranged from vegetables to kimonos, from Latin to trigonometry, and from cedar chests to dainty leather card cases. By way of further entertainment a varied programme was given in the auditorium during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole of the County road left Monday for an eastern visit and will be absent from Whittier till the middle of July.

Miss Laura Butman entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butman, Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Harold Mann, one of the recent brides of Whittier. The guests included a large number of the friends of the young hostess and the guest of honor. As Miss Hazel Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Clayton, the bride was well known and very popular in her set.

Misses Helen and Mabel Fulghum entertained a few friends at their home on South Bright avenue Saturday, at which time the engagement of Miss Mabel Fulghum and Mr. W. Robert Adell was announced. Both parties to the engagement are well known and of sterling worth. No date for the nuptials has been announced, although it is understood that the wedding will not occur for some time yet.

The closing meeting of the year for the household economics section of the Whittier Woman's Club was held at the home of Mr. C. A. Carden Monday afternoon. As a courtesy to the officers of the club both the new and the retiring officers of the club were the guests of the section. The recently elected officers of the section were installed at this meeting and are Mrs. C. A. Carden, chairman; Mrs. E. J. Saunders, vice-chairman; Mrs. Marshall Hazzard, secretary; Mrs. J. P. Wyatt, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Stamy, daughter, Miss Nellie Stamy, and son Daniel, left Friday afternoon by automobile for a three-months' tour of central and northern California. They will spend most of the time in camp in the Yosemite, but will also visit friends at various northern points.

Mrs. Benjamin Sharpless of South Washington avenue is entertaining her son and grandson, David Heacock and son Ralph, of Cardington, O. The visitors will spend some time in the South.

Prof. W. T. Boyce of the Whittier College faculty left for his home in the East Thursday. He will spend the summer at various Atlantic Coast points, visiting also at Norfolk, Va., and at Providence.

Mrs. A. D. Printz entertained the members of the Sunshine Club at her home on Palm avenue Wednesday. Those present included Mesdames W. L. Rideout, W. M. Holland, J. A. Wallace, J. M. Walker, Charles Hall, Jesse Hall, F. H. Rideout and E. T. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fletcher of East Whittier entertained in honor of Miss Della King, who has just returned to Whittier after spending the school year at Imperial. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Kirkwood, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodward and the hosts and honoree.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gabel, recent arrivals from Cincinnati, was celebrated Monday. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Antil, parish priest. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Gabel were at home to their friends at their new residence, No. 541 North Painter avenue, and later all repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Waldappel, where the wedding banquet was served. The guests included a large number of local people.

Santa Ana.

ONE of the quiet, but charming weddings of the season was that of Miss Marie Hoffman and Harry Leach on Saturday, June 6, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. J. Day. It was an afternoon wedding at 4 o'clock, at the Fairhaven-avenue residence, which is a handsome gray stucco. Shasta daisies, ferns and potted plants were used in the artistic decorations. On the arm of her father, the charming bride approached a bower of palms and ferns built in a corner of the massive stone porch. The bridegroom, with his best man, J. Frietas, of San Diego, met her and the nuptial pledges were taken under a wedding bell of daisies and softly falling satin ribbons. The marriage lines were read by Rev. E. J. Inwood and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Frietas, a sister of the bride. The wedding gown was of dainty white charmeuse with satin tunic and pearl trimmings. An elaborate three-course collation was served in the dining-room following the ceremony, the bride cutting the wedding cake. Only close friends and relatives of the principals were in the wedding company, Mrs. I. T. Leach, the mother of the groom, coming from Virginia for the marriage event. Mr. and Mrs. Leach motored to an unknown point for their honeymoon.

"Desmond's"
THIRD ST. AT SPRING

SOCIETY.

A garden fete for scores of fair ladies, members of the American Woman's Republic Federation of Orange county, was the choice entertainment offered recently by the Santa Ana chapter of the Federation The beautiful grounds of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rowland on North Broadway, used for the event, were planted specially last spring with a view to the fete, Mrs. Rowland being the enthusiastic president of the local chapter. The day was ideal for an out-of-door festival, and the garden party was perfect in its setting of blooms of purple and hite, the colors of the Republic. The spreading trees were hung with gay, white and purple pennants and bunting, and a liberal sprinkling of orange ribbon significant of golden California. The beautiful gowns of the women blended harmoniously with flowers and buds, and the fairy-like garden was rich in cosy nooks where easy chairs invited to rest. Damask-covered tables were set under the shady trees, generously supplied with good things to eat, and at each plate was a great purple and white Canterbury bell. Glasses of golden orange marmalade, prepared by the fair hands of the hostess of the home, were delectable to both sight and taste. A programme of music and readings was contributed by Mrs. Carrie A. Drake, Mrs. Hawkinson, Mrs. H. Clay Kellogg and Mrs. Walter A. Moore of Los Angeles. This noteworthy social event was participated in by guests from Pasadena, Los Angeles, Fullerton, Orange and Santa Ana.

The lure of the sea drew the twenty-five or more ladies, who are members of the Second Ebell Travel Club to Newport Beach last Monday when they celebrated the close of of their club season with a fish dinner at the seaside home of Mrs. Jay W. Powers, who with Mrs. J. E. Liebig and Mrs. J. W. Blee, acted as hostesses of the day. The spacious living-room that opens on the sea with many windows, was utilized for the banquet-room. Could any thing be more satisfying than to sit at a handsomely appointed table with congenial company and to feast from dainty culinary triumphs, while at the same time one's eyes feasted on the glory of pounding surf and a rolling sea beyond? Such was the rare fortune of the Travelers. The afternoon was spent delightfully in conversation, one of the themes being the recounting of love-stories of days gone by. The hour for return to the city came all too soon.

Forty young people of the Philathea and Baraca classes of the First Presbyterian Sunday-school enjoyed a fascinating moonlight ride and picnic on Tuesday evening, motoring from this city to Huntington Beach over the good roads that are beginning to make Orange county a mecca for the autoist. The initial proceeding after arrival at the wave-lapped beach was to build a roaring camp fire on the sands for the brewing of aromatic coffee and to gather some of its welcome warmth, appreciated after the swift ride in the crisp evening air. It was a merry party of forty or more that gathered around the picnic supper with its palatable and inviting eatables, doubly enjoyed from the appetites stimulated by the motor ride. Merry games on the beach followed the supper, with a later gathering about the sparkling camp fire to sing old songs and tell stories of adventure or otherwise. Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Morrow, the latter being the respective teachers of the Baracas and Philatheas, were the guests of honor, and were the merriest of the party. The ride home was one of the most delightful features of the trip as the full moon was shining at its most glorious best.

One of the prized open meetings of the Monday Club, the leading men's club of the city, was held last night at the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lamme on North Spurgeon street with the men as hosts. A wonderfully interesting talk was given by Prof. Charles I. Fox, principal of Euclid-avenue school, Los Angeles, on the conservation and protection of the mountain forests. The talk was superbly illustrated by lantern slides, Prof. Fox being assisted by Prof. H. O. Eggen of Santa Ana Polytechnic High School. The company heard some amazing figures involved in the government protection of forest lands; learned of forestry methods; were informed of some of the many exciting incidents in the life of a forest ranger, and in fact, were let into some of the fascinating secrets of forest conservation undertaken so masterfully and successfully by magnificent Uncle Sam. The social hour that followed the forestry talk was as delightful in its way as the interesting field of nature through which the guests had been taken. Brilliant piano selections were played by Prof. C. A. Gustlin, director of the Orange County Music Conservatory, and tempting refreshments were served by the ladies, who had been invited by the men to do the honors.

With each lady supplying delicacies and substantials known only to herself, a ravishing array of eatables recently graced the tables set in the dining-room of the lovely O. M. Robbins home on E. street for a surprise dinner of the Impromptu Club. The ladies of the club were hostesses to their husbands at a 6 o'clock spread where the refreshments were served in cafeteria fashion. Sweet peas decked house and buffet, shedding the aroma of spring throughout the spacious rooms. Tables were arranged for whist following the collation.

Glendale.

UNDER a canopy of green and Cecil Brunner roses, Miss Florence Isabel Hoffman and Walter R. Wright of Los Angeles were united in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, No. 215 East Third street, this city. In the presence of the immediate relatives and friends, Dr. E. H. Willisford, pastor of the First Congregational Church, read the service.

The bride, unattended, was gowned in white crepe meteor, with bodice of white Chantilly lace and pearl garnitures. Her bouquet was made from bride's roses and ferns. Miss Nellie Stevens played Lohengrin's bridal chorus. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Wright will be at their home in the Lola apartments in Los Angeles.

Half a hundred little tots and nearly as many mothers enjoyed the "baby party" given by Mmes. E. D. Yard and H. M. Yarick, Wednesday afternoon at the Congregational Church. Yellow poppies and Shasta daisies nodded from pretty holders, and refreshments carrying out the same color motif were served.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Goss, No. 708 West Fifth street, have returned from an extended visit to Riverside, from whence they scaled Mt. Rudidoux.

Mrs. Sallie Braden and son, Harry Braden, No. 1304 Arden avenue, will occupy for the next six months the home of her sister, Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald, on West Adams street, Los Angeles, who, with her husband, is touring Europe.

The first game of a recently-organized tennis club was played on the court of the Congregational Church Thursday morning, after which a picnic luncheon was served. The membership includes Mmes. Blake Franklin, Charles Van Dyke, H. W. Garick, Louis Frazee, Henry Wilson, Edgar Knicer and Eugene Murnion.

The "Sunbeams," a club of little girls not yet in their teens, will hold a "doll bazaar" on June 20 in the sun parlor at the home of Mrs. Nanno Woods, No. 1222 Milford street. The proceeds will be given to the Children's Hospital. The "Sunbeams" include Misses Katherine Atkinson, Ruth Jenkins, Dorothy and Kathleen Woods, Lois Webb, Hetty Orth, Millicent Alvord and Elizabeth Cadd.

Shasta daisies and pink roses made a pretty setting for a party given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. L. H. Wilkinson, No. 1477 Myrtle street, for the members of the G. T. Club. Refreshments were served carrying out the same color scheme. Last night Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. J. C. Waite entertained with a card party for the club members and their husbands. Mrs. Philip Englehorn will be the next hostess.

Miss Ruth Leick played the wedding music, and small Clifford Matthiessen, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer, while rose petals were scattered in the bridal path by little Miss Maxime Matthiessen. The bride was attired in a creation of white crepe meteor and her veil of tulle caught up with white sweet peas. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The service was read by Rev. Bede A. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Glendale. Mr. and Mrs. Matthiessen will be at home at No. 473 Orange Grove avenue.

Miss Clara Midcalf, No. 118 South Brand boulevard, had her rooms dressed up in green and white when she entertained the members of the A-eighth class last Friday evening. She was assisted by Misses Kimball, White and Moore and Mr. Pollard, teachers in the school. In a contest Miss White won a prize. Little Miss Cleo Helen Redd, as a Hawaiian maid; Helen Beach, as a Dutch girl, and Dorothy Brown, as a small Puritan, served refreshments.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club held its final meeting for the season last week. It was guest day, and several were present. A special musicale programme was carried out by Misses Marten and Neff of Los Angeles, Martha Porter, Elizabeth Porter, Mrs. John R. Barrows and Mrs. Frank N. Arnold. Mrs. Eugene C. Frank presented the club with a painting done by her distinguished husband.

A dinner, given in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary, by Mr. and Mrs. Hal Guthridge was enjoyed by many friends. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Fouch, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Armstrong. Music was a feature of the evening.

The Pythian Sisters and Knights gave a social farewell reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Armstrong, prior to their removal to Long Beach.

Mrs. M. L. Campbell entertained the faculty and graduating class of the High School at dinner, prior to returning to her home in Los Angeles, for her vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden and family were tendered a farewell by their many friends, on leaving Perris for their new home in Chelsea, Mich.

The graduating exercises of the Perris High School were held and diplomas were presented to Elva J. Crandall, Helen L. Canning and Currie W. Kirkpatrick. The exercises were largely attended.

The Perris grammar school closed Friday, having graduated nineteen pupils, twelve boys and seven girls. A programme for the whole school was given and well attended by the parents. Refreshments were served and a delightful year's closing enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Heinrich entertained a number of friends at their home on Fourth street, during the week.

Azusa.

THE members of the Afternoon Auction Bridge Club were entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy Currier, on San Gabriel avenue. There are about twenty ladies belonging to this club, and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed; delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

The members of the Azusa Embroidery Club were delightfully entertained Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. W. Ingraham, on the Foothill boulevard, near Citrus. As the weather was warm the guests were seated on the lawn, where they employed themselves with their fancy work. Later refreshments were served under the trees. Mrs. Ingraham was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Young, and Miss Bernice Young. The ladies who were present were Mrs. W. A. Davis, Mrs. Carlton Gilton, Mrs. Don Petty, Mrs. O. F. Wright, Mrs. Simeon Wright, Mrs. John Calvert, Mrs. Fred Clark, Mrs. Adolph Katz, Mrs. J. S. Collins, Mrs. George Fuler, Mrs. Jesse Crane, Mrs. R. E. Smith, Mrs. O. S. will reside in Inglewood in a bungalow near the home of the parents.

Charles H. Eager proved a hostess Thursday afternoon home, Casa de Consuelo, when entertained the members of the Aid of the First Presbyterian and a number of other in-guests. During the afternoon a musical programme consisting of several numbers by Prof. A. F. Monroe and the High School orchestra, and arias from grand opera on the Victrola, were interspersed with delightful character bits in costume by the talented and popular story-teller, Miss Helen Louise Kimball of Los Angeles. Following the programme dainty refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Eager will sail the latter part of the month from Seattle to the Orient, where they will spend several months in recreation and sight-seeing, and the delightful affair Thursday afternoon was given as a sort of farewell to Inglewood friends.

Notable among the very enjoyable social events of the past week was that of Thursday evening, when, at the Inglewood Union High School, Principal George M. Green and the faculty of the school and the three under classes entertained the seniors, at which the feature of the evening was a splendid musical and literary programme given by the faculty and students. This was followed by the serving of dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Hannah Hall of Locust street left Inglewood Thursday evening for Merced, this State, where she will visit for several weeks with her sons, William and Warren, of Atwater and Merced.

Dr. D. P. Putnam and daughter, Miss Sutia, and Mrs. Earle Van Gelder were very delightfully entertained on Monday evening at the Athletic Club in Los Angeles by W. H. Sparr.

City Manager Paul E. Kressly and City Treasurer Frank Friend were the guests at Riverside Saturday of the officials of the Riverside Portland Cement Company, where dinner at the Mission Inn was one of the enjoyable features of the day's events.

Mrs. Earle Van Gelder left Inglewood Thursday for a week's stay at Riverside, where she will be the guest of her friend, Mrs. Frank George of that city.

San Bernardino.

AT a pretty function given in honor of Miss Emma Jean Ellis, popular supervisor of music in the local schools, whose engagement to Otto Benedict of Los Angeles was recently announced, Miss Clara Bentien cleverly announced her own approaching wedding to Orlo B. Hull, manual training instructor in the city schools. Miss Bentien is also a member of the city teaching force, and the romance which evinced its successful development is one of school days, although not of the usual sense, for the principals met and became lovers, not while attending school as students, but as teachers.

And the announcement is but half of the story, for the parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Bentien of East Ninth street, have let out the happy secret of not only their daughter Clara, but of Miss Buerte Bentien, who is to wed Frank H. Caps of Los Angeles. The double wedding of the sisters will be celebrated at the parents' home in August. Miss Buerte is connected with the United States Reclamation Service in Los Angeles, while her fiance is with the Los Angeles Milling Company in a responsible capacity.

The marriage of Miss Ilda Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Miller of No. 1002 West Fifth street, to Joseph Parker Marean of this city occurred Tuesday at a very simple home wedding with only immediate relatives and friends in attendance. Rev. Alvah Grant Fessenden was the officiating clergyman, being pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, with which the popular bride was identified. Prof. G. P. Skinner played the wedding music. Following the ceremony, an old-fashioned turkey dinner was enjoyed, and the happy couple departed for their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Fuller of Hudson, Mich., this week announced the engagement of their daughter, Jane Alzina, to Brooks W. Maccracken, both young people being well-known residents of San Bernardino and members of the exclusive young society set of the city. The wedding will be in August at the home of the bride's brother, at No. 184 South Hudson avenue, Pasadena. Miss Fuller for several years past has been a teacher at the I-street school in this city, while her future husband is employed by the Citrus Belt Gas Company. He is very popular in club circles.

Many San Bernardino people will spend the summer abroad. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Love will leave the latter part of June for Genoa, Italy, and later will go to Milan, where Mrs. Love, who is well known as a soloist throughout Southern California, will take up a course of study. They will visit in Genoa the family of her father, P. D. Gazzolo.

Highland.

MRS. G. W. BEATTIE entertained with an elegantly-appointed party given Tuesday in honor of the Afternoon Bridge Club. The members and a goodly number of other guests motored to the sightly home overlooking the valley and enjoyed a delightful afternoon.

The decorations were of roses and pansies and twenty-four of the ladies played auction bridge, while a congenial company of others enjoyed fancy work on the porch. Late in the afternoon a delicious two-course collation was served. Two handsome prizes were given in the bridge games, the first a shirtwaist front of Philippine embroidery and the consolation a filmy scarf of one of the island fabrics. The invited guests included Mrs. C. A. Sherrod, Mrs. C. H. Draper, Mrs. Frank Briggs, Mrs. D. H. Richardson, Mrs. N. T. Henrikson, Mrs. J. Florence M. Orton, Mrs. G. W. Parsons, Mrs. C. L. Frazer, Mrs. Edwin Eugene Corwin, Mrs. Alfred A. True, Mrs. Josephine Russell, Mrs. M. M. Randall, Mrs. Lawrence, J. Mosely, Mrs. Guy L. Frazer, Mrs. Edwin Hayte, Mrs. G. M. Webster, Mrs. C. L. Hayes, Miss Algina Hayes, Mrs. John A. Reily, Mrs. W. E. Nye, Mrs. Franklin Wilcox, Mrs. John L. Yarnell, Mrs. J. H. Evans, Mrs. W. M. Bristol, Mrs. James E. Cram, Mrs. J. H. Bagwill, Mrs. J. P. Penzotte, Mrs. America Jones, Mrs. W. H. Swan and Mrs. W. E. Leonard of San Bernardino.

Mrs. George Thompson gave a charming luncheon on Wednesday at her home on North Palm avenue for the Wednesday Luncheon Club. This was the last gathering before the club disbands for the summer vacation, and the party was a delightful one. Sweet peas in the various lovely shades were used on the long luncheon table, and a tempting menu was served in courses. Mrs. Dorcas C. Randall was a special guest, and club members present were: Mrs. Proctor F. Coy, Mrs. Thomas A. Ewing, Mrs. R. S. Thompson, Mrs. J. M. Spaulding, Mrs. John L. Yarnell, Mrs. J. H. Evans, Mrs. M. M. Randall, Mrs. Gratz Barnes, Mrs. H. H. Linville, Mrs. Fred Atkinson of San Bernardino and Mrs. George Thompson.

Mrs. C. L. Frazer and Mrs. Edwin Eugene Corwin were guests at a luncheon given last week by Mrs. Gilbert R. Owen of San Bernardino, who with her mother, Mrs. R. T. Starr, will leave the latter part of this month for a three months' visit in Switzerland.

Col. and Mrs. G. W. Precott and daughter, Mrs. Florence M. Orton, entertained last week at a delightful evening of cards, the gathering being in the nature of a welcome home to Dr. E. W. Burke, who had just returned from a five months' trip to Europe. In messages to home folks and friends here the doctor spoke often of his love for California, so when he arrived at the scene of festivity the guests sang "I Love You, California." The evening was a happy one and devoted to auction bridge, after which a two-course luncheon was served. The invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. True, Mr. and Mrs. John Yarnell, Capt. and Mrs. Robert Bosworth, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Relly, Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Wilcox, Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Nye, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ethan Allen, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cram, Dr. Carl R. Howson, Dr. E. W. Burke, James Burke and Mrs. Eliza Stearns.

Dr. Jessie Simpson of the medical staff of the Southern California State University and Mrs. Worley have gone to Yosemite Park to enjoy a two weeks' outing.

Dr. E. W. Burke, James Burke and mother, Mrs. Nellie Burke, have gone to Redlands to make their home after many years' residence here, where they will be greatly missed.

Alhambra.

MRS. CATHERINE SHAFER, mother of E. E. Shafer, left during the week for her home in Philadelphia, after an extended visit with her son and his family, at their home on Vine street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Yelland, whose wedding was one of the important social events of Alhambra recently, have returned from their honeymoon trip and after July 1 will be at home to their friends at No. 224 North Almansor street, Alhambra.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wallace of No. 220 North Vega street, Alhambra, are making plans for an extensive visit in Illinois, where a great deal of their time will be spent in the neighborhood of the many lake resorts on Illinois and Wisconsin shores. They expect to leave June 20.

The members of the Sunny Slope Thursday Afternoon Club of Sunny Slope were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. J. R. Alexander, Melville and Muscatel avenues, last week; attractive decorations of roses placed about the rooms lent a festive air to the occasion, which was enjoyed by about twenty guests during the afternoon.

One of the most exquisitely appointed of the June weddings in Alhambra, occurred Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Carlson, No. 112 North Fifth street, when their niece, Miss Jennie Anderson, became the bride of Carl N. Bear of Los Angeles. Bride roses and sweet peas, combined with feathery ferns, converted the rooms into a floral bower, and here in the midst of relatives only, the service was read by Rev. C. D. Lewis of the First Methodist Church. The bride was attended by her cousins, Miss Edith Carlson, and Miss Dorothy Carlson, and was given into the keeping of the groom by her uncle. At the conclusion of the impressive ceremony, a wedding supper was served, after which the young couple departed on a short wedding trip. They have planned to make their future home in Los Angeles.

Miss Clara Sharp of Los Angeles, who has recently returned from Mills College for her summer vacation, has been passing the week-end with Miss Marguerite Lord of No. 34 North First street.

The Alhambra Whist Club spent a delightful evening Wednesday at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Prince. In anticipation of her guests, Mrs. Prince had decorated the rooms lavishly, roses being profusely used throughout the house. At the conclusion of the games an attractive luncheon was served in the dining-room to the club members, of whom all were in attendance. The prizes were won by Mrs. John Hoover and Mrs. S. D. Crow.

The annual spring dance of Die Schwalbe Club was given Friday night at the clubhouse on Rose road. The event was by far the most elaborate function ever given by this popular club, rich oriental trappings and decorations lending beauty and warmth of coloring to the handsome rooms. Music was furnished by a Los Angeles orchestra, and at the conclusion of the dances delectable refreshments were served the members and their friends, of whom there was a large attendance.

Mrs. Henry Bailey and her little daughter of No. 112 South Curtis street have returned home after a pleasant week spent as the guest of her mother, Mrs. William McLeod, of Los Angeles.

Monrovia.

MRS. C. T. Renaker was hostess to the members of Encinitas Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at her beautiful home on Hillcrest boulevard Monday afternoon. It was the regular meeting of the chapter and Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer of Pasadena, State Regent of the society, was guest of honor. Mrs. Thayer gave a most interesting account of the recent continental congress held in Washington, D. C., in April. Ladies from El Monte and Duarte were present and assisted in the informal programme. Mrs. Jack Crandall sang beautifully, and the pleasant affair closed with the serving of dainty and delicious refreshments.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. H. Waterman, Jr., entertained informally at her home on Highway square in honor of Mrs. B. J. Darneille, wife of the recently-appointed rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Mrs. Waterman's guests spent the afternoon at Five Hundred, later enjoying dainty refreshments.

Miss Ella Long was hostess to a number of her friends Thursday evening at a unique poverty party. The invitations, written in lead pencil on cheap paper, were puzzles in themselves, and the actual party proved a most hilarious and fun-provoking occasion.

Mrs. James Chenoweth was the charming hostess to a number of her friends on Saturday afternoon at a particularly pleasant auction bridge party at her home on East Hillcrest boulevard. Mrs. Chenoweth was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Frank Neill Robinson and Miss Estelle Bynum. Yellow and white flowers, massed in baskets, were used in the charming decorations of the living-rooms. Three tables were filled, and guest prizes awarded for each table. The winners of the trophies were

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

GOING! GOING!! GONE!!!
NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

WHAT HERPICIDE DOES

This delightful hair-dressing strikes at the very root of hair trouble by eradicating the contagion that causes dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. The hair is then permitted to resume its normal function except in chronic baldness, which is incurable.

WHAT SUNLIGHT DOES

Sunlight is nature's great disease destroyer and prophylactic. The effect of sunlight upon the scalp proves highly beneficial, if a complete plan of scalp cleanliness is carried out. This cannot well be done without the use of Herpicide, which prevents reinfection and keeps the scalp in a sanitary condition.

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other hair remedies combined.

HOT WEATHER TROUBLES

The perspiration that exudes in increased quantities during the summer months, carries out oderous and refuse matter that would otherwise clog up the pores of the scalp.

Incomplete elimination of this waste, produces a hot and feverish condition of the sweat glands known as Prickly Heat for which Herpicide is highly beneficial. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Send 10 cents in stamps to THE HERPICIDE COMPANY, Dept. 113B, Detroit, Michigan, for sample. Two sizes—50c and $1.00. At all Toilet Goods Counters. When you call for HERPICIDE, do not accept a substitute.

9 to 11

Ratine Bands 5c

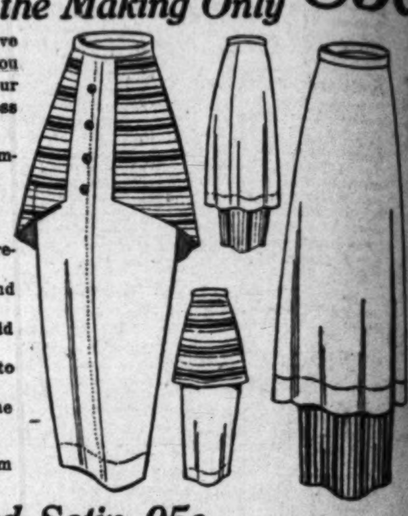
—You might pay 25c a yard for some of these bands and consider them bargains.

—4 to 8 inches wide—the very thing for trimming the popular ratine frocks—

—Mind you, these will be taken from sale at this price promptly at 11 o'clock.

These Man-Tailored Skirts 85c

Made to Your Measure—for the Making Only



—Here are two of the very newest skirts which we have added to the number of different styles from which you may select and have your skirt man-tailored to your measure for 85c for the making, from any wool dress goods in stock at 95c or over.

—The styles pictured are made of plain material in combination with the popular Roman stripes.

We Emphasize These Facts

—That we ask only the exact amount of material required to make these skirts—

—Furthermore these skirts are guaranteed—you'll find that the workmanship is of the very best—

—They are made as painstakingly as though you paid $2.50, the full price, for the making.

—2⅛ to 3⅞ yards of 54-inch material—just according to which style you select.

—For extra sizes the small additional charge for the extra material used only.

—The cost for the making of any size skirt is but 85c.

—Remember, there are several other styles to select from aside from those pictured.

$2.00 Brocaded Satin 95c

—In lengths ranging from one dress pattern to full bolts—copenhagen, cadet and navy—

—This is 36 inches wide and because of its rich finish and fine quality, is very desirable, even at its regular price—$2 a yard.

—While it lasts, it goes at a special June Sale price—95c yard.

Shadow Laces 19c

Worth 25c to 50c

—Mostly fine mesh laces that are marked special at 25c and 35c—though some of them are worth 50c—

—You'll recognize the price as much lower than usual.

75c to $1.25 Swiss Flouncings 35c

—Flouncings that we purchased especially for a big feature at 59c and 69c—marked them at these prices and they sold in large quantities.

—Just about 200 yards of the lot remain and we've decided to let them go Monday at 35c.

—27 to 45-inch Swiss Flouncings—the prettiest of patterns—and the qualities are splendid.

—At 35c! Don't fail to be here early for your share.

Holland Linen Paper 15c Pkg.

—Another shipment of that fine linen paper for which there is such demand. Just think, you get 100 sheets for 15c. If you haven't already used this grade of paper, get some Monday and after using it you'll be sure to want more. Aisles 5 and 6.

ENVELOPES, 5c pkg.—To match the Holland Linen paper. 6 packages 25c.

Box Paper 12½c

—Usually you'd have to pay nearly double this price, but because we wish to clean up an odd lot we are making this reduction. Included in the lot you'll find some that we had marked 15c for a special.

—Linen and plate finishes. An excellent quality paper at 12½c box.

$1 and $1.25 Silk-Mixed Ratines 39c

38-Inch—Plain and Floral

—We consider this one of the best values offered by this department in many months.

—Perhaps you noticed these beautiful materials in the window—and were surprised at the lowness of the price.

—Silk mixed ratine in beautiful plain shades and the newest floral effects.

—A fabric that sells at $1 and $1.25 yard, but we planned to make a sensation with them in the Wash Goods section, Monday, so marked them 39c.

25c Flaxon 15c

A Yard Wide

—There is a big demand for this white Flaxon right now, but we believe in making a feature of seasonable merchandise at lower prices, just when it is most needed. A fine quality of Flaxon with the name stamped on each yard.

—Only because of a special purchase can we offer this 25c 36-inch material at 15c.

81x90 Sheets 55c

Seamless—Hercules

—Note the good large size—2¼ yards wide by 2½ yards long including hem. Note, too, that these Hercules sheets are seamless.

—They're made of a good heavy grade of linen finish sheeting—regularly they're 70c sheets, but for a big special Monday we will put them out at 55c.

—Not more than one dozen to any one customer at this 25c 36-inch material at 15c.

Underwear Crepe 15c

—This white underwear crepe is used to a great extent for summer lingerie.

—It's hard to keep this certain quality in stock.

—We have some 10 to 20-yard lengths that are marked special at 19c yard, that we're going to feature Monday at 15c.

—This is 30 inches wide.

9-4 Sheeting 19c

Bleached

—This is full bleached sheeting. 2¼ yards wide. 19c is a ridiculous price for it, isn't it?

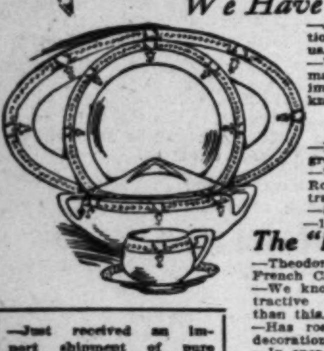
We Have Over 50 Patterns



—And each pattern carefully selected for its particular beauty—many of them are exclusive with us. Designed and decorated for us.

—With such a selection and prices as low as we make them, owing to the fact that we are direct importers, is it any wonder that the Broadway is known as Dinnerware Headquarters.

The "Emerald"

—Rosenthal Superior Bavarian China—a delicate green, enamel border pattern.

—This is one of our most popular patterns in Rosenthal china—very serviceable, neat and attractive.

—50-piece set $18.75.

—100-piece sets $36.00.

The "French Rose"

—Theodore Haviland Limoges French China.

—We know of no more attractive and artistic shape than this.

—Has rose and gold border decorations.

—In open stock or in sets.

—50-piece set $29.50.

—100-piece sets $55.

The "Connaught"

—Meakins English porcelain, pale blue and brown border in scroll pattern with gold lines.

—50-piece set $14.

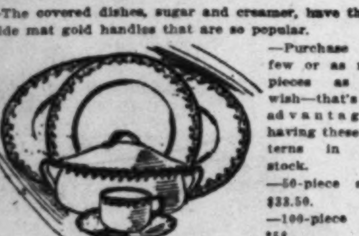
—100-piece set $28.50.

—Just received an import shipment of pure spun aluminum ware.

The "Rinceau"

—This is Haviland & Co. Limoges French China—a dainty clover leaf and gold pattern.

—The covered dishes, sugar and creamer, have the wide mat gold handles that are so popular.



—Purchase as few or as many pieces as you wish—that's the advantage of having these patterns in open stock.

—50-piece sets $33.50.

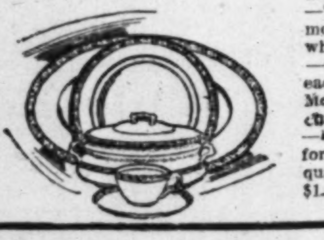
—100-piece sets $58.

The "Westover"

—Edwin M. Knowles' fine American porcelain, white and gold decorations. Inexpensive, yet effective.

—50-piece sets $7.25.

—100-piece sets $14.25.



500 Economy Jars FREE

—No purchase necessary—no "red tape" Just come to the Brightlight Basement Monday and ask for your Economy Jar.

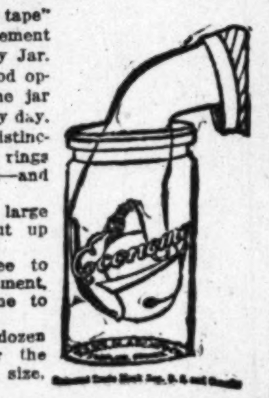
—You'll find it will give you a good opportunity to test the merits of the jar that is becoming more popular every day.

—The Economy jar has many distinctive features—there are no rubber rings to bother with —So easy to seal—and later just as easy to open.

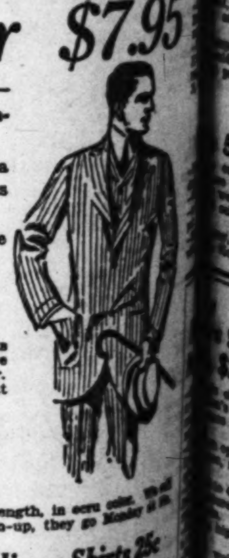
—The Economy is the jar with the large mouth, making it possible to put up whole fruits and vegetables.

—One of these Economy Jars free to each visitor to the Brightlight Basement, Monday—None delivered—and none to children. Choice of pint or quart.

—Economy Jars are sold at 85c dozen for the pint size, $1.00 dozen for the quart size, and the half gallon size, $1.35 dozen.



Men's $10.00 Suits for $7.95



—And when we tell you that these are $10 suits, you may depend upon it absolutely—they are $10 Suits, comparing well with any that you'll find elsewhere at this price. Monday these suits are to be $7.95—that means a saving of over $2.

—Smart gray and brown mixtures, pin checks and stripe effects—serviceable alpaca lining. The styles are new—and, in fact, this shipment of suits has been with us but a few days.

—In sizes 34 to 42—just the kind of suits so many men want for summer wear. Make it a point to be here Monday.

Blanket Beach Robes $2.95 These Are Marked $3.50

—We have just received these new Beach Robes and were surprised at their quality and attractiveness, so we are going to offer them as a special feature for Monday at $2.95.

—The color combinations are blue, red, gray, maroon made with sateen lined yoke and two large pockets. They have the full box pleated back. In all new fresh designs.

Men's Underwear 25c Worth 50c For the Big Man

This is a big special purchase and we have marked them 25c for Monday. The shirts are in either long or short sleeves in sizes 42, 44 and 46. To make this special purchase even more attractive, we have added a lot of ecru colored Balbriggan Athletic drawers, taken from our regular stock in sizes 30 to 42. Monday the entire lot at 25c a garment.

Men's 25c Underwear 19c

—These are in ecru color. The shirts have long sleeves—the pants have double gusset that means double wear. These are excellent even at 25c, but they go at 19c a garment.

Men's $1 Balbriggan Athletic Union Suits 50c

—Athletic cut—no sleeves and knee length, in ecru color. We sell these regular at $1.00, but for a clean-up, they go Monday at 50c. All perfect. Limit 2 to a customer.

Men's Golf and Negligee Shirts 25c We Bought Them to Sell at 39c

—From a local jobber who was overstocked. They are really [illegible] values and would have sold for that had we purchased them in the regular way. The assortment includes both Golf and Negligee, some with soft collars to match.

—Every one is perfect—a good serviceable shirt. Marked 39c. Monday, your choice at 25c.

You Might Pay More for Glasses —But They'll Be No Better

—Just remember that, when you come to the Broadway Optical Department.

—The price you pay does not always indicate the true value of the glasses.

—You might pay more than we ask, but you will not find better glasses than right here.

—If your eyes are troubling you, they should be given immediate attention.

—Don't put off anything so important as having your eyes tested when you feel the need of it. Optical Dept., 2nd floor.

Lowney's Cook Book 35c—The $1.25 Edition

—This is one of the most comprehensive cook books ever compiled.
—It contains 1450 recipes—and among them so many new ones not found elsewhere.
—Plenty of elaborate dishes for special occasions as well as information about table service, selecting meats, table decoration, etc., and has 38 colored illustrations.
—A book that will prove invaluable to every housewife. —We are selling this $1.25 edition for 35c.

Mesdames Frank Neall Robinson, L. B. Vollmer and C. T. Renaker. At the close of the afternoon's game a delicious buffet luncheon was served the guests, who included Mrs. J. Wallace Reeder, Mrs. C. T. Renaker, Mrs. J. Allan Munro, Mrs. Frank Neall Robinson, Mrs. Thomas Bynum, Miss Estelle Bynum, Mrs. M. J. Rowe, Mrs. P. H. Carpenter, Miss Anne Reichert, Mrs. L. B. Vollmer, Mrs. H. J. Evans of this city and Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Jeffe Crawford of Los Angeles.

A jolly week-end party was thoroughly enjoyed by a party of Monrovia young ladies, who were the guests of Friday evening of last week at a dancing party in Los Angeles given by Miss Dorothy Trench, followed by a beach party at Venice on Saturday, at which Miss Nancy Beamer was hostess. On Saturday evening Miss Beamer's guests made up a theater party, which was followed by another dance. The guests, who returned home Sunday, included the Misses Mildred and Rebecca Thomas Dorothy Brown, Pearl and Hazel Brownfield, Gwendolyn Spaulding, Anita Rives and Tressie Eason.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Beaman were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones of Ventura over Sunday and Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jones, who are old friends of the Beamans, are touring Southern California in their auto.

The first entertainment given by the parishioners of St. Luke's Episcopal Church was a decided success from every viewpoint. It was given Monday evening at the parish hall, and half a hundred members of St. Luke's and their friends were in attendance. A charming programme of songs and readings was given first and was warmly received. Dancing and card-playing followed, and the guests thoroughly enjoyed themselves until a late hour when light refreshments were served.

Miss Madge Izenour was hostess at an informal dinner party at her home in Highway square last Friday night in honor of her friend, Miss Mary L. Saunders, superintendent of the Redlands Hospital, who was Miss Izenour's house guest. The other guests included Mrs. D. B. Rector, Miss Susie Newhouse and Miss Mable Menefee.

Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Salisbury entertained Thursday evening with the second of a series of parties to be given this month. Thursday evening's pleasant gathering was a Five Hundred party, and dainty refreshments were served at the close of the playing. Five tables were filled, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barks, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ryder, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Northup, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Schilling, Mrs. W. S. Smith and Miss A. Kate Collins.

A banquet will be the form of entertainment given by the Monrovia Council No. 541 of the Fraternal Aid Association at their next regular meeting, according to plans completed by them at their session this week.

Anaheim.

MRS. FREDERICK RIMPAU entertained the members of the Euchre Club at her charming home on North Los Angeles street Thursday afternoon. Golden-hued blossoms arranged with ferns formed the attractive color motif and score cards tinted in harmonizing shades marked places for the guests at the card tables. At the conclusion of the afternoon a delightful luncheon was served. Mrs. Rimpau was assisted by her sister, Miss Zoila Smythe, of Capistrano, who is spending a fortnight as her house guest.

The members of the Four-Four Club assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McCord on Wednesday evening. The spacious living rooms were radiant with masses of Shasta daisies artistically intermingled with ferns. Progressive whist was a feature of the evening' entertainment, after which prizes were awarded to Mrs. D. V. Beebe and F. A. Yungbluth. A dainty collation concluded a delightful evening.

Miss Gladys Gervais proved herself a charming little hostess on Tuesday evening when she entertained the members of the senior class with a lawn party at her beautiful home on South Los Angeles street. Myriads of twinkling lights glowed from the gayly-colored lanterns swinging among the foliage, and the moon threw a dream-like haze over the merry guests. The class colors of red and green prevailed throughout the decorative scheme and in the menu. A long table was spread beneath the boughs of giant pepper trees. Members of the class include Imogene Griesemere, Ila Abbott, Olive Chambers, Clarissa Bridge, Myrtle Hein, Minna Kelly, Katherine Gildea, Louise Dahm, Cora Davis, Hazel Lacey, Armina Marshall, Edna Mills, Hulda Schneider, Almina Square and Callye Sparks; Messrs. Clarence Beebe, Chas. Brisco, Edmund Bradley, Edward Heying, Lawrence Evans, Fred Larson, George Hedstrum, George Maas, Edwin Miller, Walter Muckenthaler, Adolph Messerschmidt, Gerald Whitaker, Arthur Turck, L. Sutherland, Guy Nelson and John Spencer and the hostess, Miss Gladys Gervais.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bret of Portland, Or., were the honored guests at a Five Hundred party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Quarton on Tuesday evening. A profusion of roses and feathery ferns formed the effective decorative scheme employed in the living-room and dining-room. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wagoner, Mr. and Mrs. Merton W. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. William Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. Weatherill and Mr. and Mrs. Bret.

Amid a profusion of fragrant sweet peas arranged with long-stemmed roses, Mrs. S. J. Paschall entertained complimentary to Miss Bess Edwards, whose engagement to J. W. Grace was recently announced. A delightful musical programme had been arranged in which Miss Louisa Paschall and Messrs. Lloyd Messler and Thomas were pleasurably heard. Cards were the feature of the evening's amusement. Later a delicious collation was served in the spacious dining-room, where covers were laid for forty guests. Miss Edwards and Mr. Grace were recipients of hearty congratulations.

La Habra.

S. R. SWEANEY and wife left last Monday for a visit to their old home in Missouri and to relatives in Illinois. They expect to be gone three months.

Royal Barber of Artesia motored recently to La Habra and spent the day with G. W. Beck and family. Mr. Barber and daughter, Bertha, expect to leave in a few days for an extended visit to friends in Hillsdale, Mich. They are going by the way of San Francisco, Sacramento, through Oregon and Washington, and thence to British Columbia and Canada, and from Toronto to Michigan by way of Lake Erie, stopping on the way at the Niagara Falls. They are taking the trip for Mr. Barber's health, so will go in a leisurely fashion.

John Leutweiler, J. G. Launer and F. X. Thuet and their respective families motored to Sycamore Grove last Sunday to attend the annual picnic of Madison county, Illinois. The gathering was small on account of the rain, so it was decided to try again July 12.

Miss Wanda Davis was the house guest for the week-end of Miss Lulu Convis of Los Angeles, a former teacher in the La Habra school. The occasion of the house party was a shower for Miss Frances Pain and a farewell party for Miss Convis, who sails for Europe next Saturday. Miss Wanda Davis also visited at the home of Abe Berkham of the Palms.

Albert Oscar Launer graduated from the College of Law at U.S.C. last Thursday. His brother Richard graduates from the Fullerton Union High School next week. This makes the fourth Launer boy to finish at this school.

MRS. E. C. GRAHAH entertained a number of friends Tuesday afternoon at a farewell party for Mrs. J. M. Brackett, who will soon leave here to join her husband in Phoenix, Ariz., where he has gone on account of ill health. Games and a pleasant social afternoon were enjoyed, followed by luncheon. A dozen guests were present.

Mrs. T. L. Kelley gave a dinner party in honor of her husband's birthday, and that of her nephew, Rece Casey. Covers were laid for sixteen, and the delightfully served meal was much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Brashears were the guests of honor at an entertainment planned by Mrs. P. A. Honeycutt, their daughter, in honor of their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. An elaborate supper was served, and the guests, most of whom were old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Brashears, passed a most enjoyable evening.

A PRETTY home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Boggs, No. 386 Junipero street, Tuesday afternoon, Miss Josephine E. Boggs and Benjamin Franklin Thomas of Ogden, Utah, being the principals. The couple stood under a bower of Shasta daisies and asparagus fern, Rev. A. Grant Evans of the Second Presbyterian Church officiating. Miss Leigh Farrow presided at the piano. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, immediately following the ceremony, left for a short trip to Southern California points. They will make their home in Ogden, where the groom is in business.

In the presence of a small group of friends, Sunday, Miss Alberta Shartle, physical director of the Y. W.C.A., and Jess M. Lee of Los Angeles, will be married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. J. Walker, No. 408 Cedar avenue. The preparations for the event have been going on for several days. Miss Shartle is a popular young woman, with a host of friends in and outside of the association, while the groom is a prominent business man of Los Angeles.

Girls of the Philathea Society of the First Baptist Church were entertained Tuesday evening by Miss Katherine Weisner of East Seventh street, in honor of Miss Bernice Arnold, whose marriage is to be solemnized Sunday. A mock wedding was the diversion of the evening, Leah Frazier being the groom, Frances Mitchell the frocked minister, and Villa Bordner the flower boy.

A romance of the Atlantic-avenue grammar school culminated Wednesday evening in the marriage of Miss Uarda Henn and Marcil J. Deatrick. They were married at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCurdy, No. 767 Orizaba street, Rev. A. W. Wineken of the German Lutheran Church officiating. Becoming acquainted over the back of a school desk, their friendship ripened into affection when they graduated from the school. The bride was stenographer for a large local building concern for a long period, and is very popular in the younger social set. She is the daughter of William Henn of Gardena.

A surprise wedding was happily solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bowler, No. 421 Coronado street, Miss Muriel Bowman, sister of the hostess, and Herman E. Harr being united by F. M. Rogers, before even the host and hostess were aware that the event was to occur. Mr. and Mrs. Harr were showered with congratulations, and a collation was hastily but daintily prepared. The couple left for an extensive auto trip through the southern part of the State.

Thursday afternoon a charming birthday surprise was given in the beautiful Los Cerritos home of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. McAllister, in honor of the first birthday of Gordon McAllister, and the sixty-second birthday anniversary of Mrs. Rosella Rinker.

Two popular young people of Long Beach were united in marriage Thursday morning at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Charming simplicity marked the details of the wedding of Miss Frances San Souci and Sidney C. Rand, formerly of Boston, Mass. Rev. Arnold G. Bode officiated, the young couple being attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cronk. After a tour the young people will reside in Long Beach.

The twenty-first anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powell was fittingly celebrated at their home, No. 1547 Olive street, Tuesday, by a number of friends who called unexpectedly at the Howell home, and soon had an excellent collation spread. The rooms were decorated with the floral gifts of the self-invited guests.

Men of the Signal Hill Civic League were hosts to the women members Tuesday evening, entertaining at the home of J. W. Whitney. A talk on South American conditions was given by Rev. E. Bauman, who has recently returned from a mission in that part of the world. Clayton Kell led a group of white-aproned men, who served a delicious repast.

most popular belles, a beautiful widow of 30, that since the famous American portrait painter was so near, it might be both pleasant and economical to have him come on to Baltimore and paint her portrait, too. Therefore, in June, 1814, the grandmother of a citizen of Los Angeles was painted by Rembrandt Peel, and the portrait is now in Los Angeles—and has been for twenty years—the property of Thomas H. Phillips, the aforementioned grandson, now hale and hearty and almost 70 years young.

The picture is that of the only daughter of Thomas Worthington, who was the father of eighteen sons. Thomas Worthington came to Maryland with Lord Baltimore, and was given at that time a valley which is yet called the Worthington Valley. He was a member of the Continental Congress. The portrait was bequeathed to Phillips's mother, who passed it on to her son. It is still in excellent preservation, though somewhat cracked. The color scheme is quiet and attractive, the lady being dressed in golden brown satin, with a widow's cap on her head. (Interesting to relate, this charming lace cap looks exactly like the tango cap of today.) She holds a little open Bible in one hand, for though a woman of wealth and fashion, she was, throughout her long life, devoutly religious. The picture is still in its original frame, simply carved and gilded, though of course the gilt is much tarnished.

The portrait is a fine and representative example of Rembrandt Peel, the details carefully and correctly painted, the face limned like a Holbein, the pose quiet and dignified, without stiffness—the natural pose of a colonial dame who was also a beauty and a belle.

Ten American Mural Painters.

An exhibition of ninety-five pictures by ten famous American painters opened with a private view on Friday afternoon of the week just past in the art gallery in Exposition Park. It will remain in the gallery for about a month, and may be seen, free of charge, by the general public, on Sunday, from 2 to 5 o'clock, on other days (excepting Tuesdays) from 10 to 4 o'clock. The gallery closes at noon on Tuesdays.

This important exhibition of easel pictures is given under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, all the exhibitors being mural painters for the Exposition. It has just been sent down from San Francisco, where it was recently held in the Palace Hotel.

Strictly speaking, only nine of the painters are Americans, for Frank Brangwyn was born in Bruges. He exhibits two pictures, and has been engaged to execute eight panels in the Court of Abundance, Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Childe Hassam, who shows twelve, will paint one panel for the Court of Palms. Charles Holloway, who shows three, will also paint one panel for the Court of Palms. Edward Simmons, exhibiting six canvases, will have two panels in Triumphal Arch, Court of the Universe.

Jules Guerin has been appointed chief of color and decoration in the exposition; he exhibits fifteen paintings. William de Leftwich Dodge will design and execute two panels for the Great Tower of Jewels; he shows fifteen paintings. Milton H. Bancroft shows six, and will paint ten panels in the Court of Four Seasons. Frank Vincent DuMond shows fifteen; his showing at the exposition will be two panels in the Triumphal Arch, Court of the Universe. Frederick Melville DuMond exhibits eleven. Robert Reed shows eleven; he will have eight panels in the dome of the Palace of Fine Arts.

Pictures by Kirkham.

R. A. Kirkham, who is exhibiting at the Kanst gallery a number of pictures of Southern California landscape, with a few water colors from Canada, has been in Los Angeles somewhat less than a year. This is his first exhibition here.

The artist is an Englishman, though he was born in Switzerland, where his father had gone to build a cotton mill, and where the elder Kirkham remained as a partner in the mill itself. But you can't become a Swiss simply by electing to be born among the Alps—you literally have to buy your way to that great honor. So young Kirkham remained an Englishman, though he has such a decided German accent that you would never suspect him. He was educated in Switzerland, going over to England for the "finishing touches" when he was 17 years old, and remaining there for three years only. Then he went to London, Can. (on the Thames, Canada,) which has also been the home of William Lees Judson. Kirkham, indeed, knew Judson well in the old days.

A few of Kirkham's well painted water colors come from this same little Thames River, one of them, "On the Thames, Canada," being a limpid bit of color, the banks of the stream lush with verdure, the sky golden with the light of sunset. A little deep-sea study in aquarelle, "A Fair Breeze," gives us a spanking breeze on crisp green waves and bellying sails.

Excellent drawing marks the pictures from Southern California—"The Sentinel," "Clearing Up," "After the Rain," "A Glimpse of the Valley," and so on.

Club Members.

The little book of the California Art Club, "latest revised edition," has just been issued. Its contents are constitution, exhibition rules and list of members, with addresses.

There are now twenty-nine active members in the club; twenty-eight associate exhibiting members, five non-exhibiting associates, five honorary members, twelve non-exhibiting honorary members. William Wendt, A.N.A., is president; Jean Mannheim, first vice-president; Jack W. Smith, second vice-president; Charles P. Austin, secretary and chairman of Exhibition Committee; Barton Manbert, recording secretary; Aaron E. Kilpatrick, treasurer.

Art Notes.

A score of pictures from Southern California and elsewhere are being shown by Ralph Davison Miller at the Steckel gallery, where they will remain for a few weeks. Some attractive coast scenes are noted, a few sunset effects of much richness of color, and well-drawn vistas of hills, mountains and valleys.

The South Pasadena Woman's Improvement Association will hold an art exhibit on Wednesday, June 17, at the association's clubhouse, Rollins and Fremont avenues.

The special drawing class of the Los Angeles schools held an exhibition of the students' work in room 12 of the Olive-street school on June 11 and 12.

Helma Heynsen Jahn is still in Munich, where she is winning high honors in Prof. Knirr's art academy. She will probably return to Los Angeles in the fall.

It has been decided to continue the exhibition of portraits in sanguine by E. Charlton Fortune to the end of the present week. The exhibit is held in the Merick Reynolds gallery.

SOCIETY.

head was the hostess. Mrs. Stearns has been one of the leading members of the club, and the afternoon affair was marred only by the realization of her near departure. Over dainty needlework was interested conversation as the hours waned. At 6 o'clock a choice chicken dinner with accessories of hot biscuit and some famous German dishes was served. The table was centered with pink roses, the place cards being hand-painted with a rose design. Boutonnieres of Cecile Brunner roses were at each cover. Those at the table were Mrs. Stearns and Mrs. Moorhead, the hostess; Mmes. Albert Fuller, J. T. House, B. F. Nimmo, Charles O. Artz, E. J. Cranston, George Pollard, Fred Poole, Ellis Smith, Charles Johnson Lynn.

Beautiful for situation is the home of Mrs. C. F. Smith and Miss Preble Drake on Laguna avenue, just beyond the turn of a diverging road. Tall gum trees and grevilleas arch high on portions of the grounds, while lavish blooms on all the flowering plants give evidence of loving care. Lovely flowers caress the house, while the pergola is a mass of Dorothy Perkins roses that vie for supremacy in beauty with a scarlet geranium hedge around the curve of the entrance of the house, and the wealth of Shasta daisies, hydrangeas, gladioli and marguerites that glow in beauty under big pepper trees and palms that stand near by. Such was the wealth of floral and arboreal beauty that greeted the guests of Mrs. Smith and Miss Drake when they recently entertained the Berean Society of the church with which they are identified. The ladies were received in the library, where a jardiniere of General McArthur roses made a lovely glow of color. After business details in connection with the church work had been taken care of, the afternoon was given over to sociability in which music played a large share. The delightful hours were brought to a hospitable close by the serving of delicate refreshments. Those entertained by Mrs. Smith and Miss Drake were Mmes. W. H. Whitney, Emma Colgan, W. L. Leihy, George Hatfield, John Dryer, Hollis Lindsey, Arthur Turner, L. A. Cock, Sarah Moores, Miss Caroline Bentley and Miss Florence Stone.

Santa Monica.

ONE of the prettiest June brides to be wedded this month was Miss Ruth Heppe, who was united in marriage Wednesday evening with Lieut. James Alexander Logan, U.S.N. The ceremony was performed in St. Augustine's by the sea, by Rev. J. D. H. Browne. There were about 300 friends of the young couple present in the church which had been artistically decorated for the occasion. The wedding was a military one, and the brother officers of the groom helped to make the affair really so. The beautiful young bride was given away by her brother-in-law, George B. Bates, and had for her attendant, her sister, Mrs. E. R. Pape, who acted as matron of honor. Elizabeth and Mary Heppe were the bridesmaids, and little Mary and Katherine Pape acted as flower girls. Lieut. Logan was attended by Ensign Fred Sherman, and the ushers were Lieut. Kenneth Herron, and Ensign Howard Benson, both brother officers of the groom, and all of the U.S.S. Cheyenne. The bridal party later adjourned to the Merritt Jones Hotel, where a delicious supper was served. The young couple left for Washington, D. C., from where they will go to Charlestown to visit the groom's family. Later they will return west to Seattle, where the new husband's ship is stationed.

Mode Wineman, artist, traveler, student of nature, and writer, has returned from a four weeks' trip to the North, and the land of big trees, where he has been making many negatives of nature's beauties. He is well known all over the country as one of the most clever photographers of the beauties of the great outdoors. His excellent work is seen in the Hotel Windermere, Wineman art gallery, where many beautiful sepias are always on exhibition.

Mrs. Arthur E. Jackson of the Palisades is entertaining her sister, Mrs. A. C. Hart, who arrived here Tuesday from San Francisco. Mrs. Hart is accompanied by her two sons, Summer and Frank, who came over from San Pedro, on their motors. Mrs. Jackson plans a trip to Catalina, and other excursions while her sister is here. She will stay about two months.

San Dimas.

LAST Sunday evening the friends and relatives and those interested in the graduating class of Bonita assembled in the Christian Church in San Dimas to hear the baccalaureate sermon preached by Dr. Parker of that church. The church was tastefully decorated with greenery, red carnations and white Shasta daisies, red and white being the senior class colors. In the center back of the pulpit was a '14 made of red carnations on a green background. The High School orchestra and the Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Groom, gave splendid music.

The graduation exercises of the grammar school were held last Tuesday evening at the Christian Church. One of the largest crowds the church has ever had, attended. The address of the evening was given by Mr. Spicer of Los Angeles. Spicer spoke forcibly on the influence of all grown-ups have on the youth. He is copied and imitated consciously and unconsciously by boys in their desire to be manly. The child's future is determined by things hereditary, plus home influence, plus community environment, plus his own determination.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller entertained a party of friends last Thursday evening at their pretty ranch home. Five Hundred and music made the evening pass quickly and enjoyably.

The Good Time Club were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Maechtlen Thursday evening.

The Entre Nous will be entertained next Tuesday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Young at their home on the Foothill boulevard.

Hermosa Beach.

ONE of the most delightful affairs of the week was the week-end party given by the members of the junior and senior classes of the Hollywood High School at the Grannis apartments, of which Mrs. M. A. Dardin is proprietor. The young folk had a most enjoyable time bathing in the surf, fishing and holding weiner roasts on the beach by bon fires. Those in the party were Misses Ethel Rism, Helen Durham, Dorothy Davidson, Clara Bergh, Rita McCray, Alice Gower, Elizabeth Pruett, Norris Johnson, Lois Peebles, Elizabeth Miller, Dorothy Kislinigbery; Messrs. Charles Parmalee, L. S. St. John, Paul Neal, Francis Sanborn, Mark Harron, Harold Fossey, Thomas Perren, William Kellie, Rex Moss, Ed Lewis and Alfred Wilkie.

Mr. and Mrs. William Duane entertained the graduating class of the Grant school Saturday evening at their home on the Villa tract, in honor of their son, William, Jr. There were sixty-five young people in attendance, and the evening was given to playing games, singing and dancing, after which elegant refreshments were served.

Mrs. Richard J. Hannon, wife of the general superintendent of the Standard Oil Company at El Segundo, has come to the beach for the summer season, and is located in her home on the strand.

Mrs. D. T. White of El Paso is spending the season at the Newhart house on Tenth street.

The pupils of the Hermosa school, chaperoned by their teachers, attended a picnic Thursday in the groves east of the town. All kinds of outdoor games were played, and luncheon was enjoyed under the trees. The little folk returned home near dark tired and happy.

Orange.

A RECENT brilliant wedding took place at the home of the bride's uncle, M. O. Ainsworth, No. 436 East Chapman avenue, with Miss Ella Sutton and Walter Kogler, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Kogler, as principals. Mrs. Margaret Jasper sang "O, Promise Me," just before the jubilant strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march proclaimed the coming of the bridal party. The tiny flower girls were Lois Gearhart and Melva Fletcher, cousins of the bride; Miss Nellie Ainsworth was maid of honor, with Misses Mae Ainsworth and Ruby Campbell as bridesmaids. Edwin Kogler was best man. Before a curtain of graceful ferns studded with daisies the bride and groom stood during the impressive ceremony over which presided the groom's father, Rev. Jacob Kogler. The dainty bride was gowned in white chiffon taffeta lace trimmed, and carried lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore pink brocaded Japanese crepe with Cecil Brunner roses, and pink carnations were carried by the bridesmaids, Miss Mae Ainsworth in turquoise crepe and Miss Campbell in lavender charmeuse. A reception followed the ceremony, which was witnessed by over 100 guests. Lovely gifts were displayed. The bride's going-away gown was of lavender French novelty cloth, and as she descended the stairway for departure she threw her bridal bouquet, which was caught by Miss Pearl Columbia and Miss Alma Kogler. The honeymoon is being spent in San Diego, and on their return Mr. and Mrs. Kogler will reside in a charming new home on Grand street. The groom is a prosperous business man of Orange, and both bride and groom have hosts of friends.

With Principal Harold H. Campbell as special guest, Robert Campbell entertained his classmates of Center school on Friday evening at the D. F. Campbell home on South Cambridge street. The evening passed right merrily with lively games, one of which was a peanut contest, which was very appetizingly ended with the introduction of some freshly-roasted peanuts doomed to speedy consumption. Punch was served during the evening, and at a late hour dainty refreshments were served. Young Mr. Campbell's guest list included Misses Gertrude Cole, Jessie Hafer, Lucy Hafer, Gladys Lundblade, Doris Thomas, Martha Mueller, Josephine Smith, Mabel Terry, Lucile Todd, Helen Vaughn, Gynavere Danney, F. C. Arnim, Bronson Barber, George Bell, James Deam, Francis Donovan, Otto Rozell, Veverly Smith, William Todd, Earl Granger and Roy Edwards.

Huntington Beach.

MISS BERTHA PROCTOR, librarian at the public library, is away on her annual vacation. Last week Miss Proctor, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Proctor, of Long Beach, and a "friend," visited Mt. Wilson, arriving at Sierra Madre in the evening and walking up the mountain side the following day, remaining at the summit two nights. This week Miss Proctor is visiting friends in Glendale, and next week will attend the convention of State and county librarians at San Diego and Coronado.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Wettlen of San Francisco were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dow, Sunday night and Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Wettlen formerly resided in Huntington Beach.

Mrs. George Reed of Twelfth street has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Rawls, of Pasadena.

Mrs. C. J. Gardner returned Monday from Los Angeles, where she attended the State convention of the W.C.T.U., which was in session from Friday to Monday, inclusive.

It's Ship These Pianos or Get 'Em Into Los Angeles Homes

It's one thing or the other. Mr. Eilers' instructions were imperative. "Get rid of them. Turn these pianos into cash or negotiable paper at once." I have no alternative. This store, its stock and management, have been placed in my hands. I must get results. It's a question of whether I shall ship these pianos back to Oregon or put them into Los Angeles homes. With the prices I am quoting, the answer should be easy.

Stupendous Price Reductions —Terms to Suit Every One

We now offer the most beautiful, fancy, highest grade, seven and one-third octave pianos of latest Empire design with full length swinging, or duet music desk, revolving lock board, continuous nickel hinges, and three pedals, the third a soft or practice pedal, the very best cabinet grand size, unconditionally warranted by the maker as well as by ourselves for only $216, which is virtually half price. Selected figured mahogany cases, the fanciest ever seen in Los Angeles, cost $34 additional. Some a little plainer, yet very beautiful instruments, are only $208, $1.94 and $162—at least $200 below the lowest retail price of these or same grade of instruments in this or any other city. And there are still floors full of others too numerous to mention.

For $85 we offer choice of a great many used upright pianos, among them Hardman; Kranich & Bach, Steinway, etc., etc. Payments of only $4 a month will buy them.

We offer for only $320 some of the best made metal tube player pianos, brand new, the kind for which ordinarily $700 has to be paid. Free music rolls are included. For the plainer styles we will take $265, also with free music rolls.

Start with a deposit of $5.00, arrange to pay the balance as best suits your convenience.

Our finest $900 and $1000 fanciest player pianos, the best that money and inventive ingenuity has yet produced, all are reduced the same as the less expensive instruments.

Here's a Real Guarantee

Every piano and organ sold will be accompanied by the respective manufacturers' five years' warranty duly countersigned for Los Angeles, thus fully protecting a customer in every way.

This sale, as above, is now in progress at 344 South Broadway, Los Angeles.

Persons living at a distance may safely purchase by correspondence or telephone, as we agree to pay freight both ways on any piano that does not prove satisfactory or as represented. But prompt attention is necessary to secure choice. Requests by telegraph to hold certain styles until letter can arrive will receive careful attention, but no instrument will be held longer than thirty-six hours awaiting such advice. THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN.

BY HAROLD MAC GRATH.

The photodramas corresponding to the installments of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" may now be seen at a number of the leading moving picture theaters. By this unique arrangement with the Selig Polyscope Company it is therefore possible not only to read "The Adventures of Kathlyn" in this paper but also to keep pace with each installment of it at the moving picture theater.

"THOSE ropes were cut," declared Ahmed.

"But who in the world could have cut them?" demanded the colonel.

Ahmed shrugged. "We may have been followed by thieves. They could have gotten here before us, as we were forced to use the elephant trails. Let us keep our eyes about us, sahib. When one speaks of gold, the wind carries the word far. And then . . ." He paused, scowling.

"And then what?"

"I do not want the memsahib to hear," Ahmed whispered. "But who shall say that this is not the work of the gurus, who never forget, who never forgive, sahib?"

"But they would not follow!"

"Nay, but their servant would, on the fear of death. I will watch at night hereafter."

Ahmed searched thoroughly about the ledge from which the east side of the bridge had swung, but the barren rocks told him nothing. Armed with his rifle, he plunged boldly back along the elephant trail, but returned without success. Whoever was following them was an adept, as secret as a Thugee. All this worried Ahmed not a little. He readily understood that the murderous attempt had not been directed against Kathlyn alone, but against all of them. But for her eagerness and subsequent warning, some of them would have been dead at this moment.

"Sahib, it would be better to make camp on the other side of the ford. The memsahib is weak from the shock and might collapse if we proceeded."

"I leave everything to you, Ahmed. But is there not some place farther below where the water does not run so fast?"

"Ramabai will know."

But Ramabai knew only the bridge. They would have to investigate and explore the bank. Half an hour's journey—rather a difficult one—brought them to still and shallow water. Here they crossed and made camp beyond, in a natural clearing. They erected the small tent for Kathlyn, inside of which she changed her clothes, drank her tea, and lay down to sleep.

"What does Ahmed think?" asked Bruce anxiously.

"That we are being followed by some assassins hired by our friends, the priests."

"Colonel, let us make straight for the sea port and let this damnable bushel of trinkets stay where it is," urged Bruce, the lover.

"That is not possible now," replied Ramabai. "We can now reach there only by the sea coast itself, or return to the desert and journey over the old trail. We must go on."

The colonel smoked his pipe moodily. He was pulled between necessity and desire. He had come to Asia for this filigree basket, and he wanted it, with a passion which was almost miserly. At one moment he silently vowed to cast the whole thing into the sea, and at the next his fingers would twitch and he would sigh.

Sometimes it seemed to him that there was some invisible force working in him, drawing and drawing him against the dictates of his heart. He had experienced this feeling back in California, and had fought against it for weeks, without avail. And frequently now, when alone and undisturbed, he could see the old guru, shaking with the venom of his wrath, the blood dripping from his lacerated fingers, which he shook in the colonel's face, flecking it with blood. A curse. It was so. He must obey that invisible will; he must go on and on.

His pipe slipped from his fingers and his head fell upon his knees; and thus Kathlyn found him.

"Let him sleep, Memsahib," warned Ahmed from across the fire. "He has been fighting the old guru."

"What?" Kathlyn whispered back. "Where?"

Ahmed smiled grimly and pointed toward his forehead.

"Is there really such evil, Ahmed?"

"Evil begets evil, heaven born, just as good begets good. The Colonel Sahib did wrong. And who shall deny some of these gurus a supernatural power? I have seen; I know."

"But once you said that we should eventually escape, all of us."

"And I still say it, Memsahib. What is written is written," phlegmatically.

Wearily she turned toward her tent, but paused to touch the head of her sleeping father as she passed. Her occidental mind would not and could not accept as possibilities these mysterious attributes of the oriental mind. That a will could reach out and prearrange a man's misfortunes was to her mind incredible, for there were no precedents. She never had witnessed a genuine case of hypnotism; those examples she had seen were miserable buffooneries, travesties, hoodwinking not even the newsboys in the upper gallery. True, she had read of such things, but from the same angle with which she had read the Arabian Nights—fairy stories.

Yet here was her father, thoroughly convinced of the efficacy of the guru's curse; and here was Ahmed, complacently watching the effects, and not doubting in the least that his guru would in the end prove the stronger of the two.

One of the elephants clanked his chains restlessly. He may have heard the prowling of a cat. Far beyond the fire, beyond the sentinel, she thought she saw a naked form flash out and back of a tree. She stared intently at the tree for a time; but as she saw nothing more, she was convinced that her eyes had deceived her. Besides, her body seemed dead and her mind too heavy for thought.

Umballah, having satisfied himself that the camp would not break till morning, slunk away into the shadows. He had failed again; but his hate had made him strong. He was naked except for a loin clout. His beard and hair were matted, the latter hanging over his eyes. His body was smeared with ashes. Not even Ahmed would have recognized him a yard off. He had something less than nine hours to reach the cape before they did; and it was necessary that he should have accomplices. The fishermen he knew to be of predatory habits, and the promise of gold would enmesh them.

The half island which constituted the cape had the shape of a miniature volcano. There was verdure at the base of its slope and trees lifted their heads here and there hardily. It was a mile long and half a mile wide; and in the early morning it stood out like a huge sapphire against the rosy sea. Between the land and the promontory there lay a stretch of glistening sand; there was half a mile of it. Over this a flock of gulls were busy, as scavengers always are. At high tide, yonder was an island in truth.

Sometimes a British gunboat would drop down here suddenly; but it always wasted its time. The fishermen knew nothing; nothing in the way of guns and powder ever was found; and yet the British raj knew that somewhere about lay the things for which it so diligently and vigorously sought.

On the beach fishermen were disembarking. A sloop with a lateen sail lay at anchor in the rude harbor. Some of the fishermen were repairing nets, and some were tinkering about their fishing boats. Beyond the beach nestled a few huts. Toward these other fishermen were making progress.

The chief of the village—the headman—disembarked from this sloop. He was met by his wife and child, and the little one clambered about his legs in ecstasy. Among the huts stood one more imposing than the others, and toward this the chief and his family wended their way. In front of the hut stood an empty bullock cart. Attached to one of the wheels was a frisking kid. The little child paused to play with her pet.

Absorbed in her pastime, she did not observe the approach of a gaunt being with matted hair and beard and ash-besmeared body. Children are gifted with an instinct which leaves us as we grow older; the sensing of evil without seeing or understanding it. The child suddenly gazed up to meet a pair of eyes black and fierce as a kite's. She rose screaming and fled to the house.

The holy man shrugged and waited.

When the parents rushed out to learn what had frightened their little one they were solemnly confronted by Umballah.

"I am hungry."

The chief salaamed and ordered his wife to bring the holy man rice and milk.

"Thou art an honest man," said Umballah.

"It is said," replied the chief gravely.

"Thou art poor."

"That is with the gods I serve."

"But thou are not without ambition."

"Who is?" The chief's wonder grew. What meant these peculiar sentences?

"Wouldst put thy hand into gold as far as the wrist and take what thou couldst hold?"

"Yes, holy one; for I am human. Whither leads these questions? What is it you would of me?"

"There are some who need to be far away to see things. Well, good man, there is a treasure under your feet," falling into the vernacular.

The chief could not resist looking down at the ground, startled.

"Nay," smiled Umballah, "not there. Think; did not something unusual happen here five years ago?"

The chief smoothed the tip of his nose. "My father died and I became headman of the village."

"Would you call that unusual " ironically.

"No. Ha!" suddenly. "Five years ago; yes, yes, I remember now. Soldiers, who made us lock ourselves in our huts, not to stir forth on the pain of death till ordered. My father alone was permitted outside. He was compelled to row out to the island. There he was blindfolded. Only two men accompanied him. They carried something that was very heavy. My father never knew what the strange, shining basket held. Then the soldiers went away and we came out. No one was allowed on the island till my father died."

"Did he tell you what it was he helped to bury yonder?"

"No, holy one. He was an honorable man. Whatever the secret was, it passed with him. We were not curious."

"It was the private treasure of the King of Allaha, and the man was the king himself."

The fisherman salaamed.

"And I am sent, because I am holy, to recover this treasure, which was willed to the temple of Juggernaut."

"But, holy one, I know not where it is hidden!"

"I do. What I want is the use of your sloop and men I can trust. To you, as much gold as your hands can hold."

"I will furnish you with men as honest as myself."

"That will be sufficient; and you shall have your gold."

The word of a holy man is never subjected to scrutiny in India.

Umballah was in good humor. Here he was, several hours ahead of his enemies. He would have the filigree basket dug up and transferred to the sloop before the Colonel Sahib could reach the village. And Umballah would have succeeded, but for the fact that the wind fell unaccountably and they lost more than an hour in handling the sloop with oars.

When the sloop left the primitive landing the chief returned to his hut and told his wife what had taken place, like the good husband he was. They would be rich.

Suddenly the child set up a wailing. Through the window she had seen a bold leopard trot over to the bullock cart and carry away the kid. The chief at once summoned his remaining men, and they proceeded to set a trap for the prowler. The cat had already killed one bullock and injured another. They knew that the beast would not return for some hours, having gorged itself upon the kid. But it was well to be prepared.

Toward noon the other treasure seekers drew up within a quarter of a mile behind the village. The men folk thought it advisable to reconnoiter before entering the village. One never could tell. Winnie declared her intention of snoozing while they waited, and curled up in her rugs. Kathlyn, however, could not resist the longing to look upon the sea again. She could see the lovely blue water through the spaces between the trees. Soon she would be flying over that water, flying for home, home.

She went farther from the camp than she really intended, and came unexpectedly upon the leopard, which stood guarding its cubs while they growled and tore at the dead kid. Kathlyn realized that she was unarmed, and that the leopard was between her and the camp. She could see the roofs of the village below her; so towards the huts she ran. The leopard stood still for a while, eyeing her doubtfully, then made up its mind to give chase. She had tasted blood, but had not eaten.

Meantime the little child had forgotten her loss in her interest in the bullock cart with its grotesque lure; and she climbed into the cart just as Kathlyn appeared, followed by the excited leopard. She saw the child and snatched her instinctively from the cart. The leopard leaped into the cart at the rear, while Kathlyn ran toward the chief's hut, into which she staggered without the formality of announcing her advent.

The father of the child had no need to question, though he marveled at the white skin and dress of his visitor, who had doubtless saved his child from death. He flung the door shut and dropped the bar. Next he sought his gun and fired through a crack in the door. He missed; but the noise and smoke frightened the leopard away.

And later, Bruce, wild with anxiety over the disappearance of Kathlyn, came across the chief battling for his life. He had gone forth to hunt the leopard, and the leopard had hunted him. Bruce dared not fire, for fear of killing the man; so without hesitance or fear he caught the leopard by the back of the neck and by a hind leg and swung her into the sea.

The chief was severely mauled, but he was able to get to his feet and walk. The white woman had saved his child and the white man had saved him. He would remember.

Thus the leopard quite innocently served a purpose, for all her deadly intentions; the chief was filled with gratitude.

When the colonel and the others came into view the former seized Kathlyn by the shoulders and shook her hysterically.

"In God's name, Kit, don't you know any better than to wander off alone? Do you want to drive me mad?"

"Why, father, I wasn't afraid!"

"Afraid? Who said anything about your being afraid? Didn't you know that we were being followed? It is Umballah! Ah! that gives you a start!"

"Colonel" said Bruce gently.

"I know, Bruce, I sound harsh. But you were tearing your hair, too."

"Forgive me," cried Kathlyn, penitent, for she knew she had done wrong. "I did not think. But Umballah?"

"Yes, Umballah. One of the keepers found a knife by that bridge, and Ramabai identifies it as belonging to Umballah. Whether he is alone or with many, I do not know; but this I do know; we must under no circumstances become separated again. Now, I'm going to quiz the chief."

But the chief said that no person described had passed or been seen. No one but a holy man had come that morning, and he had gone to the island in the sloop.

"For what?"

The chief smiled, but shook his head.

"Was it not a basket of gold and precious stones?" demanded the colonel.

The chief's eyes widened. There were others who knew, then? Bruce noticed his surprise.

"Colonel, show the good chief the royal seal on your document."

The colonel did so, and the chief salaamed when he saw the royal signature. He was mightily bewildered, and gradually he was made to understand that he had been vilely tricked.

"To the boats!" he shouted, as if suddenly awakening. "We may be too late, lords! He said he was a holy man, and I believed."

They all ran hastily down to the beach to seize what boats they could. Here they met a heart-rendering obstacle in the refusal of the owners. The chief, however, signified that it was his will; and, moreover, he commanded that the fishermen should handle the oars. They would be paid. That was different. Why do not the white people say so at once? They would go anywhere for money. Not the most auspicious sign, thought Ramabai. They got into the boats and pushed off.

On the way to the island the colonel consulted the map, or diagram, he held in his hand. It was not possible that Umballah knew the exact spot.

A filigree basket of silver, filled with gold and gems! The man became as eager and excited as a boy. The instinct to hunt for treasure begins just outside the cradle and ends just inside the grave.

To return to Umballah. Upon landing, he asked at once if any knew where the cave was. One man did know the way, but he refused to show it. There were spirits there, ruled by an evil god.

"Take me there, you, and I will enter without harm. Am I not holy?"

That put rather a new face upon the situation. If the holy man was willing to risk an encounter with the god, far be it that they should prevent him. An ordinary seeker would not have found the entrance in a lifetime. Umballah had not known exactly where the cave was, but he knew all that the cave contained. When they came to it, Umballah sniffed; the tang of sulphur became evident both in his nose and on his tongue. He understood. It was simply a small spring, a mineral, in which sulphur predominated. He came out with some cupped in his hands. He drank and showed them that it was harmless. Besides, he was a holy man, and his presence made ineffectual all evil spirits which might roam within the cave.

Umballah, impatient as he was, had to depend upon patience. By dint of inquiries he learned that wild Mohammedans had cast the spell upon the cave, set a curse upon its threshold. Umballah tottered and destroyed this by reasoning that the curse of a Mohammedan could not affect a Hindu. Finally, he offered each and all of them a fortune—and won.

Torches were lighted and the cave entered. There were many side passages; and within these the astute Umballah saw the true reason for the curse of the Mohammedans: guns and powder, hundreds and hundreds of pounds of black destruction! A lower gallery—the mouth of which lay under a slab of rock—led to the pit wherein rested the filigree basket. . . . For a time Umballah acted like a madman. He sang, chanted, dug his hands into the gold and stones; choked, sobbed. Here was true kingship; the private treasures of a dozen decades, all his for the taking. He forgot his enemies and their nearness as the fortune revealed itself to him.

As his men at length staggered out of the lower gallery with the basket slung upon an improvised litter, he espied his enemies marching up the hill! Back into the cave again. Umballah cursed and bit his nails. He was unarmed, as were his men, and he had not time to search among the smuggled arms to find his need.

"Heaven-born," spoke up the man who had known where the cave was, "there is an exit on the other side. We can go through that without yonder people noticing us."

"A fortune for each of you when you put this on the sloop!"

Back through the cave they rushed, torches flaring. Once a bearer stumbled over a powder can, and the torch-holder all but sprawled over him. Umballah's hair stood on end. Fear impelled the men toward the exit.

"There is powder enough here to blow up all of Hind! Hasten!"

At the mouth of the exit the men with the torches, finding no further need of them, carelessly flung them aside.

"Fools!" roared Umballah; "you have destroyed us!"

He fled. The bearers followed with the burden. Down the side of the promontory they slid. Under a projecting ledge they paused, sweating with terror. Suddenly the whole island rocked. An explosion followed that was heard half a hundred miles away, where the gunboat of the British raj patroled the shores. Rocks, trees, sand filled the air, and small fires broke out here and there. The bulk of the damage, however, was done to the far side of the promontory, not where the frightened Umballah stood. A twisted rifle barrel fell at his feet.

"To the sloop!" he yelled. "It is all over!"

On the far side the other treasure seekers stood huddled together, scarce knowing which way to turn. The miracle of it was that none of them was hurt. Perhaps a quarter of an hour passed before their faculties awoke.

"Look!" cried Kathlyn, pointing seaward.

What she saw was Umballah, setting adrift the boats which had brought them from the mainland.

Came a second explosion, far more furious than the first. In the downward rush Kathlyn stumbled and fell, the debris falling all about her.

OVER THE SEA.

Germany's most brilliant social democrat, Dr. Ludwig Frank, a lawyer, who represents Mannheim in the Reichstag, has accepted the invitation of the German branch of the American Socialist party to deliver a series of public addresses in the United States in August, September and October. Dr. Frank is 40 years old and is considered by many the eventual successor of August Bebel in the leadership of Germany's most important political party.

Two of the greatest modern German steelmakers have been touring this country for a month and are now at Pittsburgh, which is the only competitor that the Fried Krupp stock corporation, better known as the Krupp Gun Works of Essen, Prussia, has in the world. These visitors are Dr. Karl Wendt, technical director of the corporation, and Dr. Bruno Bruhn, business director. They landed in this country on May 9, and have been in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and many others of the principal cities, and will not leave for Europe until the middle of this month.

Paul Deschanel, one of the "immortals," has been re-elected Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies by 411 votes against 24, which were scattered among other candidates. Paul Deschanel has long been regarded as one of the strongest and most brilliant public speakers in France. When as a successor to M. Edouard Herve, he was made an "immortal," his speech in praise of democracy before the academicians attracted wide notice.

Lord Mersey was selected two years ago to preside over the Titanic investigation on account of his thorough knowledge of admiralty, and his conduct of the investigation and his summing up of the evidence made a very favorable impression upon the world. He showed himself to be a learned lawyer, well versed in navigation and singularly open-minded and impartial. His selection to preside over the investigation of the St. Lawrence collision gives every assurance of its thoroughness and the fairness of the conclusions.

The German art world is discussing the newly-discovered genius of a 66-year-old landscape painter, Herr Karl Hagenmeister, whose works have been found to be of such worth that the Prussian Royal Academy has recommended the Kaiser to confer on him the coveted title of "professor." Herr Hagenmeister lives at the place of his birth, Werder-on-the-Havel, a suburb of Berlin, famed for the cherry blossoms. He was the son of a vegetable grower, and he himself has spent most of his life among the cabbage and cauliflower patches. His pictures are of the homely scenes of German country life.

SCIENTISTS, EDUCATORS.

Thomas A. Edison, says that from a study of a bumble bee he realized that a real plane, a heavier than air machine of great weight, can be built as soon as we can obtain something that beats the air at the rate of 200 President Hadley of Yale University 7000 times more than its wings, which beat the air 300 times a second. The air is rigid as steel if the pressure is only sudden enough.

President Hadley of Yale University has returned from England, where he went at the invitation of Oxford University to deliver before that institution three lectures on American political conditions.

Prof. Robert H. Richards, head of the department of mining, engineering and metallurgy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will retire at the end of the present academic term. Prof. Richards, who has taught in the institute for forty-six years, will be made professor emeritus and receive the benefits of the Carnegie Foundation. He is the author of more than 100 books.

Dr. John M. Culter of Chicago University in a recent address said the simultaneous discovery of the wild originals of fundamental food products and of scientific methods of plant breeding is gradually bridging the gap between the increase in population and the inadequate increase in food production.

PACIFIC COAST PERSONALS.

[From yesterday's San Francisco Argonaut.]

Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Anderson have returned from Europe, where they have been spending the past two months.

Mrs. James C. Jordan has returned from a visit in the East and has given up her plans to spend the summer in Europe.

Mrs. George B. Willcutt and her son, Dr. George Hayes Willcutt, have recently been visiting the Italian lakes and are at present traveling in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Bothin are en route home from Europe, having been called home by business affairs. They left here in March with the intention of spending the summer abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Whiting have gone to San Rafael to spend the summer.

Dr. Crittenden Van Wyck and his brother, Mr. Sidney M. Van Wyck, left last week for a motor trip through many of the interesting counties of California and will visit the Yosemite Valley before returning home.

Mrs. Selim Woodworth and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Woodworth, are expected home next week from Europe.

Miss Florence Braverman has gone to Santa Barbara to visit friends with whom she has been motoring through San Luis Obispo county.

The Misses Ruth Winslow, Corennah De Pue, and Helen Garritt spent the week end with Miss Beatrice Nickel at the Nickel ranch at Los Banos.

Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Syphen and Miss Genevieve Bothin left Thursday for Shasta Springs, where they will remain a month.

Mrs. Robert Augustus Bray has returned to her home in Piedmont after a visit at St. Gothard's Inn in Napa county.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. McNear, Jr., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ernestine McNear, to George Nickel. Miss McNear is the sister of Miss Einnim McNear and Master George McNear III. She is the niece of the Messrs. John, Seward and Frederick McNear and Mrs. Philip Bowles, and a cousin of Mrs. Bernard Ford and Mrs. Hiram Johnson, Jr. Mr. Nickel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leroy Nickel and a brother of Miss Beatrice Nickel and J. Leroy Nickel, Jr. The wedding will take place some time during the summer.

Dr. Alexander Warner and Mrs. Warner have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Alysse Warner, and Benjamin Prince Upham, Friday evening, June 19, at 8:30 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Code have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Aileen Code, to John C. Wilson, Jr., the son of John C. Wilson of this city. No date has yet been set for the wedding.

The wedding of Miss Marjorie Gardener and Lieut. William Harrison, U.S.A., took place Wednesday evening at the home in Oakland of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gardener. Miss Madeleine Treat was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were the Misses Anita Crellin and Leila Harrison. Lieut. E. L. Harrison was his brother's best man. Lieut. Harrison is a son of Mrs. George Harrison and the late Col. Harrison, U.S.A., and a brother of Miss Leila Harrison. He is a cousin of Lieut. Ralph Crystal Harrison, U.S.A. After a wedding trip through the southern part of the State the young couple will go to Seattle, where Lieut. Harrison will be stationed for two years.

Michel Weil is en route to Paris to join his uncle, Raphael Weil. He will return to this city in September.

Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy and her daughter, Miss Aileen McCarthy, have returned to their home in Los Angeles after a visit in San Francisco.

Mrs. Selby Hannah has gone East to join her sister, Mrs. Charles Huse, with whom she will spend the summer traveling in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Dearborn Clark have closed their town house and have moved to San Rafael, where they and their children will spend the summer.

Mrs. Henry J. Crocker and her daughter, Miss Marian Crocker, sailed June 12 from London for New York, after several months of travel in Egypt and Europe.

Miss Laura Bates and her brother, George Bates, have returned from a brief visit in Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sproule and the latter's daughter left last week for a visit in the Yosemite Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Gerstle have returned from Europe and are again established in their home on Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Dean have returned to San Rafael to spend the summer months. They have closed their town house on Vallejo street and are occupying the country home of Mrs. Philip van Horne Lansdale.

Lieut.-Col. Charles H. McKinstry, Corps of Engineers, U.S.A., has been ordered to superintend the construction and repair work of any aid to navigation authorized by Congress in the sixteenth and seventeenth lighthouse districts.

Capt. Richard Furnival, U.S.A., will sail July 5 for the islands.

Lieut. Harry Chamberlain, U.S.A., and Mrs. Chamberlain have arrived at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., where they will be stationed for the next three years. Mrs. Chamberlain was formerly Miss Sally Garlington.

Lieut.-Col. William Forsyth, U.S.A., spent a few days in town en route to the Hawaiian Islands.

Brig.-Gen. Charles J. Bailey, U.S.A., has been assigned to Ft. Totten, N. Y., and to the command of the Atlantic Coast Artillery district.

The Testing.

When in the dim beginning of the years,
God mixed in man the rapture and the tears,
And scattered through his brain the Starry stuff,
He said, "Behold! Yet this is not enough,
For I must test his spirit to make sure
That he can dare the vision and endure.

"I will withdraw my face,
Veil me in shadow for a certain space,
And leave behind only a broken clew,
A crevice where the glory simmers through,
Some whisper from the sky,
Some footprint in the road to track me by.

"I will leave man to make the fateful guess,
Will leave him torn between the no and yes,
Leave him in tragic loneliness to choose,
Drawn upward by the choice that makes him free—
Leave him in tragic loneliness to choose,
With all in life to win or all to lose."

FICTION.

LOVELY BENNETT HEROINE.

THE PRICE OF LOVE. By Arnold Bennett. Harper & Bros., New York.

AROUND the Minerva Press title of "The Price of Love," Mr. Bennett has crocheted, with characteristic minute stitches, a story not quite so good as usual. The art which seemed natural in "The Old Wives' Tale," and, if not natural, at least was of interest, appears affected and purposely tedious in this; in fact, one has the impression that the author measured his paragraphs dealing with trivialities to make sure they were of Bennett length. He takes some 350 words to speak of Rachel's pinafore, though it plays no part in the story and does not help us to understand the girl. Other similar instances are too numerous for even the cloak of our charity to cover.

But, perhaps unintentionally, for we know of no author who has less affection for his characters, Mr. Arnold has at last created a heroine one may look upon without feeling the embarrassment that comes in trying to like a person who is disagreeable. Rachel is a "lady companion" to Mrs. Maldon, who lives in the center of Mr. Bennett's universe—that is, at Five Towns. Rachel meets the two nephews of Mrs. Maldon and loves Louis, who is "respectable," largely because he has never been caught, or at least has never been punished for his "fault," which is taking money that doesn't belong to him. Julian, the other cousin, is rather dour and forceful; but it is the debonair Louis who had the winning way with women.

Rachel and Louis are married, and the death of Mrs. Maldon establishes them in comfortable circumstances. Close association with Louis disinters his moral mediocrity; she sees that he is a lump of very common clay, conceited, cowardly, indolent and worse. Ethically, perhaps, we should commend Rachel's loyalty to her verdigris husband; but as a matter of simple justice to herself she would have done well to have gathered up her skirts and fled.

Mr. Bennett seems to have an aversion to writing pleasing novels. This inclination on his part may be due to his undoubted ability to bare the deteriorating forces that work on character, and to describe, piece by piece, the mechanism that generates motives for cads, coxcombs and sneaks. We doubt if he could portray a really fine, humane, masculine character.

REAL HUMOR.

CURING CHRISTOPHER. By Mrs. Horace Tremlett. John Lane Company, New York.

ONCE in a great while it is said of an author that he "understands women." That is supposed to be a compliment; but just why, we do not comprehend, for it requires no great inter-penetration to peruse the cyclopedia of feminism. It is a modern myth—this superstition that women are unintelligible—undoubtedly perpetuated by themselves as a sort of fascinating charlatanism. But here is an author truly remarkable. Mrs. Themlett understands men; she does more than understand them, she puts them through the paces of obliquity and exposes the psychology of action. It is clever.

Christopher is ill-considerate enough, being a married man with two lovely children, to fall in love with Lebah, a variety actress. He invades Lebah's apartments after she has done her best to be rid of his attentions. Christopher's rival, chancing to appear on the scene, assists him to leave in such a manner that Christopher carries a bump on his head and doesn't get home until the wee hours of morning. To avoid complications, Christopher informs his wife that he has suffered from "a lapse of memory," and cannot recall a single thing of what has happened. He is immediately put under the surveillance of an attendant and unconsciously convinces everyone that he is bordering on lunacy.

Some of the complications that develop are more humorous than anything we have seen in contemporary fiction. The efforts of the Christian Scientist practitioner to convince Christopher that he is not crazy is a veritable "scream." As a matter of fact, the absurdities of "C. S. logic" are elevated to the nth degree, and without displaying a protuberant animus, the author has constructed an extravagant but very well-written farce. It is a book that will not disappoint the reader who enjoys laughing.

A BLAZE OF ROMANCE.

THE WANDERER'S NECKLACE. By Rider Haggard. Longman, Green & Co., New York.

ANOTHER fierce romance is added to the glamourous group of Haggard creations. "The Wanderer's Necklace" is a mingling of the viking theme that animates "Eric Brighteyes," and the sensuous splendors of the Byzantine Emperors. It is truly a Sir H. Rider Haggard story—bloody, heroic, palpitating with the passions of fair women, and roaring with the defiance of brave men.

Olaf, the Norseman, is a hero of gargantuan valor; so stupendously courageous that he dares hew the head from the cruel god Odin in the sacrificial temple. Later, Olaf takes service with a company of vikings at Constantinople, and the Empress makes love to him on the terrace of the palace. But Olaf is not a weakling even in love. He turns from the Empress, for he is fastened by affection to a witch-eyed maiden from Egypt. The Empress has her suspicious jealousy confirmed, and her slaves are set upon Olaf to kill him, but Olaf is a marvel in the art of exterminating enemies. Tumultuous scenes follow, and the clash of buckler against buckler and the battlecry of the strong-voiced Norsemen fill the air.

Sir Rider has written an even more than typical incarnadined, spectacular romance.

MORDACIOUS CHRONICLE.

SHALLOW SOIL. By Knut Hamsun. Scribner's Sons, New York.

"SHALLOW SOIL" introduces Mr. Hamsun to English readers. He has climbed the ladder of prominence in Norway, and true to the traditional virility established by the Norwegian Samsons, he writes with mordacious brutality. He is brutal even in his satire, for the debilitated poseurs of art and letters whom he holds to scorn have nothing to redeem them; they are a languorous, sponging group of jackdaws. These men, as Mr. Hamsun would have us see them, form the literary cult of Norway; their vanity is augmented by mutual flattery, while the sturdy merchants, honest, industrious and generous, are despised, bilked and mocked by these crapulous parasites.

So much for the satire. The tragedy is ruthless. Irgens, male bluestocking, is a virulent man with the ladies. He leads the unsophisticated and sweet Aargot, whom Ole Hendricksen, a merchant of quality, had planned to marry, down to the shame of the underworld. His liaison with Mrs. Hanska is impotent of tragedy because the husband's hope of reconciliation restrains him from retributive measures. Ole commits suicide; Mrs. Hanska returns to the welcoming arms of her husband after a temporary ravishment elsewhere; but Aargot has passed on down into the region of torment which is not after death.

"Shallow Soil" seems unbalanced, or rather immoderate in the presentation of many situations. The deviating incidents are often somewhat insignificant and lead too far afield. But there is power in the book, and a certain venomous championship of the right that is brutally virtuous.

POT OF GOLD FOUND.

THE END OF THE RAINBOW. By Marian Keith. George H. Doran Company, New York.

LOCALIZING a story distinctly lends it a simplicity, and swings the reader's mind into easy compass of grasp. Once the flavor is well tasted and found to be convincing, there comes a warmth of nearness and familiarity. This pleasing quality renders "The End of the Rainbow" most palatable reading. The scene is laid in a Canadian small town, on the shores of a beautiful lake. The atmosphere and character of the town folk are not very different from those of other small towns. There is the family of most respectable old maids with the ancient, peculiar mother, and the grand old high-ceilinged home, with not enough money to run it. There is the flock of white-frocked, kid-slippered, giggling, ice-cream lassies strolling after the mail every afternoon. There is "Tea-Willie," who for some years has had a fresh heart-wound from the glances of every new young woman arrival. There is the poor quarter in the town where the blessed old Samaritan spends his large heart, alleviating and reforming. There is "Lawyer Ed," the town lawyer, a hardy, hearty, large-lunged, sweet-natured creature, ever ready to help the distressed, a thorn in the flesh to those who have no sense of humor. The pretty, simple romance is wound about a youth, who at six has made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the end of the rainbow, and a maid who comes to the village-town to teach school, with a heart and pride wound behind her. The Scotch, Irish and English element are all represented in the thriving little town, and Lawyer Ed, with his Celtic blood and his bad Highland brogue, is the central, moving spirit. The story is clean and wholesome.

JOYFUL MISERIES.

BACK TO NATURE. By Newton Newkirk. Cassell & Co., New York.

THE very next best thing to getting back to nature is reading Newton Newkirk's narrative of an excursion to that problematical destination. Nothing quite so refreshing has been produced from the hopper of humor for some time. The story is that of a trip into an untraveled part of the Maine woods—which betrays, in the beginning, a leaning to fiction, for what part of the Maine woods is untrammeled?—and the author has the happy faculty of transposing such tragedies as starvation, desolation, icewater drenching and the like into what appear to be delightfully funny incidents. Newkirk and his companion canoed down rivers and across lakes as primitive men, living on what the general conception is of primitive man's menu and getting many a stomach ache thereby, not to say a touch of indigestion that lasted beyond the vacation period.

Newkirk, whose contributions to the fund of current laughs usually adorn the newspapers in tabloid form, has evolved a little volume full of really funny things, not the least of which are his own drawings. The illustrations are crude enough to be funny.

A DOMESTICATED CIRCUS.

THE DESERT AND MRS. AJAX. By Edward Moffat. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

THE drift of this story furnishes a demonstration that "show" people are not really unique as human beings, but are, on the contrary, quite as normal in the majority of their instincts as any other human specimens. Dick Holly, who has returned from the East, having successfully negotiated the sale of a mine, comes upon a stranded circus when returning to his ranch in the Nevada desert. The manager of the show has absconded with all of the money, leaving his performers penniless in the desert. Holly meets Mrs. Ajax, the "strong" woman, who tells him the story. The big-hearted rancher and miner invites the some half dozen show people, together with the elephant, the performing dogs and the snakes, to his ranch, where they immediately make themselves at home. Mrs. Ajax goes into the kitchen, and the velvet-eyed Clarice installs herself as secretary and accountant. The men and the other women make themselves more or less useful on the ranch. Holly finds himself suddenly relieved of lonesomeness, and filled with the contentment attendant upon wholesome and palatable cookery. Clarice, besides, has done a great deal toward straightening out his business affairs, and increasing his profits. She is determined to put behind her forever the memory and the costume of a trapeze artist. She devotes herself to aiding Holly in ferreting out a mystery that will put him in possession of a valuable mining property. Holly is keen to aid her until he makes some discoveries which seem to connect a crime with the girl's father, of whom she had lost all trace of knowledge.

An eastern capitalist and his family come to the ranch, the capitalist being financially interested in Holly's affairs. The capitalist's wife and her son have no very exalted opinion of circus folk, but Mrs. Ajax takes a hand in enlightening the lady, while Clarice soon shows the son where he belongs. The story is full of humorous situations, and has the real savor of sagebrush.

A MARRIED MAID.

THE MARRIAGE OF CECILIA. By Maude Leeson. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.

IF ONE is looking for something "different" in the way of novels, it may most assuredly be found in "The marriage of Cecilia." The character which the author has depicted in the role of heroine is certainly out of the ordinary—that is, out of the ordinary as a heroine, although there are, no doubt, many young women identical in temperament and tendencies living in the red brick small towns all over the country, who live out their lives to the end in commonplaces and silence, too self-conscious and timid ever to do themselves justice. Bullied by an overbearing brother, bored by Mr. A. E. W. Mason.

He is a well-known author, with some half-dozen books to his credit—some day otherwise—that sell well. His latest book, previously reviewed on this page, is "The Witness for the Defense."

the eternal sameness and smallness of the gossip of the vicarage, awkward, unsociable, the girl finds her release at twenty-five in a most extraordinary way. Through the will of a relative, she is left a snug little legacy. But by some untoward jugglery, the aunt's fortune has been made to disappear by her legal representative, who throws himself before a train when fear of detection comes.

This man's son, feeling keenly the financial injustice which his father has done the girl, proposes to right the wrong in a most extraordinary way. Although the young lady dresses badly, is not particularly good-looking, and repels by her self-consciousness, he proposes to marry her, in order to give her for life the benefit of the income from a sum of money equaling the legacy to which she is entitled, and which she has never received. He is to start on an exploring expedition on the very day of the wedding, and she is thereafter to dispose of her own time as she desires. Neither one is to make any further claim on the other. These conditions are fulfilled.

Cecilia escapes from her thralldom, is sought out and treated with loving kindness by her husband's relatives, which develops the latent possibilities of her nature. She goes to live with a bachelor girl friend, travels a little, learns to dress well, and finds a gentle interest in life. When, after the lapse of three years, the husband returns, the two studiously avoid each other, until the coming of a terrible catastrophe. The book has romantic charm, but a very long and tedious way of leading up to a situation.

THE RUINOUS PASSION.

TODAY. By George Broadhurst and Abraham S. Schomer. Macaulay Company, New York.

IN THIS book another drama is thrust into halting novel form. There is certainly no lack of plot or action. The story is one of modern social and financial revelation—the young husband working beyond the endurance of health, and expanding his business beyond its capacity of safety; the young wife too selfish to accept the burden of motherhood, fond of beautiful clothing, and vain of her social position. She has a friend whose husband is not a great financial success, but who manages to dress extravagantly. This woman has a species of contempt for her husband because his capacity for making money does not equal that of some others.

Then the crash comes. Fred Wagner becomes bankrupt. His pretty, shallow, heartless wife thinks of no one's sorrow but her own. The couple, together with the husband's old German parents, move to a flat. The old mother does all of the work while the young wife mopes. Then comes the friend, Mrs. Garland. She shows Lily Wagner an easy way to procure beautiful clothing. Lily is weak rather than criminal, unless she might be described as criminally selfish. She surely is not a delightful heroine to contemplate. There is nothing to her but her casing of lovely flesh. The story is certainly neither elevating nor refreshing. There is a touch of cleverness in character delineation, but the workmanship is crude and clumsy.

ROMANCE FOR THE YOUTHFUL.

WHEN MAX CAME. By Edna A. Brown. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, Boston.

"WHEN MAX CAME" is one of those delightful, clean and interesting stories that help to set the standard of boys' literature higher. This book has clean, wholesome humor, and it portrays a boy's feelings and resentments as they really are.

The central figure of the story is Maxfield Hamilton, an American boy, who has been raised and educated in Italy. He has never seen his native land or his relatives in this country. Having been sick for some time, his father tries to persuade him to come to the United States and spend the summer with his uncle's family in Maine.

Max's cousins, Hope and George Ralston, the latter called June, are out on the lake when Max arrives at the farm house. Hope and June have planned a play, which they were to write during their vacation, they agree not to mention it to Max, and to wait until next summer to write it.

When the family land at the pier they see Max, who is, contrary to Hope's expectations, a very agreeable-looking youth.

Molly, Hope's little sister, gets lost and a searching party is organized, but one finds her. Max has started out to find his little cousin, and while walking along he sees Molly's kitten. Knowing that Molly isn't far away, he calls and he hears her voice in a brier swamp, where she had crawled after her kitty. Max has an awful time getting her out of the thorny tangle, when he does finally get to firm ground his clothes are torn, his arms are scratched and bleeding, and he is almost worn out.

This act causes the complications that have arisen between the boys and girls to be straightened out, and all is merry, bright and happy.

INNOCENCE NOT IGNORANCE.

THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE. By Cosmo Hamilton. George H. Doran Company, New York.

THERE is the dignity of simplicity, a wholesome vigor, and absence of self-conscious sentimentalism in this novel. The central figure is Harry Pemberton, a splendid specimen of manhood, who, when an Oxford student, saw the most splendid prospect spread before him. A splendid, physical giant, expert in all college games, brilliant in his studies, intensely magnetic of personality, his comrades anticipate a great political or legal career for him. Suddenly he surprises them all by turning to the ministry, because of a mysterious episode. Filling the curacy of a fashionable church, he brings a following of wealthy society women, obsessed with a passionate frenzy for the handsome young preacher. Married or unmarried, they try to weave the charm of beauty, silks and perfumes about him, showering him with costly gifts which, however, he refuses, and he evades as far as possible the personal attentions, with the result of whetting the avidity of feminine ardor. The young man instead devotes himself to slum work, and other philanthropic projects. When the rector dies Pemberton is offered the vacancy by the bishop, on condition that he "pander" and pose a bit for the salvation of the souls of pretty women. Pemberton refuses, is deposed by the enraged bishop, marries a pansy type of tiny woman, and accepts a charge in a small country town. Here he golfs, plays cricket, preaches, and looks after the temporal as well as the spiritual welfare of his flock. In the meantime, he raises a beautiful young daughter.

A most pitiful case of the betrayal of a young girl of East Brenton—a young girl of the uneducated provincial class—arouses Pemberton to something of which he had not thought before. He calls all the mothers of young girls together, and talks to them long and earnestly as to their duty to instruct their daughters concerning the sex mystery, and their own young bodies. Most of the mothers are shocked, few of them understand. His own wife, after promising, cheats her daughter by not keeping her word. A young chap comes to the home of the parson to live, and there the real story commences. The girl full of healthy, normal passions, is utterly uninstructed as to their meaning.

"The Blindness of Virtue" has been dramatized, and has enjoyed a successful run in this country.

IN THE WILDS OF AFRICA.

FROM THE CONGO TO THE NIGER AND THE NILE. (2 Vol.) By H. H. Adolf Friedrich, Duke of Mecklenburg. The John C. Winston Company, Philadelphia.

THE story of the travels of the party of nine Germans, with natives, who formed the scientific expedition that pushed from the Congo up through the wildest parts of Africa to the Nile is perhaps more interesting than the average story of this nature because of the abundance of details given. It seems that nothing of interest was too insignificant to mention.

The party was composed of Adolph Friedrich, Duke of Mecklenburg, Capt. Von Wiese Und Kaiserwaldau, Earnest M. Helms, Dr. H. Schubotz, Lieut. Dr. Arnold Schultze, Dr. Mildbraed, Prof. Haberer and two soldiers. The different chapters are written by different members of the party, and almost 500 pictures and illustrations enhance the volumes.

Tribal customs of the people met with are described at length, and the shocking practice of the Nsakkaras, who permit the Sultan to choose all of the wives he pleased, and who also slay all the wives of the freemen who die, is given much attention.

The book is not all technical, and yet is filled with more than ordinary information. The adventures with men and game, the long hikes and the dangers, the country and its fauna, the manner of reception at the hands of the various tribes is given with a wealth of details. It is truly a most interesting and valuable story.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Compiled and Published by A. N. Marquis & Co., Chicago.

THE 1914-1915 issue of this record of the contemporary famous contains 21,459 biographical sketches, 4426 of which are entirely new. The net gain in the biographical list over the new edition of 1912-1913 is 2665.

This edition makes the eighth of the biennial "Who's Who." The book has grown from a volume of 827 pages to one of 2920, and the names have multiplied from an original of 8602.

The book is one of the most valuable reference works published, and its value is greatly enhanced by the inclusion of addresses of Americans the world over. Beginning with the fifth volume there runs through the series a geographical index of names and occupations of great convenience. Another merit of this reference work is that none of biographical sketches are "paid for"—mention in the "Who's Who" cannot be had, so the publishers affirm, for anything but prominence in some work that warrants recognition.

AN ORIENTAL LADY'S HEART.

MY LADY OF THE CHINESE COURTYARD. By Elizabeth Cooper. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

A QUAINT and delightful piece of literature is this series of letters from a Chinese lady to her husband. They are an intimate revelation of domestic life in a Chinese household, and the relation of its members toward one another. It brings the little yellow woman near, and makes her more comprehensible to her white sister, to whom she is not very different, saving in the extra self-restraint and gentleness that she must assume. Kwei-Li is much pleased with her handsome husband when she first looks upon him, after the ceremony. A young bride under the old regime, feeling the oppression of a rather tyrannical mother-in-law, she longs ardently for the return of her husband from foreign lands, or that she might join him to satisfy her heart and her curiosity. Then the joy of motherhood visits her. With her children growing up around her, she grows conservative amid social and political changes. Her description of surrounding conditions is keen and vivid. She draws with a touch of veiled irony the contrast between the present and the poetry of earlier days. The letters are classics, some of them touched by a rare simplicity and beauty. The book is charmingly illustrated with typical scenes in China.

CONTEMPORARY HISTORY.

THE NEW INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK. Edited by Frank Moore Colby. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

"THE New International Year Book" for 1913 is the seventh in the new series, which began with the 1907 volume. Like its predecessors it is designed as an encyclopedia of the year and includes many classes of information not to be found in other annual volumes of its kind. Its large size and the exclusion of matters not belonging to the year nor derived from the latest available information make this possible. American subjects are here more fully treated than in British annuals, and the international scope of the work involves more attention to foreign affairs than is given in similar American publications.

Among the important features of the year 1913, discussed in this volume, the following may be mentioned: The development in the Balkans, the Mexican difficulty, republican progress in China, the Ulster situation and the progress of the Home Rule bill; in the United States such legislative measures as the tariff bill, income tax law, the currency law, the history of the trades unions, strikes, and attention is also given at length on the literature of the year, as well as to scientific topics.

ASSIMILATING NEW GODS.

DEMOCRACY AND RACE FRICTION. By John M. Mecklin. The Macmillan Company, New York.

THE writer of this volume has entered into an analysis of the questions as to why differences of race seem to establish at once apparently irreconcilable differences of opinion; what it is in the human makeup that is responsible for the friction which, in the light of history, would seem to be the inevitable result of the intimate association of the yellow man with the white, the white with the black; what is the bearing on democracy of the facts which an examination of these questions discloses. The writer disclaims any pretensions toward a final solution of the race problem. He asserts that after years of study and observation—of which this book is the final outcome—he is strengthened in his conviction of its insolubility. Mr. Mecklin has been borne out in his conclusions by the work that has recently been done in social psychology by such writers as Tarde, Baldwin, McDougall, Ross and others who indicate very clearly what the problem involves. He explains the imperfect way in which the negro has assimilated the civilization of the white, and why the color line is universally drawn where whites and blacks are brought together in large numbers. It is a frank, concise and clear summing up of the essentials of a problem which never loomed larger than at the present moment.

REVIEWS IN BRIEF.

A STEPDAUGHTER OF THE PRAIRIE. By Margaret Lynn. Macmillan Company, New York.

Miss Lynn has recorded in this book the intimate personal experiences of a little girl living on our western prairies in pioneer days. The feelings and impressions produced upon a child by any group and succession of physical phenomena are always interesting, because less complicated by intellectual diversion than in later years. Any vital pages from pioneer prairie life should be treasured as a record of a distinctive phase of the evolution of our continent.

THE TARIFF HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES. By F. W. Taussig. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.

The papers constituting this volume cover a period from 1789 to 1887, with further additions bringing the history of the tariff down to 1913. In view of present economic conditions, the book should prove most interesting reading. The act of 1913, which has made the greatest change in our tariff system since the Civil War, is considered at length, and entered into in a way to display a searching knowledge of present commercial and political conditions.

JUNIPERO SERRA. By A. H. Fitch. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

A volume giving us any further light on the history of California, especially the Southwest, should be particularly welcome, since works of this nature are none too frequent or exhaustive. The present biography has been written to supply the need for a popular account of the life and labors of the devout and self-sacrificing Franciscan monk, whose memory must be reverenced and honored throughout our State. The book is artistically illustrated in sepia with reproductions of the old missions, and memorial monuments, as well as a map of old and new California.

MACDONALD OF THE ISLES. By Mrs. A. M. W. Stirling. John Lane Company, New York.

Mrs. Stirling has presented a most artistic and interesting volume in "Macdonald of the Isles." She has displayed a genius for detail in searching out the history of the Macdonalds of Sleat, and has unearthed rare miniatures and paintings, herein reproduced, to bring back the fair women and stalwart men who have been able to claim lineage in this family of a sea-girt island.

LETTERS FROM A LIVING DEAD MAN. By Elsa Barker. Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

Elsa Barker does not claim the authorship of this book, but claims to have served as medium for the writings of a scientist 70 years of age who has passed through the change termed death. This is not a book whose substance may be dismissed lightly under the stigma which pseudo-spiritualism has brought upon itself. Whether the communication be as claimed or not, the substance of the communications is worked out with that reason which is the plus of western philosophy and theology, and for which the mind must turn to the Orient. There is a splendid absence of sentimentalism and emotionalism in the "communications," and the presence of the logic of the so-called esoteric.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL. MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—

AMBITION PAYS.

A TRUE STORY.

If you care to go with me to one of the towns just outside of Los Angeles, I will show you a man in a very small real estate office who is selling NUEVO RANCH for me. I took him straight off of a farm, where he was manager, earning just $125 per month. This was just eight weeks ago, and he had never sold real estate in his life before, but he had enough belief in himself to give up his position and salary and go to work for me on a commission. I gave him a little outlying town as his territory (where he knew no one,) instructed him in his work, and he obeyed instructions to the letter. As I said before, this was just eight weeks ago, during which time he has made 9 trips to the ranch and has made 9 sales, and has earned and banked in the past 8 weeks about $2800 cash commissions, has bought a new auto, and made a good payment on a home of his own. This story is nothing but the truth, which I can prove to any one. I have room for a few more men for Pasadena, Long Beach, Whittier and other outside towns. If you are able to carry yourself for a few weeks and will go out and work just as you are told, you can easily do as well as the above. Come in and see me any time this week.

MR. HAMILTON,
General Sales Manager,
The JAMES R. H. WAGNER Co.,
Realty Board Bldg.,

WANTED—

LISTEN TO TRUTH.

Many a man recognizes in himself the ability to do better than he is doing, but how to get the opportunity to demonstrate that ability is a real problem. Recognizing time and energy as capital, there is no other business that will make the financial returns upon that capital that the real estate business will do. If you are ambitious, have better than average personality, and appearance, and will do just as you are told, I will teach you the real estate business. You can make good money while learning, and will guide you on the raod where other men are making from $5000 to $10,000 a year. I will be glad to talk with you any day from 8:30 to 5:30.

USED CARS

Read the startling facts stated below. Look at the proposition from an unbiased angle and draw your own conclusions as to the veracity of this little article.

Usually an advertisement calling attention to bargains in used automobiles furnishes much amusement to a reader of these columns, but we get many that can only be classed under that heading.

It stands to reason, considering the vast amount of trading we do, on the sale of new cars, that we are able to give you more for your money in a used car than any concern doing simply a brokerage business.

It also stands to reason that in selling you one of our own cars, we have considerable more than a broker's interest in how you are taken care of after you buy and, to verify this, we give a guarantee on all our rebuilt automobiles.

Think over the above and see if you don't come to the conclusion that it is all absolutely true.

Liberal terms are given to responsible people on all models.

High Mark.

DECIDUOUS FRUIT CROP OUTSTRIPS BANNER YEAR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, June 13. — Backed by the largest apricot shipments ever made from California, deciduous fruits are setting a hot pace in the early season and far outstripping 1913, which was considered a banner year. Thus far 785 carloads have been sent East, against 362 last year, according to figures compiled here.

Apricot shipments have already set a mark never before attained in a full season, and this in face of prices ranging as high as $40 a ton by canners. Today 18¾ cars left, bringing the season's total to 294½ cars, and there will be a considerable number of cars leave during the coming week. The previous high mark was 290 cars in 1910, for the whole season.

The last car of cherries will leave some time this week, probably Wednesday, setting the total for the year at about 160 cars, against 230 last year. This is in large part due to the small crop in the Santa Clara Valley. Carload shipments for the year are as follows:

	1913	1914
Cherries	171½	156½
Apricots	101½	294½
Peaches	27¾	121¾
Plums	16¾	212¾
Pears	½	…
Totals	362	785

Considering the amount of fruit received on the eastern market last week, prices held remarkably steady. Cherries, apricots and plums were in good demand and peaches sold at fair prices. Sharp competition from Georgia, shortly, for the yield of that State, now nearly ready for the market, will be close to 5000 carloads.

PERSONALS.

John L. Nevak and J. T. Millven, lumber dealers of Traverse City, Mich., are at the Clark.

Mrs. Helena Care, Miss Elsie Aldrich, tourists from Providence, R. I., are at the Alexandria.

The guests at the Westminster include Attorney H. C. Churchill of Boston and E. N. Davis, capitalist, of Chicago.

The Best Time to Cry.

[St. Nicholas:] There are millions of children in the world who want to do just the right thing and the very best thing, but they do not always know what just the right thing is, and sometimes they cannot tell the very best thing from the very worst thing.

Now, I have often thought that there are children who cry, now and then, at the wrong time, and I have asked many of the older people, but none of them could tell me the best time to cry.

But the other day I met a man older and wiser than any of the rest. He was very old and very wise, and he told me:

It is bad luck to cry on Monday.

To cry on Tuesday makes the eyes red.

Crying on Wednesday is bad for children's heads, and for the heads of older people.

It is said that if a child begins to cry on Thursday he will find it hard to stop.

It is not best for children to cry on Friday—it makes them unhappy.

Never cry on Saturday—it is too busy a day.

Tears shed on the Sabbath are salt and bitter.

Children should on no account cry at night; the nights are for sleep.

They may cry whenever else they please, but not at any of these times, unless it is for something serious.

I wrote down the rules just as the old man gave them to me. Of course, they will be of no use to the older boys and girls.

TRADES FOR GROVE.

Los Angeles Man Exchanges West Adams Street Apartment-House for Full-Bearing Redlands Grove.

A notable real estate deal of the week was the exchange of the Noyes apartments at the northwest corner of West Adams street and Budlong avenue for a forty-four-acre orange grove at Redlands. The valuation of each property in the transaction was $75,000, and it is understood that the trade was made on even terms.

J. H. Ballagh represented J. W. Thayer, owner of the apartment-house, and H. L. Edwards handled the negotiations for Melvin R. Gay, owner of the grove.

The Los Angeles property contains twenty-four apartments and is a three-story brick building. The structure occupies half of a site 90x120 feet in size, the other portion of which is improved with a ten-room dwelling. The new owner will manage the apartments.

The Redlands holding is planted to full-bearing orange trees, part of them nine and part of them eighteen years old. The place is well improved with buildings.

AFTER FINISHING HOME.

After having built an attractive residence to suit his own ideas at No. 1629 Crenshaw boulevard, L. J. Ollier, until recently sales manager for the local Studebaker interests, has had his cherished plans for establishing a permanent home in Los Angeles frustrated by what he would, under different circumstances, have considered a piece of good luck. Ollier has just been named sales manager for the Detroit branch of his firm. The change is a promotion, considered from a strictly business point of view, but the automobile man confesses that his elation is not unmixed with regret. The notice of his advancement came on the very day when the finishing touches were made by gardeners to the large grounds of his Los Angeles place, to the laying out of which he had given constant care and attention for months. The house itself is a twelve-room dwelling of Spanish lines and white cement plaster exterior and was planned and erected under the direct supervision of the owner. It is one of the fine places of Crenshaw boulevard.

"OPEN-DOOR WEEK."

At Torrance early tomorrow morning, six industries will be ready for "Open-Door Week," which will last from June 15 to 21, inclusively. More than 3000 invitations have been sent out by the Torrance Chamber of Commerce to other commercial organizations in Southern California. It is planned to take visitors through the factories in charge of guides and show them the processes raw materials pass through before the finished product is ready for the market. The arrangements for the week are in charge of a committee composed of W. C. Hendrie, president of the Hendrie Rubber Company; F. O. Goold, president of the Torrance Pearl Manufacturing Company, and G. W. Finney, industrial agent for Torrance.

BUNGALOW SALES.

The Edwards & Wildey Company reports the following sales: To Miss Annie C. Ludgate of Monrovia, lot in Harvard Park, improved with six-room bungalow, $3200; Charles E. Rathbone, lot in Kenilworth tract, Glendale, improved with five-room bungalow, $2950; for Mrs. Olive Olsen to Annie L. Wallraff, No. 233 North Kenwood avenue, seven-room bungalow on lot 50x150 feet in size, $3500; for California Bungalow Company to H. E. Fulkerson, nine-room house at No. 718 North Mariposa boulevard, $7750; to Roy G. Stillson, lot in Kenilworth Tract, Glendale, improved with a five-room bungalow, $2750; for Mrs. Jane Williams to Earl L. Cowles, six-room bungalow at No. 1528 West First street, Glendale, lot 50x135 feet, $3600.

AT NINTH AND KENMORE.

Plans have been finished and work will be commenced tomorrow upon a new residence to be erected by Thomas L. Duque on the northwest corner of Ninth street and Kenmore avenue in the McCarthy's Company's West Ninth-street Heights. Duque is to present the place to his daughter, who is shortly to be married. E. L. Lewis, superintendent of the Los Angeles Railway will soon start a house on Kenmore avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets in the same tract. Harry A. Hollzer will build on Fedora street between Eighth and Ninth, and John T. Curtain expects to build soon on Mariposa avenue between Eighth and Ninth.

SLIGHT INCREASE.

Building in the country generally during May showed a satisfactory increase over the same month a year ago, according to Construction News of Chicago. Reports from eighty-eight cities revealed an increase in the aggregate of 3 per cent. Figures for the first thirteen cities follow:

DON'T WORRY.

French Scientist Says the Earth Will Permanently Freeze Within Next Two Million Years.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] Scientists tell us that life on the earth began about 2,000,000 years ago. It has generally been accepted that life will last for 95,000,000 years. Ninety-five million years is a fairly long time. None of us who are alive today need worry about what will take place 95,000,000 years hence. Even the most altruistic can scarcely be inspired by love for an inconceivably remote posterity.

But the French savants are altogether disturbing. Here comes one, M. Verronet, who says that the earth will permanently freeze within the next 2,000,000 years, and that life will vanish. This is bringing the tragedy nearer home. We would gladly accept the older reckoning. Verronet places mankind of today about midway between the beginning and the end. He computes that in the future life will exist as long as it has already existed. He specifies only one forty-eighth as long a life as those who have studied in the past.

There is only one consolation to be derived from the Verronet reckoning. As far as the influence of today is concerned 2,000,000 years is as good as 95,000,000. In either event those who are comfortably laboring today cannot expect to be lovingly remembered when the cataclysm of ice makes earth a barren wilderness.

Value of Competition.

[St. Louis Star:] Competition seems to be about the best rule of all in most matters, despite that school of philosophers who hold that its ultimate result is ruin. Take the case of the express companies. The officers of the various companies were XXXIII^RD YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1914. THE MART: { Transactions in Houses and Lots. Bargains in Blocks and Squares.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The energetic campaign of the re-ently incorporated Business Stability Association to bring about the early improvement of the neglected sites of the established downtown business section and to arouse public interest in a sane and far-seeing programme of city development is beginning to bear fruit. On this page of The Times is pictured a twelve-story, fireproof hotel building projected by a wealthy family for the northeast corner of Third and Broadway and for which preliminary plans and arrangements are now taking shape. The structure in contemplation is a truly metropolitan type of improvement and one of which the entire city will have reason to be proud. It will be a fitting companion building to the eleven-story Washington block at Third and Spring and will lend importance to the skylines of both Third street and Broadway.

The projected new Broadway hostelry is only one of a number of important building enterprises now pending on Broadway, Spring, Hill and Main streets north of Fourth street. Announcement may be made, on the best of authority, that two, and possibly three, limit-height structures, in addition to the hotel for the Rindge corner, will be started on Broadway north of Fourth in the near future. The details of these enterprises are, for excellent business reasons, withheld for the time being, but the projects themselves are none the less sure, according to those in a position to know.

From Seventh street north to First the downtown merchants and property owners are awakening to the imperative necessity of anchoring and protecting frontage values and business interests. With the awakening has come the clear realization that in a city which is growing as rapidly and as consistently in all directions as Los Angeles, business centers and property valuations are apt to be shifting and undependable considerations unless the property owners and business men of the established district are themselves on the alert to keep pace with the city's metropolitan growth. The result is bound to be shown in the filling in of a skyline that at the present time is all too ragged.

From now on, it is safe to say, the owners will be depending on themselves to do all the building and to build and maintain their property values for them. It is high time, too, that those who have been placidly waiting year after year for the city to grow should get in the swim and grow with the city.

Seeing the Causes.

The campaign of the Business Stability Association is bringing home to individuals who never before have realized the true inwardness of the existing downtown situation a new conception of causes and effects. Students of conditions, experts in business and realty development and thoughtful observers zealous for the city's best interests have been telling the downtown owners generally why things have taken the turn they have in the past few years. The time had come when, if ever such a thing as a sane and well-balanced business district was to exist there must be a business-like concentration by one and all upon the problem of controlling the trend of downtown development. That study has brought property owners and business men generally bump up against certain facts, forces and conditions that they now must be dealt with.

The owners of the more northern portion of the business district recognize the fact that by leaving antiquated buildings on valuable sites they started years ago the very movement onward that until a short time ago seemed to threaten the whole of the established business district. They have come to see that Bunker Hill should have been leveled or penetrated with bores or open cuts a decade ago, not merely as a means of opening up their own district alone, but to establish easy communication for all time between the whole of the area that sooner or later would inevitably come into the business zone and the north half of the city of Los Angeles.

There is a lot of difference between a property owner who is simply waiting to see what will happen and a man who has come to a startling knowledge of what is bound to happen unless he varies his waiting with action, especially when the "watchfully waiting" one has had a glimpse of tragedy ahead, such as was afforded not quite two years ago when the Huntington block was opened up and people began to talk about a new business center at Pico street, and a few weeks ago when one of the biggest Broadway businesses decided to make one long leap to Seventh and Grand. The one owner is likely to remain asleep for years until the whole town has slipped away from him, but the other is a man to be reckoned with by all who would start to taking liberties with the status quo of business.

Some Plain Truth.

The question now is not "Shall Bunker Hill be eliminated as an obstacle to progress?" but "How shall we eliminate it?" From Fourth or even Fifth street north the owners of downtown frontage have come to a realization that the stability of their property interests depends even more upon the opening up of Bunker Hill than upon the improvement along modern lines of all the neglected holdings. If the people of North, Northwest and Northeast Los Angeles can't get through the hill on direct and easy routes they are going to get around it and when they go around they are pretty apt to wind up in the stores in the vicinity of Seventh street. Force of habit brings hosts of them on up-town and out of their way, but the time has passed when there were nothing but up-town stores to trade in and even force of habit cannot long counteract the argument of convenience.

The present business district of Los Angeles as a whole can never begin to expand along entirely rational lines until every part of it has been made directly accessible from the growing residence areas. Nor can any part of the residence area, such as that comprising practically the whole of Los Angeles north of the line of Seventh street advance as it ought to advance until the necessity for taking out-of-the-way routes into the central business and shopping district of the city shall have been done away with. The business stability movement might in certain of the essential results for which it is laboring well be termed the "Los Angeles stability" movement, for it is Los Angeles as a whole that needs the stability that can only come with logical city planning and development.

FOR OHIO HOLDINGS.

Los Angeles Woman Exchanges Four Southern California Properties for Cleveland Real Estate.

Robert Marsh & Co. report the consummation of an exchange deal involving a total consideration of more than $100,000, the transaction for both sides being conducted by Horace H. Mullin of the Marsh sales force. In the transfer property belonging to Mrs. Mary E. Hay of Los Angeles was exchanged for realty at Norwalk, O., owned by Horace Andrews of Cleveland and valued at $30,000, the latter also paying over a considerable amount of cash.

Mrs. Hay's property consisted of a residence at No. 669 Parkview avenue, valued at $30,000; a residence at 2703 Kenwood avenue, held at $15,000; a residence at No. 301 South Coronado street, held at $10,000, and a fifty-acre ranch near Rochester, Cal., valued at $15,000.

Andrews is an attorney of Cleveland and a brother of Lewis W. Andrews, an attorney of this city. It is understood that the Ohio man intends closing out all his eastern holdings and coming to Los Angeles to reside.

FAMOUS GROVE BRINGS FORTUNE.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS PAID FOR CITRUS TRACT IN ALHAMBRA.

One of the most highly-developed and improved citrus properties in Southern California changed hands during the past week when George C. Fetterman transferred to M. F. Post of Los Angeles the well-known Fetterman grove of sixty acres in the city of Alhambra. The consideration in the deal is announced at $200,000, a 320-acre alfalfa tract near Holtville, in the Imperial Valley, having been accepted by the seller as part payment.

The grove holding was purchased by Fetterman eight years ago as raw land and was at once planted to oranges. Today it is a notable producer. The property is unique, owing to the fact that it is laid out in paved streets, with curbs, sidewalks and an ornamental electric lighting system throughout, having, in fact, all the conveniences of the city around it. The holding is independent of outside water supply, having wells and a pumping plant of its own.

The property has for its western boundary Garfield avenue, and is directly across that thoroughfare from the old Gail Borden homestead, another Alhambra show place. It is four miles from the city limits of Los Angeles. The building improvements consist of a large two-story house for the owner in the center of the grove, a two-story garage, a separate house for the superintendent, and numerous buildings for implements, livestock and the handling of fruit.

Post is the vice-president of the American Olive Company of this city and is the owner of the Mission Winery and Vineyard property of 1000 acres at Cucamonga. He has bought and sold extensively in acreage property in the vicinity of Los Angeles during the past few years. Fetterman has developed several fine orange groves in the past decade and only a year ago sold a highly-improved citrus tract at Duarte to M. J. Connell for close to $150,000.

The deal of the past week was handled through R. A. Rowan & Co.

BUSINESS LEASES.

H. L. Suydam reports the following leases: For the Balloon Dye Works, store at No. 314 West Seventh street, to Doumakes & Coulures, for confectionery; for the Westminster Barber Shop, south part of store at No. 338 South Main street, to Sam Gold for jewelry; for W. C. Norman, store at No. 609 Crocker street, to Harold Hansen, for manufacturing fruit juices; for George W. Miles, store at No. 227 Sunset boulevard; for David Blankenhorn, store at No. 307 East Fifth street, to B. Sher, for millinery; for Lyceum Theater, part of loft at No. 221 South Spring street, to Piru Club; for C. Ganahl, store at No. 702 North Main street, to G. Spencer for wholesaling machinery; for C. C. Berch, store at No. 132 North Spring street, to James Porter; for F. Clavere, store at No. 416 North San Pedro street, to C. N. Bockoven; for H. Kivel, store at No. 148 Wilmington street, to the Germain Press; for the Germain Seed Company, store at No. 339 South Los Angeles street, to Israel Golob, for wholesale hardware business.

APARTMENTS SOLD.

F. H. Pearce, with the Patterson Company, reports the sale of the furniture and lease of the Ritz apartments, corner of Fourth and Lucas streets to A. B. Ritchey of Sawtelle for a consideration of $8000. The building is owned by U. B. & F. Q. Stanton and contains sixty rooms. The lease has nine years to run. The same firm reports the sale of a five-acre, improved fruit and chicken ranch, with a five-room bungalow at the corner of Illinois and San Pedro avenues, in Moneta, for $10,000. The buyer was Frances Michum.

EXCHANGED FOR RANCH HOLDING.

SOUTH BROADWAY LOT INVOLVED IN TRADE FOR SAN JOAQUIN ACREAGE.

One of the important downtown transactions of the year was closed during the past week when a lot on the east side of Broadway, south of Eleventh street, was transferred by Laura H. Morphy and Alex Morphy to an unnamed local investor. In the deal the Morphys take title to a large tract of land in the San Joaquin Valley.

The transfer, it is announced, was put through in record time, negotiations having been begun on June 6 and concluded in less than a week, during which period properties at both ends of the line were inspected and approved.

The transfer represents the first re-sale of property that has been made in the former Childs' tract since that large holding was sold by Henry E. Huntington to a local syndicate nearly two years ago. Charles P. Halfhill, of Halfhill & Converse, represented the land owners in the exchange. William H. Akin, of the William H. Akin Company, acted for the Morphys throughout.

The Broadway lot is 50x113 feet in size and is reported to have changed hands at a valuation of $100,000.

BUYS GARDEN LAND.

Los Angeles Realty Firm Takes Over Four Hundred and Eighty-Acre Tract Near Inglewood.

The McCarthy Company has taken over 480 acres of garden land near Inglewood for subdivision into acre, half-acre and quarter-acre lots, to be sold as small chicken farms, and for bungalows and smaller homes. The consideration involved in the deal is announced by the company as having been $480,000.

The property consists of 120 acres on Prarie avenue directly adjoining the city limits of Inglewood, and 320 acres one mile south of Prarie avenue. Through the latter acreage will run the projected new Pacific Electric cut-off to El Segundo from the Redondo system. The land is also near to the present Inglewood car line.

BEACHWOOD PARK SALE.

The Albert H. Beach Company reports the sale of fourteen acres of its Beachwood property in the Hollywood foothills, to Henry Hotchner of New York, for $3000 per acre, or a total of $42,000. Hotchner, who was for several years connected with the Guggenheim interests, is said to be planning extensive improvements.

Metropolitan.

BIG HOTEL FOR BROADWAY SITE.

Structure to Occupy Corner at Third Street.

Will Have Total Height of Twelve Stories.

Preliminary Plans Drawn and Details Shaping.

Preliminary plans are being prepared by the architectural firm of Parkinson & Bergstrom for a great hotel twelve stories in height and costing $500,000 or more to be erected by the Rindge estate at the northeast corner of Third street and Broadway. The details of the project, which is said by those directly interested to be sure of early consummation, are now being perfected, a tentative agreement having already been made with a tenant.

The building will be of the most up-to-date steel frame type and will replace a three-story brick structure that in years past was one of the notable improvements of the city. The site has a frontage of eighty-seven feet on Third and of 121 feet on Broadway.

The sketches for the big hostelry show a building of attractive design and arrangement. The ground floor, in addition to the hotel lobby and the customary parlors, reading-rooms and a large dining-room, will contain a number of stores, opening for the most part on Broadway. Both street fronts are to be handsomely faced with pressed brick, tile and terra cotta, the trim being of the last-named material.

There will be approximately 400 guest rooms, all with direct bath connection. A ballroom and roof garden are among the features planned. The interior finish of the eleven upper floors will be in hard woods, while the lobby will be in marble.

OCEAN HEIGHTS CHANGE HANDS.

TWO HUNDRED-LOT SUBDIVISION NEAR DEL MAR TO BE IMPROVED FOR MARKET.

Horace G. Hamilton, of the Horace G. Hamilton Company, reports the sale for James E. Harper of Fresno, to W. W. Wilcox of Del Mar Heights, a tract lying on the automobile boulevard north of San Diego. The land overlooks the ocean and adjoins Del Mar, where is located the Stratford Inn Hotel, a pier, bath-house and other attractions, together with many fine homes. For background the district has the southern mountains of California and the ranges of northern Mexico.

The purchaser expects to put in street work, cement sidewalks, curbing and electroliers. It is his announced intention to make the holding one of the most attractive ocean-front tracts in the Southland. About 220 lots were included in the sale and the consideration is given at $50,000. The Horace G. Hamilton Company will have charge of the property when it is placed upon the market.

ORPHANS' HOME FOR NORTH END.

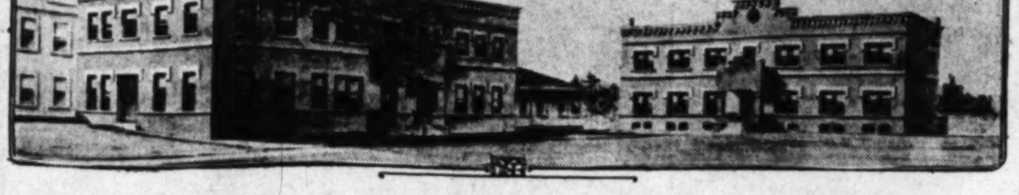
FOUNDATION IN FOR SECOND OF TWO BUILDINGS OF SUNSET BOULEVARD INSTITUTION.

Excavations have just been completed for the second of the two brick buildings being erected for the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart at the corner of Hill street and Sunset boulevard. The first structure is practically completed and will soon be ready for occupancy. I. H. Seehorn is the architect of both edifices.

The building now about to be started will, like its companion structure, cover a ground area of 50x100 feet. It will, however, be a story higher, having three floors. It will contain a dining-room, kitchen, laundry, ironing-room and storerooms on the first floor; a sewing-room, playroom, office, lobby and dormitories on the second, and dormitories, a sanctuary and a chapel on the third.

The two-story building contains four classrooms, two reception-rooms and a kindergarten-room on the ground floor, and dormitory, wardrobe and locker facilities above. Both buildings will have outside walls of brick, with concrete floors and roof, and tile interior partitions. The construction throughout will be fireproof.

The site comprises about an acre of ground and is one of the old-time homesteads of the north end. It is generally known as the "Robinson" place. A sixteen-room frame house built on the property a generation ago will be used by the sisters in charge of the institution as a place of residence. A large number of fine old trees make of the property a natural park.



Orphan asylum for Missionary Sisters of Sacred Heart.

Roman Catholic institution now being erected at Hill street and Sunset boulevard. I. H. Seehorn is the architect of this new north-end improvement.

ETHELWYN MANOR HEIGHTS
"The Balcony of Santa Monica"

The Difference

The difference between Ethelwyn Manor Heights and other high homesites in the beautiful Santa Monica-Wilshire district is that Ethelwyn Manor Heights is NOT in the foothills.

It is a majestic plateau towering 360 feet above the level of the sea, yet is only two miles back from the beaches and free from extreme moisture and fog.

Commanding a variety and scope of landscape perhaps unparalleled in America, Ethelwyn Manor Heights occupies a position in Southern California that is distinctive and unique. Ocean, beaches, mountains, canyons, valley, city—all unfold themselves in gorgeous panorama before this great eminence.

Large Villa Lots as Low as $900
(10% Down, 1% Per Month)

Ethelwyn Manor Heights lies between Wilshire Boulevard and San Vicente Boulevard, Wilshire abutting it on the south. The territory surrounding this superb tract is level, and the present and assured future development of this section as a whole can mean but one thing for Ethelwyn Manor Heights.

Desirable high ground in this section is fast disappearing from the market. It has been predicted that INFERIOR property will be held at prohibitive prices in two to five years. Our prices and restrictions are extremely low. In many neighboring subdivisions not a lot can be secured under $2500, with restrictions from $5000 up.

Our Autos at Your Service—Free

You are invited to go as our guest in one of our private touring cars when convenient. But the choice low-priced sites are going fast and we would advise quick action on your part. Telephone the Manager of the Subdivision Department for appointment.

If you can picture the value of this property when Los Angeles attains its million mark, you can see an unusual opportunity NOW.

Remember, there's nothing like Ethelwyn Manor Heights in Southern California. Take advantage of our invitation. You'll be surprised and pleased.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have honestly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Hermosa Beach and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

BEST LOT BUY IN ONEONTA PARK DISTRICT—$300 UNDER VALUE.

If you desire a beautiful building lot in one of the most attractive districts in Southern California and at bargain prices, better investigate this: 50x144, best of street work done, no pioneering, splendid homes all around, every convenience, only twenty minutes from city with choice of seven car lines, high ground (elevation nearly 700 feet) which means health and comfort, one block from new tourist hotel, and with seven beautiful new homes now building almost in a stone's throw. Lots in very next block are selling for less for from $1100 to $1500. All I ask is an opportunity to prove these lots are worth $1100 each. I took them in for an old debt and want my money. Only two left. $800 each, $50 down, balance easy monthly. Will guarantee you can't beat this in the entire Oneonta Park district. Phone for appointment and I will show you.

FOR SALE—
$1 AN ACRE CASH, and
$1 AN ACRE PER MONTH,
for the best alfalfa, fruit and vegetable land in the San Joaquin Valley; this land adjoins Delano, a thriving town of 800 people, which has the best of stores, churches and schools.
Ideal water conditions.
Here's a chance of a lifetime to get hold of a good piece of land with terms so that you can use what money you have for improvements. You can also get plenty of work on the improved adjoining ranches at good wages until you can get your own ranch on a paying basis. Choice locations are being rapidly picked up. See me at once. H. M. FOR SALE—AT A BARGAIN; 87-ACRE RANCH, clear; 57 acres in 8-year-old walnuts in best possible condition, with a good crop of nuts on trees; 15 acres in alfalfa, excellent stand; deep sediment loam soil. Interest in good pumping plant; 5 acres in large eucalyptus trees, 10 acres in pumpkins. Bungalow, deciduous fruits, flowers; an ideal home in a well-settled district, between Chino and Ontario. Owner set out this walnut orchard 8 years ago, but now getting on in years, offers the property at a very low price to insure quick sale, $650 per acre, one-third cash, balance in annual payments secured by bank mortgage in property. During the past two years walnuts have brought very satisfactory prices to the grower. The industry is on a firm paying basis. Walnuts do not require nearly the irrigation that citrus groves do, and the income is dependable. The income from this walnut orchard will annually increase, and in two or three years will produce a heavy income. This is undoubtedly one of the cheapest ranches now offered in Southern California.

MILFORD VALLEY LAND.
$30 AN ACRE CASH.

Milford irrigated lands are the last of their type in the west. Near high-priced, eager markets, rich mining districts, etc.—15,000 acres under $1,000,000 irrigation system just completed. Will produce a sure stand of alfalfa the first year—$72 worth from three cuttings—$200 an acre from potatoes the first year. Perpetual water right at low cost practically on your own terms. Early buyers gain tremendous investment advantage by buying directly suburban to the live town of Milford, Utah. The lands are going fast. Where rosy-cheeked apples and other deciduous fruits thrive. In a high class community on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad—quick transportation to terminal rail markets.

A better hog country than Iowa—a better dairying country than San Joaquin Valley—yields bigger and better alfalfa crops than Southern California. Bumper crops of wheat, oats, potatoes, sugar beets, asparagus, celery, onions, apples, plums, cherries, small fruits and all kinds of garden truck. Land now selling rapidly to men who are in the position to demand the best that money can buy. Special Saturday excursions at low homeseekers' rates. Write for booklet.

FOR SALE—
NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS
ORANGES, LEMON, AVOCADO AND WALNUT LANDS AND YOUNG PLANTED GROVES
ARE A SAFE INVESTMENT AND AN IDEAL LOCATION FOR A COUNTRY HOME.

The property is located on the slopes of the scenic Whittier foothills, where the conditions of soil, water and climate are an assurance that it is "as good as the best" for developing citrus and walnuts groves that pay.

It is being sold in either planted or unplanted tracts of 5 to 30 acres and on exceptionally easy terms if desired.

We are also offering an exceptionally attractive proposition to citrus nurserymen or those who will plant out orange and lemons trees on some of this property during the present planting season.

With the completion of the Turnbull Canyon Road from Whittier through this property and of other improvements now under way or which are planned for this property, the value for these subdivisions are certain to increase materially.

Call at our office and let us tell you of North Whittier Heights and our attractive terms of sale or, better still, let us take you out by automobile to see the property.

FOR SALE—

I SELL THE EARTH.

R. S. BASSETT.

40-acre foothill ranch.

Reader, this may be just what you are looking for. Yes, longing for, possibly the good, health-giving mountain air will be good for "just what is ailing of you." To say the least, you would do worse, for this ranch has good soil, about 35 acres good tillable land, about ten acres level land, good for alfalfa, near the stream, that is, where there is a stream only part of the year. Water only about 20 feet from the surface. About four miles from a town, junction of S. P. Railroad, About 40 miles from Los Angeles. Fine large oak tree located where you would want to build; also some other trees. What could you raise, you ask! Say, I hardly know what you could not raise, as it is fine, rich soil, most any kind of fruit would do well; then there is good money in bees, and this is a dandy location for that, while your fruit trees are coming on. But from your alfalfa, which, you know, you can get several cuttings of the first year, you can raise stock.

Say, come in and talk it over and we will go up to see the ranch if you wish.

R. S. BASSETT, 202½ S. Broadway, room 208.

FOR SALE— SAN FERNANDO VALLEY.

SAN FERNANDO VALLEY.

And in the very best part of this wonderful valley at that. Absolutely the best valley in Southern California; the best soil, the best water conditions, and immediately adjoining this great city of Los Angeles. The value of Owens River water to land in this valley can hardly be estimated, but it is a reasonable assumption that land having Owens River water will go to almost unbelievable figures if we should have a couple of dry years, as may be expected at any time.

We have for sale several snaps, due to tight money conditions which have prevailed for the past few months. Conditions are already much better, but we can deliver at bargain prices if quick action is taken. Will absolutely guarantee Owens River water. One piece of especially fine citrus land at a bargain. Another snap especially fine for alfalfa; fine soil, level as a floor. Another piece, a fine proposition for deciduous fruits, oranges, or berries. Don't fail to investigate these few properties if you mean business.

EARLIMART.

We have just subdivided 1000 acres of our land at Earlimart, Tulare county, into 10, 20 and 40-acre tracts, and are offering it to the public at prices from $60 to $100 per acre, on terms of $1 an acre cash and $1 an acre per month, or one-fourth cash and balance in 1, 2, 3, and 4 years' time.

The water conditions on this tract are perfect. Soil ideal for alfalfa and fruit. Graded roads and fine alfalfa fields on all sides, and school within half a mile.

On Thursday, June 18, we will have a free excursion to Earlimart to inspect this property, and we invite all those who are interested in getting hold of a small piece of good alfalfa land to come in and see us at once, as no reservations will be made after 3 p.m. Thursday. Absolutely no trades considered, as our lands are priced too low to permit it. EARLIMART IMPROVEMENT CO., 504 Story Bldg.

FOR SALE—

TULARE COUNTY

ALFALFA FARMS.

To good practical farmers I will sell on five years' time, on full purchase price by paying one year's interest in advance, at 6 per cent. This land will be sold in 40-acre tracts or more.

FOR EXCHANGE—
ATTENTION TO OWNERS AND BROKERS.
Will give a good exchange on account I am compelled to change climate.
A large income ranch which produced the largest oats and onions in the county.
800 acres of rich silt deposit, 100 acres in garden truck; 50 acres in alfalfa, 150 acres in hay which can easily be put in garden truck or alfalfa. 3 electric pumping plants furnishing 8500 gallons of water per minute, 2 reservoirs for irrigation and bathing, storing 3,000,000 gallons of water, cheap power, Southern Pacific Railroad on property. Implements, tools, machinery and stock. It is an ideal income country home, 10 minutes by best bitumenized road from the City Hall of Stockton, the county seat of San Joaquin county. Don't miss this chance as it cannot be found often. Large crop goes with property if deal is made quick. Price $100,000 and have other good country property up to $200,000. Will assume if property is good with full particulars, otherwise no attention will be given, answer to J. MEYER, Owner, P. O. Box 553, Stockton.

FOR EXCHANGE—HAVE 225 ACRES GOOD FARM land, in Riverside county which I will exchange for Los Angeles income property. OTTO DITTFACH, box 174, Arlington station, Riverside.

FOR EXCHANGE— Country Property.

FOR EXCHANGE—I OWN 1000 ACRES OF LAND in a very rich valley near Los Angeles; 800 acres in cultivation. The soil is 35 feet deep and just as rich at the bottom as it is at the top. Contains 7 per cent. potash, which is as much potash as any land in the world contains, and is especially fine for the growing of fruits. Near this land people are raising apricots with great success, and are refusing $800 per acre for five-year-old groves for the reason that they are receiving a net income from dried apricots of $240 per acre. Their market for these apricots is the world. They are selling these apricots direct to jobbers in New York, as they are the finest apricots that the United States produces. You can estimate what land is worth that will pay an income of $240 per acre. This land grows alfalfa, oranges and lemons. It is the prettiest piece of land the sun ever shone on; is all valley land, but not low. It is not stuck away in one corner of the earth, but is fronting on the main boulevard for a distance of a mile. This boulevard runs through and is the business street of a very prosperous town four miles away. I have never dug any deep wells on the land, but across the street from me they dug a well 450 feet deep and got 200 inches of water. I have five shallow wells on the property, each ninety feet deep, and they all stand within 18 feet of the top in water. They produce from ten to fifteen inches of water each, so if this land was subdivided in 20-acre tracts, ten inches of water would be ample for each 20 acres for either fruit or alfalfa, as the nature of the soil would only require 1 1-4 inches of water to 20 acres for apricots. The market for alfalfa and products of that sort is local, but the market for dried apricots is the world. The land across the street from me has already been subdivided and sold for $300 per acre. My land is worth $200 per acre now. It will bring $400 or $500 per acre in five years. There is no safer investment on the earth than this good rich land. It is clear of incumbrances. I have arrived at a place in my financial affairs where I want to convert at this time everything I have into income property, such as business property, mortgages, railroad bonds, apartment-house, 99-year lease, earning income, or gilt-edge business property in any northern or eastern city. The point with me is that I am practically ready to quit all large business, and I don't care what you make on this land just as long as you can give me good income property, which will pay me 6 per cent. net income on the investment of $200,000. Address O. S. HOUSTON, owner, 1008 Union Oil Bldg. A4203.

FOR EXCHANGE—$112,500 CLEAR, A CHOICE body of level land, close to Visalia; gravity water, soil a rich, silt and loam. Nothing finer in the valley. Present income $350 per month for pasturage. Want good income property. Must stand close investigation. Owners please call for particulars on this. It is right.

$35,000 clear; 20 acres choice navels and lemons at Glendora. Want income and assume; clear vacant or good San Joaquin acreage.

$12,000 clear, 80 acres near Porterville; 40 acres in alfalfa; electric pumping plant, cement pipe, reservoir, etc. Want L. A. income.

$26,000, practically clear, 520-acre alfalfa, grain and stock ranch, Shasta county; 20 acres choice winter apples, gravity water; good buildings; ½-mile to school. Owner here. Submit Southern California; will assume.

$25,000 clear; 10 acres full-bearing navels and lemons at Covina. Want income city. Will assume. (No apartments.)

$8000 clear, 160 acres, 3 miles from railroad; artesian well, 20 acres leveled, ready for alfalfa, Antelope Valley. Want good residence, clear.

$30,000, 20 acres, very choice navels and Valencias at Lindsay; good buildings, etc.; pumping plant. Want good income to $20,000.

BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—

A FEW MORE DESIRABLE MEN OR WOMEN can join a select group of business and professional people who are arranging to purchase the best piece of subdivision property at the price in or suburban to Los Angeles. Fifty acres facing Washington Blvd., just two blocks from Culver City, where over $500,000 worth of property has been sold in the last six months. Right in the heart of the most rapidly developing district between Los Angeles and Venice. Electric car line goes through center of property. One hundred yards from Venice Short Line. Thirty minutes from Fourth and Hill sts. Commands mountain and ocean view. Gas, electricity and water just across the street. We are buying at bed-rock price. Small amount of money required from each member. We can easily make 60 per cent. profit per annum with absolute security. We will not subdivide, but will resell as acreage. Propositions of this type are seldom presented to people of moderate means. If you are interested address W, box 872, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

I HAVE THE EXCLUSIVE STATE AGENCY FOR a wonderful invention needed by every housewife in the United States. This article is selling like "wild fire" in California. Am handicapped in getting enough to supply the demand of my sub-agents on account of the inventor opening up too much territory, and is not financially able to handle the same. By investing $7000 you can secure one-half interest in this monopoly in nine States, which should net you $50,000 within five years. You assist in the manufacture of this article, which I consider is bound to be the best seller ever invented. If you want to get in on the ground floor write to me for interview at once. Address X, box 399, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

EXCEPTIONAL—
Do you want to make a quick fortune, with little investment? Have you business ability and energy? Have you a little cash and some real estate that you are willing to stake against a future fortune that will mean independence as long as you live? We manufacture toilets for country without use of sewer or water system; covered by two strong patents, in U. S. and Canada. No running water needed, no emptying, no odor, no germ life. They are clean, neat, practical and pretty in appearance and a God-send to the country home. Seventy-five per cent. of the people are waiting for such a thing to be introduced in U. S. right now, and we want you to investigate it at once. SUPERINTENDENT, 1840 S. Figueroa st. Phone 21163.

ONLY $400 CASH REQUIRED TO PUT NEWSPAPER and job man in possession of nice little country weekly within 50 miles of Los Angeles. Splendid agricultural section; exclusive field; no competition within 20 miles. We have also several other good weekly propositions.

hen so much is being said about "dull business conditions" and the "general uneasiness of capital," it is significant to note that the little industrial city of Vernon is in the midst of its healthiest period of growth and development. In the newer, southern portion town, lining Santa Fe avenue on both sides, several new factories have been put into operation or started within the past year. Of the three important plants now being erected in this part of Vernon, one, the Griffin Car Wheel Company's factory, will be a establishment, ranking with the greatest concerns of its type in the United States.

plant, which is now completed, will be of ab-construction, and,
both structurally and in point of equipment and arrangement, will mark the last word in factory development.

The company, of which T. A. Griffith is president, is the largest manufacturer of car wheels in the United States, putting forth about 60 per cent. of this product. It has branches in many of the leading cities. The Vernon plant of the concern will be turning out finished car wheels by August 1 of this year, and will employ about 500 men from the start.

The first unit of another new Vernon plant, the Pacific Ornamental Iron Works, is rapidly being completed, and work has been started on a second building. The factory, employing an average of 100 men regularly, will be moved from the present location near Washington and Main streets in sixty days, according to the calculation of the president of the concern, A. J. Bayer. The investment being made at Vernon is approximately $150,000.

RECENTLY COMPLETED.

Of the plants recently put into operation in Vernon, that of the Southern Board and Paper Company is one of the most noteworthy. This company, under the direction of its president, Peter Brown, has built a $300,000 factory, employing 100 men and running twenty-four hours a day. The concern is producing forty tons of finished paper and pasteboard daily, utilizing all the available scrap paper accumulated in the vicinity of Los Angeles. It uses up what once was regarded only as so much sheer waste, and in addition is consuming wood pulp from Sweden, British Columbia and the Northwestern States of this country.

Another of the important new Vernon enterprises is that of the Pacific Coast Planing Mill Company, which has recently completed a $350,000 plant covering twelve acres of space. The concern does a general planing mill business and has large, permanent contracts with the Pacific Tank and Pipe Company, which recently finished a large warehouse at Vernon. The mill prepares the lumber, which is afterward shaped into redwood pipes, tanks and cyanide plants. These products, from their raw state to the point of shipping, are handled entirely between the two concerns.

The Union Iron Works, recently housed in the first unit of its new Vernon plant, has completed its third move. Starting out at First and Alameda streets, the concern had to go to larger quarters at Palmetto and Mateo streets. Outgrowing these, it bought a thirteen-acre site at Vernon. The company has expended about $250,000 in its new plant, and is preparing to make extensive additions in the next few years. It employs about 200 workmen.

The Perfex Auto Company, until recently located at Jefferson and Main streets, has just finished installing its equipment in a factory building adjacent to the site of the Union Iron Works and is now turning out automobile trucks daily. The company employs forty mechanics.

In the same vicinity the new Wade Uncaustic Tile Pottery Company is putting forth clay products that have already won favor in a wide territory. The concern is using Southern California clay exclusively.

To the list of Vernon industries there has been added in the past few months the large wool-pulling plant and wholesale hide house of the L. Kauffman Company. The concern is a growing one and at the present time employs forty men.

Others among the newer Vernon industries are the Vernon Basket Factory, employing twenty-five men; the Pacific Coast Concrete Factory, engaged in the manufacture of concrete blocks and employing fifteen men; the Monarch Foundry, employing twenty men, and the M. & M. Broom Factory, giving employment to fifteen men.

FUTURE FACTORIES.

Plans for three large and important industrial plants to be started at Vernon before the close of the present year are now taking definite shape, and still other projects are pending. The American Brakeshoe and Foundry Company, manufacturing railroad car trucks, brakeshoes and bearings, has purchased a site adjacent to that of the Griffin Car Wheel Company and expects to start a $250,000 factory within the next few months. The concern will employ between 400 and 500 men.

The Axelson Machine Company, now located on San Fernando street near River Station and employing about 150 men, will remove to its new five-acre site at Vernon between now and 1915.

The Pinney & Boyle Company, producing sheet metal and tin cans, is now having plans prepared for an extensive factory to be built well south of its present site at Santa Fe avenue and Palmetto street, Los Angeles, on Santa Fe avenue in Vernon. The firm employs 150 men at the present time.

In the new location the capacity of the plant will be greatly enlarged and many men used. The heads of the company are now in the East studying similar establishments with the view to getting the latest ideas in factory construction and equipment.

WELL LOCATED.

The city of Vernon is well located for manufacturing purposes, being but a little over two miles from the heart of Los Angeles. From the corner of Sixth and Main streets in this city to the newer part of the factory suburb there is a distance of only three miles. Santa Fe avenue, connecting with the main traffic thoroughfares of Los Angeles, affords easy access to the markets for delivery trucks and the railway facilities are of the best.

The Vernon district is supplied with natural gas from the Midway field. The Pacific Light and Power Company is now installing a large transformer station to supply electric current from its Big Creek project in Fresno county direct to the factories. Fuel oil is piped to the entire district direct from the Kern and Orange county oil wells. The General Petroleum Company, owning and operating the pipe line from the Midway oil fields near Bakersfield to Los Angeles, has $500,000 pumping plant, refinery and topping plant at Jefferson street and Santa Fe avenue and has made arrangements to pipe fuel oil to all of the larger manufacturing plants in the Vernon district.

The proximity of Vernon to Huntington Park gives the workmen employed in the various factories of the former place the excellent school advantages of the latter. At the present time many of the Vernon employees live with their families at Huntington Park. Plans are now being matured, however, for the development of a tract on the east side of Santa Fe avenue, in Vernon, as a residence district.

VALLEY ACTIVITIES.

Canadian Purchases Forty Acres in Van Nuys-Lankershim Tract—Other Acreage Deals Reported.

A. St. Johannes of Winnipeg, Man., has purchased forty acres of Van Nuys-Lankershim lands in the San Fernando Valley and is preparing to make his permanent residence in this district. St. Johannes made the deal through the Janss Investment Company. The purchase price is reported at $20,000. The buyer is preparing his land for the planting of fruit trees and expects to build a house on the place.

Another buyer of Van Nuys-Lankershim lands is A. Becker, who bought through the same company seventeen acres fronting on the Ventura highway. The property, it is announced, will be developed at once. The purchase price is given at $7200.

In another section of the San Fernando Valley, at North Lankershim Acres, the same brokers report the sale of ten acres to Joe Rose for $3350, and of ten acres to William Marshall for $3500. Both buyers are building and will set out fruit trees. In the same subdivision J. B. Sullivan purchased five acres for $1625, and A. N. Clements five acres for $2250.

READY FOR ROAD WORK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NILAND, June 13.—The County Supervisors have sent the necessary men and teams here to extend International boulevard southward to Brawley. It is planned that this road shall eventually become a boulevard all the way from Niland to the Mexican boundary line at Calexico. Nine miles of the road have been laid out for immediate work. E. M. Holland has just let a contract for the construction of a moving-picture theater and two store buildings. Announcement is made here that plans are under way for the building of a $10,000 depot at Niland.

The Great California Oil Fields

Bakersfield.

IMMENSE YIELD IS IN PROSPECT.

Over Hundred Million Barrels This Year.

Value to Be Nearly Sixty Million Dollars.

Protection of Oil Workers in Foreign Parts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 12. — The output of California oil for 1914, from the returns of the first five months of the year, will be not less than 105,000,000 or 110,000,000 barrels of crude, an increase from 97,500,000 during 1913. If the Lakeview No. 2 gusher continues at its present rate throughout the balance of the year—which, by the way, would be only about one-third of the time which the original Lakeview flowed—the output for the State will be approximately 110,000,000. Should the Lakeview No. 2 stop flowing, and the balance of the State continue its record of the first five months, the total output will run near the 105,000,000-barrel mark.

JUNE PRODUCTION.

May's production was very close to 9,500,000 barrels. If the Lakeview No. 2 continues its present flow until the end of June, it is likely that the month's statistics will show an output for thirty days of about the same amount. Consumption is more likely to show a heavy decline than an increase, as compared with previous months, for both May and June, and the storage figures will probably be increased by close to 2,000,000 barrels by July 1, as compared with April 30, the date for which complete data were prepared.

VALUE OF OIL.

State Mineralogist Hamilton has issued a statement that the State's mineral wealth during 1914 will reach $100,000,000 and that oil will be one-half of this aggregate, or $50,000,00, and gold $20,000,000, this being but two-fifths the value of the oil.

So far as oil is concerned, the statement seems too conservative by probably $5,000,000. The average value of oil for the first half of the year was probably something above 50 cents, owing to the large proportion of oil above 24 gravity, which commands more than 50 cents at the well. Even at 50 cents as an average value—and it will hardly fall below this figure—the value of 105,000,000 barrels will be $52,500,000. Fifty-five cents is likely to prove a fair average value, which for 105,000,000 barrels would mean a total of $57,750,000.

Even allowing for a further decline in the price of light oils, owing to the increase in output, and for a practically certain drop in the price of oil of 24 to 25 gravity on account of the Lakeview No. 2, if that big well continues to yield as now, it is safe to predict a value of $60,000,000 for California's 1914 output of oil, this being for the crude alone, as it comes from the well, without any allowance whatever for the value of the by-products of the refinery.

OTHER PRODUCTS.

Where an oil well produces natural gas, the value of any casinghead gasoline extracted therefrom, as distinct from the gasoline distilled at the refinery, should properly be added to the value of the crude oil, as should also the value of any such gas as may be sold for fuel or domestic purposes. It is impossible to make any accurate estimate of the values of such gas and its by-products, but the aggregate is undoubtedly large.

The value of what may be properly called field distillates may also be properly added to the value of crude oil. By this term is meant gasoline or other tops, taken off by the producers of the crude oil themselves in the field before the sale of the crude as fuel, when such distillates are sold by the producers themselves separately from the fuel oil.

The distillates produced and sold by the American Oil Fields are an example of what is meant. This company estimates the return from these tops at $1000 per day. At this rate they would come to $365,000 a year.

FOREIGN PROTECTION.

The question of protection in case of injury while working in foreign countries may yet become a very important one for oil-well drillers who are going abroad in large numbers to work for corporations in all parts of the world. So far as known, none of them has yet received injuries while employed abroad, but if any one should be disabled in his work in another country, the question of the laws of that country as to the responsibility of the employed might become a very important one to the injured workman.

In California hereafter any workman injured will be very fully protected against destitution. Those injured before the enactment of the present law have the recourse of a suit for damages, with the prospect of recovering something.

In foreign countries the laws as to the responsibility of employer for the care of injured workmen vary greatly. In some, very full protection is given; in others, much less. It is likely, however, that in some the amounts prescribed to be paid are graded according to the native standard of wages, and while generous according to such standards, would be but trifling to an American accustomed to the income enjoyed by an oil well driller.

IN FOREIGN COURTS.

In case of injury any action brought to recover would have to be prosecuted in the courts of the foreign country where the injury was received, except in some rare cases where the employing company might have its headquarters in the United States, in which case it might be possible to bring a suit here; again it might not be.

For many years American railroad men injured in Mexico used to sue in the American courts Mexican railroad which touched the American border and maintained agents on American soil. At El Paso, Tex., the court dockets used to be crowded with such damage suits, and many tens of thousands of dollars were recovered by men injured on the old Mexican Central Railroad, terminating at El Paso. In such cases, it was always necessary to prove to the satisfaction of the American court that damages would be recoverable under the laws of Mexico, had the suit been brought in a Mexican court. A few years ago, the Supreme Court of the United States held that the laws of the two countries differed so fundamentally that it would be impossible for an American court to decide controversies arising under the Mexican laws.

In theory, the Mexican statutes seem to be fairly liberal; in practice, it is very rare that anything is ever recoverable by injured native workmen, no matter what their injuries or how received. This is due partly to the general ignorance of the natives as to their rights under the law, and partly to a number of technicalities which render the law of no great practical benefit in many cases. So far as known, no American workman has tested the Mexican law in the courts of that country.

In Great Britain and the British colonies the laws are known to be fairly liberal, some even more so than in many American States. As to the laws of such countries as Japan, Russia, Roumania and Austria, whither California drillers have gone to work, nothing is known here.

McKittrick.

TELLS OF SOUTH AMERICAN OIL.

SHALLOW STRIKES ARE MADE IN VENEZUELA REGION.

Operator Relates Developments in New Section, Around Which a Great Deal of Interest Lately Has Centered—Happenings in Local Field.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

M'KITTRICK, June 12.—An operator, who for years was connected with activities in the districts about here, and who recently went to Venezuela, has written interestingly of conditions there. He states that one concern has 800 concessions, each consisting of 1100 acres, which, according to the contract entered into by the company with the government, must be developed to a certain stated extent within the ensuing five years.

Several wells have been drilled on one of the concessions, and each, at a depth of 400 to 500 feet, is producing 200 barrels daily. A survey is being made for a railroad to connect with the fields, and a hospital is in course of construction, this being a necessary institution, as the nearest medical assistance is over 100 miles distant.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company next week will begin further development of its property in the northern portion of the McKittrick district. Five new rigs are to be erected, three on the Davis lease and two on the Buena Vista lease.

The company at present has forty-eight producing wells and its output contributes largely to that of the district. The company has recently installed ta de-hydrating plant at Olig, two and a half miles north of McKittrick. The Reward Oil Company also has a de-hydrating plant at Reward, which has been in successful operation for many months.

The East Puente Oil Company, operating in the north end of the McKittrick field, has begun drilling well No. 14. It is the intention of the company to put down four more wells this year, making the total number on the lease eighteen. The drill in No. 13 struck oil sand at a depth of 975 feet, and indications point to a good production.

The State Consolidated Oil Company, of which E. J. Miley of Los Angeles is president and general manager, has put well No. 5, in section 26, 31-22, in the North Midway district, on the pump. The well is 900 feet deep, and the output is about 300 barrels per day. Well No. 4, brought in recently, is producing in the neighborhood of 500 barrels every twenty-four hours.

The El Camino Oil Company, on section 26, 31-21, struck oil sand at 1300 feet, and those in charge of the work are much encouraged over the outlook. The oil is said to be about 13 gravity. The lease of the El Camino Company was formerly known as the Amber.

The San Francisco and McKittrick Oil Company is redrilling well No. 8. It will take about three weeks.

The Dominion Oil Company, on section 15, 31-22, is redrilling well No. 1. The drill is down more than 700 feet and an increased output is confidently expected. The production of the company during May was exceptionally good.

Personal.

W. L. Stewart of Los Angeles, president of the Union Oil Company, and E. W. Clark, general manager of the Producers' Transportation Company, were here this week, making an inspection of the properties of the company in the West Side fields.

F. W. McNear, general manager of the Reward Oil Company, has returned to San Francisco after visiting the McKittrick district lease of the company.

D. McPhee of San Francisco, who is interested in the Mahaska Oil Company, on the North McKittrick front, is here looking after operations on the property.

George Brown, superintendent of Division B of the Standard Oil Company, with headquarters at Bakersfield, visited the company's plant at Olig this week.

Charles G. Whittier, a prominent oil man of the North Midway field, returned this week from a visit to Los Angeles, and will shortly go to the mountains for a vacation of several weeks.

INCREASE HEREABOUTS.

Oil Production for May South of Tehachepi Shows Gain of Thousand Barrels Daily.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, June 12.—Preliminary estimates indicate that the increase in oil production in fields south of the Tehachepi was about 1000 barrels per day the past month. This was due principally to the new wells in Fullerton field, such as those of the Union Oil Company and Standard, as well as to two wells again put on the production list by the Amalgamated.

The daily average output for the Fullerton field for May was about 38,000 barrels, or nearly 80 per cent. of the total output south of Tehachepi. The output is greater by several thousand barrels than the production during March. With the increased activities now apparent in the field there is every prospect for a rapid growth in production in the near future.

The California Petroleum Corporation is progressing steadily on its well on the Macomber ranch, and will soon have reached the 3000 level. Several showings of oil have been encountered, though nothing as significant as that struck at about 1500 feet.

The Olinda Land Company has just had about 200 feet of sand, containing oil in its No. 12 test well, in the Olinda district, which is now down 3500 feet.

WOULD ADD TO OUR OIL'S FAME.

May Become Basis for New "Shell" Motor Spirit.

Plans of European Combine Are Changed.

Much Larger Scope in Their Activities Here.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 12.—The Royal Dutch-Shell combination, acting through its marketing subsidiary, the American Gasoline Company, intends to make California light oil the basis for a new brand of "Shell Motor Spirit," or "Shell Petrol," which it may make as famous and celebrated as that from light oils of Borneo, known in every European market.

When the Shell Trading and Transport Company, the British end of the combination, figured first upon entering the United States and Canada, it was with the idea of finding a new market for "Shell Petrol," the product of the Sumatra and Borneo light oil. This was officially announced by Sir Marcus Samuel at the annual meeting in London some four years ago. This was the original idea when F. P. S. Harris, representing the Shell company, and J. C. Van Eck, representing the Royal Dutch, first came here, but it has been abandoned. Only two or three cargoes of oriental oil have been brought here, and none for some months. No announcement has been made of a change of plans, although Sir Marcus Samuel told the stockholders in London that the company's policy had been extended in California to the purchase of producing properties, the building of a pipe line and a refinery. The change does not need to be announced further for it is clearly here.

The American Gasoline Company at San Francisco is advertising "Shell Motor Spirit." In Europe the Shell company's gasoline from the oriental oils is called "Shell Petrol." The titles, "motor spirit" and "petrol" are both distinctively English, and unknown hitherto in the United States, hence the striking character of the term, "Shell Moor Spirit" to the American consumer. It will be hard for the Standard to get anything to beat it as a brand.

MAY GO ABROAD.

It is not unreasonable to think that when the Panama Canal is open for regular traffic, and the American Gasoline Company is manufacturing its motor spirit, this California product may be shipped around the Coast and abroad. Of course, such a move will be dependent upon production and market conditions, but should the price of gasoline continue as low here as now and the price in Europe as high as it is—35 to 45 cents a gallon—Shell Motor Spirit, made from California light oil may be able to compete with that brought from other parts of the world.

PIPE IS ORDERED.

The Valley Pipe Line Company, which is the subsidiary corporation of the European combine, has ordered 172 miles of pipe from the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company—135 miles of eight-inch and the balance of ten-inch. The ten-inch pipe is for use at the high pressure of each relay—in other words, for the end into which the oil going north is driven by the pumps at each pumping station. Delivery will commence within ninety days, and by September the construction of the line will be under way. The southern terminus will be in the Midway field; the northern end at Martinez on San Francisco Bay.

REFINERY PLANS.

Plans are ready for the construction of the Royal Dutch-Shell refinery. The site was purchased some time since. Nothing has been given out as to the intended initial capacity of the plant. Originally it was the intention of the Royal Dutch-Shell to export kerosene to the Orient in the vessels which brought over benzine, but signs do not seem to point to as much importing of benzine as expected, and if California is to furnish the gasoline for the Pacific Coast trade, as now indicated, it is not unlikely that less kerosene will be shipped to the Orient. Moreover, there is an enormous increasing demand all along the Pacific Coast for the low-grade kerosene for domestic stoves, and an engine distillate. The Shells can sell plenty of this right here.

At present, the American Gasoline Company is operating a small refinery taken over by the Shells when they bought the California Oil Fields, Ltd., property at Coalinga, and is handling the output from one or two others around San Francisco Bay, but its business is still only trifling.

The Turner Oil Company at Coalinga, which has been virtually sold to the California Oil Fields, Ltd., now the producing department of the Royal Dutch-Shell—although still operated by the old owners pending settlement of a question of title—has installed a casing-head gasoline plant, which has operated successfully. This will come into the hands of the Royal Dutch, which now plans to treat all the natural gas output of the Limited's wells in this manner, thus betting the benefit of all the gasoline to be extracted from the product of the wells.

The big tank farm in Midway field near Fellows is being pushed rapidly ahead. This belongs to the California Oil Fields, Ltd., as a part of the Royal Dutch-Shell producing department. Large quantities of material are being hauled in every day from McKittrick.

May Production.

The output of California for May was very close to 9,500,000 barrels of crude, the highest figure by far ever attained. This was due to the great Lakeview No. 2 Oil Company's big gusher, flowing steadily since May 10, an average of over 30,000 barrels daily, and the General Petroleum Annex No. 2, on land close by, flowing 10,000 barrels.

The Lakeview has practically capped itself, so far as the spectacular spouting into the air is concerned. All the efforts of man failed to conquer the monster, the hole caved in, a large crater opened fifty feet wide, and the accumultaion of oil and the apparent diminution of gas pressure with the wider opening at the mouth of the hole resulted in changing the spectacular spouting high into the air into a steady flow into the big ditch dug from the mouth of the crater to the sump hole. There is now considerable water coming with the oil, but no telling when this condition may change.

The New Light of Asia.

SEVEN-AND-A-HALF-CENT LAMP WINS IN ORIENT.

By Means of Crude Burner and California Fuel Standard Oil Company Gets Vast Trade Across Pacific and Big Contract With the Government of China After Notable Commercial Struggle.

THANKS to California's petroleum wealth and to a seven-and-a-half-cent lamp, American oil has become the new light of Asia. That lamp, called by the Chinese the little Mei Foo, lit the way for the partnership between the Standard Oil Company and the government of China, the recent announcement of which caused such a flutter in Japan, France and Germany, and added another to the notable list of American commercial victories.

Mei Foo means good luck and good luck certainly has come to the Rockefeller corporation in China since the seven-and-a-half-cent lamp became the holding vessel for the light of the Orient. Had not a bright official in the employ of Standard Oil thought of the little Mei Foo at a time when the big company seemingly had reached a dark point in its gigantic selling campaign in the Far East it is not unlikely that Japan and not the American company would have figured as "the party of the second part" in the agreement which China entered into for the development of the oil fields of Shen-Si and around Jehol.

China is the minority partner, of course. That is the Standard Oil way. Nevertheless, China stands to benefit hugely by the partnership, so it need not worry. That country finds in Standard Oil an "angel" with billions.

If China is satisfied, so is Standard Oil. The great oriental republic is recognized by W. E. Bemis, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and by all thinking men, as the greatest field for commercial development in the world, except the United States. Through a keen stroke of business worthy of Rockefeller's best days, the American corporation is to get the "first whack" at the most inviting field for oil exploitation on the other side of the Pacific. And all because some shrewd employee was able to recognize that just what China needed to lift it out of darkness into light was the little Mei Foo, costing seven and a half cents.

A PEACEFUL REVOLUTION.

By means of the Good Luck lamp Rockefeller's lieutenants and California oil have achieved a revolution in China almost as important as that won by Dr. Sun Yat Sen and Yuan Shi Kai. In the past three years Standard Oil has sold more than $35,000,000 worth of kerosene in China. The little Mei Foo is mainly responsible. As China rises to greatness it is lit by the bright beams of countless Good Lucks.

The little Mei Foo is nothing much to look at. As a lamp it would be scorned by the poorest of Americans. It is small and devoid of any ornamentation. The seven and a half cents went mostly into burner, which after all is the main thing about a lamp which is needed for use rather than for decoration. Despite its cheapness it is a real lamp and it gives a light equal to or better than that of lamps which cost several times as much.

Travelers returning from the Orient urge Americans to keep their eyes on China. Prof. H. W. Luce of Shantung University recently told a California audience that the revolution in China really began when the first American missionary landed at Shanghai. It used to be said that trade follows the flag. Prof. Luce maintained that in China it might be declared that trade followed the missionary. The first American missionary went from this country to China to lighten the darkness of the idol-worshipers. Standard Oil followed to give another kind of light.

'Twas just seven years ago that the little Mei Foo was introduced into China. In 1907 no fewer than 875,000 Good Lucks were sold at seven and one-half cents apiece. Result, 875,000 new users of Standard Oil kerosene. Since then the number of these lamps sold has climbed up into the millions. Result, million upon million more consumers of Standard Oil product.

SHINING EXAMPLE.

Talk about long-felt wants. The little Mei Foo is the most shining example of filling such a want that the Orient ever has known. For years before its introduction the Standard Oil had been battering away at the Chinese market and had met with strenuous opposition. It had conducted a hard, long and expensive campaign. As one of its officials in California recently pointed out, "China, weighed down with the superstitions and traditions of centuries, presented a front that for long seemed an impenetrable barrier to the success of the company's undertaking."

That's the kind of front which American selling organizations like to prove that they can make holes in. The Standard Oil men went at this Chinese wall in characteristic fashion—with their heads. That is not to say that they charged the impediment heads down. On the contrary they used the inside of their heads instead of the outside. They brought brains into play. The man who evolved the idea of the Mei Foo lamp was a thinker and an oriental scholar of the modern merchandizing type.

The superstitions and traditions of centuries fell down before the good luck as the wall of Jericho fell when Joshua commanded the Israelites to shout.

You see the little Mei Foo appealed to the pocket, and the Chinese are just as susceptible to the influence of cash as the Americans. The introduction of the seven and one-half cent lamp loaded with kerosene lengthened the work day in a great part of China by four hours. It enabled millions of coolie craftsmen to do more and better work under vastly improved conditions. It increased the earning capacity of those millions by one-third. No wonder the Chinese wall of superstition toppled over. List to the grave way in which a Standard Oil man puts it. Said he:

"In China, as in Japan, the interests of a vast bulk of the population are centered in the manufacture of articles of handicraft. The matter of artificial light is of grave importance. With the primitive lighting facilities in vogue before the advent of kerosene, work practically ceased at dark. Only inferior work could be turned out by the light of their torches or crude lamps, and the cost of animal fat and grease burned was almost as great as the returns for the work.

KEROSENE AS INSURANCE.

"In the cities and villages of the Far East the little Mei Foo has come to be the household lamp—and the factory lamp, too, for with those people home and workshop usually are one. For instance, in Northern China where the silk industry is extensively pursued, silk is fabricated in the individual Chinese houses. More than that, the moths and worms are cultivated within the same walls. A supply of kerosene is the very best insurance a silk-maker can carry on his live stock. Comparatively inexpensive artificial light and heat, made possible through the introduction of kerosene, has greatly stimulated this industry and increased the output of the manufactured article. And that applies equally well to most of the callings followed in the Orient."

Thus is may be seen that the new light of Asia radiated across the Pacific to America. Last year, owing to the tango craze, the exports of silk from China to the United States reached record figures. While other industries in this country languished somewhat during the "slow panic" the sale of silk to clothe my lady of the dance increased tremendously. The little Mei Foo enabled the individual Chinese artisans to keep up with the demand.

That the Chinese appreciate to the full what kerosene means to them is shown by the fact that cases of illuminating oil are given as prizes in village lotteries and also as wedding presents. It is stated that no prize short of actual cash appeals so forcibly to the coolies who "take a flutter" in the innumerable lotteries which appeal to the Chinese gambling spirit.

Not infrequently when the oriental desires to express his good will by means of a present he sends along a case of kerosene with his compliments. The use of oil as a wedding gift or as a New Year's present is not uncommon. It is customary in such instances to write appropriate mottoes and good wishes on the can. "May thy sons be many and thy daughters few" is not infrequently to be seen scrawled in Chinese characters on cases of kerosene presented to newly weds.

BIG SELLING CAMPAIGN.

The cans, too, contrive a double debt to pay. Having served their original purpose as receptacles of oil they are not thrown away. John Chinaman uses them for all sorts of purposes. Lamps are sometimes made of one-gallon tins, the caps being removed and a burner soldered in its place. Water-carriers use the five-gallon tins in making their deliveries, and a cut-down five-gallon can makes a good feeding trough for a pony.

It must not be supposed that the little Mei Foo spread so far and so rapidly over China without extraordinary pains being taken by the Standard Oil Company to prove its worth. Never before had the Orient seen such a selling campaign as the company indulged in after the invention of the good luck. Agents traveled up and down China with, figuratively speaking, a can of kerosene in one hand and a seven and one-half cent lamp in the other.

This American business campaign, conducted by Americans to create a new market for American products, already has resulted in bringing millions of dollars to the United States. It established a growing market for California oil which is bringing $5,000,000 a year to this State. It has helped in the upbuilding of ports on the Pacific Coast. Richmond, near San Francisco, and El Segundo, a few miles from Los Angeles, where the Standard has established refineries, have felt the stimulus of the oriental trade. The little Mei Foo has helped to advance the towns which have grown up around those refineries.

Something of what a refinery means to a western city may be gathered from the fact that when the Standard Oil Company of Califonia broke ground for its plant in 1901, Richmond was a little community of scarcely 200 people. Today it is a thriving city of 17,000 inhabitants. As for El Segundo—the second—three years ago it was a barley field, now it is a town with stores, bank, newspaper, electric lights, trolley-car service, and a growing pay roll. The light of the good luck shines upon it.

From the California refineries is sent to China the bulk of the oil that fills the countless little Mei Foos across the Pacific. How the consumption of kerosene has grown in China in the last twelve years is detailed in a report made to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington by Vice-Consul General Clarence E. Gauss of Shanghai. He says that in that period the consumption has increased from 83,000,000 gallons to 198,000,000. Along with this item he notes that the Chinese importation of lamps and lampware now represents an annual value of three-fourths of a million against one-fourth of a million in 1900. Mr. Gauss remarks:

"The American Company engaging in the importation of oil has been successful in increasing its tank installations and by this means, and with the assistance of a fleet of motor barges, launches, etc., is able to distribute its products in an efficient manner. The operations of this company afford another example of what can be accomplished by the introduction of modern American business methods in this country."

This is "big business" of a kind which inspires the admiration of all Americans, no matter what may be their individual opinions regarding corporations.

ROMANCE OF OIL.

The romance of California oil is not confined to the Orient. The light which burns so brilliantly in the little Mei Foo across the Pacific has played a notable part in the development of the Golden State. Oil, in fact, has ousted gold from its premier position in the land of the Argonauts. Ninety-seven million barrels was the petroleum production of the Golden State in 1913. This was worth to the producers more than $40,000,000 or twice the value of the gold production.

California's oil industry is now as great as the State's citrus industry and, as after-dinner speakers say, "that reminds me" that an oil field in Southern California which the Standard recently bought for no less a sum than $4,500,000 was originally an orange grove. This is what was known as the Murphy property in the Fullerton field and was owned by the heirs of Edward Murphy, a Detroit lumberman. The Murphy Oil Company received as part consideration 2500 shares of the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of California at a basis of valuation of $200 per share, amounting to $500,000. The balance, $4,000,000, is to be paid during the next five years. This is the record price for an orange grove.

The acquisition of the Murphy property is declared to have been a preliminary skirmish in a titanic struggle between the Rothschild and Rockefeller interests for the control of the production of the oil fields of California. The Standard Oil was the victor in the engagement. The Standard acted with startling directness. For months the Royal Dutch-Shell Transport Syndicate, in which the famous house of Rothschilds is interested, had been dickering for the Murphy property. Just when the Dutch-Shell group appeared to have made up its mind to buy the Standard stepped to the front and secured the prize. Oil men on the Coast considered this tantamount to a declaration of war by the Stand-enormously wealthy British inter-ard and an intimation that the company intended to fight to maintain its supremacy in the Golden State. Since then, however, the Andrew Weir Syndicate, backed by enormously wealthy British interests, has entered California and the Standard finds itself with two big foreign rivals, not to mention Associated Oil which is generally spoken of as controlled by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company.

Since California oil has thus become a factor in a remarkable industrial struggle it is strange to recall that less than seventy years ago the ranchers of the State were cussing petroleum because oil seepages spoiled the water they gave to their stock. In the early days oil was considered a nuisance; now it is such a prize that the United States government would fain get back a large acreage of oil lands taken up by numerous California companies. Suits are pending in the courts over this land which is estimated to be worth $2,000,000,000.

From some of this land the Spanish padres may have scooped petroleum in little rude dippers and used it on their famous missions. At any rate the Catholic Fathers are known to have skimmed seepage from oil puddles to put on the roofs of their churches and other buildings to make them water-tight.

The Fathers, too, undoubtedly knew of that great charnel pit of the ages, the pool of crude oil on the Rancho La Brea, near Los Angeles, which now is attracting the attention of the scientists of many lands. That pit is supposed to hold the secret of pre-historic life on the Pacific Coast. From it have been exhumed the bones of mammoths, sabre-toothed tigers, giant sloths and other animals which certainly never went into Noah's ark two by two. These monsters of the misty past were mired in the famous pool and their bones were preserved by the crude oil. Now all the race of ologists is trying to read the riddle of the past by means of these bones.

Light Oil Output.

The increase in the proportion of light oil in California from 40 per cent. of the whole two years ago to 60 per cent. of the yhole today, has been an important factor in the changed plans of the Royal Dutch-Shell people. An enormously increased amountof gasoline is now obtainable from California oil, and the introduction of the practice of extracting the gasoline from the casing head gas has added to this. When the Europeans first planned to come here there was comparatively little gasoline to be obtained from California oil.

SILVER SAME. LIKE YEARS AGO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) June 12.—In the early days of mining in the Bradshaw Mountains, when silver was the principal metal product of the region, the Peck mine led all others in the quality of its ore product, which at times was almost pure silver. A pocket of the same stuff lately was struck on the famous old property by Richard Umlah and O. I. Tawney, who have it under lease. From the pocket before exhaustion came two tons of wonderful ore, which has been sacked and shipped. Drifting has been continued on the same strike, in the hope that the find may lead to others.

A drift on the 300 level of the Invincible claim of the Henrietta property in Big Bug district has cut a blind ledge five feet in width that has fine gold values in sulphide, with some copper. The drift is being run to cut the Henrietta ledge, as a measure of economical working. Lon D. Hall now is managing the property for its new owners, an English corporation.

On a twenty-three-claim group owned by Joseph Scherer in Copper Basin, next the Commercial property, a seven-foot ledge has been explored to twenty-five feet of depth. At that point it samples not less than 9 per cent. copper.

Good news to small mine owners in this locality is that the United Verde Company will take customs ores at its new Clarkdale smelter, sheduled to "blow in" during August. Very low transportation rates are to be given over the Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix Railway system and the new broad-gauge Verde Valley Railroad. The smelter at Jerome could handle little outside ore, owing to the necessity for transfer to the narrow-gauge line at Jerome Junction.

AT MIAMI MINE. SAFER SHAFTS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) June 12.—Both the main shafts of the Inspiration Consolidated Company at Miami are being lined with concrete. The work is going ahead in each at the rate of five feet a day and is to be completed by August 1 to the depth of 440 feet. A novel feature of the work has been the use of water-carried screenings from the crushing plant.

Work will be started soon on the excavation of the 1500-ton ore pockets on the sixth level in both shafts, a job expected to be very slow and troublesome. The care taken in the shafts is shown by the fact that the timber forms will be allowed to remain in place until the completion of the work. This necessitates the use of 150,000 feet of lumber.

The Inspiration test mill is being operated to its full capacity of 1000 tons a day. A large number of experiments are being made continually to effect greater economy.

Though they are a year ahead of time, three slag cars already have arrived for the new International smelter.

Shipments of 100 tons of copper ore a day are being made by the Superior and Boston to El Paso. To the same market the Warrior is shipping fifty tons a day, regarded as a remarkable output, considering the gutted condition of the property as left by former leasers.

SOON TO START. COPPER QUEEN MILL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) June 12.—It is now expected that the test mill of the Copper Queen Company on Sacramento Hill will be in operation by July 1, and that it will handle 100 tons of ore a day. There seems to be little inclination on the part of the Copper Queen management to predict what will be done ultimately in the way of concentration, for it will take much time to determine upon the processes that should be used in handling the large number of grades and characters of ore that are available for milling below the value needed for profitable smelting. Included in the experimental plant, beside the usual equipment of tables, vanners and jigs, will be an oil flotation apparatus and a leaching plant.

The enormous size of some of the Bisbee ore bodies may be illustrated by reference to one now blocked out in the Sacramento workings of the Copper Queen, 350 feet long, 150 feet wide and 200 feet deep, between the 1400 and 1600 levels. The grade of the ore is stated even above the average now being sent to Douglas for smelting. This body has been opened up within the past few months.

Following out its policy of "safety first," the Copper Queen management lately has been blowing off the crest of the mountain ridge that lies above its main workings and above a well-populated section of this camp. The explosions throw over the farther side great masses of rock that for years have constituted a menace. On a single day 200 holes were fired, all without damage to man or property. The hilltop has been most effectively cleared.

At the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas a secondary battery of seven MacDougal roasters is being installed.

HUMBOLDT SMELTER. RUNNING AGAIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) June 5.—After four months of suspension, the Consolidated smelter at Humboldt again is running and a carload of copper bullion was dispatched from the works Monday. The plant is now treating 120 tons of ore a day, mainly from the Blue Bell, and the output of copper bullion is running about six tons a day. Very little customs ore is being handled and very little will be purchased for some months to come. The plant has been almost entirely rebuilt and is said to be possessed of unusual efficiency.

Production will soon be resumed by the famous Little Jessie mine, now being operated by the Chapparal Mining Company. Shipping ore is being blocked out on the 300-foot level, which is to be the base of the development work for some time to come.

From the Eureka and Accidental mines at Walker are being shipped about 100 tons of ore a week. The old Walker district is said to be notably active in a development way.

In the face of the old Senator tunnel (south of Prescott) at a depth of about 4000 feet from the tunnel mouth, a drift running into the Snoozer claim has cut much native copper. It is being driven through an oxidized zone considered most promising.

The Santa Maria Valley Mining Company has purchased the Hermosa group of claims in Santa Maria district from Mrs. Josephine Thorne, widow of Dan C. Thorne, one of the pioneer mining men of this section. The consideration is said to have been $60,000. The company has purchased a large amount of other property in the same vicinity, including the Nigger Ben group, and has leased the mill of the Big Stick company to treat its output.

BEST OUTPUT FOR EXTENSION.

Company's Past Records Pale in May.

Belmont Has Big Purchase Under Way.

Developments in Tonopah and Goldfield.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) June 12.—The month of May closed with the Tonopah Extension surpassing its past output of bullion with a production of $71,850, from 99,666 ounces. The net milling value was $15.37 a ton.

The company thus established a new high record for bullion, ore tonnage and average milling values. Even this promises to be excelled, however, by the production of the current month, which is expected to reach a point from 15 to 20 per cent. higher. The figures for May would even have appeared larger had it not been for an accident which disabled the mill for a week.

At the recent annual meeting of the Extension stockholders in New York John G. Kirchen, general manager, made the statement that the next action of the company would be to decide what is best to be done with Merger, a property owned by virtually the same interests. The matter of establishing a milling plant for both the Merger and Victor companies—all of which are working in harmony—will be taken up.

Pumps will be installed in the deep shaft of the Victor before the end of the month, and the entire lower area of the camp will be drained to permit more extensive operations. The pumping plant on the Victor will likewise develop the Midway, which has entered what appears to be the footwall vein of the Merger ledge.

The Midway has already penetrated the ledge for a distance of four feet with pay values ranging from $25 to $100, and an average of $35, making this mine one of the best prospects on that side of camp. While the company is not in a position to boast of a great strike, indications favor the assumption that the mine is making into a good ore body and one that will prove lasting and not as elusive as others opened heretofore. The Midway has the record for shipping the highest grade, but in recent years production has not more than paid operating expenses. That is considered good, however, since there are so many other companies in Tonopah district working on the assessment plan.

The most important strike of the past week has been the finding of a strong ledge on the 1100-foot level of the Monarch Pittsburgh, which for the past two years, has been steadily operating without getting into ore. The company has been in ore now for ten days, and there is no evidence of weakening or a diminishing of value or the size of the ledge. The group is owned, or controlled, by the Broughers, who have been so active in trying to bring about a settlement of the West End-Butler embroglio. For one family, the Broughers are the heaviest investors in Tonopah, owning extensive holdings in Belmont, Jim Butler, Midway and other properties.

TELLS OF DEAL.

President Clyde Heller of the Belmont arrived this week from British Columbia, where the company has secured an option on the Surf Inlet mine, situated on Princess Charlotte Island. This option expires July 15, 1915. Mr. Heller said yesterday that the site is ideal and that there is every prospect of the Belmont company buying.

The property is a gold proposition that can be worked to a depth of 1000 feet by a series of tunnels that will save the company an expensive hoist. Waterfalls in the vicinity will furnish abundant power for an electric plant which the company will install after it decides to exercise the option. In the meantime the mine will be worked with a steam plant that is now being erected. Operations for the present will be confined to testing the lower workings.

The claims extend for a distance of 12,000 feet on the vein. The question of transportation has been solved by the Belmont establishing a launch service between Vancouver, B. C., and Surf Inlet, with a fifty-seven-horsepower motor boat that carries all supplies directly from the railroad. The island is heavily wooded, which, President Heller says, is another advantage, as it will save the cost of importing mine timbers.

One of the arguments in favor of the Surf Inlet property is that it will undoubtedly add to the dividend payment of the Belmont from the very first quarter in which the mine is operated. The Belmont now pays dividends of $375,000 every three months from its Tonopah property and has accumulated a surplus of approximately $2,000,000.

GOLDFIELD MINING. PROGRESS IS STEADY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) June 11.—Routine developments were the rule during the past week in the properties of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company. The output of the various properties remained normal.

Although there were no important changes during the week in the various faces of ore, the Jumbo Extension mine continues to maintain itself in splendid fashion. In accordance with an arrangement made some time ago, the company yesterday made the initial shipment of two carloads of ore to the mill of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, at the same time ceasing to send its output to its leased mill at Bonnie Clare, south of Goldfield, where the milling ore has been reduced for the last two years.

According to a preliminary estimate of President Harry Schwalkert of the Jumbo Extension, who is at present a visitor to Goldfield from his New York offices, the net profits of the company for May will amount to $20,000. The mine shipped last month a total of approximately 2780 tons of ore. The milling ore sent to the company's leased mill at Bonnie Clare amounted to about 2480 tons, an average of two forty-ton carloads daily, while to the millers' sampler of the Western Ore Purchasing Company it shipped a total of six fifty-ton carloads of shipping ore.

Under the arrangement with the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company for the treatment of ore at its mill, the management of the Jumbo Extension expects to increase its daily output from eighty to 100 tons.

That the Florence mine is enjoying a continuance of the satisfactory conditions that have prevailed in the property for some time past is reflected by the statement of General Superintendent Harry B. Clapp that seventeen carloads or approximately 850 tons of ore, were shipped to the Millers sampler of the Western Ore Purchasing Company during the month of May. Complete returns upon the shipments will not be obtainen by the company for a week or ten days. However, the foot level continues to yield four feet of $15 to $20 ore.

BIG WATER FLOW.

A tremendous increase in the flow of water has nelessitated a suspension of the exploration work in the vein of the 1750-foot level of the property of the Atlanta Mines Company until larger pumping equipment can be installed in the shaft of the Goldfield Merger Mines Company, through which the operation of the former property is being prosecuted. At present Manager D'Arcy is confining work to repairing operations.

The increased flow of water was encountered by a branch crosscut. For five days the flow of water averaged 538,000 gallons daily. By closing the doors of the bulkhead in the long main crosscut about 600 feet from the Merger shaft, the flow ore is expected to average as well as that shipped during the preceding month, which yielded returns of $32.44 a ton.

According to the final statement of the company for its operations in April, recently issued from the Denver (Colo.) office of President A. D. Parker, the output of the mine during that month totaled 922.18 tons of a gross value of $29,913.83. Miscellaneous earnings amounted to $118.91. Operating expenses totaled $14,635, leaving net profits for April of $15,-397.74. Developments in the mine continue of a routine character.

Manager A. I. D'Arcy is authority for the statement that the Sandstorm-Kendall mine made during May three carload shipments of ore to the Millers sampler of the Western Ore Purchasing Company, the consignments yielding returns of $45, $57.70 and $88.90 per ton, respectively. A total of 344.5 feet of development work was performed during the month.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"Osmiridium Nugget."

HOBART (Tasmania) May 1.—Q.: The 2 oz. nugget of osmiridium found in the Wilson River district, west coast, has been sent to Germany for sale. There are still a good number of fossickers working on osmiridium in the vicinity of the Wilson and Huskisson rivers." I thought I knew the platinum group after three years study, but what is osmiridium? That's a new one to me. S. L. G.

A.: Your quoted clipping from the Monitor, and your comment thereon appears as shown in the above query.

Are you sure that you have never heard of osmiridium? The substance is a misnomer in chemistry, and it is unknown in mineralogy.

Nevertheless, we find in "Hownes' Chemistry, p. 451-2," the following: "When crude platinum is dissolved in nitro-muriatic acid, a small quantity of a gray, scaly, metallic substance usually remains behind, having altogether resisted the action of the acid; this is a native alloy of iridium and osmium, called osmiridium or iridosmine." Each and both of the names stated are unknown to the table of elements, and the substance referred to under the two misnomers, is not an element.

In mineralogy iridosmine is well and favorably known, and has two minerals that are of a different nature, i.e., siserskite and newjanskite. Iridosmine is tin white in color, streak blackish-gray, hardness 7; somewhat brittle; slightly malleable; infusible before the blowpipe. At high temperatures sisserskite gives off the poisonous fumes of osmium, while newjanskite yields no osmium odor unless fused with potassium nitrate.

Iridosmine belongs to the platinum group, and occurs associated with gold, platinum, chromite, and "black sands" of California.

Prof. Waldemar Lindgren, in "Mineral Resources of the United States 1910" shows that, crude platinum generally contains iridium, iridosmine and gold, beside some remaining black sand . . . The production of California in 1910 amounted to 337 troy ounces of crude platinum, valued at $8,286. Of this, 304 ounces were recovered as a by-product in dredging operations, in Butte, Yuba and Sacramento counties.

Iridosmine of mineralogy is rarely found crystallized in hexagonal prisms with replaced basal edges; it occurs, usually in minute, irregular, and flattened grains, which grains are harder, heavier, and more of a steel gray color than native platinum. Iridosmine is of a paler steel gray than platinum, and its luster is metallic and shining; it is opaque, brittle, and but sparingly malleable. In hardness the mineral is 7, that of quartz. In chemical composition iridosmine is probably osmide of iridium. The solutions of iridium are of many colors; the name is taken from Iris (a rainbow,) and iridium is utilized in the manufacture of certain pen points.

In passing do (or does) "fossickers" come under the head of machines or that of our pure food laws? It is probable that a fossicker of Tasmania would be a prospector in our good, old United States. Tasmania, as a term, is a good one for the medicos to ponder over.

Diatomaceous Earth.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Q.: Herewith a sample that has been pronounced to be "chalk." It is from a new locality forty-six miles from Lompoc. I will thank you very much if you will tell me if the name is correct. Is the material of any commercial value? T. K.

A.: Chalk is lime carbonate, and the sample is not lime carbonate. Under the microscope and by chemical test the sample is diatomaceous earth (infusorial earth,) or Kieselguhr of the Germans. The substance is silicious, and results from the "remains" of microscopic matter known as diatoms. Diatomaceous earth is of commercial value; it is soluble in alkaline solutions, but not in acids, and owing to its great absorptive qualities it is used in the manufacture of dynamite by admixture with nitro-glycerine. The sample is of exceptional purity and material on the order of the sample can be used for tooth powders; in the manufacture of certain soaps, and in the art of the prefumer.

Samples of Interest.

PALMS, May 22.—Q.: Attached please find four samples of rock which I would be pleased to have you classify. Would like also to know their commercial value, if they have any. These samples all come from Kern county, California, and I have marked them Nos. 1 to 4. No. 1 white spar. No. 2 black hornblende. No. 3 soda and No. 4 white lime. J. M'C.

A.: In sampling minute specimens from Kern county and from the desert sections of Southern California and Nevada, it is well to exercise great caution, and not give reports on such samples as of entire deposits.

No. 1 is an aluminum silicate with magnesia present; lime traces. No. 2 is in part hornblende with tourmaline of no value. No. 3 sodium chloride, sodium carbonate, with magnesium present. No. 4 three samples are Dolomite, with one specimen Albite (soda feldspar.)

Celebrate June 20-21

—WITH—

Huntington Beach

You're Invited to Help the Largest of South Coast Beach Cities Dedicate Its Great New Concrete Pier

There will be much to amuse you—band concerts, parades, carnival dance on the pier at night, champion woman swimmer, Dolly Mings; champion diver, Bowes; Japanese athletics, etc.

The Pacific Electric Railway will run special trains.

Regular trains leave from rear of P. E. Station, fifteen minutes of every hour.

Why We Celebrate

It has been an epoch-making year for Huntington Beach.
Big Pier finished.
Paved boulevard finished to Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, on to Los Angeles.
Carnegie Library finished.
Bonds voted to pave four miles city streets.
Bonds voted to construct sewage system.
Contracts let for Ocean Highway to Long Beach and Los Angeles.
A thousand acres subdivided into small farms adjoining city and being occupied.
Two factories built and building.
Houses building at rate of 20 per month.
And that is not all.

We will be glad to show you these things when at Huntington Beach. Our machines are at your disposal.

Let us show the cheapest and best small farms and beach city lots, all things considered, near Los Angeles.

50-Foot Lots $500

Three or four minutes' walk from the best bathing surf on the Coast. All improvements and public utilities in.

Small Farms $300 an Acre and Up

In ½, 1, 2½ and 5-acre tracts, adjoining city.
Every advantage of soil, water, frostless climate and transportation.

Sulphates.

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—Q.: Is enclosed sample phosphate bearing? It came from Southern Nevada. Has it any value? C. G.

A.: The particular sample is not phosphate rock, and phosphoric acid is present in low percentage. The specimen is a hydrous conglomeration of sulphates, with iron, aluminum, soda, magnesium and manganese, in varying percentages. An opinion relating to commercial values of the deposit could not be given from one sample only.

Common Opal.

DAGGETT, May 23.—Q.: Found in narrow ledges at a locality seventeen miles northwest from Daggett. Classification requested. D. R. A.

Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—Q.: Would like a general analysis of the two enclosed specimens taken from Kern county. W. G. L.

A.: Sample "A" quartz plate with attached chloritic matter; iron oxides; micaceous forms of stibnite (antimony sulphide;) trace of lead. "B" is ferruginous quartz with traces of stibnite. Such samples might be confused with tellurium-bearing rocks, but tellurium is absent in both samples. No tests made for gold or silver.

Lime Carbonate.

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—Q.: Please classify this rock, and if it is mineralized what minerals does it carry? It is from a lode four feet wide, in the Palomas mining district, and forty-seven miles from Los Angeles. H. C. O.

A.: The dark, reddish matter in the sample, with the yellow-brown content, is simply resultant from iron. Traces of lead and of vanadium present. Not tested for gold or silver.

In Part Pegmatite.

CORONA, May 25.—Q.: Am sending by parcel post under separate cover a small sample of gravel found near the hills about here and should be pleased to know what the copper-colored mineral is in the gravel, that shines? Some of it is dark, like bronze color, but it is the light-colored copper-colored particles in which I am interested. Thanking you for a reply in next Sunday's issue. B. G. C.

A.: No letter of any correspondent is advanced over others, and answers are herein given so soon as analysis is made. Correspondents are politely requested to govern their expectations accordingly.

That bright-colored stuff looks like gold, does it not? But it is chiefly disulphide. The bronze-colored matter is mica. Very often pyrite is auriferous, and for gold values you are respectfully referred to reliable assayers.

Not Gold.

HEMET, May 25.—Q.: I send you two samples of rock that was taken from the range east of Perris. Please give your judgment on them. The one with the most white in it I call No. 2. The dark-brown No. 1, do you find that it carries gold values or indications of such values? I will appreciate any suggestions that you may be pleased to give me on the samples. K. B. P., "Advertiser and reader."

A.: Glad to hear from you. No. 1 is quartz with opal silica in the mass. There is pyrite in this sample that resembles gold, with golden-colored mica. No. 2 is probably altered pegmatite, in part, with opal silica in the rock. Not tested other than for native gold, and this variety of the native element is absent. The samples are not of a very encouraging nature.

Magnetite.

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Q.: Will you please name the inclosed sample picked up in Coldwater Canyon off the Big Tejunga? S. H.

A.: Sample is a very handsome and splendent variety of magnetite.

Porphyritic Rock.

CORONA, May 26.—Q.: I am sending you under separate cover three samples of ore. Will you kindly publish your analysis of these in an early edition? I am just wondering if the specimens do not contain fair traces of lead and iron and indicate outcroppings of soft coal. D.

A.: Bare trace of lead present, with traces of antimony sulphide (stibnite,) iron oxides and manganese dioxide. A somewhat doubtful coal indicator.

Bauxite and Aluminum.

CRESCENT (Nev.) May 26.—Q.: Will you kindly give me some information on aluminum, and its method of production today? Is Bauxite the only source, or rather the the only mineral used in its production? Can you give me a method for separating silica from aluminum solutions? Is iron much of an objection when combined with aluminum silicates? "ASSAYER."

A.: Glad to hear from you. In the manufacture of chemicals bauxite is still quite a source for alums, aluminum salts, and aluminum salts generally. "Freedom from oxide of iron is essential in the material to be used in the chemical manufactures." The impure, iron-bearing bauxite is of but little value in the manufacture of the above-named chemicals, and: "The red ore is adapted to the manufacture of pure alumina used in the extraction of metallic aluminum. In the refining process of this red bauxite a high percentage of iron oxide is not objectionable, but a high percentage of silica, on the other hand, is a great drawback."

It is of interest to state that in 1883 only 83 pounds of aluminum was produced in the United States; in 1910 the production was 47,734,000 pounds, and the production in 1911 was 46,-125,000 pounds.

"The two processes of manufacture which have transformed the metal aluminum from a chemical curiosity to a commercial commodity—the Hall and the Herault processes—were patented in America and Europe about the same time—1888 and 1886. The alumina is prepared from bauxite in as pure a state as possible, and it is subject to electrolytic extraction. . . . . It has been found that the degree of purity of the metal separated in the electrolytic bath is largely dependent upon the absence of impurities, chiefly silica, iron, etc. Much more care, therefore, is now given to this part of the manufacture. One of the recent patents having to do with the preparation of pure alumina is that of Gilbert McCulloch. . . .McCulloch discovered that in the process of precipitation, alumina is precipitated first, and that the silica is mainly precipitated at the end of the operation, and that by arresting the precipitation before it is completed the bulk of the silica may be retained in solution along with a portion of the alumina and sodium carbonate, and may be run back to the digesters for treatment with additional bauxite and caustic lime. . . . The following table shows approximately the ratio at which the alumina and silica precipitate where the original solution contains .25 gram of silica per liter: Proportionate precipitation of alumina and silica: When 50 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 4 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. When 75 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 8 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. When 80 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 12 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. When 85 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 25 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. When 94 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 80 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. When 100 per cent. of alumina has been precipitated, 100 per cent. of silica has been precipitated. With a liquor containing more silica, the ratio tends to lessen earlier in the reaction, while in a liquor containing less silica the ratio tends to lessen later in the reaction. From the silica content of the liquor one is able to determine just when to stop the precipitation to obtain any degree of purity desired from the silica standpoint."

Cryolite, alunite, corundum and certain aluminum silicates are substances from which the metal can be manufactured.

Pyrite.

LOMPOC, May 20.—Q.: Your favor of recent date received with the sample of crystallized pyrite, for which I thank The Times. It is the right quality, and real gold could not be more valuable to me. When I get my patents I will tell more about it, and you will be pleased to know that you have aided me in a contribution to science. For the moment please accept my gratitude. I heartily thank you for the pure sample. For facts and reliability consult The Times. P. C.

INVESTORS BUY ENTIRE VILLAGE.

HISTORIC PLACER CAMP SOLD TO PORTERVILLE MEN.

White River, Once a Prosperous Mining Town, Involved in Big Realty Deal—Southern California Capital in Evidence in Marketing of Week.

PORTERVILLE, June 13.—The usual summer stagnation has not visited the Porterville realty and building industries as yet, and dealers of this section are confident that they are in for a record summer business, judging from the brisk demand and the number of land seekers who are in this district at the present time.

A sale of unusual historical interest of the past week was that of the entire town of White River to two Porterville business men, E. G. Zalud and Lawrence White. The transfer includes the White River general store postoffice, hotel, dance hall, blacksmith shop and five residences. This is all that remains of what was, in the prosperous placer mining days, one of the busy mining camps of the central valley.

C. N. Jordan, an Exeter business man, has sold his fifteen-acre vineyard property on the line of the Visalia Electric Railroad to Evans Brothers, large owners of property in the Cottage Grove district. The tract is improved and in table grapes and brought $1000 per acre.

The newly-organized Porterville Ranch Company, capitalized at $10,000, and of which the incorporators are Emma A., Vernon C. and Vernita McCullough of Los Angeles, has purchased the Stong alfalfa property of eighty acres, near the Porterville Alfalfa Company's property and intends to start extensive development work this summer.

Southern California investors are the incorporators of the Hardwood Alfalfa Company, capitalized at $75,000, fully subscribed. The stockholders of the company are A. H. Harwood and J. P. Wedel of Upland, H. S. Williams and E. G. Leaf of Porterville and A. H. Schwan of Los Angeles. The new company has purchased the Bachman tract of 600 acres of alfalfa property in the Woodville district and expect to start development of the land in the near future.

E. R. Abadie heads the Abadie Ranch Company, incorporated this week with San Francisco capital. The amount of capitalization was not stated in the preliminary papers filed. Abadie, who is a mining engineer, has bought sixty acres of land in the Deer Creek district from D. A. Vaughn, and the land is to be set to olive and early oranges. W. A. Humiston of Wasco has purchased from Darius Pratt the latter's ten-acre orange property in the Worth district.

Building operations during the past week have been more than ordinarily brisk. Anton Konda has received a permit for $16,000 worth of improvements to be made on business property at the corner of Main and Olive streets. The work will include a one-story brick business block to cost $9000, the remainder to be spent in the complete remodelling and modernization of the two-story Arlington building, which adjoins the site of the proposed new structure. Work is well under way on the new garage building being completed by Konda at the corner of Olive and Second streets, and which is the finest building of its kind in Tulare county. Five permits were granted this week for new residence properties.

One of the latest of the new schools in this section is that for the Vandalia district in the Plano orange region south of this city. The structure, costing about $20,000, is up to date and attractive, and was planned by F. W. Griffin of this city.

BUYS SITE FOR SCHOOL.

Purchaser of Culver City Lots Plans Educational Building for Girls. Many New Homes Projected.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CULVER CITY, June 13.—Mrs. Julia Abercombie has purchased a piece of property on Warner avenue in Culver City upon which she plans to erect a commodious building to be used as a private school for girls. This will be the new "Short Line" town's first educational institution.

M. Agard of Whittier, this week purchased a lot on Pico boulevard in Culver City, upon which he will immediately construct a handsome two-story white tile mercantile block. Mrs. Julia Evans of Whittier, this week purchased an east front lot on Delmas Terrace and will erect a chalet.

Forty-four new homes are to be constructed in Culver City in the next three months, according to the Harry H. Culver Company, which is handling the townsite operations. The Pendleton Automobile Company's new plant at Culver City has just been completed and will be in operation within a few days. The output of this plant will be confined, for the present, to racing cyclecars. The Panama Macaroni Company's factory has been completed and the installation of machinery is now under way.

CHILDREN GROW RICH OVER NIGHT.

NEGRO BOYS AND GIRLS COMING INTO FORTUNES.

Destitute Descendants of Slaves Become Millionaires as Result of Discovery of Oil in Cushing Field. Have Become Recipients of Large Royalties.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CUSHING (Okla.) June 12.—Fortune-getting has its queer phases, but probably it never took on a more curious aspect than in the case of some little negro children in this section, into whose pockets the silver dollars are rolling as a result of the discovery of oil.

The foundation for these fortunes was laid years ago, when the slaves of the Creek Indians were freed by the Civil War. In 1866 the United States government and the Creek Indians at Ft. Smith, Ark., settled a treaty whereby the latter's slaves and their descendants were allotted an equal share with their former owners in the old Creek lands in Indian territory.

The land which they secured was rough and barren. Oil was a thing undreamt of. Then one day—nearly fifty years after the former slaves came into possession of the land—when most of them had passed away and were, perhaps, forgotten, and while their descendants waged war with dire poverty, some one saw the petroleum possibilities of the region.

There is one little black orphan girl by name Sarah Rector, 11 years old, who some time ago was borrowing and begging a living from her neighbors. Now she is said to be worth $4,000,000. The story of the coming of this sudden wealth is the veriest fairy tale.

One day while the little negro girl was endeavoring to eke out a bare livelihood, there came a bustling oil promoter and picked out her little plot of ground as the most likely location for a well. After a considerable search he found the little owner, and arranged a lease on a one-eighth royalty basis. Shortly afterward he finished the best well in the Cushing fields, and in twenty days paid to Sarah her eighth share of $60,000, and for months afterward the receipts showed little diminution.

In another case there is a ten-year-old negro boy, who acquired his land in much the same fashion as the little orphan girl. He also was minus any near relations, except an uncle, as poor as himself. Last month, however, this little negro's royalty receipts were $12,000, and his income is now at the rate of $190 a day.

It is interesting to note that the little negro girl, Sarah, has been the recipient of matrimonial overtures from no less than four would-be swains—white men at that. They were informed by the attorney who has charge of Sarah's affairs that she displayed a distinct aversion to fortune hunters.

Strange to say, a midget Croesus, like Sarah, or the negro boy, Dan Tucker, attracts little attention in his or her own home, probably because there are so many others who have grown rich with the same suddenness, and who have even larger fortunes than they.

WELL AGAIN PRODUCES.

California Petroleum Gusher in Maricopa Is Yielding Two Thousand Barrels Daily.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MARICOPA, June 12.—The California Petroleum Corporation, on its Midland oilfields lease in this field, has brought in its well No. 3 again with a production of 2000 barrels of 25.5 gravity oil. The California Petroleum well was off production for a time, owing to a collapsed casing.

The Maricopa Northern Oil Company, on section 32, is making an effort to bring in its well as a good producer. So far no steady production has been secured, the flow being at intervals. The well is one of the deepest on the "flat."

The production of the Universal Oil Company in the Lost Hills district, for the month of May, is estimated at 75,000 barrels, while the General Petroleum is estimated to have a production of 63,000 barrels in the same district for that month.

The Midway Northern Oil Company, since reopening its property on section 32, has had considerable trouble with its well No. 4 because of water. This well is to be recemented.

MASONIC BLOCK SOLD.

Unnamed Buyer Purchases Three-story Brick Business and Lodge Building—Seller Buys Acreage.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, June 13.—The most important real estate deal of the week was that in which the Masonic building at the corner of Hope street and Fair Oaks avenue changed hands. H. K. Huls of Merced sold the property to an unnamed buyer, at a reported consideration of $60,000. The lot is 60x153 feet and is improved with a three-story brick business block. The first floor is occupied by a garage and a newspaper office, the second and third floors by flats and the Masonic quarters. The deal was handled by the Groves Realty Company of this city, and Robert Marsh & Co. of Los Angeles.

Huls, since his sale, has become interested in a large syndicate which is being formed and which has purchased a tract of land near the Midwick Country Club, consisting of 1400 acres of unimproved property.

Bert F. Mull has sold to R. N. Nickevich, 100x150 feet on Monterey road between Marengo and Garfield avenues, with a two-story, eight-room house. Mull and his family will occupy a bungalow they own on Oxley court until fall, when they expect to build.

R. J. Graye reports the sale of one acre of unimproved land north of El Monte for $900. The seller was E. J. Becker of Pasadena and the buyer Mrs. Mary E. Bostwick of Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Bostwick will immediately build a bungalow.

Work was started last Monday on the excavation for the new two-story brick Ong building on the east side of Fair Oaks avenue between Mission and El Centro streets.

SCHOOL CONTRACT LET.

Seal Beach to Have Modern Grade Institution by Opening of Fall Term—Dunes to Go.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SEAL BEACH, June 13.—Contracts have just been let for the erection of a brick and concrete school-building of four rooms at Seal Beach. The building will cost $7000 and with playgrounds and tennis court and outside improvements together with the cost of the land will represent a total investment of about $20,000. The work on the new school will begin immediately.

The school will be erected between Eleventh and Twelfth streets and will face on North avenue, the location being almost in the exact center of the Seal Beach school district. The site is midway between Anaheim and Alamitos bays and three blocks back from the ocean. The building will be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the fall term.

Contracts have been let for the moving of the sand dunes between Seal Beach Court and the pavilion on the ocean front. This work will be actively pushed and Seal Way completed as soon as the sand has been removed. Seal Way will form a cement promenade twenty to twenty-five feet wide all the way from Anaheim Bay to Alamitos Bay a distance of a mile and a half.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS.

Several Important Improvements, Including Six or More Business Blocks, Under Way in Ontario.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, June 13.—Signs of prosperity in Ontario were never more marked than at present. With a half-dozen or more business blocks in course of construction or contracted for in the immediate future, with a new tourist hotel an assured fact, with work being rushed on a new $20,000 church edifice and with ground to be broken next week for a new Y.M.C.A. building, this city is a veritable hive of industry, in so far as building activity goes.

The new hotel, plans for which are now being prepared by Butler Brothers' Construction Company of Los Angeles and actual work on which will commence July 1, holds the center of interest. The hostelry will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, and will be strictly modern. C. B. Ford and E. A. Parkford are back of the project. The hotel is to occupy a particularly attractive site at Emporia and Fern avenues, just a block off the State highway.

Chief among the new business buildings now under way are the J. E. Walker block on Euclid avenue, between A and B streets, a two-story brick, to be occupied by three stores and offices, and to cost $20,000; the new $15,000 Lerch block, on the same street; the $10,000 Drew building, on Euclid between B and C, and the $50,000 concrete and brick building at Euclid avenue and Commercial court.

Work on the new First Baptist Church at Euclid avenue and E street is being rushed and the edifice promises to be one of the handsomest in the city. It is to be of concrete construction. The new home of the Young Men's Christian Association, work on which is to start in a few weeks, will cost about $5000.

About $30,000 is now being spent in the reconstruction of the Science building of the Chaffey High School group, recently destroyed by fire, and about $5000 more is to be spent this summer on improvements to the Chaffey auditorium. The new Central grammar school, of concrete and brick construction, erected at a cost of $40,000, has just been completed.

Close to $100,000 has already been spent this year on new residences and many more are contemplated. Several new residence subdivisions are soon to be put on the market, the principal one being the College Park tract, occupying a site on Euclid avenue opposite the Chaffey High School.

TO CHICAGO MAN.

James Durkin, Pacific Coast representative of the Doolittle Manufacturing Company of Chicago, whose business headquarters have been established in Los Angeles, was a purchaser at Brentwood Park during the week and plans to build a home this summer. The site selected by Durkin is on Canyon drive near Euclid avenue. The lot has a frontage of 100 feet, facing toward the ocean and overlooking Santa Monica Canyon, and is 276 feet in depth. Durkin immediately placed before an architect the matter of having designs prepared for a home to cost about $9000. The general treatment of the house will be in the Spanish bungalow type, with three wings surrounding a patio. The purchase was consummated through J. Albert Campbell of the Braly-Janss Company.

FOR BIG OIL CONCERN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, June 13.—Building operations now going on here include four projects of a semi-public nature that are much appreciated in Whittier and which are of considerable value in building up the city and community. Work is progressing rapidly on the new office building of the Standard Oil Company, and the structure will soon be occupied by a force of officials and other office men brought chiefly from Los Angeles and San Francisco. Work is also progressing well on the Standard's new tank and distributing plant west of the Southern Pacific depot. The Southern California Edison Company began work on its new substation this week. The contract calls for an expenditure of about $4500. Three carloads of machinery for the Whittier Ice and Cold Storage plant arrived this week and is now being installed. The plant will have an initial capacity of fifteen tons per day.

RUSSIA SEVERE ON UNIONISTS.

[illegible] Organizations Unable to Exist Openly.

Publication of Labor Organ Made Very Difficult.

[illegible] of Paper's Editors Put in Prison.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, May 30.—Russian trade unionists have been celebrating the second anniversary of the establishment of a labor press in the country. Notwithstanding the most elaborate precautions taken by the police, meetings have been held in almost all factories, collections made and resolutions adopted in support of the press. In many factories workmen have resolved to devote to the press fund a whole day's wages and to try their best to increase the number of subscribers.

Since it was established, Truth, the organ of the trades unions, has had forty-six issues confiscated and it has had to change its name half a dozen times. Besides, fines totalling $4000 have been paid; sixteen of its editors have been imprisoned, and their sentences totalled forty-seven months.

In fact, throughout Russia, labor organizations, through the interference of the police, are unable to exist openly. This, in the opinion of many employers, is the cause of the frequent strikes and lack of understanding between them and their men. Should a dispute arise and the men appoint the delegates to meet the employers these delegates are immediately arrested as the ringleaders of some imaginary revolution, and as a consequence the negotiations come to nothing. The organizations have been driven to hold their meetings in secret and are practically ruled by secret committees. No man dare disobey the orders of these committees.

The perfect control exercised is shown by an incident freely quoted here. It was intimated that no work would be permitted on a casting required for a certain battleship. The casting traveled from one dock yard to another, and wherever it appeared the men refused to work on it. Finally the boycott was mysteriously removed and the work was speedily completed.

UNLAWFUL DEMAND.

Restraint of Trade or Furtherance of Monopoly Demanded in Congressional Legislation Is Unlawful.

[Philadelphia Record:] All combinations which, in the light of reason, must be regarded as in restraint of trade or in furtherance of a monopoly, are unlawful. This is the officially authorized version of the substantive provisions of the Sherman law as it now stands. The adjective or administrative features of the act permit the issue of injunctions to prevent or arrest violations thereof; and since the substantive provisions of the law apply to all combinations, irrespective of the character of their component parts, it follows that violations may be enjoined even against unlawful combinations of workingmen. The amendment of the act, which is insisted upon by the American Federation of Labor, would specifically exclude organizations of workingmen from the operation thereof; that is to say, laborers would be inferentially permitted to commit trespasses which would be crimes if committed by anybody else.

The demand is clearly inadmissable; and President Wilson, as the leader of the party which stands for equality and is opposed to privilege, was bound to take issue with any Democratic Representatives coming to him with a proposal so preposterous. The Clayton bill, containing the supplementary anti-trust legislation approved by the administration, goes as far as it is possible to go into the direction of relieving labor organization from judicial or other legal restrictions alleged to be oppressive. Section 6 of the bill reads as follows:

"Nothing contained in the anti-trust laws (including the Sherman act) shall be construed to forbid the existence and operation of fraternal, labor, consumers, agricultural or horticultural organizations, orders or associations operating under the lodge system, instituted for the purpose of mutual help, and not having capital stock or conducted for profit; or to forbid or restrain individual members thereof from carrying out the legitimate objects of such associations."

The complaint that the very existence of labor unions is dependent upon the exercise by the Attorney-General of his discretion to prosecute or not to prosecute, is unfounded; but if it were true this section would be a complete answer. Such organizations would be expressly sanctioned by law, and the members specifically authorized to carry out the legitimate objects of the same. No provision of any anti-trust law could be judicially construed to nullify the legal recognition of laborers', farmers' or consumers' associations nor to diminish the rights of the members thereof. Of course, if an association of this character should pursue illegitimate objects they could not be lawfully carried out; and authority to do so could be no more reasonably asked in this instance than in case of any other misdemeanor.

THE BREEDERS OF ANARCHY.

[EDITORIAL.]

SOME time ago it was suggested that the British government would do well if it rounded up the leaders of the "wild women," put them on a steamer and shipped them off to some Adamless island where they could shriek to their hearts' content. If the United States were able to adopt some such policy with regard to union labor agitators this country would be considerably better off.

The professional union labor agitator is a curse to this country. He (sometimes it's a she) is an excrescence on the fair face of this country and should be burned off with a large dose of caustic. No professional labor agitator should knowingly be admitted to this country. The United States would do itself no harm if it followed the example of British Columbia in dealing with men and women of this stripe.

Last year, when a leader of the I Won't Works sought to cross the British Columbia boundary the Canadian immigration authorities, acting upon instructions from the provincial government at Victoria, turned him back. They knew he was going to foment disorder at Nanaimo, where the I.W.W. rascals had induced ignorant coal miners to strike and riot. Similarly, when that precious organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, "Mother" Mary Jones, sought to leave Seattle for Vancouver early in June, she was stopped by a Canadian official. "Mother" Mary Jones pretended that she wanted to go to Vancouver, but the Canadian official knew that her real object was to get to the coal mines on Vancouver Island to stir up anew the coal miners.

That official was on to the woman's game. "You don't want to go to Vancouver; you're desire is to go to Nanaimo to kick up a disturbance among the miners. We don't want your kind in British Columbia and you can't go," declared the immigration officials more forcibly than politely. He knew politeness would be lost on a she labor union agitator.

So the steamer from Seattle to Vancouver had to sail without dear "Mother" Jones. Of course, the representative of the international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America got busy in frantic appeals to the pal at headquarters, Secretary of Labor Wilson in Washington. A busy bustler by the name of Frank Farrington signed his three-syllable name to sizzling appeals to Comrade Wilson to insist on Canada according to sweet "Mother" Jones "every right that she is entitled to as an American citizen." Certainly every American is entitled to his rights, but one has yet to learn that those rights include going to a city belonging to a peaceful neighbor to induce men to set at defiance the laws of that country.

Those who follow the history of labor unionism on this continent have not yet had time to forget the bloody struggle that took place near Nanaimo last year when miners on Canadian soil, inflamed by paid labor union agitators from a foreign state, in this case America, attacked British Columbia policemen and special officers and destroyed valuable property. Nor do they forget that British Columbia was put to large expense in calling out the militia and in holding court to try the ringleaders and some of their dupes. The strife and the expense were forced upon British Columbia by unions on this side of the line which had absolutely no legal standing in the Dominion and none of the rights about which Frank Farrington whines. Supposing a batch of blatherskites from British Columbia—they have 'em up there as well as elsewhere—were to come to Los Angeles and seek by disorderly methods to unionize this city, would Angelenos seriously consider that they had rights? As well suppose that Holy Hi will be re-elected Governor of California. The trouble makers would, far from gently, be hurried back to their own country. And so British Columbia is to be commended for refusing to receive agitators from this side of the line whose mission is to raise the devil on foreign soil.

Those who follow the Free Workers' page of The Times every Sunday—and every Angeleno should do so and thus receive a liberal education on labor matters—know full well the terrible mischief which the paid labor union agitators are accomplishing throughout the world. It appears that the sun never sets on their wickedness. To misquote an old hymn, the sun that bids them rest in America is waking their dastardly brethren 'neath the Australian sky. The sound of their raucous voices is heard all around the world, like the drum beats of empire. They are active among building trades workers, among banana retailers, ship repairers, coal miners, trolley employees, blacksmiths, painters, tailors and bricklayers. In fact, in any trade and in any place there are these agitators, the curse of labor.

We know what has happened in Colorado and we now learn from Frederick N. Shorey that that sad State, the Mecca for dangerous agitators, is believed to be in danger of being turned into a Territory again because it has signally failed in its duty as a State. Nobody can read Mr. Shorey's account of the awful conditions to which union labor agitators have brought Colorado without wishing that the whole of the pestiferous brood could be thrown out of the country. They are not worthy to enjoy the privileges of living in these United States, which they would disunite by their murderous actions and by their vicious speech. Colorado deserves a better fate than to be converted by labor agitators from a wealthy State into a bloody slough of despond.

Bottom Facts.

STRIKERS BEGAN MURDER IN COLORADO COAL CAMPS.

Appalling Waste of Money Entailed; Barbarities Perpetrated by Unionites Who Are Responsible for the Destruction of the Ludlow Colony—Operators Affirm That They Have Nothing to Arbitrate.

BY JOHN M. STEELE.

DENVER (Colo.) June 11.—Murder and rioting are common in the great coal districts of the State as the result of the efforts of the United Mine Workers of America to force unionism upon the coal operators. The cost to date has been upwards of $12,000,000, a loss of seventy-three lives and a property loss of $300,000. Unparalleled outrages have been committed by lawless unionites in the mutilation of the bodies of American citizens killed in defending their property and their laws.

The strike has been in progress in the northern fields for three years and in the southern fields for eight months with not one foot of forward progress by the strikers, and no backward step taken by the coal operators. Federal interference became necessary and the war zone is now patrolled by United States cavalry. The coal operators are standing pat on the proposition that they have nothing to arbitrate, mediate or compromise, and that the mines operating under the open shop are producing a normal output at less expense than mines in which union men are employed.

Colorado is a great coal State, possessing more than 11,000,000 acres of coal lands, of which by far the greater part still belongs to the United States government; 473,000 acres belong to the State of Colorado as trustee for the school funds. Of these 473,000 acres less than 14,000 are under lease and of this leased acreage only 5500 acres are productive. Less than 3 per cent. of the vast coal acreage of Colorado is held in private ownership.

COAL FIELDS NON-UNION.

The two greatest fields are popularly called the northern and southern, and they are both non-union. The unions have, however, looked upon times about 13,000 men, with avaricious eyes and have made many attempts to unionize them. In the fall of 1913 emissaries of the union were sent here from Indiana, West Virginia and other States and all of the power of the United Mine Workers was focused upon the southern fields, and a strike was ordered without vote of the strikers and by a packed convention of union leaders.

The coal operators proceeded to operate with non-union men. Following their usual tactics on these occasions the union men began to beat up and even kill non-union workmen, and on October 28 the National Guard was sent into the field to keep the peace. This they did for six months, with the loss of but two lives, one by accident and the other killed while resisting arrest with arms in his hands, neither being a union man.

April 17, 1914, the troops, with the exception of thirty-four men left at Ludlow, were withdrawn because the State Auditor had thrown every possible obstacle in the path to prevent the payment of the troops or of providing for their support in the field.

Immediately upon this withdrawal pillage, arson and murder broke out in the most horrible form. April 20 came the battle of Ludlow.

THE CRIMES AT LUDLOW.

The strikers' tent colony at Ludlow was an armed camp under strict control of the union leaders and was peopled by a class of persons graphically described in the report of the military commission as "ignorant, lawless and savage South European peasants." They spoke twenty or more different languages, and most of them could not speak English at all. While they were of many nationalities, the Greeks predominated, especially as a fighting force. The six Americans in the colony were allowed no voice in the policy of the strikers.

The tent colony was purposely so located as to command an unobstructed view of the railroad depot near at hand, where workingmen were obliged to get on and off trains. The conduct of the strikers during the winter was such that it was necessary to send a detail of soldiers to every train in order to protect the non-union men from physical violence.

No man wishing to leave the colony and go to work could do so except under guard of the State troops, and during the winter over 100 men were in this way taken from the tent colony under military guard at their own request.

April 20 a detail of men was sent in the usual way to rescue a man who had called for help, and as usual the negotiations were had with Louis Tikas, the Greek leader of the colony. This time for some reason the man was not given up, and instead the Greeks took to the hills and appeared to be preparing for action while the women and children ran to the shelter of a deep gulch north of the colony. There were only thirty-four soldiers on duty and they were scattered in small groups, most of them being two or three miles away.

STRIKERS OPEN FIRE FIRST.

Tikas went back to his Greeks promising Maj. Hamrock, the military officer in command, to call them back to the colony, but failed to do so. The soldiers saw the armed Greeks running to the hills and taking possession of vantage points around them but the military officers would not allow the soldiers to fire until the strikers first opened fire on them. This is one of the many instances showing that while the soldiers suffered from all the dangers and liabilities of war, they were prevented from taking advantages of its privileges. Had the soldiers been free to fight their enemies the Greeks would never have reached the hills and the battle would have ended much sooner. As it was, when the firing from the Greeks had lasted long enough to show that they really meant business, the troops returned it and then these thirty-four soldiers fought and held at bay several hundred foreigners from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., when reinforcements began to arrive, thought at the most there were only about 120 soldiers engaged. The number of strikers engaged has been variously estimated at from 400 to 800 men. They were heavily armed with the latest and best models of high-power rifles, although their leaders had solemnly assured the State government that they had surrendered their arms. They used explosive bullets and so-called "poisoned" bullets (both expressly forbidden by the rules of civilized warfare) and some of their ammunition was manufactured in Greece. They were amply supplied with ammunition, over 15,000 rounds having been found in the tent of John R. Lawson, one of the strike leaders, after the battle.

When the reinforcements arrived the soldiers began to press forward until they took a range of sand hills and steadily drove the Greeks back where a soldier named Martin was wounded. The fire of the Greeks was concentrated upon this position and the soldiers were unable to hold the hills. There were but four men in the detachment with Martin and they were unable to carry him across the exposed ground, so they placed him in a depression in the hills, where he would be safe from the fire from both sides, and retreated.

Another detachment fought its way up to the tent colony, where they heard the cries of women and children. The tents had caught fire before the soldiers arrived, but when they heard the cries of the women and children they rushed in among the burning tents and rescued between twenty-five and thirty and carried them away to safety. While engaged in this humane work the soldiers were under constant fire from the Greeks. To save these women and children the soldiers, while still under fire from the Greeks, were obliged to tear up tent floors, which had been nailed over the openings to the pits, and draw the cowering inmates out by main force. Then these soldiers, who had had no pay for three months, took up a collection among themselves and raised $18 that night for the relief of these suffering women and children.

Late in the afternoon the sand hills were retaken by the soldiers, who then found the body of their comrade with his head blown off and his limbs broken. This barbarity shocked and infuriated them and, of course, it was immediately reported to Lieut. Linderfelt. A few minutes after this Louis Tikas was captured, after he had been fighting all day with the Greeks. Acting under the frightful stress of that all-day's battle, where the strikers numbered almost twenty to one, without water, food or rest for nine hours, and with the report of the atrocities committed upon the body of their comrade, the soldiers wanted to hang Tikas. This purpose was defeated by Linderfelt. Later Tikas attempted to escape and in the testimony at the court-martial, later, it developed that he was shot by his own men while running to rejoin the Greeks.

STRIKERS KILLED CHILD.

There was, however, no firing on women and children, unless it was the firing by the Greeks on the little Snyder boy, who was killed by a striker's bullet and who was the only child killed, or even struck by a bullet. Both sides agree also that no woman was struck by a bullet from either side. The thirteen women and children who were suffocated in the tiny pit under the ground, not large enough for three of them to remain in for three hours and live, were probably dead long before the tents caught fire. But in any event, the soldiers could not possibly have been to blame in the slightest for this tragedy. The strikers had rifle pits in front of the colony tents and were hidden in the arroyo or gulch behind them, and were firing on the soldiers from both sides. The strikers could easily have retreated from both rifle pits and from the arroyo and still have continued the fight on equally as good terms from some other vantage point, but they elected not to do so.

The death of these women and children was a most regrettable incident of this unfortunate battle in this inexcusable war, but the strikers started the war and commenced every battle. They were also in a position to know that the women and childzen were in the underground pits, while the soldiers were not in a position to even suspect such a thing. Among civilized peoples when the men go out to war they first put women and children in places of safety, instead of leaving them exposed to all the dangers of battle, and in such case as the soldiers had seen the women and children running to the arroyo, where they would be absolutely safe, they naturally supposed, and had a right to suppose, that they were all out of danger. The strikers, who must have known that some women and children were left in the colony, could have retreated from the colony or could easily have changed the point of fighting to another point, and either maneuver would have stopped the battle or have changed the line of fire so that the women and children left in the tents would have been safe. They chose, however, to do neither, but rather to continue the fight in a place which made it necessary for the firing to endanger the lives of their own women and children.

The fault, then, rests squarely upon the shoulders of the strikers themselves and not upon the members of the National Guard, who were stationed there to uphold the Constitution and the laws of the State, who were attacked by overwhelming numbers and who were fighting for their lives, as well.

It is inconceivable to suppose that thirty-four men scattered in three or four groups would deliberately attack a very much larger force as well-armed and better fortified than the State troops.

NATIONAL GUARD CALLED AGAIN.

The two machine guns manned by the State troops were never turned on the tent colony itself, but were used against the strikers entrenched in the sand hills and rifle pits and along the railroad tracks.

The main body of the National Guard, men who had been returned home, were called back into the field on April 22. These troops, who had not been paid for three months, loyally returned to duty. If the ill-advised truce had not been made on the 24th peace would have been quickly re-established by the swift defeat of the strikers. As it was, the strikers took advantage of the so-called truce to burn and destroy half a dozen mines and to murder many citizens of the State, the troops being compelled by the terms of the truce to protect either life or property caused by the failure of the lawless strikers to respect the terms of the truce.

Then came the call for the Federal troops, two or three desperate battles between the strikers and the National Guard brought on by the determination of the strikers to destroy the remaining mines in the district, the defeat and surrender of the strikers to the National Guard, the arrival of the Federal troops and the withdrawal of the State troops from the strike districts.

Then followed the special session of the Legislature, which appropriated one million dollars to pay the expenses of the strike and to maintain the National Guard in the field in the event of another call, the passage of laws prohibiting the carrying of arms and the closing of saloons in time of disturbance and riot.

From the first the coal operators have conceded every demand of the non-union men except recognition of the union, which the operators are determined never to do.

Certain ignorant, ill-advised, malicious persons have wilfully and maliciously misinterpreted the eternal principles of free speech, a free press, the right to worship God and the freedom of labor. They deem freedom of speech as license to malign their neighbors, freedom of the press as license to distort the news and to besmirch and befoul this country and its institutions, deeming freedom to worship God as license to persecute, torture and even to kill those who worship Him in a different way, and deeming freedom of labor as being license to forcibly prevent other men from working.

Labor agitators have for many years preached, taught and practiced, not only in Colorado, but in every State in the union the doctrine that a labor union cannot only work or quit work as it pleases (which is its inalienable right,) but that a labor union can also rightfully prevent other men from working, and that in order to prevent other men from working the union men have the right not only to use peaceful persuasion, but also to use physical violence upon those other workingmen, to burn and destroy their homes, to kill them by secret assassination or open murder, and that in their warfare against non-union men the union men have the right to openly fight the duly constituted authorities of both State and nation and to defy and insult the flag of our country.

Labor agitators under different names, in Pennsylvania as Molly Maguires, in Idaho and Colorado as the Western Federation of Miners, and now as the United Mine Workers, have openly taught and practiced the use of force, even though it lead to murder as proper means of inciting class hatred and class war.

The confession of the McNamaras as to the blowing up of the Times Building at Los Angeles, the various attempts to murder the proprietor of that paper, Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, and other wholesale destruction of property by dynamite as the hired agents of the steel workers illustrates better than any one other thing their methods of procedure.

This present trouble in Colorado was brought about, not because of any conditions in the mines, but by these same labor agitators, who are not workers and who seek to prevent others from working.

This business of organizing unions, fomenting strikes and especially of preparing for the use of violence and of accustoming their members to the idea of killing non-union men is a profession in itself.

The labor leaders in this trouble are not miners and very few of them are residents of Colorado. They have been imported into the State and especially into the strike districts for the purpose of inciting strikes and of directing hostilities against the authorities.

Louis Tikas was never a miner himself, but was hired to head the strikers, many imported from Europe thirty days before the strike. Men who come to the United States and who take up arms against it before they can speak English, who murder and mutilate the bodies of American citizens, are undesirable citizens, and ought to be deported, and the Federal government that permitted them to come here ought to take them away from the State and from the country.

Fisticuffs.

UNION LABORITES RIOT IN AUSTRALIA PARLIAMENT

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

SYDNEY, May 11.—Wild scenes culminating in a pillow fight and fisticuffs, marked a recent all-night sitting of the Australian Parliament. Because the opposition continued obstruction tactics, the government decided on an all-night sitting, and the government whip provided the Ministerialists with pillows and blankets. The Laborites, who were not so comfortable, trying to sleep with books as pillows and newspapers as blankets, commenced removing the blankets and pillows from their slumbering opponents and a battle royal, recalling nursery days, was the result. The melee nearly became a riot when a Labor member struck the government whip on the jaw. Efforts were made to separate the fighters and soon almost the whole membership of the House was rolling on the floor, wrestling, hitting and clawing. Finally the antagonists were separated and the blankets restored to their rightful owners. The debate then proceeded until the government forced a vote, while two of the Labor members were out of the room. The House adjourned after a twenty-hours' sitting.

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES AND STRIKERS OF THIS UNEASY WORLD.

THREE of the biggest trade unions in Great Britain have decided to form a combine for self-protection. The unions are the miners, the railway men and the transport workers. These are the three most highly organized unions in the country, and their aggregate membership is 1,350,000. The decision to form this big combination was reached at a meeting of the executive committees of the three unions referred to. The decision will have to be submitted to a national conference shortly, and is likely to be indorsed. The scheme, which is most important alike to the workmen and the nation, provides, among other things, that in the event of one body in the combine going out on strike the others will support it, and all wages and other demands will be presented simultaneously. Off-hand, it would strike us that such a huge organization will be crushed by its own weight.

The proposed strike in the Delaware and Hudson railway shops at Colme, N. Y., is off. It was all about two men which the company would not discharge because they had not paid their union dues. They paid up and 800 men saved their wages by not striking.

A strike vote is being taken of the 75,000 engineers and firemen on ninety-eight railroads west of Chicago. Result willnot be known until near July 1. The strike vote will affect workers on 140,000 miles of railway, who receive $67,750,000 a year in wages. Granting present demands would increase this expense approximately $84,000,000, a sum entirely out of the question for the roads to pay without virtual bankruptcy. Other demands, quite as unreasonable, are made by the unions.

David Shapiro, a prominent New York I.W.W., has gone to prison for twenty years for robbing a man in the I.W.W. headquarters. He is an ex-convict. His helpers got five years each. The amount of the plunder was $2.75.

Union men and women are now making appeals to President Wilson to pardon this and that convicted criminal for violating court orders, etc. Gompers will have to watch out or President Wilson will get his job. Today the President is union labor's (violent and otherwise) chief partisan.

Ten thousand "Westinghouse" workare are on strike at Pittsburgh and near Pittsburgh. It is a fight for recognition of the union, and began over the discharge of twenty-four men. Some violence has already occurred. The wage loss is fearfully heavy, as so many are skilled workers.

There may not be arbitration in the Albany (N. Y.) teamsters' strike. They will fight it out.

More than 100,000 mill hands in St. Petersburg, Russia, went on strike on June 1 as a protest against the trial of the men who resisted the police in the recent strikes.

The furniture factory strike at Wakefield, Mass., is over, and the 800 foolish strikers for nothing are again earning wages.

At last the authorities of New York City are showing some pluck and are arresting the I.W.W.'s who persist in breaking the peace of that city.

The railway men of England are more strongly unionized than ever before, and are perparing for a strike. They want a 48-hour week, an immediate increase of 5 shillings ($1.25) a week in every grade in the railway service. Recognition of the union is also insisted upon. One of their number—a member of Parliament—leads the union.

The Portsmouth (O.) three-months' shoe strike was a dismal failure, and is declared off. More than 2000 workers were involved, all of whom have lost nearly three months' good American wages. Quite a number of the labor leaders broke the peace and were sent to jail.

The Chicago bricklayers' strike is over after causing a loss of several weeks' wages to 150,000 workers, of whom 147,000 did not strike, but who had to suffer all the same to please the 3000 strikers. The union is decidedly not recognized in the settlement, but those bricklayers receiving less than 40 cents an hour, get a raise of 1 cent an hour—a very trifling result for so heavy (150,000 men) a wages loss by the several weeks' strike.

St. Louis people are getting their moving done free because of the union movers' strike. Rather than let the non-union movers get the jobs, the union movers on strike are doing the work for nothing.

Demanding a nine-hour day and a minimum wage of $3.25 per day, 400 machinists employed at four manufacturing plants at Trenton, N. J., are out on strike.

New York City has a new kind of strike. A la Heinz, there are "fifty-seven varieties." Eight hundred and fifty actors are "out," led by our old friend, Francis Wilson. They want a uniform contract. Their society is known as the Actors' Equity Association and the strike follows months of quiet preparation. Actors have just as much right to strike as any other kind of workers, but this is their first big effort. They want (and ought to have) a form of contract that will stand test in the courts. There is no demand for any set wages scale.

The Kosher bakers of New York are on strike for union wages and better working conditions. The strike is supported by the 100 unions in the United Hebrew Trades.

Serious strike riots have occurred in the sulphur fields of Sicily, Italy. Troops had to be sent there to quell them. Part of a town was burned down by the strikers, including five large sulphur houses.

The Italian Socialist organization has declared a general strike throughout Italy, which, as before, may or may not be obeyed. Two people were killed the first day.

Ohio coal miners and operators have abandoned all efforts to agree upon a new wage scale. The mines were closed April 1, and 50,000 men are "out." The daily wage loss is very large. No matter how a strike is begun, or how long it lasts, or how it is finally settled, there is always that heavy and irredeemable wage loss. The strike game "is never worth the candle." Labor could grow rich on the strike wage losses it so foolishly incurs. Strikes never pay.

The men employed in the building trades of London have by vote rejected the peace terms offered by the master builders. The strike, which has been in force for some time, involves 45,000 men directly and 30,000 indirectly. The London master builders will recommend a national lockout unless the strike is settled in ten days. The cause of the strike was the employment of non-union workmen. There is talk of the strikers making contracts directly with customers and cutting out the contractors entirely. As a fact, two big buildings are now being erected in that way directly by the union men.

The dockmen at Albany, N. Y., are again on strike. The strikers complain of being given incorrect time cards.

London Theosophists face a strike on their $500,000 building, owing to the employment of a few non-union men, to hurry things.

War in Colorado.

[Boston Advertiser:] Should President Wilson require the assistance of the militia in dealing with the situation created by Huerta's extraordinary actions, he would not be able to get much help from the militia of the State of Colorado. Colorado has a little war of its own upon its hands. The strike in the mines in which Mr. Rockefeller has a large interest has developed into a war. The strikers have not been pleased with the attempt to fill their places with men outside of the organization, and they are practically starting a civil war without any justification. It does not rest with them to say who shall work in the mines so long as they, themselves, refuse to work. Already their violence has compelled the Governor of Colorado, who has never been unfriendly to organized labor, to call out the militia. When they start in to fight the militia, they are hopelessly in the wrong, and it is a pity that their leaders have not sense enough to see it.

STANDARD OIL THRIVED THROUGH PROSECUTIONS.

Charles D. Chamberlain, General Counsel for Forty-five Independent Refineries, Makes Surprising Statement—Bill Introduced to "Nationalize" 10,000 Miles of Trunk Pipe Lines Valued at Fifty Million Dollars.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The latest weapon to be drawn against the Standard Oil Company is a proposal by Senator Owen of Oklahoma to nationalize its 10,000 miles of trunk pipe lines, valued, so John D. Rockefeller once said, at $50,000,000.

Nationalize means purchase. Mr. Rockefeller, though, may contend that it means confiscate. Having separated the Standard into many supposedly detached units, the government is now listening to another plan of attack on the richest monopoly that ever existed.

The attitude of the White House toward the project remains undivulged. At least one member of the Cabinet is not averse to the suggestion. Senators, on intimate political and legislative terms with the President, are known to favor it. The House swarms with public-ownership advocates. In the main, of course, the idea is to push the frontier of the new freedom forward so as to include petroleum.

It is admitted that the manufacturing end of the oil industry is enormously profitable. The Standard is said to be making more money than ever before. Owners of large independent refineries are fast getting rich. "Melons" are being cut. Companies are declaring stock dividends. Meanwhile yearly returns on the old capitalizations are not being reduced.

The Standard, every one agrees, could lower prices and drive its competitors, large and small, out of business. But the Standard is as eager for profits as ever and, besides, a complete monopolization of the oil trade at this juncture of public sentiment would not be tolerated. The Standard has enough potential enemies already. Its policy now is to live and let live, inasmuch as it is getting the cream of the living.

WITS MATCHED WITH STANDARD.

Nor will the independent refiners slash the quotations of their finished products. They, too, are human beings. Again they are afraid to enter a trade war with their powerful enemy. The campaign in such an event would be short and destructive, provided the Standard got wrathful and momentarily laid aside its policy of indulgence and shrewd practice.

The independents, also, are ably generaled. Mostly, they are men of uncommon courage and sagacity. No weakling, sound of mind, so far as he had any, would have dared to measure his wits against the wits of the two John D.'s—Rockefeller and Archbold. Lits it had to be. A measuring of money was clearly impossible.

So, under the belly of the ox the independents nibbled such pasturage as was reachable. And the nibbling was good. While they grew in size, the independents grew in heart. Presently they stepped out and away from the shadow. Now they challenge the rights of the big feeder to the field itself.

Still, they must have assistance. Therefore they will call on the national government. The pipe lines, they say, should be open to them on equal terms with the Standard, the present exclusive owner. Competing lines would cost a mint of money. Furthermore, a duplication of property would be a crime against industrial economy.

The tactical and constructive leader of most of the independents is Charles D. Chamberlin. As general counsel of the National Petroleum Association he has been fighting the Standard Oil Company for nine years. His war on monopoly has brought him to Washington many times for conferences with the high and mighty, has taken him into all parts of the country and has caused him to appear before a special committee of the German Reichstag in Berlin.

Forty-five of the largest refining companies in the United States compose the National Petroleum Association. Their capital, roughly, is $75,000,000. They have plants in Western Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Kansas and Oklahoma. Rockefeller, a prudent but daring man, never was a prospector. Searching for petroleum is a blind and adventurous undertaking. Refining the oil after it is found, save the risk from fire, is a safe manufacturing business. The independents, following the careful methods of Rockefeller, dig no wells themselves. They buy crude petroleum and turn it into illuminating oil, gasoline and so on.

THE STANDARD STILL CONTROLS.

"In the refining of oil," Mr. Chamberlin told the writer, "the Standard has no advantages over the independents. Their chemists and processes are no better than ours. The control of the oil business rests entirely upon the means of transportation. Possessing the means, the Standard, by reason of that single instrumentality, can and does fix the prices of crude and manufactured oil. Though the court ordered the Standard to unjoint itself and let each of the separate pieces go its own way, the fact remains that the producer of oil continues to sell at the Standard's own price and the consumer continues to pay just what the Standard asks. At the bottom of the Standard's monopoly are the pipe lines which it still owns.

"The development of the transportation end of the oil business is a very interesting story. It is a timely story as well. The early producers in Western Pennsylvania poured their oil into rough wooden barrels and hauled them to the nearest little refinery or railway station in wagons. Some of the barrels were floated down stream on barges to Pittsburgh.

"Much of the oil was lost by leakage and so tanks were built on the barges. The tank barge was developed into the huge tank vessel made of steel now seen on our lakes and large rivers and on the Atlantic Ocean. Wooden tank cars were displaced by iron ones,' cylindrical in shape.

"From tanks the minds of men turned to pipes. In 1860, Gen. S. D. Karns, of Parkersburg, W. Va., built a pipe line thirty-six miles long. Oil flowed the whole distance by gravity. Then J. S. Hutchinson, inventor of the rotary pump, conceived the idea of forcing oil through the pipes. The first line into which oil was pumped extended from a well near Titusville, Pa., to a railway station three miles distant. It was a success.

"Other lines were soon built. The American Transfer Company, in 1872, began to construct and buy pipe lines in Pennsylvania. It was owned by the Standard Oil Company. The United Pipe Lines took over the business in 1880, and four years later was succeeded by the National Transit Company, another Standard organization. Soon the National Transit Company became the Standard Oil Company's agent for the acquiring and transporting of petroleum by pipe line throughout all of the oil fields in the United States except in California. Pipe lines cost from $3200 to $5500 a mile.

"During a trial of a suit against the Standard in a Federal court it was shown that the Buckeye Pipe Line Company, a Standard subsidiary, made a profit of more than $7,000,000 in the year 1906. The total investment of the company, so it was stated, amounted to only $15,327,000. The Southern Pipe Line Company, with an investment of $4,327,000, made a profit of $4,650,000. The East Ohio Gas Company, another Standard Corporation, made a net profit in that one year alone of $10,690,000 on an investment of $12,000,000.

"Of course, these amazing profits were collected from the consumers of oil. Many other pipe lines owned by the Standard were doing business in 1906 and all were highly prosperous. For example, the Indiana Pipe Line Company, it was found, made $2,513,000 on a plant investment of $4,653,000; the Eureka Pipe Line Company made $2,435,000 on an investment of $7,155,000; the Northern Pipe Line Company made $1,592,000 on an investment of $2,797,000, and the New York Transit Company made $2,343,000 on an investment of $5,824,000.

"I would lift this extortionate tax from the consumer. How? You ask. By giving the trunk pipe lines a fair value and having them become the property of the people. I would pay the Standard all the lines are worth and would throw them open to every producer and refiner of oil in the United States.

SUPPOSE RAILWAYS WERE COMBINED.

"Then the petroleum industry would be free, and refiners, the Standard Oil Company with the rest, would compete with one another for the patronage of the people. The Standard, as I have said, has no advantage over the independent refiners in the manufacture of oil. It maintains its monopoly, I repeat, because of its ownership of the pipe lines.

"Suppose that all the great railways should combine and refuse to carry the general public except under prohibitive restrictions, and were to compel every producer and manufacturer to sell his commodities to the combined railways at the railways' own prices, and were also to compel the consuming public to buy such commodities from the combined railways at prices fixed by the railways. Well, that is precisely what is going on in the petroleum trade.

"While the Standard is still moving its crude oil by pipe lines, the independent refiners must use the railroads, and railroad freights are four times greater than the cost of pipeline transportation. No one doubts the constructing and organizing genius of Mr. Rockefeller. He is the richest man, perhaps, in all human history. And he has made his millions in an industry that was practically non-existent fifty years ago. His service to society has been very great, let us admit, but his rewards have been simply prodigious.

"Why not bring his business down to a competitive basis and give the people oil at fair prices? The independents, competing with the Standard and one another, are not strong enough financially, nor cohesive enough to spend $50,000,000 for new pipe lines. The pipe lines of the Standard were laid under wagon roads and railroads, and even under navigable rivers and in right and by logic should, when paid for, become the property of the people.

"We have built a canal in Panama with public money. We are about to built a railway in Alaska with public money. We are digging out rivers and harbors with public money. We are running the postoffice with public money. Wisely spent, some $50,000,000, say, of public money, would break up the worst monopoly the world has ever known.

THE DECISION BECAME A SPUR.

"And the expenditure would be a great personal service to the army of able men who are running the refineries, pipe lines, and sales agencies of the Standard. It would make them abler men still. The dissolution of the corporation by the court increased the efficiency of those in charge of the various branches of the business. Managers of refineries are now matched against one another. The Union Tank Line Company owed $5,000,000 at the time the decision of the court was handed down. Last year it earned over 10 per cent. on its capitalization.

"Under normal conditions there are four divisions in the petroleum industry. First comes the production of crude oil. The second division has to do with transportation—getting the crude oil to refining centers. Manufacturing, naturally, follows. Finally the refined oil must be sold. Back in 1840, petroleum found in salt wells and salt springs in Northwestern Pennsylvania was bottled by Samuel Kier and peddled as linament.

"It was George H. Bissel, a graduate of Dartmouth College, who, finding a bottle of 'Kier's Rock Oil,' good for man and beast, perceived the commercial possibilities of petroleum. He organized the Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company. Thus the industry was started. Oil from the first well to be dug—it was seventy feet deep and cost $3000—sold at $18 a barrel. The second well was drilled by William Barnsdall, a Titusville tanner. Its flow, like the first well, was twenty-five barrels a day. Barnsdall received $16,000 for his oil in five months.

"Then the boom broke. Millionaires were made over night. Mr. Rockefeller came into the game when refineries were no more than rough little shacks in gulleys, which agents refused to insure against fire. There was competition in those days, but by and by, Mr. Rockefeller controlled the petroleum trade. Once in control, all that he and his partners and his managers had to do was to watch the corners and stand pat.

FOLLOWED THE PROSPECTORS.

"Genius is not required in the management of a monopoly—once it is in motion. The Standard was superbly organized. No man can say less. Moreover, monopoly never dulled its vision nor caused it to grow careless. It followed the prospectors wherever the signs led them—into the Ohio-Indiana fields, to the Pacific Coast, to the mid-continent regions, to the gushers of Texas and then back to Illinois. Everywhere the Standard was ready with its gathering lines, its pipe lines, and its storage tanks.

"Meanwhile it built refineries at strategic points, to which its crude oil was piped and from which it shipped its products on short hauls by rail. That was brilliant management. Refineries were established at Bayonne, N. J., on New York harbor, for seaboard and European trade; at Buffalo, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh; at Whiting, Ind., which means Chicago; at East "Alton, Ill., which means St. Louis; at Sugar Creek, which means Kansas City; at Baton Rouge, La., where the channel is fifty feet deep; at San Francisco, and at various other places in the far West, Southwest, and Northwest.

"And yet all the while there was competition, though it grew feeble as the Standard, rolling in wealth, extended its outposts and then occupied region after region with its tank farms and its 5000 distributing stations. Formerly, the refiner sold oil to the jobber, the jobber sold it to the retailer and the retailer sold it to the consumer. Profits were distributed. The Standard often cut out the jobber and the retailer and dealt directly with the consumer, thus pocketing two profits it had overlooked, or, at least, had not collected in the early development of its business.

"It requires no ability, mentally, at any rate, to follow on a bicycle a little man who has invested $175 in a horse, wagon and several cans, to watch him deliver oil to his customers, to get the names of the customers and then to drive him out of business by underselling him among those customers. That isn't genius. I hesitate to give it the name it deserves.

HOW THE INDEPENDENTS GREW.

"No one will say, either, that it denotes a high type of business intellect to sell oil in Denver at 20 cents a gallon and at 8½ cents a gallon in New Orleans, the oil from both cities going from Whiting, Ind., and the distance to each from the point of shipment being about the same.

"When James R. Garfield, as Commissioner of Corporations, began his investigation of the petroleum industry in 1904, he found that the Standard was doing 84 2-10 per cent. of the refining business of the country. The independents were doing the rest, or 15 8-10 per cent. Since then, only ten years ago, the figures have changed. Now the independent refiners are doing more than 40 per cent. of the oil business of the United States. The activity of State governments and the national government and the publicity given Standard methods by the newspapers have, in large measure, brought about the revolution, and that word describes what has actually taken place.

About 1500 jobbers are buying petroleum and its products from independent refiners. The purchases are made in carload lots, and the oil is sold to retail dealers. The competition has caused the Standard to come out in the open and to fight more fairly than has been its custom in the past. Brute strength is giving way to more enlightened commercial practices to the moral and intellectual uplift of the men employed by the Standard. The court decision, too, as I have said, has helped some. Better men of business are being developed by the Standard. They are striving among themselves, you see, to make personal reputations. The Ohio Oil Company, owning pipe lines and a few wells and acting as sales agent for the Standard, earned 152 per cent. in 1913. The priarie Oil and Gas Company, engaged in similar lines of business, earned 88 per cent.

"Notwithstanding the Teadway made by independent manufacturers, owning 155 refineries, thirty of which are in Oklahoma and twenty in Kansas, the Standard continues to dominate the petroleum industry, though it cannot refine oil any cheaper than can the independents, nor can it dispose of its products on a lower basis of sales expense. Its 10,000 miles of trunk pipe lines alone gives it the mastery of the business.

"Producers of crude oil are more or less at the mercy of the Standard. The largest of them operate in several fields at once. They are unsentimental men. The 'instant dollar' looks pleasing to them. When they turn their oil into the pipes of the Standard, payment for it is made the next day. And the pipes are everywhere. A producer with wells in Ohio, Illinois, Kansas and Texas might lose the favor of the Standard were he to sell a part of his oil to an independent refiner.

"Thus the independents are always at a disadvantage in the obtaining of raw material. They must battle to get crude oil, and they must battle to dispose of their finished product. They pay the price fixed by the Standard for raw petroleum. They sell illuminating oil, gasoline and so on, at the quotations made by their powerful competitor. With the pipe lines closed to them because of conditions that are practically prohibitory, they are prevented from liberating the oil industry by first destroying the oil monopoly.

"Some persons think that all of the oil will soon be pumped out of the earth and that the days of monopolistic control will then be over. We shall have petroleum, I think, forever. Important fields of good quality have been discovered in Wyoming. I told Mr. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, that there never will be an exhaustion of the oil supply. New methods will be found for taking out a greater proportion of the petroleum in saturated rocks. Only 10 per cent. of the saturation in the fields of Pennsylvania has been recovered. The history of production seems to show that petroleum is constantly being made under ground. Oil has been pumped in Pennsylvania for fifty years. The quantity has grown less, but the flow into the wells has never ceased. So the oil industry, in my judgment, is here to stay. Scarcity of supply will not eventually drive the Standard into something else.

"No matter what Americans may do or not do, Germany will soon free itself from the attentions of the Standard Oil Company. I went to Berlin to assure the Reichstag that the independent refiners of the United States are prepared to supply Germany with all the oil that may be required. A bill will pass the Reichstag in October, this year, creating a strictly German monoply of the oil business. The property of the Standard Oil Company will be taken over by the government, either in a direct bargain or on terms fixed by a board of seven arbitrators—three judges of the highest court, two representatives of the Standard and two representatives of the Imperial Petroleum Company, an organization composed of banking interests, individuals and the government itself.

"After the property is obtained, a dividend of 5 per cent., perhaps, will be granted on such capital as may be invested. The price of oil will be reduced. If there is a profit, it will go into the German treasury for the payment of old age pensions and other national purposes. The Germans are shrewd and thirfty people. And as monopoly fighters, they are strictly up to date."

Charles D. Chamberlin,

Strategist for the independent oil refiners.

IN BELVEDERE HEIGHTS.

The Janss Investment Company has laid out a new tract in Belvedere Heights consisting of thirty-five lots, a few of which have been improved with bungalows. This property was placed on the market two weeks ago and in that time twelve of the lots are reported to have been sold, together with four bungalows. The buyers of the houses were: W. A. Lott, $1675; Ella Hacquard, $1600; Mrs. E. J. Copper, $1400, and Charles H. McCrary, $1600. All of the houses and lots face Richards street.

FINE HOME SOLD.

For a reported consideration of $14,000, Charles D. Wagner has sold to J. H. Heldt a new fourteen-room residence at No. 15 Wellington road in La Fayette Square. The house occupies a lot 60x150 feet in size and is attractively finished in Juana Costa mahogany and oak. There are three baths and three tile mantels. The exterior of the dwelling is faced with white cement plaster. The purchaser will make his home in the place.

TO BUILD ALUM PLANT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, June 12.—The Mexican Chemical and Mining Company of Los Angeles will erect a large alum and sulphur refining plant in Calexico, according to J. A. Dubbs, president of the concern.

If satisfactory assurance can be given that ready sale can be obtained for the granite residue after the alum and sulphur has been extracted from the ore, it is stated that the work of building will begin within forty days. The company owns alum and sulphur properties, which include all of what is known here as Alum Mountain, situated about fifty miles southwest of Calexico, on Laguna Salada.

Conspiracy of Labor.

RECOGNITION OF THE UNION.

FIVE MONTHS' BUILDING LABORERS' STRIKE IN LONDON.

Builders Have Refused Recognition of the Union, the Members of Which Have Lost Five Million Dollars in Wages About Which There Is No Dispute.

[Nw York Times:] The solidarity of labor throughout the world is shown better by nothing than by the fact that in many countries the demand for the betterment of the conditions of labor is submerged in the demand for the "recognition of the union." The phrase seems harmless to those who fancy that it means collective bargaining or a strengthening of the individual by the resources of organization. Labor must recognize the combinations of capital; why should not capital recognize the combinations of labor? There is no reason if the phrases mean the same thing in both cases. In fact, they mean very different things, and the difference is illustrated by the cablegrams published regarding the strike in the London building trade.

The London builders so far recognized the unions that they wished to enter into an agreement with them providing for employment upon agreed terms, with a condition that work should not stop because of the employment of others than unionists. There was no attempt to ignore the unions, or to discriminate against unionists, nor any question about other conditions of employment. Over the issue of the right of others than unionists to work on union terms there has been a struggle now in its eighteenth week. On Thursday the builders balloted upon the employers' surrender and rejected it. There was a vote of 21,017 against 5821 in favor of broadening the strike to demand "the recognition of the Building Industries' Federation, the total elimination of non-union men, and the entire abrogation of disability penalties for non-observance of agreements."

Already the strike for the recognition of the Builders' Union has caused the loss of $5,000,000 in wages and has embarrassed the execution of $40,000,000 worth of contracts. Instead of accepting the employers' surrender the demand is extended to affiliated trades, perhaps involving hundreds of thousands of workers. No non-unionist is to be allowed to work, and the federation which demands recognition repudiates penalties for non-fulfillment of contracts. Small wonder that the employers whose surrender was rejected resolved that the builders' strike shall become a national lockout unless there is a settlement by agreement.

The issue is the same in principle in the United States. "Recognition of the union," which signifies the refusal to recognize the right of any but unionists to work, is inconsistent with any pretense that the unions are fraternal or benevolent organizations for the uplift of "labor." They are combinations to profit at the expense of others, using the resources of organization, not against capitalist trusts, but against unorganized bread-winners. The plea that otherwise the rates of wages would be depressed below a living wage cannot be urged when the question of wages is not in dispute and when employers are willing even to pay more than the market price for labor if allowed to run their business in their own way. There are employers who know that they can produce enough more in an open shop to warrant them in paying their help more. The conspiracy of capital is for increase of production, and goods once produced must benefit the consumer. The conspiracy of labor is for the increase of costs and the reduction of product. The conspiracy of the one side against the other might be turned into a combination of the one with the other for mutual and national benefit, but the demand for the "recognition of the union." That phrase is a chief explanation of the supremacy of Germany over England in the world-wide fight for trade supremacy. As yet the United States suffers less than England, but it is suffering.

WAGES IN ALMERIA.

Laborers Get Only a Pittance for a Day's Work and Yet Food Is High as in America.

It is frequently asserted that the higher wages paid in the United States for labor are more than balanced by the increased cost of living, over and above the wages and cost of living in European countries.

That this is often very far from being the truth of the matter is exemplified in the great fruit-growing province of Almeria, Spain, which last year exported over 2,000,000 barrels of grapes in addition to considerable quantities of almonds, citrus fruits, etc.

The population of the province is nearly 400,000 and of the city of Almeria 50,000, the latter being an important shipping point. The increasing cost of living, however, has created a pressing problem for the worker, for wages have failed to advance, remaining at from 40 to 50 cents per day. Laborers can thus buy only the cheapest of foods and the barest of necessities, as the following list of prices current for staple foods in Almeria readily testify:

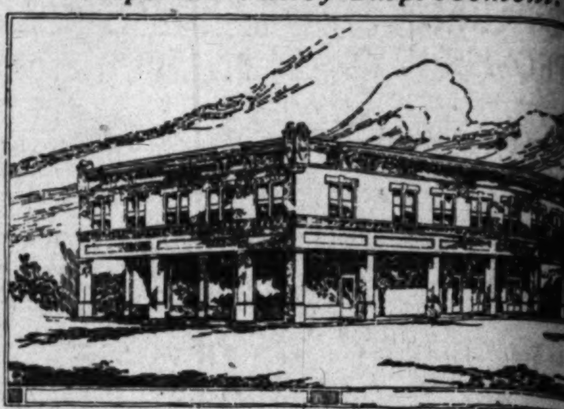
Bread	4-5c per pound
Butter	50c per pound
Beef	30-50c per pound
Pork	20-28c per pound
Ham	50-75c per pound
Coffee	50-70c per pound
Eggs	30c per dozen
Flour	5-6c per pound
Sugar	9c per pound
Rice	5-8c per pound
Beans	6-9c per pound
Fish	4-20c per pound

It can easily be seen from the above that the laboring man in Almeria earning seldom more than 50 cents a day enjoys a far lower standard of living than that open to his brother in this country, and that even if labor is cheap the same cannot be said of what are considered the barest necessities of life here, but many of which in Spain are far beyond the reach of thousands of workers, the product of whose labors come into competition with our own.

—Fewer Strikes This Year.

[The Square Deal:] Records of the Massachusetts State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration show a reduction of 80 per cent. in the number going on labor strikes and of 20 per cent. in the number of strikes of twenty-five or more workers, in the first quarter of 1914, as compared with the corresponding figures for 1913. In the first three months of 1913 there were thirty-three strikes in Massachusetts of twenty-five or more workers, in 1914 only twenty-eight. The strikers in the first quarter of 1913 numbered 12,974, and for the same period this year only 2231.

Imperial Valley Improvement.



New business block for Calipatria.

Modern brick structure for which A. F. Priest has just complet Lyons & McCullough of Brawley are the builders.

WILL BE UP TO DATE.

New Business and Office Block at Calipatria to be One of Finest in Imperial Valley.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIPATRIA, June 13.—The foundation work for the modern two-story brick business and office block to be erected by Lyons & McCullough of Brawley at the corner of Main and Holabird street in this town has just been completed and work is to be begun upon the superstructure at once. The plans for the improvement were recently finished by Alfred F. Priest of Los Angeles and contracts are now being let.

The building will be 62x92 feet in size and will contain three stores on the ground floor with eighteen office rooms on the second. An arcade twelve feet in width in front of the store entrances will be a feature. The structure will be faced with buff colored pressed brick and will be of attractive design.

"Behind Prison Walls."

Thomas Mott Osborne,
Chairman of the New York Prison Reform Commission, who became a "voluntary" convict to learn of prison conditions.

"Behind Prison Walls."

VOLUNTARY CONVICT IS CHAMPION OF PRISONERS.

Thomas Mott Osborne, Chairman of the New York Prison Reform Commission, Goes to Auburn Prison as a Convict to Learn of Treatment—He Declares Penal System Is Brutal and a Disgrace to Civilization.

MANY are the books we have had of late from the pens of ex-convicts describing the barbarities of our prisons, and while perhaps the sincerity of these authors has not been doubted, the more conservative members of society have been inclined to think it only natrual that those who have been confined in the prisons should be some what biased against a punitive justice which they may have richly deserved. Donald Lowrie has been called a prevaricator by certain prison officials in California; Al Jennings has been called a shorter and synonomous word by certain prison officials in Ohio, and so the public has had its choice of believing ex-convicts or State officers.

But now comes a book written by a one whom the prison officials are not likely to call anything that sounds like "liar," at least not audibly, and he not only supports the stories that have been told by the ex-convicts, but adds to them, and declares our prisons to be institutions of savagery and barbarity, and a disgrace to our civilization.

Thomas Mott Osborne spent one week in the penitentiary at Auburn, N. Y. He was known as "Thomas Brown," No. 33,333 X," and also as the chairman of the State Commission of Prison Reform, with powers to make warden and keepers nervous. His book, "Within Prison Walls," published by D. Appleton & Co., is fresh from the press, and is one that all persons interested in prison reform should read. From cover to cover it is apparent that Mr. Osborne has taken pains to be fair toward the officials, but his sympathies are undeniably with the convicts, for after living in their cells, eating their fare, doing their work, and becoming familiar with the brutality to which they are subjected he marvels that they retain a semblance of decency.

HIS PLAN AND PURPOSE.

Mr. Osborne let it be known that he was to become a convict for one week, and addressing the prisoners at chapel said: "When a man wishes to understand as fully as possible the temper and character of the people of a foreign country—England, France, Germany, India or China—he can consult a great deal of printed matter; but he will not be satisfied until he has paid a personal visit to the country itself. If this sympathy and understanding, coming from a vivid personal experience, is desirable in the case of a foreign country, it is even more necessary in the case of a group of men set apart by society, such as is this community of the prison; for in your case, the conditions under which you live are more unnatural and less easy for most people to grasp than those of a foreign country. Moreover, most of the books that have been written about you by so-called penologists and other 'experts' are written, so far as I can determine, from such an outside standpoint and with so little intelligent sympathy and vital understanding that I am inclined to the belief that very few of them are of any particular value. . . . So by permission of the authorities and by your help, I am coming here to learn what I can first hand. I have put myself on trial in the court of conscience and a verdict has been rendered of 'guilty'—guilty of having lived so many years of my life indifferent to, and ignorant of, what was going on behind these walls. For this crime I have sentenced myself to a short term at hard labor in Auburn prison. . . . Of course I am not foolish enough to think that I can see it exactly from your point of view. Manifestly a man cannot be a real prisoner when he may at any moment let down the bars and walk out; and spending a few hours or days in a cell is quite another thing from a weary round of weeks, months, years."

IN A CONVICT'S CELLS.

The first night in his cell he wrote (special permission being given that he have writing material:)

"My God! How do they ever stand it? Until 9 o'clock when the lights will go out, I am my own master; my own master in a world of four feet by seven and a half (Mr. Osborne states that some of the cells were even smaller,) in which I am the only inhabitant. . . . I am absolutely solitary. I have never felt so curiously, desperately lonely. The loneliness in the midst of crowds is proverbial; but the loneliness in the midst of a crowd of invisible human beings—not one of whom do you even hear—that has in it the element of heavily weighted sorrow, is quite indescribable. It can only be felt. The curious sensation of nervous resentment, noticed this noon, is upon me in greater force tonight. If I were to just let myself go, I believe I would seen be beating my fists on the iron grated door of my cage and yelling. I wonder how I shall stand a week of this? I must certainly keep my nerves under better control, at present they are quivering at the slightest sound."

Mr. Osborne found that he slept poorly, and explains that "possibly the delicate attentions of the night-keeper going his rounds and flashing his electric bull's-eye through the bars straight in our faces, may have had something to do with it. Certainly that custom is hardly conducive to unbroken slumbers."

EATING AND WORKING.

The food was, according to Mr. Osborne, almost as unpalatable as possible. When the hash was served he picked bones from every mouthful. "Arriving at my place (at the table to which he had been marched in lockstep,) which is now in the center of one of the long shelves or tables, I find waiting for me a large dish of oatmeal porridge, a bowl one-third full of the thinnest skimmed milk, two thick slices of bread, and a cup of the dark fluid which is supposed to be coffee, but which I learn is called 'bootleg' by the prisoners—principally because old boots is the only conceivable source of its taste and smell. Judging by the samples I've had, the hypothesis does not seem untenable. The taste is quite as bad as the smell, as it is drunk without milk or sugar, and there is no escape from drinking some of it, as it is the only liquid on the table. The bread is known as 'punk'—a name not so strikingly appropriate as the other.

"I can see no excuse for bad coffee, for good coffee can be made in large quantities, as some railroad refreshment-rooms can testify."

On one occasion, Mr. Osborne drank almost a third of his cup of "bootleg" and was promptly made sick. He declares that no stomach, not gradually made accustomed to the stuff, can endure it without illness.

At his own request he had been placed with the worst company in the prison for work at basket weaving. It took a great deal of assurance later from the prison officials to make him believe that he had really been put with the worst convicts, for it seemed to him that they were model prisoners.

FRIENDS CAN'T RECOGNIZE HIM.

While at work a party of Mr. Osborne's friends, anxious to see him as a "convict" were shown through the prison, and passed close by, while looking eagerly on all sides, without recognizing him. Of that he wrote, while in prison: "I must have the marks of 'the criminal' unusually developed, or else criminals must look a good deal like other folks—barring the uniform. If I had the ordinary theories about prisons and prisoners it might be rather mortifying, that, in spite of every effort, not one of these intimate friends can spot me among the toughest bunch of fellows in the prison.

"Certainly something is wrong somewhere."

"A NIGHT IN HELL."

In a chapter headed "A Night in Hell" Mr. Osborne tells of his one-night's experience in the punitive cells known as the "jail," where convicts were sent for infraction of the rules. For speaking back to a guard, for "cracking" a guard over the head with a crowbar, for any and all offenses the convicts were thrown into these cells and given bread and water. The bread was one thin slice and the water was three gills each twenty-four hours, and formerly it had been but one gill. And prisoners were sometimes confined under those conditions for many days.

He found that a special suit is required for convicts sent to the "jail," and also found that the suit given to him had been washed for the occasion, and expresses amazement at what it must have looked like before. The prisoners in "jail" had no bedding of any description, being compelled to sleep on the wood floor (one of the cells had an iron floor with the rivets protruding,) and within a close proximity to the burring dynamo that furnished the prison with the electricity, and also furnished "juice" for the electrical chair.

Mr. Osborne found that in one of the cells of the "jail" a young boy had been confined for being troublesome in the hospital. He says: "This boy, for he is only 21 years of age, on Tuesday of this week, after being two weeks in the hospital, had an operation on his ear, being already deaf in that ear from an injury received before he came into prison. The operation was on Tuesday of this week; on Thursday afternoon, two days later, he was discharged from the hospital as being able to work, although the wound in his ear had not yet healed. Being a slight, lightly-built youth, and just out of the hospital after an operation he was put to work at shoveling coal. But the next morning, Friday, before he had fairly started on his job, he was ordered to the "jail" office. There he found that a report had come down from the hospital to the effect that while there he had been somewhat troublesome and had talked with another patient.

"For this offense the sick lad was sent down here to the dark cell on bread and three gills of water a day. No handkerchief to wipe the running wound in his ear. No water to wash his ear or his face. Clad in filthy clothes. And when I arrived on Saturday afternoon he had been down here nearly thirty-six hours, and was due to stay at least thirty-six more."

When Mr. Osborne was released on Sunday the first thing he did was to see that this youth was taken out of the cell and sent to the hospital.

WHAT IS BEING DONE.

As the result of his experience, Mr. Osborne organized the Good Conduct League among the prisoners. Sunday was the day on which the guards were allowed off, and, to permit this, it was customary to lock the prisoners up all day. Mr. Osborne conceived the idea of permitting the prisoners to elect their own guards, so that on Sundays they could be marched to the chapel, under the guards they had selected, and given several hours of entertainment, allowed to talk and to act like normal human beings. Of that he says: "No such perfect discipline has ever before been seen in Auburn Prison. In perfect order company after company marches in, and as soon as seated the men join in the general buzz of conversation, like any other human beings assembled for an entertainment. There is no disorder, nothing but natural life and animation."

In conclusion he believes that the success of his experiments means that prisoners "are men and should be treated as men. It means that if you treat them like beasts it will be hard for them to keep from degenerating into beasts. If you treat them like men it will help them to rise. It means that if you trust them they will show themselves worthy of the trust.

"Give the prisoner fair treatment; discard your system based upon revenge; build up a new system based upon a temporary exile of the offender from society until he can show himself worthy to be granted a new opportunity, and then give him a chance to build up his character while he is in retirement by free exercises of the faculties necessary for wise discrimination and right choice of action. . . .

"So far from setting men free from prison you and I, sensible people as I trust we are, would, if we could have our own way, put more men into prison than are there now, for we should send up all who now escaped by the wiles of crooked lawyers, and we should include the crooked lawyers. But behind the prison walls we should relax the iron discipline—the hideous, degrading, unsuccessful system of silence and punishment—and substitute a system fair to all men, a limited freedom and work in the open air."

Two in One.

MERGER ABOUT TO BE MADE.

HIBERNIAN SAVINGS TO ABSORB FEDERAL BANK.

Approval of State Superintendent of Banks Is Secured to Consolidation of Interests—Federal Bank to Continue as Branch of Other Institution.

Formal approval to a merger between the Federal Bank of this city and the Hibernian Savings Bank, whereby the latter will absorb the assets of the former, was given yesterday by the State Superintendent of Banks. This means that negotiations will now proceed rapidly to the consummation of the deal, which will take place by July 1, according to J. D. Radford, vice-president of the Hibernian Savings Bank.

By virtue of the deal, the Hibernian bank acquires the Federal's banking quarters at No. 201 North Broadway, where it will maintain a branch. The capital of the Hibernian bank also will be increased to $310,000 and its total assets to over $3,000,000, as the Federal Bank's total resources are about $700,000, while those of the Hibernian are nearly $2,500,000.

The Federal Bank has had as its president, W. D. Woolwine, vice-president of the National Bank of California, and he will become a director of the Hibernian bank, as will also E. A. Taylor and A. E. Huntington. The last-named is acting vice-president of the Federal Bank, and will be retained as manager of the branch.

Organized in 1903, the Federal Bank has had a successful career, with a large patronage in the section of the city where it is located. It has had as one of its vice-presidents, George W. Chaffey, who is also president of the Hibernian bank, and who is interested in several other banks in outlying towns.

Upon completion of the consolidation, the following will be the officers and directors of the Hibernian bank, no change having been made in the former: George Chaffey, president; G. Allan Hancock, vice-president; J. A. Cashion, vice-president; Joseph D. Radford, vice-president; A. M. Gibbs, secretary; A. M. Chaffey, Frederick J. Mullen, A. I. McCormick, O. M. Souden, Walter P. Story, W. M. Eason, W. D. Woolwine, E. A. Taylor, A. E. Huntington, director; George A. J. Howard, cashier, and T. E. Ivey, Jr., assistant cashier.

The deal is significant of that increasing tendency to consolidate the banking interests of the city, a result of the growth of Los Angeles, said Radford. It is the first merger which has occurred since last fall.

Boston Copper Stocks.

[Furnished by Logan & Bryan, Members New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, Bradbury building, Los Angeles.]

BOSTON (Mass.) June 13.—The labor situation in the Butte district looks serious, but it is probable that a settlement will be made over Sunday. The strike there would seriously affect the copper output of the country, and would probably be followed by a rally in copper stocks of other districts. Rumors are well confirmed that rate decision will be handed down next week and that the railroads will be granted about 60 per cent. of what they have asked for.

Week's Record of Gold Engagements for Export Is Increased by Booking of Four Million Dollars. Bond Buying Active With Higher Prices for Investment Issues.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 13.—The week's trading in stocks came to an end today as quietly as it began. Seldom has Wall street seen six consecutive days in which speculative interest was at a lower ebb. Less than 40,000 shares were dealt in today. At the opening prices eased off. The week's record total of gold engagements for export was increased today by the booking of $4,000,000. It became known also that arrangements had been made tentatively for engagement of $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 on Monday. Sterling exchange, after holding at abnormally high figure for some time, weakened today. The bank statement showed the expected cash loss as a result of the gold movement amounting to $7,690,000. Speculation in bonds was relatively more active than in stocks, with higher prices for investment issues. Total sales par value $932,000. U. S. bonds unchanged on call on the week.

New York Cotton Market.

[Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, June 13.—After opening lower on bearish Liverpool advices the market ran into considerable buying today that carried prices above last night's close; later the liquidation of July longs weakened the entire list. There were some insignificant showers in a few places in the Atlantic States, that by no means relieved the drought. The July position which is influenced by peculiar conditions, is now engaging much attention.

New York Curb Stocks.

[Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, June 13.—There was a little activity in United States Mining and United Verde Extension today. The latter was strong. Other issues were practically unchanged. Oils were featureless. Standard of Indiana was in slight demand at the close. Boston coppers opened dull and featureless, with the volume of business very small, and the undertone firm.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

First grapes of the year were reported in yesterday morning from Imperial Valley. They were of the water white variety and fourteen boxes came in the initial shipment. Another two weeks and several early grapes will be on the market in commercial quantities. The end of the cherry season is in sight. Another week will find them scarce and prices considerably above what they are now. Twelve boxes of apples were received in the first shipment to reach here. They came from Tulare and were white Gravensteins which sold at $2.50 per box. Cantaloupe receipts, in addition to those of other fruits, were light yesterday morning, dealers buying only enough to supply the demand of the day rather than carry over anything until tomorrow morning.

Shipments of eastern eggs have shown a considerable falling off during the past week. Prices on locals have held firm and few changes are looked for immediately. Receipts were only 424 cases. Butter arrivals were large, 97,577 pounds, and the market was steady. Cheese receipts from the north, as well as from the east, have been very heavy during the past few days. Local totaled 15,398 yesterday and foreign American receipts were more than 75,000 pounds. The market is weak as a result.

Only 140 sacks of potatoes were received and the total arrivals of the week would not constitute the volume of business of a single day during the fall. Average arrivals have not totaled 350 sacks a day. Onions continue firm. There is some weakness in beans.

Several declines have been shown in beef and other fresh meats within the past two days. Flour is also off exceptionally and sugar is weaker.

Prices Current.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Market Has Firmer Tone, Although Still Quiet — Trading Scattered Among More Active Issues.

A firmer tone characterized the market yesterday morning on the stock exchange. It was not accompanied by any activity to speak of, however. Scattered trading in a few of the more active issues was about all that served to relieve the dullness. Los Angeles Investment improved in tone toward the close. Union was also slightly better. One thousand Maricopa Northern sold at 6½ cents and 1000 California Midway 2¾. National Pacific touched 4½ cents. Off-board trades were reported in Los Angeles Gas and Electric fives at 100 to 100¼; in Pacific Light and Power fives at 90¼, and in Pacific Electric fives at 100¼ to 100½.

SAN FRANCISCO EXCHANGE.

Tonopah Extension Gains Two and a Half Points—Goldfields Are Very Dull.

[Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—Decided dullness prevailed in Goldfields today. Silver Pick gained one point, on a report of a strike of four feet of low-grade ore. Merger lost one. In the Tonopah list, Extension gained 2½ and Merger lost one. Among Manhattan's Consolidated shows a gain of one. Comstock's were about the same, except Ohpir, which gained one and Consolidated Virginia which lost one. No change was shown in the quotations of outlying camp stocks.

RAINS INJURE SPRING CROPS.

BULLS CONTROL PRICES IN WHEAT MARKET.

Outcome Is a Firm Close, With Corn Finishing at a Slight Gain. Rumors that Argentine Exporters Were Rebuying Shipments Led to Tightness in Deliveries.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 13.—Too much rain in Nebraska and the spring-crop States, turned the wheat market today in favor of the bulls. The outcome was a firm close at 1-8 to ⅛@5-8 net advance. Corn finished 1-4 lower to ⅛@5-8 gain, oats 3-8 off to 1-8 up, and provisions the same as last night to 5 down. Unconfirmed rumors that Argentine exporters were rebuying shipments sold to come to the United States led to tightness here in nearby deliveries of corn. Oats paralleled the action of corn and seemed almost wholly devoid of independence. Prospect of larger receipts of hogs next week gave provisions a downward slant.

Prices varied little in a trading. Several stocks ually leaders closed a but the volume of acted was too small very decided trend. stocks were fractionally and Merchants' National at $350.00 and Security Savings under Power preferred advanced later reacted to around and Mortgage Insurance at $93.

There was a fair amount in the bond list. Los Angeles Electric Company's 5's at par, Great Western Power at 80, Producers' Transportation around 93, and Southern Portland Cement 6's at Wharf and Storage 6's were ally lower at 85, and Pacific Power 5's were quoted

Lakeview Oil Company whose gusher rivals, eclipse, the original Lakeview was in good demand, from 44 cents to 70 cents. latter figure were made large blocks of the stock. stocks showed little change.

Tom Reed Gold Mines stock advance throughout the terday at $3.20 to $3.25. selling ex-dividend, books 10th inst., for the regular cent. disbursement.

Gen. Adna R. Chaffee has president of the Great Republic surance Company and his filled by Former State sioner E. C. Cooper. A practical experience will be upon the affairs of the new president.

John O. Knight & Co. part of $20,000 California Portland refunding 6 per cent. bonds 85, on which basis the a trifle better than 7 per cent. hind these bonds are three times the par value issue, and annual earnings more than five times interest bonds were issued in 1913 nine years more to run.

FOR SALE—WE ARE OBLIGED TO FIND SALE for our second-hand sewing machines taken in trade, and this ad tells you of the bargains that can be had at our two big stores. We traded in 3000 machines last year, and these machines must find new owners, and we want you to be one of them. To find the make, at the price which you are willing to pay, is only a matter of calling up our stores. We are perfectly sure that the prices will be less, much less, in fact, than you had expected to pay. It would require too much space to enumerate all of them, but a partial list will suffice to convince you of the real snaps which we have to offer:
Domestics, $3, $5 and $12.
Just dozens of box tops, $3 to $5.
Singers, $3, $5, $11, $14 and $18, dropheads.
Whites—$3, $5, $10, $15, dropheads.

A BLOODTHIRSTY WAR.

The Aztec Kingdom Was a Fighting Community and Recruits Were Raised by the Number Captured.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] Based on conquest as the Aztec kingdom was, and with the most bloodthirsty religion the world ever saw, the nation was, above all, a fighting community. To be a tried soldier was the road to honor and office, and the king could not be enthroned until he had with his own hand taken captives to be butchered on the war-god's altar at his coronation. The common soldiers were promoted for acts of daring, and the children of chiefs were regularly trained to war, and initiated by being sent into battle with veterans, with whose aid the youth took his first prisoner, but his future rise depended on how many captives he took unaided in fight with warlike enemies; by such feats he gained the dignity of wearing colored blankets, tassels and lip jewels, and reached such military titles as that of "guiding eagle." The Mexican military costumes are to be seen in the picture-writings where the military orders of princes, eagles and tigers are known by their braided hair, eagles' beaks and spotted armor. The common soldiers went into battle brilliant in savage war paint, but those of higher rank had helmets like birds and beasts of prey, armor of gold and silver, wooden greaves, and especially the incheapilli, the quilted cotton tunic two fingers thick, so serviceable as a protection from arrows that the Spanish invaders were glad to adopt it. The archers shot well and with strong bows, though their arrows were generally tipped only with stone or bone; their shields or targets, mostly round, were of ordinary barbaric forms; the spears or javelins had heads of obsidian or bronze, and were sometimes hurled with a spear-thrower or atlatl, of which pictures and specimens still exist, showing it to be similar in principle to those used by the Australians and Eskimo. The most characteristic weapon of the Mexicans was the maquahuitl or "handwood," a club set with two rows of large sharp obsidian flakes, a well-directed blow with which would cut down man or horse.

The temples were called teocalli or "god's house," and rivaled in size as they resembled in form the temples of ancient Babylon. They were pyramids on a square or oblong base, rising in successive terraces to a small summit-platform. The great teocalli of Huitzilopochtli in the City of Mexico stood in an immense square, whence radiated the four principal thoroughfares, its courtyard being enclosed by a square, of which the stone wall, called the coatepantli or serpent-wall from its sculptured serpents, measured nearly a quarter of a mile on each side. In the center, the oblong pyramid of rubble cased hewn stone and cemented 375x300 feet at the base, and rising steeply in five terraces to the height of eighty-six feet, showed conspicuously to the city the long procession of priests and victims winding along the terraces and up to corner flights of steps. On the paved platform were three-story tower temples, in whose ground floor stood the stone images and altars, and before that of the war god the green stone of sacrifice, humped so as to bend upward the body of the victim that the priest might more easily slash open the breast with his obsidian knife, tear out the heart and hold it up before the god, while the captor and his friends were waiting below for the carcas to be tumbled down the steps for them to carry home to be cooked for the feast of victory. Before the shrines reeking with the stench of slaughter the eternal fires were kept burning, and on the platform stood the huge drum, covered with snakes' skins, whose fearful sound was heard for miles. From the terrace could be seen seventy or more temples within the enclosure, with their images and blazing fires, and the tzompantli or "skull-place," where the skulls of victims by tens of thousands were skewered on cross-sticks or built into towers. There also might be seen the flat circular temalacatl or "spindle stone," where captives armed with wooden weapons were allowed the mockery of a gladiatorial fight against well-armed champions.

Jim Patterson, the University of Pennsylvania athlete, together with Nat Cartmell, the former Red and Blue sprinting star, will tour Europe this summer. Patterson will probably take part in the English championships at Stamford Bridge grounds on July 3 and 4. Later he will go to Edinburgh for a set of games and subsequently compete in Paris and other cities.

DOWBROOK POLO CLUB, STBURY (L. I.) June 13.—Bewildered by the speed and team work of the English challengers the American team went down to defeat here today in the first game of the match for the international cup by a score of 8½ to 3. After the first flurry in the opening period the defending four never held the lead, being outplayed and outridden by the Hurlingham Club representatives and the English ponies.

The defeat came as a great surprise to the majority of the 40,000 spectators, who had expected an American victory and made the cup defenders ten to seven favorites in the wagering previous to the game. They were quick to appreciate the brilliant play of the invaders, however, and the stands rang with applause at the clever exhibition of team work and

SAN DIEGO SHORT TOURS ATTRACT MOTOR PARTIES.

Enjoyable Vacation Possible With Automobile, as Roads of County Are Good and Both Routes from Los Angeles Have Scenic Wonders, Although Coast Highway Is Boulevard Drive.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

SAN DIEGO county is one of Southern California's automobile playgrounds. For a motor vacation, San Diego offers many attractions.

The Coast route is now a boulevard. With the exception of two short detours, the run is over the State highway. The drive is almost always cool and Los Angeles autoists seem never to tire of this popular tour.

There are a few rough places along the inland route, but that drive also offers attractions for the auto vacationist.

A. S. Robinson, manager of the local Pacific Kissel Kar branch, drove down the inland route last Monday and returned over the Coast route several days later. Robinson is chairman of the Touring Committee of the Motor Car Dealers Association and the main object of his run to the southern city was to select a route for a dealers' tour.

Ralph Hamlin and Perry Greer are also on this committee and a number of attractive tours have already been planned for the members of the Motor Car Dealers' Association. On these tours the dealers are to be accompanied by their owners.

MOTOR EDUCATION.

Many motorists never venture off the paved streets. With a number of machines and expert mechanics, a driver will naturally feel safe to try untraveled highways.

There are very few roads in Southern California now that might be called poor. There are, however, many grades and passes that are dangerous to the novice driver. It is the intention of the Motor Car Dealers' Association, according to Robinson, to educate owners to drive on the more difficult highways.

The association is opposed to the practice of giving an owner one or two short lessons and then sending him out with his car. It is not only dangerous, but he never really enjoys his car until he gets to the place where he is able to drive without effort.

These dealers' tours are to be conducted throughout the summer months and promise to be popular with owners as well as members of the Dealers' Association. The runs are to work into all sections of Southern California, but San Diego is to have one of the first calls.

THOSE PRESENT.

On his tour, Robinson was accompanied by A. T. Smith, manager of the local Firestone tire branch, and J. G. Cochrane of the Union Hardware and Metal Company, automobile department. While in San Diego, the party was entertained by Perry Gavin, San Diego Firestone representative, and W. Davies, Kissel Kar dealer in the southern city.

Many short tours were taken to various points of the county and it is suggested by members of the party that San Diego offers some of the most interesting short tours to be found in the State, with good roads as well.

Without an automobile it's rather doubtful if the San Diego vacation would be a howling success.

With headquarters at either the Grant in San Diego, or the Coronado, across the bay, the car may be kept in a garage a short distance away where it is handy at all hours of the day and night. Both these hotels offer excellent service. Some auto parties prefer Coronado Tent City. This gives a little more of the outing flavor to the expedition and is not quite as expensive.

POPULAR RUN.

One of the most popular short tours for day or night taken by visiting motor parties to San Diego, is the 'round-the-bay run. This trip takes in Coronado Tent City, Im-

SACRAMENTO slammed the Tigers 3 to 2 in a game wherein lurked many strange doings.

Thus we break the bad news suddenly, thereby getting quickly rid of an unpleasant duty.

This story should be written almost exclusively around Harry Stewart, he up and beating his former bunkmates. But Harry had so much assistance in carrying out his nefarious plans, that it is necessary to drag the names of other prominent people into the scandal.

While Stewart gets officially blamed for the victory, the responsibility for the outrage must be shared by Walter Slagle and Roy Moran. Stewart was forced to throw up the sponge when in an inch of his goal. He wa

Quality In Motor Trucks

PERFORMANCE on the road is the best evidence of Packard ability to meet the requirements of practically all branches of heavy duty hauling. Packard trucks are in successful operation in 185 lines of business. Many of these vehicles have been in service for periods longer than five years.

From Maine to California, Packard trucks are supplanting wasteful methods with system and speed. More than four million dollars' worth of Packard trucks were bought in the last fiscal year, and the current year's sales are slated to exceed that figure. Packard trucks are sold at a price consistent with the cost of the finest materials, developed by expert craftsmen under the supervision of specialists in truck design.

The Packard truck's ample factor of safety is assurance of uninterrupted operation, which means the maximum dividends from the investment. In truck operation, final cost is more important than first cost. Our patrons know that the best is the cheapest when you measure the final cost.

Burt's Camp Car Like House With Engine.

Unique Arrangements on Car Built for Camp.

Recreation Club Has English Game Preserve.

W. J. Burt, local distributor for the Auburn line, has one of the most complete camp cars in the country.

The machine is a regular Auburn model, equipped with a special body, built at the Auburn factory. Six passengers are carried in the machine. Every inch of space is used to advantage, yet the passengers ride with perfect comfort.

On the dash there are two small boxes for soap and towels on one side and tool kit for the car on the other. The running-boards have been replaced by two long zinc-lined chests, divided into three sections on either side. In these provisions are carried.

THE TABLE.

In the rear there is a wide drawer which pulls out from under the body. This may be used for a table, but is usually a receptical for kitchen knives, broilers, tin pans and camp utensils.

Above this drawer there is a rack where a fireless cooker is carried, together with a tent and other baggage.

Inside the top there are nets for clothes. The back of the front seat comes back and makes down like a Pullman berth. On one running-board a large water tank is strapped and on the other a very large Thermos tank is carried.

There is storage room for heavy tools under the seats and the extra tires are carried on the sides of the machine where they do not interfere in any way and do not take up room in the rear.

The rest of the equipment is like that on a regular touring car and the camp car is as easy riding as any touring car.

The Auburn dealer is a member of the Canejo Recreation Club. This is an organization of thirty members who have a lease on the land around Mathewson Lake.

NOT FAR AWAY.

Just fifty-two miles from The Times office, the camping grounds of the Canejo club are located. It's a beautiful spot. The lake covers more than 150 acres and there is bass-fishing, duck, dove, quail and rabbit-shooting for the members besides the swimming, camping and motoring.

Every Saturday Burt packs his camp car and with Roy Martin, his sales manager and his young son, drives out to his permanent camp on the banks of Mathewson Lake. There is room for the three members of the party to sleep in the car, but if there are visitors, the tent is used.

A clubhouse has been built on the shores of the lake by the Canejo club. Members have their camps around the banks, but those who go out for a short time, have the privilege of the clubhouse.

Only motorists belong to the outing club, as the only way to get back into the hills and club grounds is by automobile.

Veteran Car.

CROSSES CONTINENT IN OLD MODEL AUTOMOBILE.

ONE of the most striking demonstrations of the stability of American-made motor cars is the large number of owners who make the transcontinental trips in old cars.

W. P. Layton writes at length from St. Louis that he has just completed a trip from Los Angeles to St. Louis in a 1911 Chalmers.

In all he traveled 2660 miles, using 156 gallons of gasoline. He states this as a matter of fact, not seeming to realize that seventeen miles to a gallon is a good average for such hard traveling.

His running time for the trip was eighteen days. There were stops of several days in different towns for the purpose of visiting friends and relatives. Layton stated that he was leaving for Europe shortly and upon his return, if the weather was favorable, he would make the return drive in the same car.

The route out of Los Angeles was by way of Redlands, Banning, Blythe, Phoenix, Tuscon, Bisbee, Douglas, El Paso, Amarillo, Liberal, Dodge City, Hutchison, Kansas City, Booneville to St. Louis.

He experienced one blow-out and picked up four nails which resulted in punctures. There was no other trouble, the motor not missing a shot although it had previously run 40,000 miles.

LOCAL MEN TAKE LONG AUTO TRIP.

Joe Amestoy, Seth Salsbury, Reno Johnson and Charlie Richards left Los Angeles last week in a Packard for a three-months' auto trip through the Northwest.

A light camping outfit was taken and the members of the party intend to rough it for the entire time. An expert Packard mechanic was taken along, who will do all the work on the car, so that work will not enter into the vacation period.

University of California women students will have a swimming pool ready for their use in August. It will measure 45x85 feet. It will have a glass roof and steam heating plant. New college equipment for the co-eds will be four basketball courts, two tennis courts and a new track.

CUES AND CAROMS.

Nelms & Bird have arranged a match between George Kirkland, Pacific Coast pocket billiard champion, and Byron S. Gillette, the Buffalo expert, for next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, June 17-19, as a public opening of their large pocket billiard hall at Fourth and Spring streets.

This occasion will give Gillette his first opportunity of showing his skill at the pocket game in a clash with the best western strength, and admirers a chance of making good their respective guesses.

Plans for the Coast three-cushion billiard championship tournament have progressed so far that Manager Nelms has lined the schedule for three days as follows:

Monday, June 22 (evening,) Seymour against Banks; Tuesday, June 23 (noon,) Bayne against Kirkland; evening, Morley against Morse; Wednesday, June 24 (noon,) Gillette against Banks. On Wednesday night, and following, losers of the first games are to be matched against winners, each man playing one game against every opponent in the schedule.

Seats are arranged to give full views of the table from all parts of the Sultan room, a nominal price being fixed thereon for the purpose of establishing a prize fund in addition to the Brunswick-Balke Collender trophy.

The immense growth of billiards in popularity is shown in the fact that the daily patrons of rooms in the United States number 2,400,000. As the average player indulges in the game only once or twice weekly, this daily attendance indicates, with allowance for club and home play, at least 15,000,000 active wielders of cue and ivory.

In growth of interest and advance in skill, Los Angeles players are rapidly gaining a prominent position in the billiard world.

Two of the greatest amateur long-distance swimmers of this country, Sam Richards of Boston, and Charles Durborow of Philadelphia, will contest in match race on the Delaware River, on Saturday, June 27. The course is to be from Philadelphia to Chester, and return, a distance of thirty-four miles.

FEDERAL MOTOR TRUCKS

Federal Trucks "Fit In" for Department Stores, Furniture and Piano Houses

Department stores everywhere have found Federal trucks particularly efficient in two branches of their delivery service—the haulage of bulky or heavy-tonnage goods, and the delivery of purchases in bulk to sectional distributing centers, for redistribution to the individual purchaser.

In the piano business, where the tonnage per delivery unit is heavy, Federal trucks stand the strain of load and road with remarkable facility. Furniture dealers, too, report to us some wonderfully successful results with Federals.

In all these lines Federal trucks have greatly increased delivery efficiency while greatly reducing costs.

We should like an opportunity to discuss your delivery problems with you—to show you what other merchants in your line have accomplished with Federal trucks—to demonstrate what Federals will do in your business.

AUTOISTS PUZZLED OVER YOSEMITE ROAD ACTIONS.

Dental Associations to Hold Convention in Valley and Want to Drive Cars Over Wawona Road as It Is the Shorter Route, but There Is No Chance, According to Local Motorists.

WHILE it is almost certain that the scenic Wawona road into the Yosemite Valley will not be open to auto travel this season, it is equally certain that the Coulterville road will be thrown open in a few days.

Dr. E. P. Hilliker of this city, who returned from Yosemite last week, reported that he had reason to believe that the Coulterville road would be officially opened by June 26.

The California State Dental Association and the Southern California Dental Association are to hold a meeting in the Yosemite from June 26 to July 4. Dr. Hilliker, who is one of the pioneer autoists of the West, was sent to the Yosemite, representing the dental associations and the Automobile Club of Southern California.

WANTS TO DRIVE.

With the dental surgeons and their families, it is estimated that the party will number more than 1000 in all, and many members of the associations wished to motor to the valley, either from Southern California or points in the northern part of the State.

The doctor drove over fifty miles of the Wawona road and says it is in good condition with the exception of a few water drains, which were being removed at the time.

A motor truck was driven in over the road and there seems to be no apparent reason why this road should remain closed.

On his way into the valley, Dr. Hilliker discussed the matter with the hotel managers and the stage operators and they were all in favor of the opening of the road. When the doctor returned with the news that the road would not be opened, it was a great surprise to those living along the route.

With letters from the dental associations, the Auto Club, Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior; Senator William D. Stephens and others, Dr. Hilliker called upon Maj. William T. Littebrant, superintendent of the park. The major said that he expected the Coulterville route to be opened before the dentists meet in the valley. Motor stages have been running over this road, although it has not yet been opened by the government officials.

THERE'S NO CHITTER.

Maj. Littebrant had nothing to say in regard to the Wawona road.

Percy Walker, president of the State Auto Association of San Francisco, is quoted as saying that the Wawona road would be open by July 15. He is in a position to know, but ever the reports from Washington are to the contrary.

The Southern California dentists are anxious to have the Wawona road opened for two reasons. It will shorten their drive 125 miles each way and it is the scenic entrance to the scenic park. Machines may now drive to the town of Wawona. Autos may be stored at the Four Mile House and a stage line runs from there into the Big Trees.

Dr. Hilliker drove into San Francisco and picked up much road information on his return journey. He advises all motorists to keep away from the San Francisquito, as it is dangerous. The Tejon Pass and Bouquet Canyon routes are open now and in very fair condition.

Twenty miles out of Bakersfield autoists are warned to keep to the oil wells to avoid the construction work, which is going on on the new State highway.

RUSH FOR GRANTS.

Grant cars are being turned out of the factory at the rate of thirty-five per day, with tents erected on the grounds, at Findlay, O., to accommodate extra employees needed to increase the product above that rate in order to comply with the demands of 385 dealers located throughout the world.

DRIVERS PLAN NOVEL TOURS.

Halliwell Brothers Schedule Road Dope Jaunt.

Branches to Be Visited from North to South.

Cars Will Bring Back Latest Highway Data.

All questions concerning the roads of the Pacific Coast are to be settled when Charles H. Halliwell drives his National touring car from Seattle to Los Angeles. He will be met somewhere on the road by his brother, W. H. Halliwell, of the firm of Halliwell Bros., and the two will return in the National to the starting point with the latest road data.

The plan arranged is unique. The National is on its way to Seattle by boat. When the machine reaches the northern city, it will be unloaded and Charles Halliwell will start for the south.

At the moment that he starts with the National from Seattle, his brother will be given the signal and will leave Los Angeles in an Oldsmobile. Just where the two cars will meet is a problem.

Because of the fact that Charles Halliwell will take a big chance many give him as far as Northern California with his National. He would have to cover some of the worst roads in the whole region, in order to get that far before his brother crosses the line.

Earle Y. Boothe, agent for the National, will watch with interest the progress of his car. He has agreed to stand any expense for shipping parts to the autoist. Boothe is so confident that Halliwell will have no trouble that he is willing to take a big chance on the outcome of the tour.

During this tour of road inspection, the Halliwell brothers will visit their branch agencies along the Coast. The result of the tour should be bigger business for the local concern.

FROM THE FACTORIES.

Springs placed in Maxwell cars are tested by sample in machines which thrust them back and forth until a break occurs. Usually 200,000 reciprocal motions are required.

A trip around the world on a motorcycle, with supplies of calendars to sell for the benefit of the colored race, is planned by J. H. Cooper of Akron, O., his outfit to include Goodyear tires.

Manufacturers of the Grant car state that they made distant and conservative estimates on time and values in preparing their plans for car and factory, even eighteen months in advance of first deliveries, and kept every promise as to time and quality of machine.

"A woman's car is the Cartercar," says Harry R. Radford, who quotes the gearless transmission as the feature which endears it to the gentle sex. Elimination of gear shifting fits motor cars for feminine use, the levers being bugbears to many.

Mortality among draught horses during the past winter has caused many replacements with motor trucks, according to observations of the makers of Motz cushion truck tires. One set of their tires has been used on a truck in Youngsworth, O., for three years and two months, and is expected to wear another half year.

American Automobile Association officials have invited the Governor of New Hampshire and six chairmen of highway commissions of New England States to attend the midsummer meeting of the association at Bethlehem, N. H., July 4-6, including a good roads convention on the last day.

A special tour to the meeting is to be made by many participants in the non-stop Chicago-Boston road race, which is scheduled for a finish at Boston July 2.

MOTOR TRUCKS TO THE FRONT.

San Diego Exposition Built Largely by Them.

Tire Changed While Federal Truck Unloads.

Many Buildings Now Waiting for the Fair.

Motor trucks are the big factors in the building of the San Diego exposition.

A fleet of Federal trucks is kept busy hauling materials to the points in Exposition Park where the building activity is going on. Last week when a new tire was wanted for one of these trucks, the Gavin-Williams Company, San Diego agents for Firestone tires, was called on the 'phone.

A new truck tire was placed in the service wagon, which is a rebuilt Maxwell, and rushed out to the exposition. The change was made by the mechanics, while the truck was standing in front of the Southern California Counties building, one of the beautiful structures which has been completed.

To make truck operation a paying business, the trucks must be kept moving. That is the idea at the San Diego exposition. All the material, practically, has been hauled by trucks and they are kept on the move all day and part of the night.

Many of the buildings are now completed. The Puente Cabrillo, about 400 yards long, stretching across to the west entrance, is an engineering masterpiece. The Home Economy and Foreign Arts buildings are practically ready for the exposition. The Science and Education building, Arts and Crafts and many other buildings are now attractions in San Diego.

WIRE WHEELS ARE PROVED SAVERS.

Comparative records kept by the Daimler Company, of London, on its hiring vehicles, cover nearly 300,000 miles of tire use, equally divided between wooden and wire wheels, show that the wire wheels afforded an increased tire mileage of 68.75 per cent over the wooden type.

Non-skid tire covers, 935 x 135, were used, fifty on each type of wheel. Each cover on wire wheel averaged 3454 miles, those on the wooden wheels averaging 2050 miles.

The cars used being identical, except as to wheels, the result showed a saving of over four cents per mile on tire bills. Resiliency, lightness, less periphery weight, and coolness, all tend to reduce tire stresses.

FIBER BODY FOR RACE CRCLECARS.

A type of body not yet developed but which would fit racing cyclecars, has been used on aeroplanes. This is a tubular body built of sheet fiber. The trouble with fiber as a body construction is that it changes with moisture, and warps when damp. To make a flat surface of fiber is to court trouble, for it may shrink or stretch, in spite of a coating of varnish, as much as 1-8 inch per foot. Outside of this it is stronger for weight than steel, when one considers side strain as well, and a 1-8-inch section can be hit with a sledge wtihout breaking. In aeroplane bodies the shrinking trouble has been overcome by making every section circular, the body being cigar-shaped and the partitions and braces being made of fiber also, even to the seats. In this way shrinkage, etc., has been equalized and a body of wonderful strength and lightness obtained.

Wisconsin motor registrations by private owners for the year 1914 have already topped the record made through the full year of 1913. The 1913 total for Wisconsin was 34,646.

PASS UP HOTELS WHILE ON MOTOR VACATION R

THE last word in vacation motoring has been discovered. Ernest K. Foster is the "vacationist de luxe." He is the owner of a six-passenger Hupmobile, over which he has spent many spare hours of scheming and planning in the garden of his home on the Arroyo Seco.

He is a vacation enthusiast, a Hupmobile enthusiast and an outdoor enthusiast. However, he is not a bit strong for khaki suits and hobnail shoes, but decidedly in favor of a natty blue suit, a good piece of fiction and a comfortable hammock.

"I go out on a vacation for a rest and good time," says Mr. Foster, "and to really be happy a fellow must look happy. All this khaki stuff is all right for the movies, but personally I can't get rigged up ready to fight Indians and then imagine I'm feeling comfortable."

Mr. Foster and his wife are vacation motorists of the advanced type. Together they have visited practically every resort to be reached by automobile in the West.

ROAD RECORD.

His car has already done close to 15,000 miles, the greater part of the distance on vacation runs. Every possible comfort of camp life has been embodied in his vacation kit. A gas-burner stove improvised on a piece of galvanized iron is arranged so as to connect with his gas tank. Attached to it is a piece of flexible steel tubing and the stove [illegible] guards of the machine [illegible] rated by merely raising [illegible] never leaving the car.

MUCH TRAVEL.

Their Hupmobile has [illegible] over most every road [illegible] western motorist. After [illegible] of travel they are going [illegible] rope this winter for the [illegible] not in a new machine, [illegible] same Hupmobile.

"I tell you it's got [illegible] tering place hotels beat [illegible]" concluded Mr. Foster. "[illegible] ings, home customs and [illegible] ing.

CHRISTENING CAR STARTS.

A Saxon car on June 4 backed into the Atlantic Ocean and started thence westward to traverse the Lincoln highway entirely to the Pacific, where it is to empty a bottle of old Atlantic's waters into the Pacific. The route is 3389 miles in length, passing through 540 cities and towns. The schedule calls for 125 miles per day, at an average of twenty miles per hour.

The French unit of horse power (force de cheval,) is 1.4 per cent. smaller than the English and American unit of horse power; being the equivalent of 32,535 foot-pounds per minute, as against 33,000 foot-pounds per minute, the English and American unit. The high rate of taxation, however, has always impelled French engine builders to undervalue the power of their products, so that in practice the nominal power of a French engine is almost a third lower than the prevailing conception of the capability of an engine of the same dimensions.

Scientific Tests.

RACES TO BECOME CLASS EXPERIMENTS IN FUTURE.

FIVE hundred miles, at 100 miles an hour, without a stop or tire change, on one gallon of oil, and twenty-five gallons of gasoline, is the difficult target the management of the Indianapolis motor speedway has set for the motor industry.

First, to reduce fuel consumption, the cubic-inch piston displacement of the next Indianapolis contest has been cut to 300, the minimum weight, however, remaining the same, at 1600 pounds. These specifications are expected to stay in force at least three seasons, or until every branch of the science in this class of competition has been thoroughly probed. When there is no more to learn, a further reduction will be effected, less than 161 cubic inches being the final goal.

Regulations of this character naturally put automobile racing into the experimental division of the industry, where, properly, it belongs.

The day when makers can take stock or semi-stock models and compete with them successfully is past. As the last sweepstakes race, won by foreigners in specially-built cars, testifies.

In line with this idea, it is thought a number of American factories will enter the game from business, if not patriotic, motives. Special racing departments will ue instituted.

This movement, naturally, will see the finish of the "barn-built" car, which has been so prominent in American racing. With the finest engineering skill and the best of materials required to win, it is not thought likely that the heterogeneously-assembled freak will have a chance.

In advancing the art, of course, the Speedway proposes to do its material as well as moral share. To render high-speed work more safe, the surface of the track will be widened fifteen feet on the inside and retaining walls built all around. Additional comfort will be provided for drivers and mechanicians, in the shape of a clubhouse inside the grounds, with a swimming pool and other conveniences.

Costly.

MOTOR BATHING GIRL TO WEAR EXPENSIVE SHEA

ONE of the bathing girls who is to appear in the annual Ocean Park bathing-girl pageant, Sunday, June 28, is to wear an imported sea gown which is expected to be the most expensive costume in the parade.

Frank S. Howard of the Howard Automobile Company has entered a Buick "Six" in the lists aud has made arrangements with the B. H. Dyas company for the costume to be worn by the Buick bathing girl. This costume was ordered from Paris last week and is to arrive in time for the vacation-time show.

The bathing dress is [illegible] of a French shop with [illegible] tation, and Bernal Dyas [illegible] that it will be the most [illegible] costume in the parade.

In the past the beach [illegible] show has not been touched [illegible] the smell of gasoline. [illegible] the Los Angeles motor [illegible] took hold of the affair, and [illegible] great array of the latest [illegible] ready entered the fete [illegible] sume large proportions.

A small leather case [illegible] fit the driver's pocket, [illegible] tooth brush, tube of paste [illegible] comb.

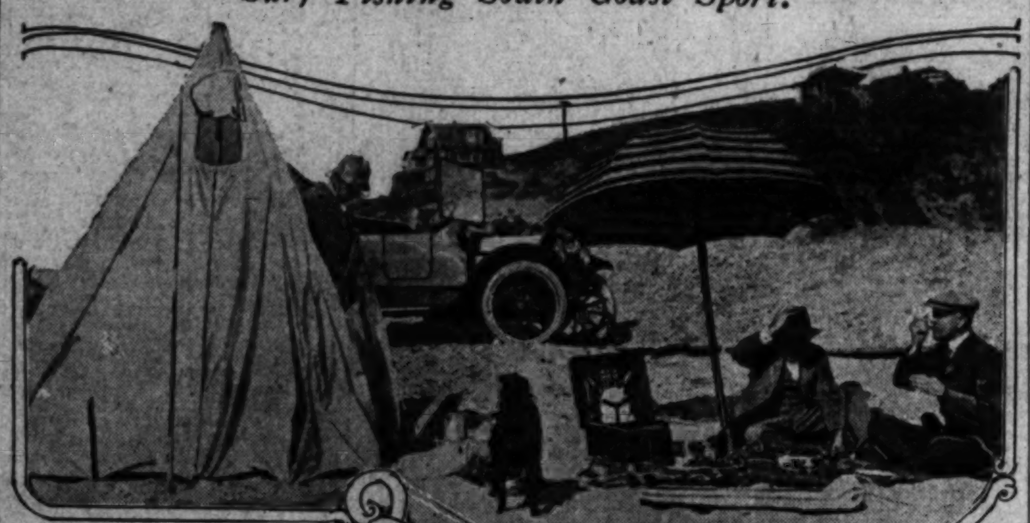
Surf Fishing South Coast Sport.



Motor sportsmen

With Buick "38" camped on beach near Del Rey where bathing, surf fishing, camping and motoring are combined in a brief outing. Above, the lightweight auto tent used for dressing-room, the Buick in background, handy beach umbrella and picnic outfit. Below, Bob Paulson of B. H. Dyas Co., wearing new surf-fishing trousers, and H. R. Hazelton with latest patent cork surf board.

Popular.

SURF FISHING GREAT SPORT.

COMPLETE OUTFIT INCLUDES CAMP EQUIPMENT.

With Automobile Beaches Where Catches Are Made Can Be Reached With Ease, and Combination of Sports Makes Excellent Short Vacation for Busy City Man.

Surf fishing is a popular sport along the south coast from the Malabu to San Diego.

Where rugged cliffs take the place of sandy beach strips, rock bass are usually to be found. The bass fishing is even more popular than surf fishing with many sportsmen and vacationists.

With an automobile, it is an easy matter to get out for a short outing or even a week's vacation on the sands, where bathing, surf fishing and motoring all combine to make a successful recreation period.

When there is no automobile to be had the Pacific Electric or the Santa Fe, running down the coast, will take the vacation sportsman to the sandy fishing grounds. But with an automobile surf fishing is a regular sport.

A few camping utensils, bathing suits, an auto tent, a beach umbrella, fishing tackle, surf board, surf boots and a motor car; then surf fishing is really enjoyed.

There is some excellent surf fishing along the coast north of Santa Monica. Good catches are landed on the beach near Del Rey and below Redondo. Many fishermen go to San Onofre, Oceanside, Encinitas or Del Mar. All these places are reached by automobile over very good roads.

VALVE CUSHION OFTEN TO BLAME.

It sometimes happens that when a tire valve cap has been screwed down tightly for some time, the center portion will be bulged out, and the edges will adhere slightly to the stem. When the cap is unscrewed this cushion may pull out a little before it will let go of the stem.

On the cap being applied again, the bulging center portion may hit the end of the stem of the valve core, opening the valve slightly. This will let the air out slowly, as in the case of a slow leak due to a pinhole puncture. If no puncture can be found to account for a slow leak, inspect the cushion in the valve cap before blaming it on the valve.

Road Dopers.

LOS ANGELES TO YUMA ROUTE IS NOW MAPPED.

AUTOMOBILE maps showing the route from Los Angeles to Yuma, Ariz., have been issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

These maps will direct the motorist from Yuma into Los Angeles, through the Imperial Valley without the need of asking questions along the route, and are considered by Secretary Mitchell as among the most important ever issued by the Auto Club.

Of particular importance to the motorist is the map which shows every spring and water hole on the road between Mecca and Brawley. Not only the location of the springs is shown, but the exact distances from the Ocean-to-Ocean highway and the quality of water in each.

A Sure 25% Saved on Tires

16 makes of tires now sell above Goodyear prices. Half of them sell about one-third higher. As between them and Goodyears, you are sure of one saving—right at the start—of 25 per cent.

Arrogant Prices

The evidence is that Goodyear tires are the best tires built today. They outsell any other. And they won that place by millions of mileage tests.

If that is so, an extra price means simple arrogance. Or it is used to infer an extra quality, which doesn't and cannot exist. Or it is forced by limited, high-cost production.

None of those reasons warrants you in paying the higher prices.

Our Latest Saving

Price is our latest saving. For years we worked solely to increase the Goodyear mileage. No-Rim-Cut tires then cost you more than others.

We reached the limit in good tires, then turned our efforts to reducing cost. Now No-Rim-Cut tires cost you half what they used to cost. Last year's reductions totaled 28 per cent. And many of the tires which once undersold us, cost you more than Goodyears now.

The reason lies in our factory efficiency—in our matchless output—in our modern equipment. It also lies in our modest profit, which last year averaged 6½ per cent.

Things Others Lack

These four features of No-Rim-Cut tires are found in no others, whatever the price:

First, our No-Rim-Cut feature.

Second, our "On-Air" cure—done to save the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

Third, our patent method for combating tread separation.

Fourth, our All-Weather tread—our double-thick, resistless anti-skid, yet as flat and smooth running as a plain tread.

These are all costly features. One of them adds to our tire cost $1,500 per day. Yet we offer them all in No-Rim-Cut tires, and no high-priced tire offers one of them.

If these facts appeal to you, ask your dealer to get you Goodyear tires.

GOODRICH ROAD MAPS FREE.

Highways of the World Mapped for Free Distribution—United States Roads "Signed" in All Directions.

Road signs of the Goodrich touring bureau have been placed on 300,000 miles of roads in the United States, Canada and Europe, and route books have been printed for free distribution, showing maps of principal routes with other information superior to many guide books.

Road logs, rules of the road, and route data affecting any particular locality may be had for the asking.

The bureau, is sending out 2000 pieces of information daily.

FAME DISTORTION.

If the clutch shows a tendency to slip on corners, especially on grades, when power is needed, it is not an infallible sign that the spring needs tightening. When a corner of a well-cambered road is taken, there is a certain distortion of the frame, which brings the clutch and drive shaft out of alignment slightly and will prevent the clutch face making full contact. This is most noticeable on cars with but a single universal joint, when the distortion of the frame has more effect on the driving shaft.

Buffalo and Detroit cyclecar clubs run to South Bend, meeting there the Chicago clubs, and all joining the Hoosier Cyclecar Club at Kokomo.

SANTA SUSANA OPEN TO TRAVEL

According to reports received yesterday from the Automobile Club of Southern California, the Santa Susana Pass is now open to motorists.

This provides another route to the north in place of the Calabasas, which has been closed during highway work.

A Man's Auto Clothing Is Important —To give him comfort and make him feel at home in his car, we suggest these—

Auto Dusters, $2.00—Medium weight, extra quality, gray chambray, cut full length and fitted with dust-proof sleeves. Others from $1.50 to $8.00.

Jumper Overalls, $2.00—They completely cover your clothes, protecting them from grease and dirt. You need one when you change tires, etc.

Gauntlet Gloves, $1.50—Strong horsehide gloves, in black and tan, with soft folding gauntlet.

Goggles for Touring, $1.25.

Everything for Keeping Your Car Clean

—You'll be surprised to see how easy it is to do your own cleaning, when you have the proper materials with which to work. You'll be interested in the following—

5 Gals. Amalie Oil (Medium) $3.25

Monday only—this excellent Pennsylvania paraffine base oil—$3.75 worth for $3.25.

Piston Gas Savers, 65c

—Easily attached to the manifold. Use them when you want your engine to pick up quickly or when hill climbing, you can save 15% to 25% on gasoline. Simply a touch of a lever does the work.

—It makes your motor burn air in place of gasoline, and keeps your engine cooler.

5-Gallon Desert Water Bag, $1.75

—A canvas bag which, when swung from the side of your car, will keep water cool and delightfully so even on the hottest day.

Suggestions!

35c to 60c Washing Sponges, 15c—A special price on soft, washing sponges.

Chamois Skins, 35c—Genuine oil tanned chamois that will not harden in water.

5-lb. Bag A-1 White Waste, 75c—Clean, long-strand waste in a water proof bag that will be convenient, when empty, for carrying extra tubes.

Mobo Soap, 2 lbs., 40c—Removes grease and dirt with a fairy touch. It will not harm the finest, varnished finish.

Wonder Polishing Cloths, 15c—For brass, nickel or silver—a chemically treated cloth which gives a high luster without the use of polish.

Dustless Dust Cloths, 15c—They absorb the dust and do not scratch the finest finish.

Large Wool Dusters, 75c and $1.00—Full sized, long-strand dusters that may be used on any part of the car.

Ford Truss Rods $2.50—To strengthen your rear axle and prevent trouble in your differential.

The head of one of the greatest steel mills in America walked into a Studebaker store last week and said: "Send me out a Studebaker SIX. Studebakers are the hardest people in the automobile business to satisfy on steels. Judging by their chemical, metallurgical, and physical tests, this must be the best "Six" in the world".

Studebaker

Economical Light-Weight
SIX
$1575

One of the reasons why Studebakers are the hardest people in the automobile business to satisfy on steels is this:

In no other way than by heat treatment of steels can the strength of a "SIX" be greatly increased while the weight is being decreased.

In no other way than by the scientific distribution of this weight through intensive manufacturing can that balance be secured which results in the superb roadability of the Studebaker SIX.

And the important thing for you to remember is that the Studebaker SIX stands absolutely alone among light "Sixes" in the application of manufacturing methods without which light-weight, strength, balance and roadability are impossible.

How Studebaker SIX Superiority Shows Itself

The Studebaker SIX will glide silently from a standing start on high into a forty mile gait, in a distance of less than 200 yards.

The Studebaker SIX when it is skimming along at a high rate of speed will actually seem to you—from the lack of effort and vibration—to be going at a rate ten miles per hour less.

The Studebaker SIX will stick to a straight line with scarcely a touch on the steering wheel, mile after mile and hour after hour—while other "Sixes" are constantly creeping to one side or the other, and being coaxed back.

The Studebaker SIX will take steeper hills and more of them, on high, than any other "Six" it meets in a day's run.

The Studebaker SIX is not merely motor-silent, but silent all over—the transmission on the rear axle, in addition to its other advantages, contributing to that result.

The Studebaker Proof Book describes and pictures the scientific manufacturing operations of Studebaker. Send for it.

STUDEBAKER
Detroit

The difference between a brand-new manufactured Studebaker SIX and a brand-new assembled or semi-manufactured "Six" is immediately apparent in the superior way in which the Studebaker holds the road. And that difference grows more marked month after month. It culminates tragically, in a second-hand sale of the non-manufactured "Six" at a terrific depreciation.

The Studebaker FOUR is characterized by the same manufacturing excellence and quality of material as the Studebaker SIX.

MOTOR BEACH PAGEANT TO SHOW LATEST CREATIONS.

IN THE neighborhood of 100 automobiles are to be in line Sunday, June 28, when the annual Ocean Park bathing girl parade starts down the broad walk.

The motor car dealers of Los Angeles are to be well represented. The latest models are to pass in review, decorated with summer girls garbed in their latest models. Beach auto agents will also come in on the pageant and a string of privately-owned machines is assured, according to Les Henry, the man who is handling the Ocean Park end of the entry list.

Between the new stream line bodies and the new extreme line bodies, there should be some show.

The automobile has always played a prominent part in the summer doings at Ocean Park and the beach officials inaugurated the fete as an annual affair for the benefit of the thousands of motor-car enthusiasts who will appreciate this opportunity of witnessing a novel automobile show during the busy summer season.

The new models will not be the only attraction of the pageant. The bathing girls have new lines to show also. Some of the creations to be worn are most artistic.

Keen rivalry has entered into the show. The fair bathers of the South Coast are showing great interest in the contest and each mermaid entered is determined to win one of the cash prizes.

Each machine is to carry one entrant. The cars are to be open, of course, and the mermaids are to sit on elevated seats so that no detail of the bathing costumes worn will be lost to the spectator.

This novel automobile show is distinctly a Southern California feature. The moving-picture weeklies are to run the scenes throughout the country for the benefit of California and the automobile industry.

AUTO MEN GATHER FOR CONVENTION.

From every part of the United States, as well as from several foreign countries, ninety-five traveling factory representatives of the Willys-Overland Company met in annual convention at Toledo, during the week of May 25 to 29.

The purpose of these yearly gatherings is to review past experiences and to outline in a specific manner the plan of campaign for the coming season. To this end considerable time was devoted to mechanical discussion, and following this, officials of the company explained administrative policies.

In order to foster and encourage harmony, so noticeable in the Overland organization, the evenings were spent in informal social session, a theater party, smoker and banquet at Hotel Secor, being prominent features.

LOS ANGELES HAS CHAPTER OF ELECTRIC BODY.

Service Stations to Be Established Where Drivers of Electric Automobiles Will Be Able to Get Recharges and Service Similar to that Offered to Gasoline Machines.

The Electric Vehicle Association of America has established a chapter in Los Angeles. The local section of the great organization is composed of prominent men interested in the sale and promotion of electric vehicles.

Last night the organization was perfected. With a membership of thirty-one, the officers were elected for the coming year.

J. Harry Pieper of the Southern California Edison Company is president; Harry W. Harrison, General Vehicle Company, vice-president, and James F. Rogan of the Edison Storage Battery Company, secretary.

The Executive Committee consists of G. B. McLean, Pacific Light and Power Corporation; A. T. Smith, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company; J. O. Case, General Electric Company; H. J. Kister, Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation; Earl C. Anthony, California Motor Company; I. R. Solomon, Gould Storage Battery Company; Charles Carter, Pacific States Electric Company, and Volney S. Beardsley, Beardsley Electric Company.

It is intended by the new organization to establish a system of electric service stations throughout Southern California, where drivers of electric cars may call for service just as drivers of gas cars call at the National Supply Stations.

The membership list of the local organization is as follows: John B. Miller, Southern California Edison Company; S. M. Kennedy, Southern California Edison Company; J. Harry Pieper, Southern California Edison Company; C. P. Houghton, Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation; H. J. Kister, Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation; J. F. Rogan, Edison Storage Battery Company; H. W. Harrison, General Electric Company; Volney S. Beardsley, Beardsley Electric Company; John D. Shannon, Beardsley Electric Company; I. R. Solomon, Gould Storage Battery Company; R. H. Morris, Electric Car Exchange; A. T. Smith, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company; Earl C. Anthony, California Motor Company; Charles Carter, Pacific States Electric Company; W. F. Rath, Electric Storage Battery Company; C. H. Kay, Kay & Burbank, Pasadena, Cal.; A. C. Kendall, Kendall Auto Company, Pasadena; J. O. Case, General Electric Company; W. E. Kerrick, Wilshire Auto Company; C. B. Lamoree, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; A. H. Sweetland, National St. and Sta. Ind. Co.; T. E. Felt, 1837 West Thirty-eighth street, Los Angeles; R. R. Thomas, Electric Equipment Company; Carl Klemp, California Electric Garage; A. F. Morton, California Electric Garage; R. R. McIntosh, Washington Street Electric Garage; E. R. Davis, Pacific Light and Power Corporation; G. B. McLean, Pacific Light and Power Corporation; A. W. Harrison, Los Angeles Creamery and Auto Company; E. B. Moore, Los Angeles Creamery and Auto Company; S. S. Wilder, Kendall Auto Company.

The brace rods between the fender underneath light cars sometimes break from severe vibratory action. This can easily be prevented by placing a small strut in the middle of the under floor and fastening it to the brace to prevent vibration.

During the height of the spring and autumn seasons the number of automobiles passing a given point in the Champs Elysees, in Paris, is not less than 5000 an hour at certain times of the day. The average number of motor vehicles passing within twenty-four hours during the month of November is between 9000 and 10,000.

SCENIC ROAD CREST DRIVE.

Thousand Wonders; Route Still Unchristened.

Mountain Playground Offers Vacation Charms.

Motor Trucks Render Travel Safe and Easy.

They haven't named it yet, but it could be the "trail of the thousand wonders"—the crest road through the heart of the San Bernardino Mountains.

The entire loop, reaching up into the skies a mile high, swings through the very garden of nature's wonder spots. The road goes up the mountain side, and then from Pinecrest through to Bear Valley. All of Southern California to the south and the Colorado desert to the north is unfolded from many points on the road.

THE BIG LOOP.

It is eighty-five miles around the big scenic loop, which starts and ends at San Bernardino.

The last of $1,000,000 is now being spent by the county to complete the drive which it is hoped will make the San Bernardino Mountains famous throughout America.

From Skyland, Squirrel Inn and Pinecrest, nestled in the big pines as the crest is reached on the upward journey, the drive starts east. Thousand Pines is to the north a short distance. Across the face of Strawberry peak goes the road, down into Little Bear Valley and up again on the crest at Heaps. To this point the road is now open for travel, and 100 men will complete the little gap at the "snow slides" within a few weeks. Automobiles will then travel the entire route. A railroad grade has been converted to an automobile road for twelve miles in the Fredalba region, on toward Bear Valley. The road winds through Green Valley and enters Bear Valley from the north, circling the big lake.

From Bear Valley the descent is through the scenic Santa Ana Canyon.

There are great forests of pines, two beautiful mountain lakes, roaring streams and scenic settings.

Surveyors left Thursday for Bear Valley to mark out another route for a portion of the distance from Deep Creek, near Heaps, to Bear Valley, in order to avoid the snow slides. This road will cross the head of Bear Creek and enter Bear Valley at the dam. The road will be laid across the top of the dam.

THROUGH TICKETS.

Another section of the loop will be completed next year, and will wind up the slope of Mt. San Bernardino from Redlands.

The transcontinental railroads, recognizing in the San Bernardino Mountains wonder spots that are unsurpassed in the West, tickets will this summer be sold at all points on the steam railroads and on the Pacific Electric for any point in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Stage companies operate White motor trucks from this city into the mountains, and they have made traffic agreements with the railroads, resulting in the sale of through tickets.

LOCAL MOTORISTS ROUGHING IT TO NEW YORK.

Automobiles With Camping Equipment Strapped to Running Boards or Back Are Common Sights in Vacation Time on Popular Highways and Exclusive Parties Join.

The summer touring season is well under way. Machines with camping outfits roped on the back or running board are common sights on the highways and daily parties are leaving on long jaunts into the country.

The number of vacation tourists will increase from day to day. Charles Swett, who had his new Stevens-Duryea especially equipped for camping, is now on his way to New York. He is accompanied by Mrs. Swett and they are living out of doors almost entirely. The cars can be fitted up as a Pullman berth and with the tent covering makes an ideal camp.

RACERS PLAN FOR CLASSIC

STUTZ MACHINES BEING BUILT FOR SPEEDWAY.

Foreigners Will Have to Beat American Drivers at Their Own Game Next Season When Cars Now Being Built for Speed Start in Long Motor Grind at Indianapolis.

Foreign cars will not have "pickins" at Indianapolis next year, according to Walter M. Brown, local Stutz dealer. Brown has officiated as pit manager for the Stutz steam during the past three seasons.

After the 500-mile race, it was decided to start at once building cars which are to compete in the mile race next season.

Henry W. Campbell, vice-president of the Stutz company, said that it was no use to race against the foreign designers unless the cars were built right. A conference was called and it was decided to build three for the race, which were to be started immediately.

The cars driven in the last 500-mile race were designed, built and turned out in less than three months. Harry Stutz left Los Angeles after the Grand Prize event at Santa Monica, and arrived at the factory March 15, and in six weeks the cars were built.

The piston rods on the Stutz driven by Oldfield weighed more than the piston rods, connecting rods and bearings together on the foreign cars. The European builders used steel connecting rods, crank shafts, valves and cam shafts.

The crank shafts and cam shafts run on ball bearings. Little wonder they showed up the American stock models.

SOONG KING DONG SINGS "SIX" SONG

Shanghai was recently startled by a procession of six Studebaker six-cylinder cars, bearing the widow of Soong King Dong, a former her four sons, daughter and grandchildren, all converts to the new religion and the Yankee car.

Mrs. Soong had appreciated the tastes of her family, and supplied the whole outfit, at one fell swoop, vehicles which put them in the running.

His Fate.

SHALL EHMKE BE SENT TO THE MAJOR LEAGUE?

Some Fans Believe that Trade Could Be Made Which Would Cinch the Pennant for Los Angeles — Others, Actuated by Local Pride, Would Like to See Him Pitted Against Mr. Ty Cobb.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

WHAT shall be done with Howard Ehmke? This is a question that is beginning to agitate our intelligent population.

Whether to trade the young man to Los Angeles in the East permitting him to assist Walter Johnson in pitching the Washington into the championship, not only of the American League, but of all the world, outside of that portion of by the Federal League, or him for local use, and lose him in the draft along about August is something to ponder over.

At first thought, the impulse is for everybody to stand up at once and "Hit on the swap." On sober, second thought, providing any of those are sober, it may be possible to view the thing from another and [illegible] angle.

Strange as it may appear, a number of prominent fans have expressed themselves as favorable to swapping.

In this, they are not actuated by any spirit of generosity toward the [illegible] club, or any other major league team, but they believe that a deal could be arranged which would more than offset the loss of Ehmke and cinch the pennant for Los Angeles.

WILL BE DRAFTED.

Unless sold or traded, Ehmke will be lost by draft, that being one of the penalties to which minor leagues are subjected by the majors under the present scheme of things.

Several big league clubs have put in bids for Ehmke. The latest of these was received yesterday by Tom [illegible], one of the Los Angeles directors, from Cincinnati.

The highest of these comes in the form of a large lump of money and players now in the major. On the whole, it is said, approximating the record-breaking price paid by Chicago for Larry Chappelle.

The fans are not interested in what the local club could get in the way of cash for Ehmke, being solely concerned with the players who would be included in the deal.

So far, Berry has turned down all the offers—some of which are calculated to dazzle a magnate. His [illegible] heart is set on the pennant.

PROUD OF HIM.

Both Los Angeles and Glendale are filled with pride over Ehmke's be[illegible]. Just now he is the favorite son of both these places. Naturally, the major league is the goal which they have selected for him, and there are a lot of people who will not be wholly happy until they can pick up their morning Pink and read about how he acted when pitted against Cobb, Speaker, Crawford, Jackson and other characters who are in[illegible] to disturb the peace.

[illegible] Ehmke has made a record without a precedent in baseball. No youngster has even approximated it his first season out.

Some contend that he is not yet ripe for the majors—that it would be rushing things to send him up before next season. Others opine that anyone who can win eight straight in this league is ripe for the fastest baseball company in the world.

MUST HELP CLUB.

As much as some of the fans may yearn to see Ehmke step into the majors, they would oppose such a move with all the power of their bellows, unless it could be shown that the deal would be of a character to actually strengthen the Los Angeles club in the present race.

The fans—those loyal human beings whose four-bit pieces and quarters keep the game going—should have the first and final say in the mater.

At the same time, the player's preferences should be considered. If Ehmke and all his relatives feel that he is ripe for advancement, and he pines for higher things, it is doubtful whether anyone has a moral right to stand in his way.

SEES BENEFIT.

"I would like to see Ehmke sent to the majors in a deal which would be half sale and half trade," yesterday declared a fan, who, for no less than seven years has been rooting himself black in the face on behalf of the Angels.

"While the desire to see the kid have a chance in fast company is partly responsible for my attitude, I am largely guided by selfishness. I believe that a deal could be made which would cinch the flag for Los Angeles. That is, men could be secured who would be of greater value to the club than Ehmke.

"The youngster, while he has been pitching sensational ball, may not be able to hold up. His greatest value lies not so much in his present ability as in his future development.

"Two good men could be secured in any deal made for Ehmke. One would be a high-class infielder, and that is the one thing needed to make the Angels a pennant certainty. The other would be an experienced pitcher who, on the season's work, probably would win as many games as Ehmke. The kid might "blow," while an experienced, seasoned pitcher, with major league training, would be a sure thing.

NEED ANOTHER INFIELDER.

"With four pitchers of the caliber of Ryan, Perritt, Hughes and Chech, the club has a wonderful staff—one which figures to keep it in the lead with the right kind of support. What the club needs more than anything else is another fast, hard-hitting infielder. If a player answering this description and an experienced pitcher can be secured in exchange for Ehmke, I don't think there is much doubt as from which flagpole the pennant will fly along in October."

These enlightening remarks are but the expression of one man.

Others who hold similar or dissenting views, and who can express themselves in something like fifty words, are invited to take their pen in hand and address some written remarks to The Times Pink.

Welcome.

GRAND PRIZE WINNER TO JOIN LOCAL AUTO PLANT.

GEORGE R. BENTEL of the Ben[illegible] Company, has returned from the East. He managed the Mercer pits in the Indianapolis race and made a hurry-up trip to the Mercer and Simplex factories. He returned by way of San Francisco, where the local firm has a branch. Bentel has been prominent as a race manager for years and has gained a reputation as a pit manager. He figured prominently in Pullen's grand prize Mercer victory.

Among the important announcements made by Bentel was that Eddie Pullen was coming to Los Angeles. He will be here within a few days to join the local company.

The car that Pullen would have driven will be sent to Elgin for the famous Illinois road race, and may be driven by Bragg. The Mercer that Wishart drove will be sent to Sioux City for the big event next month.

Pullen will be the Mercer representative at the Tacoma races, where he will drive the Mercer in which he won the Grand Prize. This car has remained in Los Angeles, but will be tuned up and sent North.

Unique Bargain.

LO, THE POOR INDIAN, TURNS OUT RICH BUYER.

BILL WHALEY, chief of the Digger tribe of Indians now located on Mill Creek Reservation, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, refuted all misconceptions of Indian conservatism when he bought a More[illegible] three-quarter-ton motor truck from Roy Bowser of Fresno. Bowser had overtaken the chief and his team of eight mules on their way to the reservation with supplies. After a brief chat, the chief observed, "[illegible] truck, but no pullem hills." Bowser at once loaded the packs, chief and Sunday squaw on his machine, ran over a 32 per cent. grade to the Indian camp, and thereupon received the price of his truck in gold coin taken from a safe in the chief's wigwam.

Chief Bill declared that no other motor car had ever climbed the hills to their home, and sent a fine young buck back with Bowzer for instruction in driving.

Three days found the car, driver and salesman back on the reservation, where the latter was presented with a fine blanket as a bonus.

Reel Demonstration.

MAXWELL CARS TO SHOW IN MOVING PICTURES.

THE Maxwell car is to be shown around the world in moving pictures.

About a month ago an operator of the [illegible] company was started. He is now visiting the principal sections of the country and taking pictures of Maxwell cars in actual use.

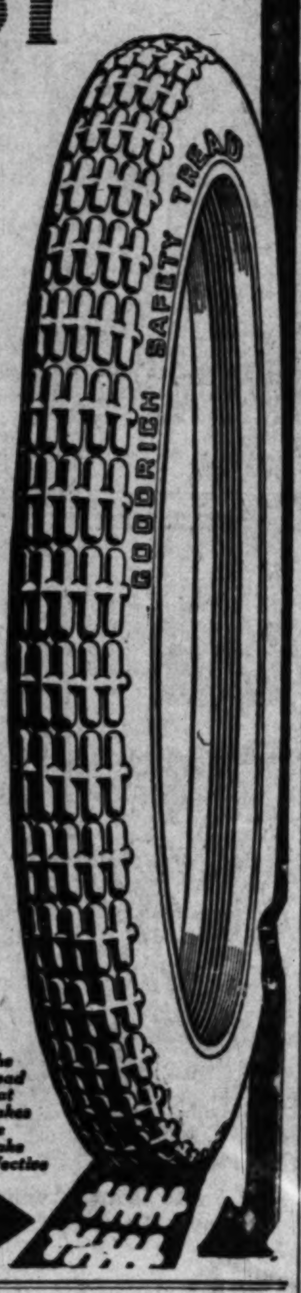
Last week the troupe visited Southern California, taking pictures at [illegible], Mt. Wilson and at Pasadena, showing the garden spots of this beautiful section of the State. Other views are now being taken around San Francisco, the squad going there directly from here.

Fifty sets of the films will be made, fifteen of which will be kept here, the others being sent to Europe. Covering the United States so thoroughly will secure a set of pictures which ought to be sufficient proof to convince the most skeptical that the Maxwell is built to give service everywhere.

MOTORISTS' AID FRATERNITY GUIDE.

An organization to promote the [illegible] sympathy already existing among motorists, to protect motorists against theft and to help them out when stranded among [illegible] by breakdowns or other difficulties has been founded by a group of [illegible] business men. It is incorporated as the Motorists' Mutual Association. The founders intend forming a national organization, with agents in every county in every State in the Union, and with as many branches as the organization's growth may require in addition to the central headquarters.

A motor-tourist guide book will be published, with lists of garages and other information, and an arrangement with country telephone operators is planned whereby tourists may be quickly connected with members of the association in any community. A system for immediately notifying by wire every town within a radius of 200 miles whenever a member's car is stolen is also being worked out. The association aims to co-operate with automobile clubs.



SAFETY FIRST

More is expected of a Goodrich Tire than of any other—and more is given by it

The obligations placed upon any automobile tire are largely in direct proportion to its acknowledged rank.

perial Beach, Nestor, National City and San Diego, with runs to Tia Juana and Chula Vista on the side.

It is claimed that this will be one of the most attractive drives in the State for the visiting autoists in 1915.

Point Loma offers a twelve-mile boulevard stretch, from the Grant Hotel out to the old lighthouse on the point. From here a wonderful view is to be had. San Diego, the exposition buildings, the bay, Coronado, Ocean Beach, Old Town, False Bay, Pacific Beach, a wide stretch of ocean and the mountains across the Mexican border, are all spread out like a painting.

From San Diego to La Jolla is an excellent fourteen-mile drive.

This road is not paved, but is well graded and kept in excellent condition through Old Town and Pacific Beach to the famous little resort, La Jolla. This drive skirts False Bay, where fish spearing is enjoyed as a sport.

The fishermen go out at night in a boat and as the water is not deep over the mud flats, the fish come up to the flash of electric flash lights and the sport is in hooking them on the end of a small spear.

BASS FISHING.

There is bass fishing in the great 11,000,000,000-gallon reservoir above the Sweetwater Dam. There is an excellent road to the dam from San Diego.

Other runs are to Lakeside, a distance of twenty-two miles from San Diego. It is thirty-six miles from Lakeside to Cuyamaca through Alpine, The Willows and Descanso. Beyond Cuyamaca there is Julian and Santa Ysabel, Warner's Hot Springs and Ramona.

From San Diego to Miramar the distance is fourteen miles.

The run over into the Imperial Valley from San Diego is now popular.

Practically all the roads in San Diego county are in good condition at present and with a machine, there is no end to the territory to be covered by the automobile vacationist.

QUARTER-MILLION IS ROAD MILEAGE.

An exhaustive investigation involving nearly 1,100,000 miles of rural free delivery routes has just been coompleted by the Joint Congressional Committee on Federal Aid in the Construction of Post Roads. The returns show that approximately 1,003,000 miles of actual public highway are comprised in the rural free delivery system. As there are approximately 157,000 miles of highway traversed by star routes, it follows that the United States mail is now carried over an aggregate of something like 1,160,000 miles of public highway. The returns would justify the estimates previously made by the United States Office of Public Roads that the total length of public roads in the United States is approximately 2,225,000 miles, as it is safe to assume that the unimportant neighborhood roads not used for mail service would in all probability equal the mileage of actual post roads.

Tire records are believed to be universally overreached in the case of a Rauch & Lang electric recently exchanged by James Lansburg of Washington, D. C., which had been driven 33,000 miles on one equipment of Motz cushion tires.

MANY HIGHWAY LINKS TO ATTRACT AUTO VISITORS.

Work of Automobile Club of Southern California a Boon to Good Roads Movement Now at Height—San Diego County Has Excellent System Now Ready for Exposition Motorists.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is at the height of its good roads building career. At no time in the past have so many roads been in course of construction or projected.

The Automobile Club of Southern California is largely responsible for the good roads movement which is sweeping the State. The southern counties are active in this work at present and Southern California's wonderful road system is being rapidly rushed to completion.

San Diego county has practically completed its chain of good roads. Good roads lead to practically every place of importance in the county and there are many attractive tours for visiting motorists.

TO MEXICO.

At the present time, a new road is being built between San Diego and Tia Juana, the border town. This will be appreciated by the exposition visitors.

According to the latest reports brought in by the auto club engineers, Orange county is leading in Southern California road building activity. With a bond issue to draw on, the county is constructing many important highway links. Among these is the long highway from Rincon to Anaheim Landing through the Santa Ana Canyon, Anaheim and Cypress.

Other highway projects of Orange county which are of interest to Southern California motorists, are the routes leading from Santa Ana to Laguna and Huntington beaches. The Whittier road from the county line below Whittier through Orange county is rapidly nearing completion. Besides these important roads there are connection with the county road from Olinda through Placentia and from Northam through Buena Park.

Riverside county is in the movement with a bond issue also and many new good roads are being worked up for motorists to all points within the county.

San Bernardino county has a number of new highways projected which will be built as soon as the bond issue goes through.

Imperial Valley has come in for a share in the good roads work. A road through the mountains from Warner's ranch to the valley is one of the important Imperial projects. Along the route of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway, improvements have been scheduled which will greatly benefit transcontinental motor tourists. The new road into San Diego by way of the famous Mountain Springs grade is now being used by automobilists and operators of motor trucks.

NEW ROUTE.

Los Angeles county has a new pass through the Santa Monica Mountains projected. This new link is to connect the San Fernando Valley with Beverly and Hollywood by way of the scenic Benedict Canyon. From this city to the beach there is a new route almost directly out Pico street.

In Santa Barbara county as in San Diego county there is little road building going on at present, as that county has completed many excellent highways which are appreciated by local and visiting motorists.

Ventura county has a large force of men at work improving the roads, which were all more or less damaged by the winter floods.

GOODYEAR WINDOW IS JUNE FEATURE.

Window displays of Goodyear tires and accesories are to be maintained throughout the country this month, a standard design having been prepared by a window dresser of national reputation.

Dealers are using standard decorations in preparing their show windows, the combined effort resulting in a campaign of tremendous extent.

NAPTHALENE FUEL UNSATISFACTORY.

In Europe napthalene, which is a coal-tar product and known to most of us in the form of moth balls, has been used to some extent for motor fuel. To use naphthalene it is necessary to start the engine on gasoline and melt the napthalene in a hot carbureter before it can be used.

The unsatisfactory performance of a motor running on napthalene, the high cost of production and the restricted supply, however, prohibit the consideration of napthalene as a practical substitute. Creosote has also been suggested as an available fuel. It is likewise a coal tar product and contains about 40 per cent. of napthalene.

COUNT IT UP BEFORE THE BUMP.

While a good many motorists have had personal experience to indicate the severe nature of the "jolt" involved as the result of a collision when the machine is proceeding at speed, it remained for an engineer with leisure for the exercise of his mathematical faculties to visualize, as it were, the personal risk involved in horizontal motion. While the calculations are here applied to the automobile, they are, of course, equally applicable to any other mode of transportation from roller skates up to the trains, motor boats and hydroaeroplanes. The figures show that were a car moving at the rate of ten miles an hour suddenly blocked by a solid wall the shock encountered would be equivalent to that resulting from a direct fall of 3.36 feet. The effect upon a passenger precipitated from a car moving at that rate would be the same. At twenty miles an hour the shock would be equivalent to that resulting from a fall of 13.44 feet, while at forty miles an hour the equivalent height of fall is 53.78 feet. At fifty miles per hour, which is about a maximum for highway travel with ordinary touring cars, despite the fevered assertions of boastful drivers, the shock of collision with a fixed object would equal a fall of 86.53 feet. The figures are based on the fundamental law of falling bodies, which may be reduced to such a form that the height of fall is equal to the square of the velocity at the instant of impact divided by twice the acceleration due to gravity.

NEW RUBBER.

Two French inventors are reported to have discovered a new process for vulcanizing rubber. They have communicated to the French Academy of Science their invention, which renders possible the production of dissolved vulcanized rubber. According to this communication, if to a solution of rubber in benzine a quantity of sulphur is added and the whole subjected to the action of ultra violet rays, the two elements combine into a solution of vulcanized rubber which is stable, despite being composed of an insoluble element.

The Automobile Club of America has leased a plot of ten lots, extending from Seventy-first to Seventy-second streets, New York City, between Avenue A and Exchange street. The property will be improved with a three-story garage building, capable of housing 350 cars, to be used as a service building and garage for members of the club living on the east side of the city.

WHOA!

Do you have to stop half way up the hill and cool off your engine?

It's a poor car that won't go down hill "on high."

But it takes a light car with a powerful engine to go up hill with speed.

That's why the Light Six is the car of the hour.

However, some Light Sixes, with lots of power, won't last long—because durability has been sacrificed for lightness.

The NATIONAL LITTLE SIX stands in a class by itself; because it is the one perfect car of the Light Sixes—the car that stands the wear and tear of any kind of traveling.

And believe us—all the roads of Southern California are not asphalt boulevards.

The man who thoughtfully investigates Light Sixes—buys a National. Have a demonstration this week.

A Charming Idea.

A VACATION TOUR INTO THE RAMONA COUNTRY.

How to See a Part of Southern California, Famous for Its History, Beauty and Romantic Charm — It's Off the Tourist Rubber-Neck Route — An Unconventional Trek.

BY HARRY CARR.

In the estimation of most people, Southern California consists of the following places:

The Esplanade at Venice.

The old mission at San Gabriel.
Magnolia drive at Riverside.

Orange Grove avenue at Pasadena.
The Alexandria Grill.

Well, I will slip you a grand surprise: There are several places in addition to the tourist haunts abovementioned. Really, it's the truth.

These places mentioned are the mile posts along the rubber-neck route.

As a little suggestion, I can think of nothing that could be more charming in the way of a vacation than to visit the scenes that Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson used for the setting of "Ramona."

Such a trip would have a certain romantic charm; it would open to you phases of California life that you never dreamed of; lastly, it would give you a wonderfully comprehensive idea of this southern country that would be worth while if you never heard of Ramona in your life.

The trip does not involve any study of Ramona. Aimless traveling is never entertaining. Ramona gives just enough theme to give zest and point to the vacation trek.

In an automobile, you could cover the trip with the side trips that it involves in about a week.

You can do it three or four days by train.

On horseback or walking, which are the best ways, it would take all summer—but it would be a wonderful summer.

BEAUTIFUL CAMULOS.

We will disregard the bum jokes of the rubber-neck guide about Ramona having been born in so many different places. The locale of the novel is clear and definitely known to all old Californians.

The lovely old hacienda described as Ramona's home is at Camulos, near Santa Paula. It is still there, just as Mrs. Jackson described it, even to the prickly beds of artichokes upon which the altar cloths were torn. The old olive mill; the little chapel, are there. The room where Ramona slept as a girl is still pointed out.

The property belonged to the family of Senator Del Valle, when Mrs. Jackson saw it and some of the Del Valles still live there.

Camulos can be reached by the Southern Pacific; it can be reached by a charming automobile trip, out on San Fernando road, up through Newhall, along the Santa Paula road.

All the country over which you pass on that road is historic. The road between Newhall and Camulos was the scene of many Indian battles in the early California days, when the war parties came down from the Owens River country bent on horse-stealing. The bandits of California's Robin Hood—Joaquin Murietta used to pillage that valley and one of the gang was killed near Camulos in a terrific running fight.

After seeing Camulos, I would suggest keeping on to Ventura and spending the night there. The mission at Ventura was the last one established and contains many interesting works of art. The town itself has a quaint historic interest in having been the landing place of Cabrillo.

THE REAL RAMONA.

Now that we have visited the hacienda that Mrs. Jackson regarded as a typical California home of the old days, we will turn south and have a look at Ramona herself. She's still there. Honest!

Mrs. Jackson got the idea for Ramona from an old lady who lived in San Jacinto and whom she put into the story as "Aunt Ri." And Aunt Ri told me all about and pointed out Ramona to me, so I know it's so.

Ramona and Alesandro were two Indians who lived in the mountains back of San Jacinto. Alesandro was killed just as Mrs. Jackson tells in the novel, and Ramona lives there still.

She makes her home with the Sobobas, who have a reservation just outside of San Jacinto, but she is not of that people. The Indians do not seem to know just what tribe she comes from. Ramona, herself, is a fat taciturn squaw, who likes to play Mexican monte all night and who charges a dollar to allow anyone to take her photograph. You give her a dollar; take her picture; she loses the dollar to the monte dealer, and everybody is happy.

BEAUTIFUL ROAD.

The road from Ventura south to San Jacinto is one of the most alluring and beautiful in the whole world.

You leave the wheat fields and the oaks of the Santa Clara and skirt the mountains, through Los Angeles, Pasadena, Monrovia and travel that Foothills boulevard along through Lucky Baldwin's superb chain of ranches, through the vineyards and orange groves until you get to Riverside (so you see you can take in that Magnolia drive after all.)

From Riverside, you can climb the plateau directly in the broad plains of San Jacinto Valley, along the San Diego road and branch off to San Jacinto, or you can go to Redlands and through Moreno Pass into the plateau of San Jacinto.

San Jacinto, a little town among the cottonwoods on the banks of the river, is one of the interesting villages in Southern California. Also one of the prettiest. It is just under the shoulder of old Taquitz Mountain, from whose heart come thundering, rumbling noises that the Indians think are the voices of great angry spirits.

Wonderful people, those Indians. They have myths surprisingly like the folk tales of ancient Greece. I suggest that you go there during August or September and take in their fiesta. You will see all the native games and some dances that are worth going a long way to see. Accommodations are rather scarce at this time, so you should write ahead at least two or three days and make reservations at the village hotel.

ALLESANDRO'S COUNTRY.

There are many entertaining side trips immediately around the town. Nat Goodwin has a big r[illegible] the town, and about [illegible] away is Idyllwild, a [illegible] mountain resort among the [illegible]

After San Jacinto, you [illegible] over to Temecula. The road [illegible] through a country whose [illegible] formations fill you with [illegible] wonder. There must have [illegible] volcanic rough house on that [illegible] when the earth was young. [illegible] tains are literally torn to [illegible] scattered for miles over the [illegible] You see boulders as big as [illegible] story office building which [illegible] though they had been [illegible] in the hands of a titan.

Temecula is the little town [illegible] which the people of Allesandro [illegible] driven by the sheep and the [illegible] burned over their heads. The[illegible] still living in the canyons [illegible] they fled. Many old women [illegible] are still living there, who can [illegible] being in the village when it [illegible]

Ramona and Allesandro [illegible] San Diego to be married, and [illegible] suggested that you go over the [illegible] road, a very fascinating and [illegible] turesque journey it is into the [illegible]

You can then return to Los [illegible] les over the coast road.

En route, you will be able to [illegible] in San Juan Capistrano, [illegible] old home near Santa Ana and [illegible] other places of interest, not to [illegible] tion all the beach along the [illegible] Coast, which will be almost at hand.

Also, you will have [illegible] enough romance of old [illegible] days to have lasted you through [illegible] working-day year to follow, [illegible]

Interesting to father, who [illegible] able to get much excited [illegible] love affairs of the lovely [illegible] It will show him the great [illegible] springs belt of California [illegible] medicine bubbles out of the [illegible] and great ranches, who [illegible] wheat and oranges.

One Man—
9000 Horsepower

How the largest exclusive tire factory keeps cost down and keeps quality up.

Firestone

Tires

Cost No More Than Average

Every facility for economical production that science has been able to produce has been brought to bear in the Firestone plant to give you Firestone quality at ordinary price. The power plant, where one man feeds the boilers that produce 9000 horsepower, is one example of Firestone scientific management.

The great Firestone plant naturally attracts the country's greatest tire experts.

Every man in this factory is a tire specialist doing his work with skill and accuracy. Here nothing but tires are made, and every ounce of steam power, every effort of the workmen, every bit of study and thought, are focused on the making of Firestone tires.

This concentration and specialization in production make it possible to give highest quality at a cost no greater than only average tires. The highest quality was proved again at the international sweepstakes in Indianapolis last Decoration Day, when Barney Oldfield led all American cars in the five hundred mile race.

Although he exceeded the speed of last year's winner, averaging 78.15 miles per hour, two of Barney's Firestone tires went through the entire five hundred miles without change.

Firestone finishd first and second in this great race in 1913, as you will remember, also Firestone 1911. Firestones make good on the road because they are made good at the factory.

ANGELES NATIONAL FOREST GREAT VACATION GROUND.

WITH the arrival of what in Southern California is known as the summer season, and the [illegible] now in vogue more than [illegible] of parties hiking to and [illegible] in the mountains, the lure [illegible] national forest is sure to at[illegible] thousands during the hot [illegible].

[illegible] before last summer were [illegible] many pleasure-seekers in [illegible] of umbrageous shade and [illegible] the purling brooks, and it is [illegible] belief of R. H. Carlton, Supervisor of the Angeles National Forest, [illegible] all records will be broken in [illegible]. The train of burros and pack[illegible] is already headed toward the [illegible] section, and the man or [illegible] in search of pleasure and [illegible] are not likely to overlook [illegible] things that the mountains [illegible] afford.

The Angeles forest embraces all [illegible] Sierra Madre and San Bernardino ranges, consisting of one [illegible] and a quarter acres. It is [illegible] that approximately 200,-[illegible] people each year go into the forest for recreation purposes, a greater [illegible] than in any forest in the [illegible].

The forest service allows them to [illegible] tracts of land for residence [illegible] at an annual rental of $15, [illegible] there are about 500 such [illegible] in force. The subdivided [illegible] for leasing purposes are at [illegible] in the Arroyo Seco, Santa [illegible] Antonio, Lytle Creek, [illegible] Dimas and Little Bear can[illegible].

[illegible] there were 133 fires in [illegible] forest, sixty-nine of [illegible] known to have been due [illegible] who will not only leave [illegible] fires burning, but who, [illegible] passing through the big [illegible] carelessly throw away [illegible] cigars and cigarettes. [illegible] a match carelessly thrown [illegible] resulted in a fire that burned over 20,000 acres, and cost $25,000 to extinguish. To combat the danger of fires hereafter in the forest camp fire cards will be required, and they can be obtained free from any forest officer. For the convenience of campers and others the service is distributing maps of the forest, showing all roads, trails, streams, etc., free of charge.

In some of the canyons the forest service is setting aside public camping grounds, which the rangers clean up in the spring and on which they construct fireplaces for the convenience of campers. More than fifty rangers are constantly on duty looking after the woods and the comfort and safety of those who have camped within their jurisdiction. Campers are forbidden by State law to either wade or bathe, or otherwise pollute mountain streams used for domestic purposes, and practically all of them are so used.

According to the figures just compiled by Supervisor Charlton there are approximately 1200 miles of trail and 500 miles of wagon road, in the Angeles National Forest, a greater amount than in any other forest in the country. The trails the forest service maintains not only because they are necessary for travel in case of fire, but also for the benefit of tourists in the mountains, and both Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties recognizing these two values, assist every year in their financial up-keep and extension.

The service throughout the mountains maintains telephone lines, connecting all rangers' headquarters, and has scattered about seventy-five tool-chests containing fire-fighting tools so that there may be no delay in obtaining equipment in case of a fire. In addition there are about 200 fire wardens in this and San Bernardino counties, who assist the forest rangers very materially. The fire-breaks in the Angeles National Forest cover about 130 miles, and they have cleared strips from fifteen to sixty feet in width.

A New Route.

BULLY TRIP THROUGH CALIFORNIA'S WONDERLAND

[illegible] of the most wonderful vacation trips in the world has been [illegible] by very few persons. [illegible] very little money and will [illegible] more sublime scenery than a [illegible] through the entire continent of [illegible]. Queer that more people [illegible] thought of it.

[illegible] take the train from Los Angeles [illegible] Mojave, there changing to [illegible] line that goes up through [illegible] River Valley, along the aqueduct. This part of the trip is worth [illegible] you might have to pay for [illegible] River Valley is California['s] [illegible] 'loo, with quaint little frontier [illegible] at the foot of the high Sierras. The scenery is surpassed by no [illegible] in the world. You skirt [illegible] of Mt. Whitney and travel [illegible] alongside snowy old mon-

The range gushes waterfalls and glaciers. There are so many lakes that no map can show them all.

Most of the country is volcanic and the lava beds, relics of a grand wreck of the past, are a curious and strange sight.

At Bishop you leave the Sierra valleys and go out into the gray old Nevada desert, traveling through the heart of the gold frontier, finally arriving at Reno.

At Reno you take the Southern Pacific back across the Sierras through the heart of the Bret Harte country, past Donner Lake and within easy distance of Lake Tahoe.

At Sacramento, you leave the train and take the boat down one of the most beautiful rivers in the world—the winding Sacramento—the Holland of America. Your vacation closes with San Francisco and there is no city where you can have a more interesting visit.

Must Go.

T. STIMSON MAKES FAST TRIP TO SAN FRANCISCO.

[illegible] T. STIMSON, well-known auto [illegible] enthusiast and clubman, jumped into the ranks of record breakers Friday when, in his Simplex roadster, he negotiated the distance between Los Angeles and San Francisco [illegible] little over eighteen hours, one [illegible] of which time was spent in [illegible] through deep sand where [illegible] progress was very slow.

Mr. Stimson left Los Angeles Friday morning at 3:30 and made the [illegible] City by 9:54 p.m. He reached Bakersfield at 9:05 a.m. and Fresno at 1:45 p.m., Merced at 4:30 p.m. and the Oakland Ferry shortly after 9 the same evening, making the distance of 468 miles in record time.

A number of racing cars have lowered the time of the trains—fourteen hours—but this is the best time for a private car.

Mr. Stimson is known among his friends as a most daring driver and a keen motor enthusiast and his record of Friday did not surprise many. He motored throughout the East last year in his Packard roadster.

Life Saver.

LUNG MOTOR BREATHS FOR DROWNED PERSONS.

[illegible] can be drowned for ten minutes and this new life-saver will bring you back to life. It breathes [illegible] you. It breathes into your lungs [illegible] than you can do it yourself [illegible] at times when you can't do it [illegible].

This new device, called the lung motor, resuscitates persons after asphyxiation by gas, mine fumes or drowning, and positively will prove, if [illegible] are dead and beyond all possible [illegible] aid.

The new life-saver pumps air and [illegible] of proper proportions into the lungs in natural doses. The apparatus is so delicately constructed that the proper volume of air can be applied to new-born babies or men in the same volume they naturally breathe.

In treating cases of asphyxiation about four-fifths of the mixture pumped into the lungs is oxygen. In cases of apparent drowning unadulterated air is used because only pure air is required to displace the water which clogs the tubes leading into the lungs. The lung motor pumps out the water and pumps in the air.

The small tank seen alongside contains oxygen, the proportion of which being used is accurately measured by means of a dial which regulates the quantity.

LOOK OUT FOR MOUNTAIN FIRES!

THE great annual destruction of [illegible] by fire is one of the biggest menaces to sport and vacation that people have to battle with. [illegible] fires are also dangerous for the water supply regulation, timber and other commercial industries, but considered merely from a sportsman's standpoint much damage can be done [illegible] sport by a forest fire.

Some of the most beautiful camping and hunting grounds in the State have been destroyed by big fires, usually started by carelessness on the part of campers. Summer camps and mountain cabins have been wiped away [illegible]. To aid in preventing fires and to better the vacation conditions of the community all persons are requested:

(1.) To build small fires only.

(2.) Not to drop matches or burning tobacco where there is inflammable [illegible].

(3.) To build fires in the open and [illegible] against a tree or log, where it is [illegible] to extinguish them and not [illegible] twenty feet of standing brush.

(4.) To scrape away all leaves and [illegible] around fire.

(5.) In windy weather and in dangerous places, to dig holes and clear ground around to confine camp fires.

(6.) To extinguish all fires completely before leaving a camp fire, even for a short time.

(7.) If you find a fire, try to put it out. If you can't, get word to the nearest United States forest ranger. You will be reimbursed for your trouble. If you cannot find a forest ranger get word to the forest supervisor in Los Angeles. Phone to him at his expense. Home phone 60011 and Sunset, Main 2940

By observing these few little rules the vacationist will make his camp safer and aid in doing away with the big annual loss by forest fires.

BACK IN GAME.

With scarcely any trace of the severe illness which has caused a three weeks' siege in the hospital, Curtis Colyear was removed to his home the past week. In about ten days the Velie agent will be able to be at his business again. This season promises to be the best in the history of the Velie car and Colyear is in line to make many important deals in the coming months.

England Takes First.

good shooting of the blue-shirted riders from England.

Their superiority became apparent with the bell in the opening period, and it appeared to upset the defending four, which never recovered its form shown in recent practice games until the closing minutes of the game, when the Americans settled down and gave the first indications of team play of which they were supposed to be capable.

The challengers gave the finest exhibition of team work ever seen in an invading four. Both on attack and defense they played the ball into each other's hand, taking a few unwarranted chances and the success of these tactics was proved by the score and ease by which they won the first leg in the 1914 trophy series.

It was not alone in team work that the English players excelled, however, for their stick work was a revelation. At either forehand or backhand driving they outclassed the defenders and the length and direction of their strokes showed the benefits gained by the long preliminary practice season, which began in Madrid early in the winter.

The teams:

England: No. 1, Capt. H. A. Tomkinson; No. 2, Capt. L. St. G. Cheape; No. 3, Maj. W. W. Barrett (captain;) No. 4, Capt. V. Lockett.

America: No. 1, Rene La Montagne; No. 2, J. M. Waterbury; No. 3, Devereux Milburn; back, Lawrence Waterbury.

Substitutes: C. C. Rumsey, Malcolm Stevenson, H. C. Phipps.

Referee: Louis E. Stoddard.

Umpires: Joshua Crane, Boston, and Keith B. Maskham, Cairo, Egypt.

Goal umpires: Dr. H. A. Souther and Frank Forrester for America, and Spencer Fish and Frank S. Drake for England.

Official timer: W. Struther Jones.

The game by periods was as follows:

First period—The English defended the south goal. Larry Waterbury picked the ball out of the scrimmage, but Capt. Tomkinson quickly took the ball and drove it for a goal. It was quick work, fifty seconds after the start. Cheape followed after goals had been changed by backing up Tomkinson and scored a second goal for the English. It was apparent that the American team was being outridden and outstroked.

Total score end first period, England 2, America 0.

Second period — La Montagne missed an easy goal at the outset. Monty Waterbury also missed. The English carried the ball the full length of the field, but Cheape missed by a narrow squeak. Milburn saved the situation by riding the English captain off. Waterbury then scored America's first goal.

Total score second period, England 1¾, America 1.

England lost half a goal on a foul by Cheape on Monty Waterbury.

There was a wait between the second and third periods because the English claimed a foul. Referee and umpire went into a discussion on the field.

Third period—The foul was allowed, cutting America's score to half. Monty Waterbury drove wild for the English posts. Tomkinson scored. Barrett of the English team was penalized for fouling, making the score, America ½, England 2½. Total score end third period, England 2½, America ½.

Fourth period—A quarter was deducted from the English score for a safety. Cheape soon added a point, however, by another goal. Monty Waterbury scored the second American goal. Again the English scored. This time Capt. Lockett drove the ball over. Total score end fourth period, England 4¼, America 1½.

Fifth period—Milling up and down the field, mostly near the American goal, marked more than half of the fifth period. Larry Waterbury broke his mallet. The English ponies outstripped the native mounts on nearly every sprint. In a jam at the posts the English scored another point. Tomkinson drove the sphere through.

Total score end fifth period, England 5¼, America 1½.

Sixth period—La Montagne lifted the ball for seventy-five yards, but missed. Monty Waterbury carried the ball three-quarters the length of the field for a goal. Capt. Cheape scored for the English just before the chuckhur.

Total score end sixth period, England 5¾, America 2.

Seventh period—Fouls by both sides committed in the previous period—by Larry Waterbury and Barrett, respectively—deducted half-point from each score.

Cheape scored after the English carried the ball nearly the whole length of the field.

The Americans began playing desparately and to some extent their team work improved. Monty Waterbury drove for what appeared a sure goal, but Lockett made a safety in order to prevent Waterbury's score, cutting the English score by ¼ point.

Total score end seventh period, England 6½, America 2.

Last period—Lockett scored after fifty-three seconds of play; Tomkinson scored. The Americans appeared demoralized. Milburn finally succeeded in adding another goal to the slim American column. The Americans were fighting fiercely now and the crowd for the most part was silent.

Total score end eighth period, England 8½, America 3.

REVERSE CASINGS.

To prolong the life of casings, it is a good plan to run them alternately in opposite directions, and also change them from wheel to wheel. Many owners put new casings on the rear wheels only, shifting those displaced to the front, if there is still mileage in them. When a tire is kept on one wheel it is apt to wear in but one manner, and hence gives way sooner than would be the case if the wear were evenly distributed by shifting from one wheel to another and from one running direction to another.

Automobiles of the United States cost annually only one-tenth as much as intoxicating liquors, one-half as much as tobacco, and less than chewing gum and candy.

Every day you wait is just twenty-four hours wasted. And the yesterdays never come back.

If you want to play this summer—enjoy the whole summer. Don't cut your pleasure in half.

Delaying never helps matters. On the contrary it hinders.

Waiting cannot save you money. On the contrary it costs you money.

Last season between 5,000 and 10,000 people waited. But unfortunately they waited just a little bit too long. For when they finally did place their order—all the Overlands were gone. Consequently they were forced to either pay a much higher price for some other car—or go without an Overland. Don't you be among the 5,000 or 10,000 disappointed people this year.

Remember—the Overland has the longest wheel base; the most powerful motor; the largest tires; the finest equipment, and is the most thoroughly and most carefully manufactured car, for the price, on the market.

The Overland is the world's renowned economy car. It costs the least to purchase and also the least to maintain. And it gives you everything you want in a car—power, speed, beauty, comfort, style, and practically every needful convenience ever invented for an automobile.

That's why we are delivering over 5,000 cars a month, right now!

The ratio of fatal accidents to the mileage of the London omnibuses has been halved since 1912. In 1912 the 'buses killed one person in every 443,056 miles run, and during the first six weeks of this year the ratio has been reduced to one fatality in 665,402 miles.

Thirteen years ago the first automobile sold in Dallas, Tex., was delivered to its owner. Last year there were sold from Dallas 11,900 automobiles, 674 motorcycles, and tires and accessories to a total value of $18,000,000. Nearly 80 per cent. of the cars sold in Texas are to farmers. This is having its effect in the growth of the good roads sentiment throughout the State.

Possibilities that the New York City hospitals may dispose of their motor ambulances and utilize a system of private ambulances are revealed by the fact that the Polyclinic Hospital has disposed of its own machine. A contract has been made with an ambulance service company to do all the ambulance work of the hospital. The Polyclinic is the third New York hospital to let out its ambulance work.

A waxy substance is deposited in oil pipes and leads by some oils, and may cause a serious stoppage in the flow of lubricant. A good way to remove the deposit is to disconnect the pipe and immerse it in gasoline for a day or more. This will soften the material so that most of it can be blown out with a current of air from a pump. Running a wire through the pipe will also help.

To determine whether the spring clips are losing their adjustment sufficiently to permit the leaves to work and throw a strain on the center bolt, a good plan is to keep the clips and the leaves at the center of the spring well coated with paint. A break in the paint indicates that the parts are beginning to rack and is a danger signal showing that the clip bolts should be drawn up and the leaves carefully inspected.

It is now believed that there will be a field of thirty cars contesting for honors in the 500-mile race on the Indianapolis speedway, May 30. There seems little doubt that elimination trials will have to be held.

In some of the States road work is much hampered by an accumulation of road laws running back as far as 100 years ago, creating an almost hopeless confusion. Remedying this condition and supplanting the old laws by new ones that will be practically uniform in the various States are two of the objects of the Road Laws committees of the American Highway Association and the American Bar Association, working in harmony.

Under a plan evolved by the Milwaukee Public Safety Commission and a voluntary organization of citizens, motor car traffic will be much improved in Milwaukee. One hundred motorists will be selected for patrol duty. Each member of the special committee will carry on his car a disk containing the letters T. P., which stands for traffic protection.

ORANGE HIGH SCHOOL WINS CHAMPIONSHIP.

DICK LUSH, Orange hero, southpawed the Orange High School ball team into the championship of Southern California yesterday afternoon at Occidental field. He had a lame arm and lamer support, but he came strong in the pinches, winning, 8 to 4. In the first few innings wildness and the coaching of Dan Tobey created some damage. Both teams put up a pitiful game in the field that made the championship game the poorest one of the season.

The Orange boys caught the Long Beach team on an off day. The team that played such a dashing game against Poly last Saturday went to pieces. Reagan and Harvey went bad, while Stine, the young heaver, aided in losing his own game by allowing several runs. Capt. Rollie Bones played a brilliant game for his team, cutting off numerous runs with splendid stops. He collected three hits and stole six bases, scoring half of his team's runs. He singled in the first and stole his way to third, scoring on a wild pitch.

Orange tied the score in their half of the first and forged ahead in the second when Stein aviated, walking three men and allowing two hits for a pair of scores. The score zig-zazed back and forth until the sixth, when the Orange team scored two runs on errors and wildness by Stein, who was yanked in favor of Sisco. The latter pitched better ball, but could not stop the slugging winners, who hit him for four hits and two runs.

Long Beach fought gamely in the last two innings, getting men on bases in the eighth, but Sisco could not deliver the blow that would have given the losers a fighting chance. The score:

ARY BROWNE VICTOR; TRIPLE CHAMPION NOW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Mary of Los Angeles, individual lawn tennis champion, defended her title on the of the Philadelphia Cricket today, defeating Marie Wagner New York, the national indoor in the challenge round, to one. With the exception second set, in which the cham to go to pieces, Miss played up to her reputation, the first and third sets in fashion.

TRIPLE CHAMPION.

her performance of last Browne is again a triple After winning the singles Californian and W. T. Jr., of Philadelphia, defeated Myers and J. S. Rowland of for the national mixed championship. Yesterday, by Mrs. Robert Wil she won the national cham in doubles.

Browne took the first set in championship without effort, due in a measure to the of Miss Wagner. The player worked her cross-court strokes to telling advantage occasionally approaching the net for a kill. She won the set, 6-2.

In the second set Miss Wagner gained confidence, while Miss Browne seemed to lose her grip. The New York player made her shots with snap and good placement, and won the set, 6-1.

The champion seemed to recover her pace after a brief rest and soon assumed the aggressive in the third set. She went after everything and played a perfect game, and always had Miss Wagner on the defensive. The score was, 6-1.

MIXED DOUBLES.

The mixed doubles match was started after Miss Browne had a good rest. The match had been practically conceded to Miss Browne and Mr. Tilden by the experts, and their judgment held true, the pair winning in straight sets.

Summary:

Singles, challenge round:

Miss Mary Browne, California, defeated Miss Marie Wagner, New York, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

Mixed doubles, championship round:

Miss Browne and W. T. Tilden, Jr., Philadelphia, defeated Miss Marion Myers and J. S. Rowland, both of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-4.

BOXING GOSSIP.

Sammy Harris, manager of Champion Kid Williams, agreed to have the champ meet Le Doux here in either August or September. The match will be offered to Le Doux and, no doubt, the opponents in one of the best fights ever held at Vernon will meet again.

Ad Wolgast has not arrived yet, but he is expected in Los Angeles about Tuesday, and he will start at once to train for his bout with Rivers on July 4.

Bert Finch, manager of Jimmy Duffy, wired Tom McCarey that he would let him know Monday whether he would come here for a match with Leach Cross in the latter part of July.

George and Joe Chip and Tom McMahon will work out at Doyle's Vernon training camp this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Joe Levy's new Mesa camp will open this afternoon. The new training camp is located at Twenty-fifth and Alameda streets. Joe Rivers and Champion Williams will be the big attractions at the opening, assisted by Kid Carter and O'Neill.

WALSH AND DALY EXCHANGED AGAIN.

MACK AND CHANCE TAKE BACK PLAYERS THEY SWAPPED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Connie Mack and Frank Chance have made a swap of outfielders. Pete Daley will leave tonight to join the New York Yankees at Detroit, while Jimmy Walsh will report to his former Athletic team-mates at Chicago Tuesday. When Walsh was originally turned over to New York by Philadelphia, Chance had his choice between Walsh and Daley and selected the former. There was a tentative agreement that if Walsh did not deliver or Chance was not satisfied with the deal, Connie could have him back for the original purchase price or an even basis for Daley. He chose Daley.

When the season started Walsh hit like a house afire and had all New York singing his praises. Later, he slumped, but the falling off in his work is attributed to a sore leg. Connie says he is willing to take a chance on the sore leg and is glad to get Walsh back.

CADY WINS TRANS-MISSISSIPPI GOLF.

OUTSIDER TAKES MONTREAL DERBY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTREAL, June 13.—Ten thousand persons saw David Craig win the international Derby today. Luke McLuke was left at the post. The favorite, Waterbass, set a dazzling pace and on the back stretch opened up a long lead, but rounding the far turn David Craig who had been trailing the leader, moved up.

At the head of the home stretch, he caught Waterbass and in the final quarter drew away into an easy lead, winning by a length in 2:08, with Gainer second and Luke McLuke third, three-quarters of a length ahead of Waterbass. Black Broom also ran.

MEDAL GOLF AT REDLANDS C.C.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, June 13.—The contest for the E. M. Cope cup offered at the Redlands Country Club for the best 72-holes medal play handicap made in four 18-hole rounds began today with twelve entries. Morris Phillips made the best round, a 74; Raymond Hornby was second, with 80. Other scores were: Leslie Gay, 82; Silas Williams, E. A. McDonald, A. C. Cameron, each 85; W. B. Power, 89; A. E. Sterling, 89; S. R. Hotchkiss, 93; P. S. Molten, L. L. Moore, each 95, and O. H. Hicks, 101.

The closing rounds must be played June 27. Williams and Gay tied for best net in ball sweepstakes, with 70. Gay had best gross, 82.

CALIFORNIA LEAGUE OFFICIALLY ENDED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AUBURN (N. Y.) June 13.—The national board of baseball arbitration today handed down the following decisions:

The California League, embracing territory of San Jose, Fresno, Modesto and Stockton is disbanded.

Claims disallowed: Hughes against San Francisco.

Services of players awarded: Scanlon to Clinton, Ia.; Tonneman to Tacoma; Callahan to Georgetown, Tex.

BARKER SOUTHERN TENNIS CHAMP.

Earle Barker won the Southern California tennis championship yesterday afternoon by defeating E. R. McCormick, title holder, three sets out of four.

Barker won the first set, 10 to 8, after a terrific series of games. McCormick came back strong in the second set, winning 6-3. The third and fourth sets brought out Barker's class and he was never in danger. He took the third set, 6-2, and the final 6-3. His hard smashes were too much for the defeated champion.

JOHN GUND WINS DERBY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CINCINNATI, June 13.—John Gund won the thirty-second Latonia Derby at the Latonia, Ky., race course today. Constant, with Waldron up, was second, and Dr. Samuel, piloted by J. Henry, was third. Time, 2:30 2-5. Bronze Wing and Casuarina also ran.

BEARS VENICE MASCOTS.

A Tiger well-wisher yesterday showed up at the ball park with two perfectly good cinnamon bears, offering them to Maier and Hogan as mascot's for the day, believing that they would surely change the team's luck. It had been the plan to place the bruins in one of the grand stand boxes, but all of these being filled, they were forced to pass the afternoon with "Shine" in the clubhouse.

ARDEN RUGGERS WIN.

The Arden Rugby team defeated Manual Arts' team yesterday, 3 to 0, after a splendid, hard-fought game. The High School team put up a great fight against the heavier and more experienced club team.

The Higgins brothers, Fred Brooks and Rush Meadows, were the stars for the winners. Meadows scored the try in the second.

GOOD MOTOR BUSINESS.

Visits to more than a score of the leading passenger car, truck and accessory factories in Detroit have demonstrated that the industry in America's automobile capital is in a most favorable condition, especially as regards manufacturing. All of the factories are operating at capacity, over half of them are working the machine shops at night, and some of them on Sunday forenoons in addition. A few who started manufacture early are practically complete with the production of 1914 models, and are getting cleared away for 1915 jobs. In some factories the first allotment of 1915 models are under construction, although announcements of them will not be made probably until July 1. In the majority of the factories business is much in excess of a year ago. Nearly all of the factories are building more cars than last year, there being a few exceptions where the output is the same, and still fewer where this year's output is lower than that of a year ago.

Umpire Target.

SEALS RIOT AS L. A. WINS.

Decision by Dashwood Puts Howard in Rage.

Ewing and Dillon Take Part in Conflict.

Should Have Been an Angel Win, Anyway.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—On the score of baseball, the Seals deserved their 2-to-1 defeat in ten innings, but on the lines of impartial decisions, they should by rights have tied the score in the last of that tempestuous tenth and had at least a chance for their white alley. Perhaps Dashwood caught the infection from the Seals themselves, but he was never in poorer form and there is no excuse for his verdict, which started all the trouble and the riot in which a thousand or more of the fans gladly attempted to take a hand, piling down on the field and crowding around the principals.

San Francisco registered one run in its half of the tenth and, thanks to the absurd fashion in which Zeb Terry had dropped the easiest kind of a pop fly on Schaller, should have scored another, save that Schmidt was held on third by Fanning, instead of being sent home.

BUM DECISION.

The Seals had a man on third and another on second, when Jerry Downs grounded sharply to third. Moore, by this time playing third for the southerners, made the whip across the diamond. Abstein caught the ball, but it bounced out of his hands and was high in the air as Jerry crossed first. Dashwood gave his decision even before the ball had been caught.

The storm broke.

Howard was on top of Dashwood instanter, grabbed the umpire firmly by the throat with his two hands and shook him as a bulldog would shake a cat.

Cal Ewing, owner of the Seals, who was in uniform for the sake of a joke with Henry Berry, and had been doing some fancy coaching stunts of his own, came between his angry manager and the indicator man.

Frank Dillon came to the fore, evidently for the sake of supporting Dashwood, and Ewing, who had been telling Dashwood just what he thought of him, took a fling at "Pop" of Los Angeles fame.

HOWARD USES FISTS.

Howard, still anxious for more of the same, hurried to the rescue of his chief, and not to be outdone in any particular, also let loose a famous Howard punch. Special police, as well as hundreds of the fans, rushed in between the contestants and the spectacle was ended.

Theentire story of the game, as far as action is concerned, revolved around the tenth, and what an inning it was!

Rube Ellis started with a three-bagger to right. Charlie Moore fanned. Meek, batting for Metzger, was purposely walked, and it was good baseball since it gave the locals a chance at a double play. The luck of the game broke with the locals against Boles. "Three and two" was the call when the Los Angeles catcher ducked to get out of the way of what would have been the fourth ball and a pass. Unfortunately for the local backstop, his bat caught the ball and it was a pop out to Baum.

Seal fans breathed easier.

Jack Ryan was next, and by rights he should have been out on strikes.

THE WINNING RUN.

Instead Louis Sepulveda dropped the third strike. Ryan legged it for first and right there Sepulveda showed the difference between an experienced catcher and a novice. He had the ball in plenty of time to hold Ellis at third, but with no chance to throw out Ryan, he made the throw and Ellis scored as the ball bounced past first.

Harry Wolter annexed a two-sacker to center that scored Terry, running for Meek, and Page made the third out with the visitors two runs to the good.

Then came the series of events leading up to the fight.

"STRUCK DILLON," DECLARES EWING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—"I am the only one on the field who took a punch at anyone," said Owner Cal Ewing of the Seals tonight, "and I struck Frank Dillon because of the insulting language that he used. I'd do it again under the same circumstances.

"When Howard was arguing with Dashwood about the ball bouncing in the air, Dillon stepped up and began to talk to Dashwood. I was telling the umpire what I thought of him, and Dillon insulted me. I did what any man with red blood in his veins would do; that's all there is to it."

President Baum, who was present at the game, admitted that he saw part of the incident; chiefly that in which Howard laid his hands on the umpire. The league executive said, however, that he preferred not to express himself until he had talked with the umpires and heard what excuses Howard might have to offer. There is no question but that Howard will be disciplined.

BEAVER BATTERS BANG OAKLAND.

MAIER OPPOSES ANY REDUCTION.

President Maier returned from his extended tour of the East yesterday, going direct from the depot to the ball grounds. His arrival was followed by an informal reception on the bench.

President Maier promptly went on record as opposed to the action taken by other Coast League directors during his absence requiring the clubs to cut down to twenty men.

"The majors are hanging onto all their men, and I don't see why we should let any of ours go," he said. "I don't believe in letting a few hundred dollars in salary stand in the way of winning ball games. Considering the closeness of the race, we need all of our players."

HUGHES BOOSTS ANGELS.

"Long Tom" Hughes viewed yesterday's game from the stand, having been sent home to rest up for the Tiger-Angel series this week. He says that the Angels are playing wonderful ball, and does not see how anything short of the militia can stop them. Hughes, who has been showing wonderful form the last few weeks, lost a hard luck game to Oakland last Sunday morning. The Oaks won without getting a hit through the infield.

In Splawn of the 1913 freshmen eleven of Michigan University, Coach Yost of the Ann Arbor institution says he has the greatest kicker Michigan ever had enrolled among its football stars, one whom he expects to prove a match for Charles Brickley, the Harvard captain, when the elevens clash at Cambridge next October.

Stewart Beats Tigers.

hoisted with two men on and none out in the ninth, and it became the duty of Slagle to calm the somewhat petulant home boys.

MORAN IS PERNICIOUS.

Then this Moran party was full of strange and mysterious deeds. He practically lost the game for Sacramento once, and saved it twice, which leaves him with a percentage of .333. Very versatile of Mr. Moran.

Moran began absorbing the attention of the crowd in the sixth, when with a runner on, he openly robbed Bill Leard of a hit with a shoe buckle catch in center. As Meloan followed with a clean drive, it is plain even to the bare and unclab orb that the home side then and there would have pruned down to almost nothingness the three-run lead which Sacramento had accumulated by resorting to a few hits off Klepfer, which were at once "greased" and despicable.

Then, in the seventh, Moran showed the more likable side of his nature by muffing a fly from Hosp, the same paving the way for the only two runs made off Stewart.

CRABS BIG KILLING.

But it was in the ninth that Moran was guilty of a deed which made several hundred people yearn to ride him out of town on a rail. With Litschi on third, Elliott on second and two down, McArdle went in to smite the ball for Henley. And Honus did smite it on a line to short center. That blow made an exact noise like two runs and the game until Moran did a "Howard Drew" in toward second. He supplemented his sprint with an "Annette Kellerman," spearing the ball as his hands brushed the grass.

As Moran also stole a couple of bases and made a hit, it is plain that he entertains no spirit of friendliness for anything located south of the Tehachepi. Double plays were all the rage, each team making three.

Young scratched out a hit off Klepfer in the first, beating out a drive to Litschi. Orr sacrificed. Coy clouted a clean single to left center. Young stumbled in rounding third. But Bayless already having heaved to second to discourage Coy, "Pep" had time to pick himself out of the dirt and score. Van Buren jammed the ball into a double play, Borton to Hosp, and back again.

In the second, Young converted a drive to Hosp into a single by means of a dust-raining slide to first. One was down at the time. Roy stole second, stopped just long enough to flap his wings, and stole third. Hallinan and Hannah were unable to aid him.

WOLVES SCORE TWO.

Klepfer's only pass, a walk to Young in the sixth, opened the way for Sacramento's other two runs. "Pep" stole second and scored on Orr's double. This drive cut the heart out of first base. Borton's desperate lunge merely deflected the ball to the bleachers.

Coy met the sphere for a liner that kicked up the dust in front of Leard, the ball shooting between Bill's spreading legs. Coy counted on this strange performance, which with any kind of luck would have made the second out. Van Buren and Tennant couldn't get the ball beyond our stalwart infielders.

Carlisle hit to right with one out in the sixth. Moran stepped in and performed a sensational fielding operation on Leard's fly. Meloan hit to left, Carlisle taking second. Bayless flicked off a foul that Hannah lost in the sun but re-discovered in time to catch just as the ball was about to strike her on the back of the neck. Hannah then fell on the back of her neck with her feet pointed toward the top of the grand stand, which was very unladylike, to say the least.

TIGERS PICK UP.

Litschi opened the seventh with a single. Coy made a great running catch of Borton's fly, taking the ball away from Moran. Hosp put a fly in center, the ball striking Moran on the "heel" of his glove, and bouncing out. Elliott hit to center, scoring Litschi. Kane, batting for Klepfer, skimmed a single into left. This produced a base-full situation, relieved slightly by Carlisle's fly to Moran, which released Hosp to the plate. Elliott and Kane were foiled in an attempted double steal, Stewart pulling down Hannah's throw and Elliott being trapped on the line. "Rowdy" didn't yield without much protest, Young finally coming clear across the diamond and making the put out.

Henley worked the last two innings and was unharmed save for a double by Orr, which had no meaning.

HAP SEEKS "GOAT."

Whether Stewart's disappearance in the ninth was due to weakening after two week's absence from the game or a plain case of "goat" getting on the part of Hap Hogan, we are unable to state.

With Litschi at the plate in the last inning, Borton trailed out, followed by Hogan, both of them armed with fine, large bats. Hap did this merely for the effect that it might have on Stewart. Hayes chased him back to the bench, but not until Hogan had talked Stewart's arm cold.

Right after that Litschi put a single over Hallinan with a fierce hop that left Eddie with his arms folded around his face. Stewart walked Borton. This was his cue to vanish, and Slagle, famous as a game-saver, stepped in. Hosp, with a drive to Orr, hit into a fast double play, with Borton as the other victim. Carlisle went to third. Elliott's reputation for game-busting won him the favor of a pass. "Rowdy" stole second, no objection being raised. McArdle, always highly respected in a pinch, sent the ball roaring into center on a line. The fans stood up preparatory to cashing in on the Tigers. Just then there was a flash of brown in center the thud of the ball in Moran's mit, and the happy scene became curdled with gloom.

Packard

The Packard represents no attempt whatever at phenomenal speed in manufacture. What the "wireless" is to telegraphy, the aeroplane to automobiles and the kinetograph to photography, the Packard is to motordom—the highest attainment in its sphere. The Packard appeals to an ever-increasing class of people who subordinate price to quality—well knowing that in this lies the true economy.

A Good Low Priced Car!

The SAXON Car

34.75 Miles Per Gallon of Gasoline—in 200-Mile Nation-wide Non-stop Run—Best Record 47.05 Miles Per Gallon—Less Than Half a Cent a Mile for Fuel

Here's the greatest automobile economy record! This contest took place simultaneously in over a hundred cities May 16th. All sorts of road and weather conditions were encountered. This was not a "freak" test made with one gallon of high-grade gasoline. It was a real, grinding work-out, an occasion that proved exactly what the little Saxon could do. At each city on the same day a Saxon car made 200 miles in NON-STOP running. The motor had to run whether the car was making mileage or not—during all stops, no matter for what cause. All records were vouched for by official observers.

Think what this record of 34.75 miles per gallon of gasoline means!—not only in economy, but in reliability as well. Over 100 Saxons in more than one hundred different places, under all kinds of weather conditions, covered 200 miles each in non-stop running, showing speed as high as 45 miles per hour.

In just one day—May 16th—the Saxon proved to the whole nation that it is the most economical car to run—and that it can stand the strain of service as well as any of 'em!

ADVICE FROM A VETERAN HIKER.

Rabid Vacationist Gives Interesting Story.

How to Avoid Rattlesnake Danger.

Best Place and Time to Take Your Trip.

BY CLYDE A. BRUCKMAN.

I have spent a portion of every summer in the mountains since the age of 6. The little camping hints and vacation suggestions that I am setting forth here are the result of a hard experience in the mountains that have little sympathy for the amateur vacationist. Everything I recommend I have tried.

One point that we used to argue about was when to go. Some wanted to go in June and others in September, when the deer, quail and squirrel seasons are opened.

If you want hunting, plan your vacation for late in August, or early in September. The trout season is open until November 1, giving the campers both hunting and fishing on the late vacation, which is the best in Southern California, on account of the hottest weather coming in August and September. That is the only time that hunting is available.

TROUT FISHING.

Trout fishing in the San Bernardino Mountains, where my vacations are mostly spent, is the best in June and July. I have fished streams in June under adverse circumstances and caught twice as many fish as on the same stream in August. The fish naturally run larger late in the summer, but they are harder to get.

Our party was generally made up of trout enthusiasts who had little use for hunting. When you come right down to it, hunting is becoming a dead issue, while the trout fishing seems to be improving. I have always failed to see the sport in packing a heavy gun and several dozen shells all day in pursuit of game that never shows up. The game is becoming so scarce, except in remote spots, that even the old hunters are turning to the more reliable sport of trout fishing.

Speaking of parties reminds me that the size and character of the party is very essential on a vacation trip in the mountains. It has been my experience that four fellows make an ideal party. Pick out good fellows that like the mountains and are not afraid to work. There is cooking, dish

SIERRA CLUB WILL TAKE GREAT TRIP TO YOSEMITE.

Club Leaves July 1 and Visits Tuolumne Meadows, Mt. Clark, the Obelisk, Matterhorn Canyon, the Hetch-Hetchy Valley and All the Beauty Spots of the Sierras. The Roster of the Party.

YEARS may come and years may go, the Sierra Club does both, having come and gone for the past thirteen years and being on the point of going and coming for the fourteenth time about July 1.

This club makes a habit of starting out about this time of the year and spending a month or more in the beauty spots of the Sierras, and it is the proud boast of those in charge of the present tour that the itinerary arranged this time is the best in the history of the club.

From all advance accounts, when the club is arrayed in full force it will look like an invasion, as no less than 260 persons are already signed up for the trip.

Anybody who thinks that this is a small matter will possibly be convinced that it is not by the judicious perusal of the following figures. In addition to the club members, there will be fifty servants, cooks, guides and assistants of various kinds, sixty pack mules in addition to those used as a means of locomotion by the less strenuous members of the party, and for the whole bunch it will be necessary to take twenty tons of provisions.

The opening beauty spot of the tour is Yosemite Park. To get there the majority of the party will leave Los Angeles and San Francisco July 1, in special trains, which will be spliced at Merced.

The trip will be by way of the Merced Canyon and its exquisite lakes, a truly wonderful sight. The party leaves the train at El Portal and takes a fifteen-mile hike to the camp, where they remain till July 5.

On that date they leave the valley and travel to the little Yosemite by way of Vernal and Nevada falls, a distance of six miles. The next day a trip of ten miles will take them to Lake Merced, where a four days' stop will be made.

During this stay it will be possible for those of climbing proclivities to scale Mt. Clark, the Obelisk, and explore the Upper Merced, in addition to fishing and boating on the lake.

A day's trip takes the party to Tuolumne Meadows, where they figure on arriving July 11. This will be the main "hang-out" for eight days or longer if the party so desires and the provisions hold out, which they will.

From this beauty spot side trips innumerable can be taken by those who so desire and there will be enough beauty spots around about the camp to keep everybody happy from dawn to dusk and then some.

Within an easy day's trip, counting the return, are the Cathedral and Unicorn peaks, Mts. Dana and Conness, the Falls of the Tuolumne River, the foot of Lyell glacier, Lakes Tioga and Tenaya and numberless other points of interest.

Longer trips can be taken to Mt. Lyell, Mt. Hoffman, Lake Mono, the volcanic craters, Moraine Lake and other points.

July 20, the party leaves the Meadows, camping one day at Conness Creek at the head of the Grand Canyon of the Tuolumne, with its famous cascades and waterwheels.

July 22, the party moves to Matterhorn Canyon, Rogers Lake, Pleasant Valley and Rancheria Mountain.

The Hetch-Hetchy Valley will be reached about July 26, and the party will remain there about two days. Crackers will be reached July 29, and the railway terminus, El Portal, July 30.

It looks like some trip.

Among the prominent Angelenos expecting to make the tour are Russ Avery, H. E. Bailey, Emma P. Durbin, Lucile R. Greenwald, Daisy M. Hughes, Lydie E. Joslin, Helen T. Kennedy, Gertrude Leland Meyer and Louis Lissner, F. E. Older, Irvin D. Perry, Everett Shepardson, Edith E. Spencer, Mabel D. Sleen, Julia Steffa, Robert Young.

Other Southern Californians signed up at the present time are Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Alexander, Santa Barbara; Gertrude Allen, San Diego; Miss Leo Avies, Pasadena; Louise Bangs, Santa Ana; Theda Burnham San Diego; Charlotte Burns, Alhambra; Mrs. Rex B. Clark, San Diego; Clinton C. Pierce, Riverside; Enid D. Reeve, Pasadena; R. S. Roberts, Pasadena; L. B. Scranton, Riverside; Francis L. Shaw, Maricopa; Charles H. Stearns, Santa Ana; George F. Summer, Claremont; Nesta M. Thompson, La Jolla; Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Thorndyke, San Diego; Burton P. Twitchell, Nordhoff; Elizabeth Underwood, Santa Paula; Melicent Virdan, Burbank; Margaret and Mrs. E. L. White, Santa Barbara.

GREER GOES EAST.

Leaving this week for a hurried trip through the East, P. H. Greer, local motor dealer, will visit the factories of both the Hupmobile and Mitchell cars before returning to Los Angeles, about July 1.

The Information.

HOW TO BUILD YOUR OWN CABIN IN THE MOUNTAINS.

EVERY person who spends his vacation in the mountains should own a cabin. A good durable cabin can be built for a comparatively small sum. The people who do not own a cabin little realize how much more pleasant the vacation will be when it is in their own little bunk.

The prettiest sections of the mountains are owned by the United States government. You have, no doubt, come upon cool, shady nooks in the mountains, with a little spring or stream for a water supply. Why not build a cabin on that spot you have always admired?

This is how it can be done:

Go to the nearest government office and make out an application for a lease on a half-acre of government land. You can pick out the spot where you want your cabin, and then lease that half-acre from the government for $15 a year. The lease gives you the right to use all the water and dead wood on that half-acre. Under no circumstances can any standing timber be cut. That is one reason why the government land is still a beautiful virgin forest.

After obtaining the lease, it requires the expenditure of $150 to build and furnish a cabin twelve feet wide and sixteen feet long. This covers the cost of lumber, which can be bought and hauled direct from one of the numerous lumber mills in the mountains. A good carpenter will put the cabin up in a few days. By doing your own building, anyone can cut off considerable from the expense account.

The entire cabin can be built out of rough pine boards one inch thick and twelve inches wide, with a few 2x4 rafters.

The only additional requirements are thin pine strips to close the spaces between the boards, and tar roofing paper to cover the boards on the saddle-roof and windows.

The furnishings cost as much or as little as the owner desires. Thick porcelain dishes, a stove, pots and pans, a home-constructed table, benches, some camp chairs, shelves and several cupboards complete the necessary equipment. Beds, constructed out of pine boards with a mattress and blankets will do.

Everyone accumulates a lot of old furniture, dishes and odds and ends around their city home, which are of little use in the city, but help make a mountain cabin comfortable and cosy.

Adding a small supply of groceries to this, you have a mountain home that is always ready to welcome you. A place where you can keep your fishing tackle, hunting outfit and so on. With this mountain home you have a retreat where you can go on a minute's notice for a pleasant holiday or a comfortable summer vacation.

Grocers for Thirty Two Years

When and Where

—will you go for the outing or annual vacation trip? We feel that you are most concerned with regard to the ultimate of it—whether it will be a complete success—whether everyone will have enjoyed themselves to the full. We, as purveyors of every good thing to eat, naturally, are more concerned in the matter that you set out with the real essentials to food enjoyment in your hampers.

¶ The wit, fun, jollity, and good humor required for the occasion are already yours. For our part, it is our desire to supply you with the delicacies and other acceptable things that go to make outing meals a real pleasure. Breakfast—Lunch—Dinner—it matters not which—we have something that will prove just eminently suitable to the meal it is required for. Another thing, without extra charge for packing, we can supply your wants neatly packed in neat cases—all ready for you to take off—just instruct us.

¶ Requirements for camps, summer cottages, etc., amounting to $5.00 or over, forwarded to any part of the Southwest free.

SOME USEFUL HINTS FOR THE TROUT FISHERMAN.

BY B. H. DYAS.

How to Pack Fish for Shipping.

Wrap them well in several thicknesses of paper or grass in such a way that no ice can touch the fish. Then place them in a wooden box, one that will allow the water to seep through when the ice melts, as nothing will rot fish quicker than to have them lay in water. The California State law requires that no trout shall be shipped in concealed packages, but that the box or package shall bear the name and address of the owner and the exact contents of the package.

Shrinkage of Fish After Death.

The following table of comparative weights of fish when taken from the water and the same fish after having been dead from six to twelve hours will be of interest:

Just killed.	Dead 6 hours.	Dead 12 hours.

40lb.	38lb. 2 oz.	37lb. 8oz.
50lb.	47lb. 10¼oz.	46lb. 14oz.

An allowance of one ounce to each pound will be about right. However, fish will lose more weight on a hot day than a cool one, and very fat fish will shrink more in a given time than thin ones.

Care of Tackle.

Rod—When fishing, remember to turn the rod from time to time so that the strain will bend it first to one direction and then in the other. In taking your rod apart be careful not to twist the joints, but pull straight, taking the tip down first, then the second joint, and so on. Carry your rod, butt first, when walking through brush and trees. If going a long distance it would be better to take the rod apart. When the varnish gets hard or has been on for a long time wipe the rod with neatsfoot oil, but be careful to remove all surplus oil. You can easily do your own varnishing and winding of rods; it is not difficult and is interesting to one who enjoys going over his tackle.

Line—Do not let your slack line drag on the ground. Step on your line and a break is sure to come later on.

Reel—It will be sufficient if you clean and oil your fly-reel once a year, but the bait-casting reel requires more care. It should be taken apart often and oiled. If submerged in water during the day it should be wiped dry before putting away. Do not let a reel fall; it often necessitates a trip to the factory. Use fine lubricating oil on bait-casting reels and in cleaning it is better to use tissue paper than old rags, as it is less injurious to the delicate bearings.

Leaders—Silkworm gut keeps best in chamois and should be kept in a cold place through the closed season. Don't soak gut leaders overnight so they will be soft in the morning. It rots them. Remove them from the soak-box as soon as through fishing, or at least remove and wring out the wet felts.

Flies—Put your flies away in camphor in an air-tight can or receptacle. Moths will completely destroy artificial flies, and, of course, fly-tiers' materials.

Creel—Give your creel a good coat of varnish once a year and wash it often in cold water.

Length for Leaders.

For the trout, fly-rod leaders longer than six feet should not be used because of the danger of reeling the leader knot through the tip guide, thus locking the line fast. The six-foot leader is best for three flies. But for two flies, the preferable number, a five-foot leader is long enough.

To Dress a Trout.

Dress a small trout by tearing out the gills with thumb and forefinger and drawing the inside out of them. In a large trout the gills should be cut free from the lower jaw and back of the head, and a slit cut along the under side from head to fin; the inside is then drawn out by the gills, leaving the fish clean within.

TENT ISN'T REALLY ESSENTIAL IN CAMP.

In Southern California, where the skies are always clear in summer and the vacationist need not fear thunder storms, which are so common in the effete East, there is little need for a tent, especially if the party is of men only.

However, in order to secure privacy, a piece of dark green percaline or silesia cloth about six feet in width and twenty feet in length, strung up as an enclosure with heavy cord, will make an admirable dressing-room and weighs only two and a half pounds.

If a tent is considered a necessity, a light-weight 7x7 A tent with ridge rope, or any other small tent, is very serviceable.

Vacation Tips

BY BOB PAULSON.

To the vacationist the following hints and suggestions will be interesting and we trust helpful:

TO PACK EGGS.

To pack eggs break them and fill a fruit jar or large top canteen. Do not open until in permanent camp. Keep them in a cool place.

BLOW FLIES.

Keep blow flies away from meat by thrusting a bough of peppery or mountain laurel in it. Fresh meats keep better by hanging high in a tree. The farther from the ground the freer the air is from bacteria. If too hot in the day time, it can be taken down, wrapped in a clean blanket, then in canvas and laid in a clump of bushes on the creek bank, but it must be hung out over night. Black pepper is better than salt to keep meat fresh; also to keep flies away if you hang it out until it dries a crust on the outside. It is a curious fact that blow flies work close to the ground and will seldom touch meat that is hung more than ten feet above the ground. Game or fish hung at a height of twenty feet above the ground will be immune from "blows."

MOSQUITOES AND FLIES.

A simple and satisfactory way to prevent attacks against these pests is oil of citronella. It is also good to rid yourself of fleas. It should be rubbed thoroughly over one's body before going in the woods, or before retiring. It can be used without causing any ill effects and is not unpleasant. This can be procured at any city drug store. Another way to rid yourself of mosquitoes and make them leave your tent in a hurry is to explode a little black gun powder in it. Burning insect powder in the tent is also effective, but is not so prompt nor is it considered so sportsmanlike.

HOW TO DRY WET BOOTS.

Take a pan full of clean, dry pebbles and heat them over the campfire and pour them in the boots. Let them stand for half an hour or more, shaking them around occasionally. When the boots are thoroughly dry, pour out the pebbles and oil immediately with neatsfoot oil.

To hold up the top of extra light-weight rubber boots, it is better not to depend on the straps running around them, but get a couple of horse blanket safety pins and pin the tops to your corduroys.

WATERPROOFING SHOES.

The best boot grease receipe that I know of is to get a cake of coconnut butter from the drug store and a small quantity of beeswax. Melt the butter and add the beeswax in the proportion of about one part of beeswax to six of the coconnut butter. Warm the shoe thoroughly to open the pores of the leather and rub in the melted waterproofing while hot. Repeated warming of the shoe and application of this preparation will thoroughly fill the pores of the leather and also the stitching. The coconnut butter when cold hardens somewhat like paraffine, but not sufficiently to seal the stitching. The beeswax gets in its work there.

To cure foot blisters, prick the blister with a needle, press out contents and cover with hot zinc oxide.

WATERPROOFING A TENT.

Take two clean pails. Into each pail put two gallons of boiling rain-water. In one of these dissolve one-half pound of sugar of lead; in the other one-half pound of alum. When the liquid in each has stood until it is clear, pour the sugar of lead into a clean wash boiler and add the alum. Let it stand about four hours. Then pour the clear liquid into another tub or boiler, put in your tent and thoroughly immerse it, being particular that every spot is covered and rubbing the goods well with your hands, working it all over. Rinse the tent, stretch it and hang it up to dry. A tent fly prevents rain getting through the roof and also makes the tent cooler.

WATERPROOF MATCHSAFE.

Get a six-inch piece of the inner tube of an ordinary bicycle tire. You can get it at any bicycle store, as they always have worn-out pieces they will sell cheaply. Put your matches in this and tie up the ends and you have a light and waterproof safe. I use the parlor match ordinarily, but always carry a few blocks of sulphur matches put up in the manner described.

TO LIGHT A MATCH IN THE WIND.

Face the wind. Cup your hands with their backs toward the wind and hold the match with its head pointing toward the wind. Remove the right hand just long enough to strike the match on something very close by and instantly resume the former position. The flame will run up the match instead of being blown away, and will have something to feed on.

TO KEEP COALS A LONG TIME.

Cover them with ashes or with bark, which will soon burn to ashes. In wet weather a bed of coals can be shielded by slanting strips of green bark over it and overlapping them at the edges. In windy weather build your fire in a trench.

TROLLING SPOONS.

To prevent rust, or to remove tarnish, polish them with vinegar and salt and wipe off with a dry cloth. It is not likely there will be any metal polish in camp, but you are pretty sure to have vinegar and salt.

PACKING FISH.

If you pack birds or fish in ice wrap them first in many thicknesses of paper or grass, so that no ice can touch them.

TO KEEP FISH.

Scale, clean and behead them, then string them by a cord through their tails and hang them, head down, in a shady, dry, breezy place. Fish that have been lying in the sun should be thrown away. Ptomaine poison works in a mysterious, but deadly, way. Never put fish on a string to keep in water till you start for home. It is slow death for them, like putting a cord through an animal's lungs and letting him half smother, half bleed to death. If you have no life box or net, kill and bleed every fish as soon as caught. The fish will be much firmer and more palatable.

TO TAN SQUIRREL HIDES.

Clean off blood and dirt by soaking one hour in cold water. Rub flesh side with table salt. Double the skins fur side out, roll up and let lie over night. Then scrape off all flesh and fat. Hot sand will help remove grease. Take a quart of salt and boil

SKINNING FISH FOR TROPHIES.

How to Preserve Your Big Catches.

A Few Simple Instructions by an Expert.

Follow Them and Prove Your Fish Stories.

BY ANDY BOOTH.

How many of us have wished, when too late, that we had known how to preserve the skin of some big fish for a trophy? It is not a difficult task to so care for the skin of your big fish that it may be mounted at leisure when you return to town, and the resultant trophy lends an air of truthfulness to one's account of the fish, and how he was taken, that might be difficult to impart by word of mouth alone.

The most difficult part of preserving the skin of a really big fish lies in the catching of him, but having accomplished this, if the angler will observe the few simple instructions given herewith it will require no great effort of skill or patience to make a lasting trophy of the skin.

First lay the fish on a clean board, belly down. Take a heavy sharp knife, and beginning at the nose, split the head straight through the middle, carrying the cut back to the base of the skull, dividing both jaws and head perpendicularly.

It will be necessary to force the knife down through the head by hammering on the back of same, hence a heavy knife is necessary, but from this point on a small knife is best. Continue the cut from the head down the back and belly to the base of the tail, being careful to leave the dorsal, adipose and ventral fins and the tail attached to the side of the skin you have selected to save.

Beginning at back of head and working downward and toward the tail, remove the skin carefully, but do not, during this operation, endeavor to separate all the flesh from the skin, as that can be done more easily afterward.

When the half skin to be preserved has been entirely removed, lay the skin out carefully, scale side down, and with the edge of a tablespoon scrape the remaining flesh from the skin.

Cut away the projecting pieces of bone from within the half head, but do not remove the bones themselves. Cut carefully through the bony structure behind the cheek and remove the flesh of the cheek by scraping out through the aperture thus made. This will allow the curing liquid to penetrate to the skin over the cheek without having to make an outside cut. Make a salt brine strong enough to float a potato and then add another handful of salt for luck. The skin should be entirely submerged in this brine by weighting with a stone. Let it soak for at least three days.

Now you can go on with your fishing and if you keep the jar in a cool place you need not shorten your trip to save the skin. I have kept a large trout skin in perfect condition in this way for three weeks.

In taking home the skin wrap it in sopping wet cloths in layers with plenty of heavy paper, or if you have it, rubber cloth, outside, to retain the moisture. It is most important to keep the skin from drying until you are ready to stretch it in its permanent shape.

Upon reaching home your fish skin is ready to hand over to your taxidermist.

Handy.

CONDENSED GRUB IS THE LATEST.

CARRY THIRTY DAYS' FOOD ON YOUR BACK.

Local Sporting Goods House Has a Camping Outfit Weighing Thirty Pounds Which Contains Thirty Days' Food in Addition to the Sleeping Outfit.

A new camping outfit and condensed food pack is the latest wrinkle in the camping equipments for this summer. This new food plan makes it possible for a man to carry thirty-days' rations on his back, counting only on wild game that he may get on the trip to help out. The B. H. Dyas Company has an equipment containing thirty-days' rations, a hand ax and sleeping outfit that can be carried in an army knapsack. The entire pack will weigh about thirty pounds.

The ten-day rations for one man can be carried along with a cooking outfit in a package eight and a half inches wide, five inches thick and ten inches high. The ten-day rations and cook kit will weigh under ten pounds. The folding cooking kit contains a wire stove that can be set up in the ground, allowing the fire to be built under it.

The small kit, when unfolded, contains besides this stove, two cups, two frying pans that also serve as plates, and one coffee can. This kit weighs 2¼ pounds. The package of flapjack flour weighs 2 pounds; mush, 1 pound; soups, 2 pounds, consomme, ¼ pound; dry milk (will make over a gallon of milk,) ⅝ pound; tea, ¼ pound; sweet chocolate, ½ pound; saxin, 1-16 pound, and coffee, 1 pound.

This outfit costs $4.50, including both the cook kit and the food. All the foods are highly concentrated and mostly in tablet form except, of course, the flapjack flour and the mush. The tea, coffee, chocolate, consomme, milk and soups are all in powder form that can be diluted many times. The saxin (sugar) is 600 times sweeter than sugar and a tiny tablet will sweeten a cup of tea or coffee.

These rations are for the necessities of the meals, and when game or fish are added to this supply, the vacationist will have a supply sufficient to last him ten days with plenty to eat.

WHAT FLIES TO USE AND WHAT MONTH'S TO USE 'EM

BY AL REED.

ALTHOUGH the average trout fisherman may know the names of a dozen reliable trout flies, it is only an occasional dyed-in-the-wool fly caster who can give the proper coloring and make-up of the flies which he swears by. For instance, in my opinion, not one fly fisherman in twenty can describe a dozen best flies. I submit the following list as the best trout flies for the months of June and July:

FLIES FOR JUNE.

Hawthorne, No. 11—Body shining black; feet and head, black; wings, bright hyaline.

Shoemaker, No. 10—Body ringed alternately with light gray and salmon; feet, dark ginger; wings, the mottled gray of the mallard, and the mottled of the woodcock mixed; setae, mottled woodcock.

Silver Black—Black hackle, light black body, ribbed with silver tinsel; dark wing.

Also the Blue Dunn, Pale Green Dunn, Yellow Spinner, Jenny Spinner, yellow Sally. It is said there are 800 patterns in all. The above will suffice for an assortment. The less used the better, in our opinion.

KEEPING A LOG BOOK.

A LOG book should be kept of every summer vacation.

This should be partly of kodak pictures and partly of written data.

Take my advice on the keeping of the latter. Don't put down your impressions; you can always remember your impressions. Put down names and facts. I have done this for many summers and the data thus collected is invaluable to me.

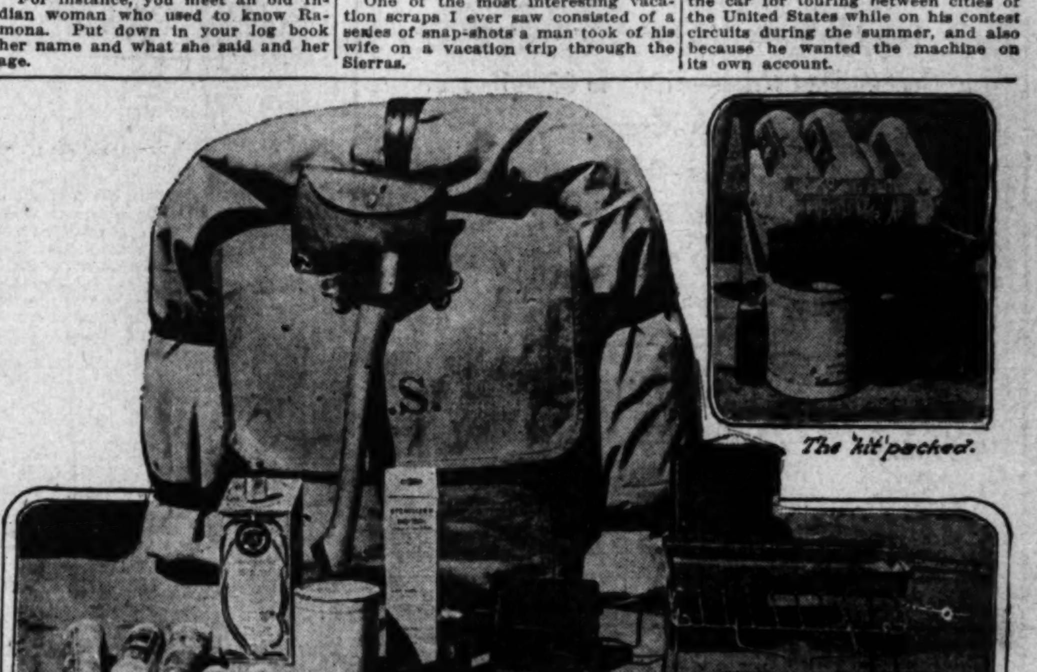
For instance, you meet an old Indian woman who used to know Ramona. Put down in your log book her name and what she said and her age.

You find a flower and some one tells you its quaint Spanish name; put it down. Put down the population of the towns through which you pass, the number of fish you catch every day. Don't waste your time telling what you think or thought about anything.

In taking your kodak pictures; remember one cardinal principle:

Put people in every picture.

One of the most interesting vacation scraps I ever saw consisted of a series of snap-shots a man took of his wife on a vacation trip through the Sierras.



The kit packed.

A compact outfit.

The Bob Paulson pack which makes it possible for a man to carry thirty days' rations and sleeping equipment within fifty pounds weight. In the upper right-hand corner is the ten-day food rations compact and in the main picture, unpacked.

TO VENTURA FOR TROUT.

Wonderful Fishing at Small Money Outlay.

How to Get to the Upper Sespe Creek.

Nature's Wonderland Right at Hand.

BY FRED W. THATCHER,
Secretary Southern California Trout Association.

It is surprising to note how few of the Los Angeles people realize the possibilities for a few days or weeks' trip in Ventura county.

Two of our best streams, the Ventura and Sespe rivers, are here, accessible to all by train or automobile. In fact, these are so convenient to reach that it is possible at a low expense and one or two days' time to enjoy some of the finest fishing we have in Southern California.

The Ventura River and its tributaries can be reached at a nominal expense by railroad, costing about $2.50 for the round trip to Ventura, or if one goes Saturday, returning by Tuesday, the trip can be made for $3. This will land you in the city of Ventura, where good hotel accommodations can be had for $2.50 per day.

The Ventura River can be reached from the hotel in about five minutes' walk, or if one wishes to go up stream the county road borders the river for a distance of about fifteen miles to Nordhoff. Excellent fishing and camping places can be found all along this distance.

From Nordhoff one can go to two of the most popular camping resorts in the county, Matilija and Wheelers Springs, where one will find every pleasure of mountain and camp life at a very reasonable expense. One can eat either at the hotel dining-room or rent a housekeeping tent and do his own cooking. Or if more agreeable to take your own camping outfit there are hundreds of places suitable to pitch camp around through the Matilija district.

From Nordhoff one can secure accommodations to pack over the mountain trail about nine miles to the Upper Sespe River, which will take you to Lathrops Camp, where it is conceded some of the best fishing in the southern part of the State can be had.

From Wheelers Springs on the Ventura there is a trail leading to Wheelers Cold Spring Camp on the Upper Sespe, which is a few miles above Lathrops Camp.

This is also a trip worth taking, as it leads you through some of the prettiest mountain country to a place where the angler is sure to find an abundance of sport in the trout fishing game.

The Sespe River and Canyon is without doubt one of the prettiest streams and most picturesque spots in Southern California.

The main part of the river is somewhat over forty miles long, rising in Santa Barbara county. This can be reached by automobile to Fillmore over fairly good roads, or by train to Fillmore and then by livery to Henley's Camp, about seven or eight miles above Fillmore.

The river runs through some of the most beautiful canyons than can be imagined. Rocks or boulders big as a two-story house are a common sight. The walls of the canyon in some spots rise to a height of two or three thousand feet, almost perpendicular. There are good trails and mountain roads that will lead you many miles up the canyon, and if one does not care for the good trout fishing that can be had, the trip will be worth while for the scenic beauties you will find.

This trip is also inexpensive from Los Angeles, car fare being about the same as to Ventura and hotel accommodations about the same price. There are numbers of places for camping all along the stream.

Taking Ventura county as a vacation possibility, it no doubt affords pleasure to more people than any other county in Southern California.

OLDFIELD BUYS PACKARD PHAETON.

Barney Oldfield went from Indianapolis to Detroit and invested some of his prize fund in a Packard "4-48," with phaeton body which had been reserved for Manager MacAuley.

Oldfield explained that he desired the car for touring between cities of the United States while on his contest circuits during the summer, and also because he wanted the machine on its own account.

For Women Who Wear Waists With Low Necks

MME. ISE'BELL

LOW COLLARS are popular nowadays with every sort of dress, and the neck demands and receives more care than ever.

To keep the neck clear, smooth and fair, there is nothing so good as a daily application of Mme. Ise'bell's Turkish Bath Oil.

This Bath Oil will remove the collar stains, discolorations and roughness, leaving the skin beautifully clean, soft and fine.

The Turkish Bath Oil is used instead of soap and water, but it is more—far better—than any ordinary substitute for soap. It is particularly good for a too-dry skin.

If the skin on the neck is loose, sagging or flabby, Mme. Ise'bell's Skin Food and Wrinkle Remover should be applied after using the Turkish Bath Oil. It is ideal for massaging, feeding and nourishing the skin, filling out and obliterating wrinkles.

You Can't Go Wrong

—if you are equipped with the 1914-15 Edition of the Southern California Panoramic Automobile Road Map and Tourist Guide Book, just off the press. It's as much an essential part of your automobile equipment as your headlights. With it you don't have to guess whether this or that is the right turn of the road—you know.

1914-15
PANORAMIC AUTOMOBILE ROAD MAP
AND TOURIST GUIDE BOOK
EL CAMINO REAL
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Here is a Road Map Book that is essentially different. This new 296-page book eliminates all guess-work and gives you dependable, certain-teed information. Together with a fund of pertinent tourist data, it embodies over 180 superb drawings showing in minute detail every accessible road in Southern California. These unusual road maps were created by Willard Cundiff, widely recognized as an authority on road-charting. Cundiff's distinctive charts, drawn from notes made right on the ground, represent a marked departure from the ordinary, wishy-washy drawings you find in the everyday tour-books. There are no puzzling marks and hazy outlines to baffle and perplex you—but graphic picture-stories that visualize these roads for you and make you really see them.

Here is a decidedly uncommon book—with its fascinating panorama of Southern California roads—with its unique compass imbedded in the front cover, to guide you—with its authentic information so arranged and simplified that you can take in at a glance any information desired. Let this book—that has been endorsed by so many road experts—give you that priceless feeling of surety—that satisfying sense of comfort at the realization that you can't get lost or perplexed, with it at your elbow.

We're so confident that you really need this book that we'll cheerfully send you a copy for examination at your leisure. This splendid 296-page book—teeming with really vital information—costs only $1.50, cloth bound—or in beautiful limp leather binding, $2.50—the special publishers' price. Study it carefully—digest it—see how much more it's worth to you as a pleasure-hungry, safety-seeking motorist. Understand—we want you to examine this book—and we'll send it gladly without a penny in advance—or a promise to buy. Grasp this unusual offer by mailing the coupon NOW.

For Hunters.

LOOKS LIKE A FINE SEASON.

QUAIL APPEAR TO BE QUITE PLENTIFUL.

Be Very Careful About Shooting Deer in Other Districts and Bringing the Meat Back to Los Angeles, Because the Law Says Otherwise. Two Is the Limit Anywhere.

BY H. I. PRITCHARD.

Assistant Fish and Game Commissioner of Southern California.

The early indications point to a splendid quail season. The heavy early rains and good food have been a big help to the quail and they should be plentiful this coming season. Deer are getting scarcer every year and naturally harder to get. Deer hunting has become a hardship now and it is no sport for a tenderfoot.

The tree squirrels will be plentiful where the pinions are plentiful.

The deer season opens in districts 2, 4 and 5 on July 1. Many local hunters are planning to go into those hunting districts and hunt deer. I have had a dozen inquiries about bringing deer into this district after killing it in the 2, 4 or 5 districts.

Local hunters can kill deer in those districts but they absolutely cannot bring any of the meat into this district, which does not open until August 15. They can bring the hide, head and horns back for a trophy, but they must first get a warden or deputy to sign a statement that the deer was killed in one of the above-named districts.

Any hunter killing two deer in those districts cannot kill any more in the State of California during the year. Two deer is the limit in the State, no matter where they are killed.

The new hunting licenses will be here in a few days for the year starting June 30, 1914.

Sportsmen wanting more information on the deer situation can call the State Fish and Game Commissioner's office at room 310 in the Consolidated Realty building.

Mighty Hunters.

HOW FIGHTERS LIKE TO SPEND THEIR VACATIONS.

IF HE wins the fight July 4 from Ad Wolgast, Joe Rivers intends to reward himself with a splendid vacation trip in the north country.

With a party of his cronies he will motor in his big $7000 Simplex through California and Oregon into the Rogue River country. There he intends to take saddle horses and a guide and hunt big game.

This is something Joe has never tried yet. He is a fine rifle shot, however, and has equipped himself with a high-power Winchester and expects to bag bear and mountain lions enough to make Teddy Roosevelt envious.

Jeffries will go on his annual hunting trip—probably in the Kern River country. Jeff is one of the greatest hunters in the United States. He is a peerless shot when the target is alive and growling. He has hunted big game all over America. The finest big game shooting now to be found on this continent is the Mackenzie River country in the north. He has also found fine sport along the lower banks of the Colorado, where he had some thrilling adventures among the hostile Indians and outlaws who ruled the river.

Johnny Coulon is another mighty hunter among the fighters. He prefers fishing to shooting, but has bagged many a deer in the Canadian woods. He may remain in Southern California through the summer and hunt deer in the Ventura Mountains when the season opens.

Ad Wolgast is a good shot, although he hasn't hunted a great deal and is a lucky fisherman, but not a scientific one.

Coulon has an extravagantly elaborate outfit and prides himself on his casting. Ad scorns any outfit at all except a couple of fishhooks. He cuts a pole from the brush, yanks a piece of string out of his pocket, finds some tree grubs and catches trout just the same.

Bud Anderson is crazy over hunting and fishing. He frankly regards prize fighting as a bore—as a means of providing himself with the necessary funds to go out into the open country again.

Bud likes shooting better than fishing, but he is no slouch on any trout stream.

Kid Williams cares very little for the fish. A little of the mountains goes a long way with the estimable Mr. Gutenko. His idea of a vacation is a bathing suit and a few thousand square miles of ocean, and you may take away everything else.

He is a great water man and swims like a duck. In this he has nothing on Johnny Coulon, however. Johnny holds a medal from Congress for having rescued a little boy from drowning in New York harbor at the risk of his own life.

Contrary to all traditions, very few of the English fighters like to hunt or fish. Freddie Welsh's idea of roughing it is a table in a big cafe after the theater. Owen Moran once went up for a vacation in the mountains and stayed at Wheeler's Springs just long enough to catch the next stage going back.

Jim Flynn, the heavyweight, is a great shooter; he shoots craps.

Sam Langford, Jack Johnson and all the other colored fighters are fond of the same form of sport. In fact very few colored men care for hunting. They make the finest soldiers in the world, but are poor hunters. They like "company" too well to bury themselves in the solitudes of the hills.

Whiff; Whiff.

HITTING THE OLD PIPE ON THE MOUNTAIN TRAIL.

THE tobacco question is one of the big points to be considered in the vacation equipment. The experienced hunter or fisherman is as careful in selecting his smoking material as he is with his gun, lines and hooks.

A light pipe is the favorite with old-timers and it is by far the most convenient and useful for the vacation purposes. A can or sack of pipe tobacco will last out a hunting or fishing trip of several days' duration while it would require a bulky package of cigarettes.

On a fishing trip the pipe is easily carried in the mouth and is an essential weapon against the invasion of mosquitoes and gnats that swarm the trout streams.

If the vacationist desires cigars he should carry them in a case, especially on a fishing trip, as they are easily broken in walking through the brush or sliding over rocks. Cigarettes can best be carried in a gunmetal case. The fancy silver or gold case should be left at home as they are easily lost on a vacation trip.

"Home-made" cigarettes are all right, but much time is lost while rolling them and time is valuable when the fish are biting or you are following a fresh game trail.

The best way to carry pipe tobacco or cigarette "makin's" is loose in your pocket. The sack or can is clumsy and unhandy to open and fill a pipe from, taking up a lot of time that can be saved when you merely have to reach in your pocket and take out a pipeful of tobacco. It is safer to carry the loose tobacco in your coat pocket as it is liable to get wet if carried in a trouser pocket on a fishing trip.

To keep tobacco fresh in camp put it in a large can and slice a potato in half, putting the two halves in the can with the uncut ends in the tobacco. Cigars can be kept moist in the same way.

These are but a few hints that will help in the tobacco question, which is an important one to the hunters and anglers that smoke.

Keep matches in an empty cartridge, plugged up on the end. Carry lots of them. Take all you think you will need and then take more. Your pipe goes out while you fish.

Few Know Diamond.

DIFFICULT PACK SADDLE HITCH WELL EXPLAIN

BILL RUESS, the local automobile dealer, is one of the few men in Los Angeles who knows how to make the diamond hitch and pack a burro or mule for service on the mountain trail.

There are two different packs made by outing men, according to Ruess. For travel through brush, the pack is made high over the pack saddle. In the desert country and on wide mountain trails, the pack is made low and wide.

The difficult diamond hitch is not popular at present, according to Ruess. The hitch used now is the "half-diamond," or the squaw hitch. The government requires the diamond hitch to be used as an even weight is carried on both kyaks.

If the weight is not evenly divided on both sides of the mule, horse or burro, the pack under the diamond hitch will shift.

In packing for the trail, the Pope-Hartford and Stearns-Knight agent says that an automobile is necessary. The pack animals are never packed in the city and led out onto the trail. The outfit is loaded into a machine and hauled to the foot of the trail.

The pack saddle goes on first. Then comes a kyak on either side. Here the weight should be evenly distributed, which is difficult, as the kyaks carry a large assortment of provisions, tinware, dishes, extra ammunition and the [illegible] pieces of the outfit. ONE of the parts of the Stevens-Duryea car to receive the most careful attention at the factory is the springs. The easy riding qualities of the Stevens have always been a matter of pride with the Stevens manufacturers, and they employ at the factory an engineer who devotes his entire time to designing and superintending construction of springs. Proper springs suspension has been the end of exhaustive study with this man and probably no one today knows more about that branch of motor car construction than this engineer.

EXPERT TELLS HOW TO CARE FOR GUN IN CAMP.

BY ED. C. CROSSMAN.

IF A person accidentally shoots another person, except under the most extenuating circumstances, a jail sentence should be the reward for the fool that did it. And, if to this, the offender adds that he did not know the gun was loaded, then I'd make the said jail sentence, life.

Accidents will happen to the most careful, but the "didn't know it was loaded" statement is not an excuse, it's an incentive to violence. A gun in camp or anywhere else should be regarded with the same careless indifference that would be used toward a live rattlesnake in a box. If the lid of the box is not unfastened at the wrong time, the rattler is a comparatively safe proposition. So is the gun, if the trigger is not pulled or the gun is not dropped or a sear does not break, or anything else happen at an unpropitious moment.

The wild west party who is ever flourishing a gun in the open, who packs a cannon on his hip for protection against mountain quail and fillyballoo birds, and who spins the gun on his finger to demonstrate his dexterity, should be abated with a club. No clearer proof can be given of the boob, the four-flusher, the inexperienced fool, than gun-flourishing, and general careless handling of firearms—usually done for the edification of the girls that may be witnessing the performance.

It is well to make sure that the gun is desirable as an addition to the camp outfit, then to select said gun with just a little of the gray matter that attends selecting a suit of clothes. For the heavy revolver, or the powerful rifle—except in the open season for big game—there is not the least excuse. For all-round potting, the replenishment of the pot, the pleasure of the campers in target work, and for the feeling of self-protection that a gun gives some people, the .22 single shot pistol, or the .22 revolver of Colt or Smith & Wesson make, or perhaps a .22 repeating rifle completely fills the bill.

They won't kill bears, but bears are just as likely to disturb you as you are to disturb a bear, and both contingencies belong with the possibility of being struck by lightning. A mountain lion is as likely to come into your camp as the devil is to take a bath in holy water. And so far as human beings are concerned, you're safer in the depths of the Sierra Madre than you are on any street of Los Angeles after 9 o'clock at night.

The fisherman or the tramper can get much pleasure from carrying the light single shot pistol or .22 revolver in a holster, provided he has had enough experience, or has enough brains to appreciate that a .22 is not a plaything because it is small. Just for example, a soldier was shot through the side at the Camp Perry matches last year by a .22 long rifle bullet. He was within 100 yards of a fine army field hospital, with the best surgeons of the army at his service.

Three days later he died, and died in spite of the fight of the best army surgeons with their complete equipment. At that the bullet merely penetrated low down, not necessarily a fatal wound with any gun. The .22, save for its extreme range, is as dangerous as any cartridge.

If the choice falls on the pistol or revolver of this sort, it is well to make sure that the pull is not more than three pounds—they are harder as they come from the factory. The front sight should be ivory or gold, the rear sight a flat bar, if the shooter really desires to hit things. The same thing applies to the rifle. The repeater as it comes from the shelf is not fit to use, either in pull or sight equipment. The pistol holster should be of soft leather, with flap to fasten across the gun and prevent it from being lost as you scramble. Never mind the carved flub-diddles, every four-flusher insists upon them to persuade the public that he is a real gun man. Lesmok or semi-smokeless powder is preferable to smokeless in the .22. A damp rag, a couple of dry ones, and then a little oil of any sort will keep a gun fired with the two first named powders, in perfect shape. Smokeless is treacherous with the best of the special nitro oils.

The care of the big gun, the high-power rifle, is more complicated.

The trouble is with the average man that he lets the gun go for a week or so after firing it, then concentrates in a half-hour all the few moments that he might have spent in the evenings to keep the gun in perfect shape. On paper this figures out fairly enough, in a gun barrel it is not true. A gun barrel that goes uncleaned for a few days is never the same barrel.

Tired as is the hunter when he comes in, if he will but run a single rag, soaked with a good nitro oil through the gun barrel before turning in, that gun will stay in good condition.

A nitro cleaner of some sort is imperative—among them is Hoppe No. 9, Acme Solvent, and Marble oil. Machine oil, or the commonly advertised "good for everything" lubricants will not do.

Beware of the string "field cleaner" for use on the rifle in the mountains. Let one break, and that rifle is out of commission until a rod can be found to drive out the rag or the brush. Also said rod may be forty miles away.

A Secret.

TROUT PARADISE IS DISCOVERED.

BISHOP CREEK ALWAYS PROVIDES SPORT.

Anybody With a Hook and Line Can Come Near Catching the Limit and the Trout Are All Big and Gamy, Putting Up a Fine Scrap When Hooked.

BY GEORGE CLINE.

In all my fishing experiences I have never fished a stream as good as Bishop Creek, in the Owens River Valley. This stream is the best trout stream in the State of California and it is a poor fisherman that cannot catch the limit of big fish there. I have made several trips to this stream and I have always had fine luck getting the limit and plenty of big, gamy trout that put up a splendid fight.

This country is reached by the Southern Pacific from Mojave. Getting off at Laws, Cal., one will find a stage that will conduct them to nearby camps, where splendid accommodations can be secured. A $30 scrip book can be purchased from the Southern Pacific, saving about one-third on the fare.

The stream can be reached by auto via El Camino Real and El Camino Sierra, which leads through the beautiful Owens River Valley. Good roads lead to fishing points from Bishop.

Bishop Creek is the best trout stream to fish, but there are several splendid lakes that afford good sport in the way of big lake trout. These great fishing spots and good hunting made that country one of the finest vacation spots that I ever had the pleasure to visit.

Sounds Exciting.

Some of these days you are going to hear of some fellow getting cut in two trying to ride one of them things. Imperative.

FASHION SAYS WE MUST BE THIN—TRY SWIMMING.

The Professor Gives Advice on the Subject of Diet to the Too Corpulent—One Way of Attaining to the Necessary Svelteness Is to Take a Daily Swim—Importance of Exercise.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

WOMEN MUST be thin!

While it may not be exactly a legal crime to possess the too solid flesh, a crime it is against the mode, and what woman will dare to thus offend!

All Paris is busy getting rid of flesh; that is, all feminine Paris, and all America is casting about for ways and means of disposing of the adipose which is the evidence against her as a favorite of fashion. There are ways and ways of getting rid of flesh, many of them obnoxious, many too arduous to gain enthusiastic adherents, and the majority little less than experimental in each individual case.

Swimming is acknowledged by many to be the best, the surest and certainly it is the most pleasant, of all methods for securing this greatly-to-be-desired result.

The Avoirdupois Lady and I were indulging in our favorite sport—disporting ourselves in the water—when one of us asked the swimming teacher—he who is an authority on matters natatorial—as to the effect of swimming for the corpulent.

Said Prof. Wilkinson in response to the inquiries of my not-slim companion:

"The gentle exercise of swimming is a safe, sane and certain cure for obesity—the best method known. You may easily acquire the art of swimming in six lessons under a competent instructor.

"Turkish baths are also excellent.

"LEAN FOLKS ought to swim to gain strength and put on flesh (not fat.) Everybody should swim for health's sake.

DIET.

"MEATS—Not over one pound of fresh, lean meat in twenty-four hours. Beef, veal, mutton, fowl (except goose and duck.) No fat, no pork. Fish may be eaten, except eels, salmon, mackerel, herring, sardines and oysters.

"SOUPS—Any kind of soup, without rice, barley, tapioca or sago. All fat removed from soup. Vegetables in soups must be strained out.

"BREADS—Not over half a pound of brown bread per day. No white bread. The bread may be thinly buttered. In place of bread, crackers or toast may be eaten.

"PUDDINGS—Only those made from gelatine and fruit juice without sugar. No cake, pie, pastry or sweets. Very little fruit. Eggs are good food.

"VEGETABLES—Celery, lettuce, small quantities of peas, string beans, spinach and asparagus. No potatoes or other starchy vegetables.

"DRINKS—As little drink of any kind as possible. No cream, very little skimmed milk. Tea and coffee without sugar, but, instead of sugar, glycerine or saccharine may be used in the tea and coffee. No chocolate or starchy cocoas. No beer. Drink one quart of buttermilk daily. It satisfies the craving of hunger and does not create fat.

DIFFERENT, but yet reflecting the modes for city wear, are the costumes selected for vacation at beach and mountain side, for camping, tramping and the out-of-door life which forms, or should form, an important part of the long summer months.

The time has gone by when "just any old thing" will do for vacation time. Not women alone, but men as well, have come to realize that a necessary part of the summer holiday is the selection of appropriate, becoming and comfortable clothes. It is doubtful if anyone can be at the meridian of comfort when conscious of being unbecomingly clad.

This does not mean that one should wear into the country the clothes worn on Broadway, or when attending sumptuous city functions. On the contrary, the city garb, however handsome and appropriate to its city use, would be absurd if carried into the fields and hills, to the beach or up the mountain side. There is, however, if one will but study it, a costume fitting to every outing occasion.

Dame Fashion, so potent in her sway, has seen to it that in the realm of outing clothes, as elsewhere, the out-of-date shall play no favorite roll, and the outing clothes of yesterday are as little in accord with the modes of now, as are the ball gowns of last season with the tango frocks of the present style.

The modish bathing suit, while it has not perhaps the pantalette skirt—for reasons obvious—still does arrogate to itself the ruffled tunic, the long-shouldered blouse and the ultra smart have even the sheer Gladstone collars of organdie.

The craze for stripes and plaids obtrudes itself into outing garments, the "candy-striped" crepe blouse for week-end wear being a favorite and stripes both in colors and formed by heavier threads, in self-tone, finding favor, for both suits and separate blouses, for beach and country use. The flaring collar, either in Medici or Gladstone effects, are seen not only upon dressy frocks, but upon the beach and bathing suits, and even upon motor coats. In fact, there is scarcely a feature of modish city use which is not in some sort echoed in outing apparel.

The girdle of more formal dress has insinuated its brilliant presence upon the bathing suit and those of Roman stripe, in rubberized materials, are seen upon the bath suits of silk or even of Jersey knit, while bathing caps instead of the unbeautiful things which once effectively concealed the prettiness of their wearers, are shapely and becoming and are bedecked with flowers (also rubberized,) which tone harmoniously with the colors of the costume.

The bathing shoes of satin are laced cathorn-wise from side of ankle up to near the knee, and the bathing hose are as smart as are those worn upon the street, or at the dansant.

SHOE HINTS FOR OUTINGS.

Vacations Often Spoiled by Improper Shoes.

New Outing Shoe Is Best for Mountains.

Tennis Shoes Are Safest on Fishing Trips.

One of the most important things to be considered on an outing in the mountains is shoes. A big book could be written on the vacations spoiled by lameness or bruised feet acquired from wearing the wrong shoes.

Shoes without heels are by far the best for general use on an outing trip. The "no-heel" shoes make walking much easier on the feet. When walking down hill with shoes that have a heel the foot will be forced forward in the shoe, bruising the toes.

A good outing shoe, which is sold by several of the local sporting goods stores is the best tramping shoe that has turned up yet. The shoe is without a heel and has an elkskin sole with a buck upper. The buck upper is very soft and easy on the feet. The tongue is wide and made of soft buck making the shoe water-proof. A layer of oak on the sole inside of the shoe helps in this respect. The sole of the shoe can be studded with little cone-shape studs to prevent slipping on the rocks and pine needles.

A high tennis shoe gives the best service when fishing on a trout stream. The rubber sole prevents slipping on the rocks and is quiet an essential thing when after the wily trout.

Tennis shoes should not be worn on the walk to and from the stream. The little sharp rocks on the trail will cut the feet, while a pliable sole will tire them. To avoid this carry the light tennis shoes down to the stream and then change shoes for the actual fishing. This will give the angler quiet, safe shoes to fish in and easy, comfortable walking shoes to wear on the walk between camp and the trout stream.

The average trout stream is so situated that the fisherman is forced to start and end his days fishing at the same point, making it easy to conceal the tramping shoes where they can be secured on the return from the hike down the stream.

THIS TELLS HOW TO PACK YOUR OUTFIT.

A great many people are at a loss to properly pack their outfit when once they have it. The following is a good rule to go by in preparing your roll:

To properly pack one's outfit the bedding should be laid on the ground, extended full length and folded so as not to be more than three feet in width. On one end of the bedding lay the pocket roll containing clothes and toilet articles and then roll it up inside the bedding. Fasten the entire roll with stout cord or straps and pull your dunnage bag over the whole thing.

HINTS FOR A FEW EXTRA COMFORTS.

For those who desire to climb mountains on a vacation, colored glasses or goggles are really essential to protect the eyes. Women should also carry heavy, dark veils to protect the face from snowburn, and actor's grease paint is one of the best protections.

A very fine-mesh mosquito head net and heavy gloves, preferably gauntlets, are often very handy on a camping trip, as a flock of mosquitos on a rampage is not an uncommon thing to run into in our mountains.

HERE IS A SWELL PLACE TO FISH AND THE ROUTE.

BY CORINNE SIFERT.

I HAVE just returned from a most enjoyable fishing trip—down on the rocks, and although we got our share of the finny tribe, we also had more than our share of bad luck.

It was just 5 a.m. when my girl chum and I spilled some "gas" in our little roadster, and headed for the beach. We passed a regular procession of wagons and trucks, heavily loaded with market produce, as we cut through the fog which was almost like rain, and forty minutes later when we steamed into San Pedro we were dripping wet.

From Point Firmin we skipped along the road which circles the cliffs, on to White's Point. Parking our little puffing car on the brink of the hill, we proceeded to carry our luggage down the steep trail, past the fishing shacks, to the wharf which projects out over the rocks.

Onto this we scrambled, and lowered ourselves down over the edge with the assistance of a piece of rope, and a few minutes later we were sitting—side by each—on the fartherest rocks, wagering on the first strike, and I happened to be the victim. Something grabbed my bait and started for Catalina. Wow-wie, how my reel did sing, and try as hard as I could I didn't stop that scamp until he had nearly all my line out, then he turned, and came head-on. Well, I got busy, and soon had a chance to give him the "once over" and much to my disgust he proved to be a big stingaree.

After resting a bit I cast out again, and the sinker had barely settled when both Lelia and I got "hooked up" about the same time, but this fish didn't run, oh, no, he simply went down and got a strangle hold onto the bottom of the ocean, and there he stuck. We had to do some tugging before he consented to come up, this whopper of a sculpin, and what an awful tangle he made of our lines. We never will know who actually did catch him.

After that we fished a few yards apart, and my chum got a big beautiful bass, large enough for any family. They began biting fine, and by 11 a.m. we had a string of seven bass, two sculpin, and one big dark fish, which had a dog-like mouth, with long teeth, I think it was a Sheephead. Taking one of the smaller fish to fry we began to prepare dinner. Now, little Jack, a boy of 8, whom we took along, proved himself worth the trouble, as he had rustled plenty of wood, made a fire, and had the spuds nicely covered with coals, so the cooking of dinner was a simple matter. Fried fish, beans, baked spuds, toast, coffee, salad, and fruit.

Before going over to help with the dinner, a few yards away, I cast out just once more. This time I put on a whole "squib," which let me tell you is the best kind of bait to use for bass. Then I stuck the stock of my pole in a crevice of a rock, and I guess looped the line over the handle of the reel, for when I glanced around I saw my pet hand-made rod bend double a time or two, then finally snap off just under the reel. I galloped across those slippery rocks as fast as my spiked shoes would take me, only to see my entire outfit, pole, reel and line, being jerked into the water and disappear.

After our grand feed, Lelia was posing for a picture, lifting one of the big fish out of the water, and her pole broke in two, and I had a chance to "laugh last."

A young chap fished from the north side of the rocks all morning and he only got one strike, that was a big leopard shark about four feet long, and he was fully twenty minutes landing it. In towards the shore stood four other men who were all fishing in the same pool, and they used rocks for sinkers, needless to say—they didn't have any luck—rocks won't do, they splash too much, scare out all the fish. We used the long, thin sinkers, and cast always out into the ocean, as far as possible. For hooks I would suggest using O'Sh'Nessy No. 4-0 cable hooks. They will hold anything that you happen to get anchored to. Place your hook about three feet up from the sinker and tie the sinker on with a piece of light twine, so you can break away, when you get snagged, saving your line and hook.

DON'T pack your eatables in paper bundles—cloth sacks and tin cans with snug-fitting lids will help to keep your foodstuff clean.

HOW TO BUILD A GOOD CAMP FIRE.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING TWO DIFFERENT KINDS OF BLAZES.

Camp fires as distinguished from cooking fires are usually built by laying down two short, thick logs, five or six feet apart for bed sticks. Cross these with two parallel logs about a foot apart and fire with small poles between them.

Such a fire is usually too hot for good cooking and it blazes or smokes too much. Cook in front of it, or to one side with coals raked from under the fore stick.

However, when staying several days in a place, build a separate cooking fire—it saves trouble in the end. On a level spot, near the camp fire, set up two stout forked sticks about five feet apart and four feet to the crotches. Across them lay a green stick, or lug pole, somewhat thicker than a broom stick. Now, cut three or four green crotches from branches. Drive a nail in the small end of each. Invert the crotches, and hang on the lug pole to suspend the kettles from.

These pot hooks should be of different lengths so that the kettle can be adjusted to different heights above the fire. First, for hard boiling and then for simmering. If kettles were hung from the lug pole itself, this adjustment could not be made, as you would have to dismount the whole business in order to get one kettle off.

Then get two thick, flat rocks and bed them underneath the lug pole to support your fire-arms or frying-pan itself. A pair of green logs will do, if there are no rocks handy.

There is much in knowing how to select fuel. As a rule, hard woods make good, slow-burning fuel that produces lasting coals, while soft woods produce a quick, hot fire.

It is a good test of one's resourcefulness to make a fire out of doors in rainy weather.

The best way to go about it depends on local conditions. Dry fuel and a place to build the fire can often be found under big up-tilted logs, shelving rocks, or in the core of an old stump. If you cannot find any of these, look for a dead softwood tree that leans to the south. The wood and the bark on the under side will be dry—chip some off, split it fine and build your fire under the shelter of the trunk.

Never leave a fire or even a spark behind you. Put it out.

GIRL WHO HIKES TELLS WHERE AND HOW TO GO.

Some Very Practical Suggestions to Women Who Like to Walk, Told in a Charming Way—Some Tips for Inexpensive Excursions Not to Be Found in Guide Books.

BY L. C. MAAR.

For the girl who is unable to take a real vacation, there is no better way for her to get the kinks out of her system than by spending week-ends and holidays on a good, invigorating hike. In fact, there would be fewer cases of "nerves" if all girls and especially business girls, who never get off of Broadway all week, would get out on an average of two times a month for a brisk tramp through the hills or along the broad beach.

The first essential is to learn to love to walk if you are not already fond of it, for no exercise can really be of benefit to one if it does not contain the element of pleasure. If you have never walked except on city pavements, naturally you wonder how anyone can say she loves to walk; but, just take off your high heel pumps that are constantly slipping off at the heels, put on a pair of soft, elkskin boots, and hie thee to the hills and you will realize what it really means to use your legs.

WHAT TO WEAR.

After making of a few of the most delightful trips in this vicinity, I would like to give you a few suggestions as to the proper clothes and other impedimenta which our little club of hikers have found after three years' experience, to be most desirable. Boys never need any advice as to suitable clothing for they seem instinctively to know that high boots and khaki go with mountain climbing, but it is simply amazing to see the number of girls who attempt to climb Mt. Wilson (which, by the way, is as strenuous as any trip near Los Angeles) in patent leather low shoes and other cumbersome, burr-catching [illegible] skirts, or filmy white dresses that tear when a twig looks at them. The one-piece khaki suits are serviceable and desirable in many ways, but we have found a khaki skirt and blouse with a white middie—a red tie gives a pleasing touch of color—much preferable, for the skirt will always do for several hikes, while a middie is easily laundered and looks much neater than soiled khaki. Furthermore, most girls will find this "get-up" more becoming, which is always a point in its favor. Heavy, high-topped buckskin boots are splendid for exceedingly strenuous climbing, where the underbrush is bothersome and snakes plentiful; but for ordinary wear eight or ten-inch elkskin shoes are altogether satisfactory. They can be purchased for about $4 and will give good wear and then some.

STOCKINGS.

[illegible] stockings are splendid if you can find them, but as they are not at present modish in this age of silk hosiery, very few of the shops carry an all-wool hose. The wool is advisable as a guard against blisters and the catching of cold, in case one is compelled to ford a stream. A sweater, a knit cap—perhaps red to match your tie—makes a most comfortable headgear, but at this time of year, one needs more protection from the sun. A broad-brimmed khaki hat or one of peanut straw or a cheap Panama is practical. Naturally, a good, warm sweater, which can be easily strapped to your knap—or haversack, is preferable to any other kind of wrap.

CARRYING LUNCH.

Don't try to carry your lunch in a box as you do when on a picnic for you need both hands free. Get a haversack, which costs only $1.25, and which easily carries enough lunch for two persons as well as little extras such as a drinking cup, flashlight and trail map. A pedometer is not a necessity, but the cost is so little, only $1, that it certainly is mighty convenient to have one in the crowd so that you can prove to your skeptical friends that you really and truly have walked twenty miles and not merely the ten they would have you believe.

A hiker's lunch should vary somewhat from a regular picnic lunch for, when on a picnic, the eats are all important as one does little else but eat. If you start out for a real tramp, however, leave your frilly sandwiches and indigestible pastries at home for you will need all your energy to walk, and the less you eat the better. Save your appetite till you get back, and I assure you you can then do justice to all that is set before you. Take a few wholesome ham or cheese sandwiches or peanut butter if you like—these do not get messy carried in the haversack. Pickles and olives are good, but for pie or cake, substitute some sweet crackers and plenty of sweet or milk chocolate. We have found tangerines the most desirable fruit for they carry well and take the place of water when that element is at a premium. Do not bother with a canteen, unless you are going where you are certain to be without water for miles, for a canteen is bothersome to carry and even the best of them are inclined to leak.

If you are going where a fire can be built, it is a fine idea to vary the eats by taking wienies, bacon, or perhaps a can of baked beans. A satisfying lunch for two persons can be gotten for 50 cents or less.

GO EASY.

Please do not start out to do a big "stunt" on your initial trip for you will come home with blistery feet and over-fatigued muscles and vow "never again." The better way, if you are not used to tramping, is to start in with an eight or ten-mile hike on the level and gradually work up to the point where you can go twenty or twenty-five miles and still have "walk" left in you. It is not wise to lag, neither is it advisable to go at a record-breaking gait. Find out what gait is comfortable for you and stick to it for hours at a stretch—it is a most reprehensible fault to get in the habit of wanting to stop every half-hour and rest by the wayside. Keep your eyes ever open for the beauties about you, but keep moving. At least an hour's siesta after lunch is allowable for it is not wise to hike on a full stomach. Stretch out under the shade of a spreading sycamore or live oak and completely relax for awhile—don't even think about the miles you have yet to cover before the day is over.

WHERE TO GO.

The next question is where to go. There are so many adorable trips in the vicinity of Los Angeles that I scarcely know where to begin. Mt. Lookout and Mt. Hollywood give one a delightful five or six-mile walk which can easily be taken in half a day, but if you feel somewhat more energetic, go out to Glendale to the end of the Verdugo Park car line and walk through the La Canada Valley to Altadena or go to Pasadena and explore one of the foothill canyons over there, such as Rubio, Eaton or Millard Canyon. Out Hollywood way there are many charming little canyons nestled in the foothills—one particularly good trip is to walk up Coldwater Canyon, cross the ridge and come down Franklin. If you like trips along the ocean, take a Santa Monica car, transfer to the long wharf and hike along the beach road to Topango. A few miles further up the coast you will find Tuna and Las Flores canyons. If you feel equal to a fifteen-mile walk go up Tuna and down Los Flores, a trip that is full of charm and not commonly known of. The beach trip would cost 60 cents for carfare, but the others should not average over 35 cents.

A LONG HIKE.

If you wish a nice "little" mountain stroll of twenty or twenty-five miles go to Sierra Madre, hit the Mt. Wilson trail, but instead of coming down the regular trail cut across to Mt. Lowe, a distance of about four miles, and make the descent from there, or take the Sturdevant trail, which is about fourteen miles long, but one of the best-made trails I know of. A charming coast trip is the walk from Point Firmin to Redondo. There is a good road all the way, and as one is constantly fanned by the ocean breezes, the fifteen miles, even in the hot sun, will show up on your pedometer before you realize it. A still more glorious ocean-front trip is from Corona del Mar to Laguna, though one must return the same way or else walk to some inland station, which would make too lengthy a stroll for one day. Unless you are traveling after dark, when the trail is hard to follow, the coast trail is much preferable to the wagon road, as the road is exceedingly dusty and cut off from the sea breezes. Personally, I think misty or foggy days the best time to make these ocean trips, for then one does not have to suffer from sunburn and one is not so easily fatigued. Including the launch ride from Balboa to Corona del Mar, the expense for carfare on this trip would be $1.25. The Redondo trip would cost only 75 cents.

SHORT TRIPS.

For the mere outlay of a dime, as fare to Hollywood, a person can take a most delightful tramp through Griffith Park, over the top of Mt. Hollywood, down into the valley where Universal City holds sway. If you reach the "movie city" before 4 o'clock you might witness some real action, for visitors are allowed to pass through the grounds if they keep on their good behavior. If you are "all in" when you reach Cahuenga Pass, you can get the Lankershim car there, but by keeping on about two miles further you will come to Hollywood boulevard. Your "ped" on this trip will register about twenty miles.

If you love mountain streams, however, and like a bit of real mountain climbing together with jumping about on slippery stepping-stones and wiggly log bridges, strike off from the Altadena car line to the Arroyo Seco and follow the trail to Switzer's Falls. There are many enticing side canyons which you will long to investigate, such as Bear and Dark canyons, and the Sister Elsie trail will also beckon you, but if you just reach Switzer's Camp, and get out of the canyon before darkness overtakes you, you might feel proud of yourself, for the distance is all of nineteen miles.

CHARMING WALK.

Lastly (as the preacher says,) I want you to know about the San Fernando Valley-Topango Canyon hike, for this is the gem of them all. You get the peaceful stretch of fruitful valleys at one end with the roll of the shimmering ocean at the other, and in the canyon one has the chaos and savagery of the typical mountain canyon. One must get an early start from town, as the distance from Owensmouth to the Long Wharf is every bit of twenty-two miles, though the road is good and there is absolutely no strenuous climbing. This trip will only impoverish you to the extent of a dollar, and, I assure you, it will be a dollar well spent.

For reasons of safety and greater pleasure, it is seldom desirable to take solitary rambles. Our little walking club (which was formed about three years ago, although the membership has varied somewhat during that time) consists at present of seven members—three couples and a chaperon.

CHAPERONES.

Some might not think the chaperon essential, and perhaps one isn't, even to satisfy Mme. Grundy, for just one-day hikes, but if you were acquainted with ours you would think her most indispensable. Though almost three score, she is, as the boys say, a veritable prince of good fellows, and is quite the life and inspiration of the whole bunch. She can outclass any of us in both speed and regularity of gait, and, in fact, usually keeps about a mile ahead of the rest—you see, she knows perfectly the business of a chaperon. She has a sad propensity for getting lost, and, of course, that is all right at times, but as she usually has roast chicken in her haversack the boys are particularly keen on knowing where she is, at least at lunch time. We have about decided that a cow bell will solve the problem. Therefore, girls, if you can find a chaperon like ours take her along, and a mixed crowd of boys and girls is preferable, for the boys come in handy to carry the impedimenta, to lend a little assistance now and then over rocky places and "sech" like, but be as independent as possible, for I have heard boys express their opinion of "would-be" hikers that have to be almost carried up the trail. Limit your bunch, however, to a few souls that are thoroughly compatible, for in camping, one wants only true friends on a long hike.

Start out the very next time you have a day off, and don't forget your kodak.

RUSH FOR THE MOUNTAINS.

More people are going to the mountains this summer than in any vacation season in past years. More camping outfits have been sold by local sporting goods stores, more reservations made in mountain summer resorts and much more interest is being taken in roughing it. Sporting stores report that a big contingent of the vacationists are headed to Big Bear Valley in the San Bernardino Mountains, while numerous parties are going to San Gabriel Canyon and the Ventura country.

Dustin Farnum will spend his vacation in Big Bear Valley, doing considerable hunting and fishing. The beautiful lake and splendid hunting and fishing grounds have made a big hit with the dramatic star.

DON'T get careless with firearms or "fire water;" they are both a necessity at times, I'll admit, but please use them only when necessity demands.

HOW TO GET INTO A CANOE.

MISS GENE WARD, an ardent canoe devotee and a visitor at Seal Beach, has spent much of her time during her stay there in teaching the beach girls the proper art of safely manipulating a canoe.

"In the hands of a careful and experienced person, a canoe is just as safe as any other craft," declares the pretty visitor, "and besides being far safer, is nearly ideal for pleasure. The proper handling of a canoe is really a simple art, although there are several little knacks about it that must be learned before one can be judged an expert.

"The first is balance. While a well-built canoe is not very "tippy," still the balancing of it, when it is necessary, should be as instinctive as that of riding a bicycle.

"In getting into a canoe a little care should be exercised to prevent an unceremonious header into the water on the other side. For a boy this is easy, but for the girl with the fashionable tight skirts 't is a matter of considerable finesse. She should grasp the opposite gunwale firmly with the outside hand and step with the corresponding foot as nearly in the center of the craft as possible. Then, grasping the other gunwale with the other hand, the rest is easy and safe.

"The stroke of the paddle and the little twist at the end that keeps the canoe straight on its course are to be correctly learned only by practice. Canoeing, like swimming, is one of the greatest things on earth for girls' muscular development, and each helps the other, as the muscles brought into play in the arm and shoulder are nearly similar.

"A passenger entering a canoe from the dock should proceed much as did the first person. Grasping the opposite gunwales firmly with each hand, she should step directly off the dock into the center of the canoe."

FOUR IS IDEAL NUMBER FOR A VACATION PARTY.

HOW big a party to take on a vacation trip is often a question that puzzles the entertainers. That depends a great deal upon the place, people and circumstances; but it is safe to say that a party of four men makes the ideal crowd for a camping trip.

A party of two is liable to drag, while three is always a bad number any place. Two are apt to want to do one thing, while the third is firm on another plan and it splits the party badly.

Four congenial fellows, and that is the only kind anyone wants on a camping party, will get along great, have a splendid time and usually agree on all plans. There seems to be a magic charm in that number—four. Two may want to go fishing, and the other two hunting, but that makes little difference, for there will be two in each faction and each can follow their own plan, and with company.

Four makes a good party for a game of cards. The average automobile seats four comfortably with the equipment. Four men can always carry on an interesting conversation that entertains in the otherwise dull moments in camp. That number makes a good fishing or hunting party, a hike or game of horseshoes.

A bigger party is liable to be clanish, a smaller one lonesome and disagreeable, but a trip is bound to be a good one when taken by four. Try that combination once and see what luck you will have. You will say it was the jolliest crowd and best vacation ever.

FAMOUS DRIVERS ENTER SIOUX CITY RACE MEET.

IMMEDIATELY following the Indianapolis 500-mile race, a number of star drivers made their entries in the $25,000 Sweepstakes, to be held on the new two-mile speedway at Sioux City on July 4. This big prize is offered for a 300-mile race and is the largest ever put up for a race of this distance in the history of the game. In addition to the feature event there will be sprint races for which substantial prizes are offered.

The Bugatti car, which proved so fast in the Indianapolis race until it was eliminated by an accident, has been entered and Ernst Friedrich, the famous German pilot, will drive it.

At least one of the Indianapolis Mercers will be seen in action and possibly two. Spencer Wishart has been nominated for the first car.

Harry Grant, twice winner of the Vanderbilt Cup race, will pilot William Ziegler's Sunbeam, and William Carlson, who made such a consistent showing at Indianapolis with the Maxwell running on kerosene as fuel, will be at the wheel of this car at Sioux City.

The Maxwells were built for the Indianapolis race in less than three months and really did not have sufficient time for proper trying out. Ray Harroun, who designed and built them, expects to have them in good shape for the coming sweepstakes.

Charles Keene, who was the surprise of the 500-mile event with his Beaver Bullet, which ran eighth, expects to be a warm contender at Sioux City.

The Times Free Information and Resort Bureau

THE Times Information and Resort Bureau, located in The Times Branch Office, 619 South Spring street, Los Angeles, is one of the greatest public conveniences in Southern California. It is surrounded by railroad and steamship offices, and convenient to the theater and shopping district.

The purposes of the Bureau are to create an interest in California's surpassing hotels, resorts, schools and colleges, and to subserve the interests and solve the perplexities of the multitude of pleasure seekers and travelers generally who visit Los Angeles. All sorts of descriptive literature, transportation rates and train schedules, school catalogues booklets regarding civic and industrial conditions in California are gratuitously distributed. Information is also furnished by competent attendants and by correspondence to the general public upon any and all subjects on which knowledge may be desired.

Although conducted primarily for the benefit of The Times' advertisers, whose fortunes are advanced by systematic, intelligent and far-reaching methods, the Bureau cheerfully distributes literature and disseminates detailed information relative to hotels, resorts, routes of travel and other business ventures not represented in the paper's columns.

The wide general circulation of The Times, and the fact that it dispenses disinterested and trustworthy intelligence regarding all lines of activity, impel local residents, colonists and tourists already here, and persons in different parts of the United States who contemplate visiting the Pacific Southwest, to avail themselves of the Information Bureau's services. Many of these patrons make inquiries concerning hotel, apartment, beach and health-resort accommodations, and desirable routes of travel; others seek the names and addresses of reputable schools, doctors, lawyers and dentists; a multiplicity of strangers ask for advice as to what stores to patronize, and innumerable other visitors desire information relative to amusement, pleasure and sightseeing trips.

All questions, regardless of their seeming unimportance or gravity, are answered promptly, accurately and courteously, and patrons incur no obligations whatever by using this Bureau. Its services are absolutely free, and the public is cordially invited to enjoy its benefits.

ED. TUFTS TELLS HOW TO GO CAMPING IN COMFORT

BY E. B. TUFTS.

VACATION, so Webster says, means "getting away." It not only means getting away from your everyday work and troubles, but also getting away from the thousand and one things that you find necessary for your convenience each day. This puts up to the vacationer the problem of equipping himself so that most of the hardships are eliminated, as it is some trick to take what will add most to your comfort and pleasure and to leave behind that which will only be a burden to you. I am speaking more particularly of mountain and camping vacations, as vacations at the seashore do not necessitate the same thought and study in preparation.

The really important thing is your bodily comfort, such as clothing, shoes, eating and sleeping equipment. Then there are hundreds of new and convenient accessories that help to make your trip a continuous pleasure.

Your clothing should consist of a light yet strong suit, preferably khaki. This will be more comfortable in the weather changes that you will experience, and a good, warm sweater will be very comfortable in the evening.

Especial attention should be given your footwear, even though they say an army travels on its stomach, still you are more sure of getting back to camp in comfort with a good pair of high-top mountain boots than by trying the army stunt.

For camp equipment the new things of today are at your command, such as neat, light folding cots, tables and chairs that take up a surprisingly small space and weight, and yet answer every requirement that is expected of them.

Don't forget a good pair of heavy blankets, for the days may be balmy and beautiful, yet you will need the comfort of a warm covering at sundown.

In the way of camp eating, you can today buy at any of the first-class sporting goods stores camp kits that will take care of every phase of camp eating, compact outfits that weigh but a few pounds will [illegible] dinary-sized party, [illegible] for mother's biscuits, [illegible] fee pot, plates, cups; [illegible] thing complete.

If the trip will [illegible] you should take a fair-sized [illegible] to protect you from the [illegible] Sleeping bags and [illegible] tresses will be so enjoyable [illegible] will want to discard your [illegible] fortable bed upon your [illegible]

Of course it goes [illegible] that if near a stream you [illegible] provided with a fishing [illegible] will make but a small [illegible] pack and will provide you [illegible] of your most enjoyable [illegible] reel, creel, flies, line and [illegible] be had at prices ranging [illegible] $75.

Besides the absolutely [illegible] things, there are many [illegible] will add to your pleasure [illegible] kodak to record your trip [illegible] caliber rifle for target [illegible] appreciated by all. A [illegible] lamp you will find [illegible] might meet a friend [illegible] be bitten by a snake, so [illegible] bite outfit, also a flask. [illegible] tles that will make cold [illegible] hot hotter will help some [illegible] watch and pocket compass [illegible] vide for your timely arrival [illegible] camp.

Besides these suggestions [illegible] many other things to be [illegible] depending upon the nature [illegible] trip.

Don't forget you will [illegible] far away from where you [illegible] gotten things, and to make [illegible] tion trip a sure success [illegible] devote some time and [illegible] preparations.

WINTON TAKES HANCE ON EASTERN VACATION.

F. W. HANCE and wife started on Monday for a camping trip across the country, their Winton Six arrayed for pleasure and comfort.

Yosemite, San Francisco and Lake Tahoe are included in their California itinerary, the road crossing Emigrant Gap.

Reno and Salt Lake lie on the route to Colorado Springs, and angling is to be enjoyed for some days in that vicinity.

Denver, and the National Old Trails road through Kansas to Kansas City, St. Louis, across Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland, bring the party to Washington.

New York provides its pleasures, after which the Hances are to visit relatives in Massachusetts. Late accounts report them well on their way.

BUYING ON POINTS.

A Connecticut Yankee recently devised a new method of buying a motor car by the simple process of gathering catalogues of all automobiles listed within the prices which he felt he could afford, and turning them over to an expert with the names cut off. Passing on all the points submitted by the makers, the expert chose a certain sheet, which proved to describe the Paige-Detroit. It was bought at once

Fashion Says Breeches.

Some bathing hats there are which combine the sun-shading qualities of the panama with the hair-protecting features of the bathing cap. Others are cut upon the jaunty lines of the jockey cap, and striped in its simulation.

In brief, the girl who disports herself upon the beach and even she who ventures into the swimming element, is no longer the hideous object which once drew ridicule from the lips of her masculine friends. If she be thin, she will wear a rubber corset to conceal the fact, and if she be stout, the same rule, turned about, will shield her from an overplus of frankness as to this fact.

In those costumes which are known strictly as outing suits, the same rule applies. The becoming, the smart, the appropriate are sought. She who really cares for her appearance will not submit to the ill-fitting, ready-made suit; but will select from some proper material to have made for her, upon lines which recognize the season's mode, a style which suits both the occasion and her own particular style.

WHAT! BREECHES? OH!

For tramping, and for hunting as well as mountain climbing, there is a growing tendency toward the adoption of breeches for women's wear, either with or without the short skirt.

This fashion has doubtless come about through the use of the riding suit, adopted more than a year ago, by smart dressers on the continent, a suit found so comfortable that it was doffed with extreme reluctance, and hence was worn for many hours daily, for walking, for climbing and for lounging in the gardens and piazzas of European resorts until it became almost unawares, a regulation relaxation dress.

A suit for climbing and walking recently brought out has breeches and a skirt, barely covering these masculine garments, the novel and very useful feature of the skirt lying in the fact that it buttons at both back and front, and may be left unbottoned while rough and rocky country is being traversed. The coat accompanying this sensible suit is one well furnished with capacious pockets, and, while unencumbered with superfluous material, it is cut upon lines both modish and becoming. The yoke and shoulder is in one, displaying the long lines, which are a becoming feature of the season's blouses.

MOTOR GARB.

For motoring, which has, in the best sense of the word, ceased to be a fad, and has become a matter of course, there are fewer garments designed exclusively for the purpose, but more which serve the motoring turn, while laying claim to distinction along other lines.

Women have tired of getting themselves up as though about to descend in a diving bell, simply because they intended to spin for a few miles or even a few hundred miles, behind a whirring engine.

If garb exclusively for motoring is used, it is in the way of coveralls, which are carried in the machine, rather than in the form of coats especially made for motoring. The same is true of hats. This has resulted, naturally, with the perfecting of automobiles, which has relegated to the past the necessity of long tramps because of broken cars and other unpleasant incidents which the improved mechanism of the present has done away with.

For beach wear, on promenade, garments have a style all their own, a style not suited to Broadway wear. Smartness and trimness characterize these clothes, and it is a mistake to think that any sort of outing calls for or permits slovenly attire. Outing clothes call for as much thought and care as to detail as do city costumes; but it is a detail along different lines.

We have selected for picturing from leading local houses, some of the most striking and smart costumes appropriate to summer use, in the various activities which form so interesting a part of our California summer.

THE COSTUMES.

Knitted Bimini suit, in olive green, with stripes in cerise and white upon collar, sleeves, knickers and around the skirt.

Newest middy for outing wear, a garment which combines the qualities of a middy blouse with those of a short mandarin coat. The sleeve is cut a la mandarin coat, and yet has the approved drop-shoulder effect, used in the latest blouses. It fastens at one side, as does the mandarin coat, and has upon the wee breast pocket a Chinese emblem. In fact, the girl selecting her middy blouse may choose between three Chinese emblems, one of which is supposed to say "friendship," another "peace," and a third, "love." I hope they have imported more of those bearing the latter, for what girl playing tennis, or any other game, in fact, would want "peace" when she could have "love?"

There might be a limited demand for the "friendship" emblems. Wouldn't it be a joke if, with a humor unsuspected, the makers of those garments had used terms meaning something entirely different! If, for instance, one's middy bore the announcement: "I'm a mutt," or whatever is in Chinese for "chump!"

The soft outing hat shown, is the popular one in white felt, which so many will wear for tennis and other sports, as it so readily accommodates itself to any angle, and is very becoming, as well.

A stunning coat of plaid wool is here pictured. The soft tones of brown and yellow harmoniously blend and the newest features in style are embodied in the tightly-fitted waist and the flaring skirt. The strap fastenings which receive the huge bone buttons are very smart. The collar of velvet softens the garment as it nears the face. With this is worn a smart shape in black hemp with abruptly upturning brim. A big box of black velvet ribbon finishes one side of the hat and it is topped with Numidie fancy.

A handsome coat for summer wear is here developed in old rose duvetyn, with an inset stripe of gold-colored satin. The attached belt is a noticeable feature, as also is the pointed tunic which completes the coat skirt. The hat shown is a tagal shape of black faced with gold in the doubly woven effect characteristic of the higher class millinery. A wreath of centaurea in shades of gold and brown is set along the backward folded brim and two golden brown leafy fronds add distinction to this most unusual hat.

The newest of the new in cape coats is pictured here, the importation of an exclusive Spring-street apparel shop. Capes, as every one knows, are extremely popular. The one presented is of black satin, cut upon voguish and novel lines, the chief characteristic being the pointed cape falling between the shoulders, and wholly exposing the sleeve with its long shoulder seam. The skirt of the coat, below the cape, has the flare below the hips, proper to the season's garments, and a satin belt in medium width extends across the front of the garment. The sleeves are narrowly cuffed in black velvet. A double collar, one of black velvet, standing away from the neck, and a closer one of white pique, adds to the distinction of this garment.

The hat shown is a popular round sailor of narrow brim, trimmed simply in white satin, with a conventionalized wreath of ripe Royal Ann cherries and their leaves overhanging the narrow brim.

A beach dress of novelty cotton crepe Narcissus in white with a thread strip of black is here shown. A stunning feature of this little dress is the extremely broad belt of lacquered leather in black, which is wrinkled around the waist and fastened slightly to one side of the front, with a buckle covered with the leather. The long, full tunic falling above an extremely narrow skirt is a Parisian feature which adds charm to this enticing frock. With it is shown the newest helmet turban in white felt, banded in black lacquered leather and having the abruptly narrow brim bound with a narrow band of the same leather.

Motoring coat of white Scotch wool, bordered in crushed rose and finished around the lower skirt edge and around the shawl collar with a fringe of the material.

Riding suit of pin-checked wool in black and white. Breeches, coat and vest cut upon smart lines, and having the many touches which have made this suit popular with European women for wear, not alone while riding horseback, but for general outing and lounging wear in the out-of-doors. Such a suit has gone far toward emancipation of women as to dress, and it will doubtless carry even further.

ARGUMENTS ABOUT THE GOLDEN TROUT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, June 10.—Work which is now under way by the State Fish and Game Commission is expected to settle the controversy of long standing over the golden trout, found in the foothills east of this city and nowhere else in the world except in one stream in New Zealand. It is proposed to transplant a number of these trout from Volcano Creek to streams near Lone Pine, where conditions are similar.

One school of scientists maintain that the peculiar yellow color of the fish is due to chemical action of the volcanic water, while others maintain they are a distinct species.

Transplanting them to water in which there is no chemical element to continue the color will result in establishing the correct theory.

NEW YORK FUND FOR ROAD SIGNS.

For the purpose of erecting uniform and accurate road signs throughout the State, Mitchell May, Secretary of State of New York, is advocating that a fund of $25,000 be raised by public subscription. This, according to his plan, would be administered by the State and local authorities, with the co-operation of the various automobile organizations. No funds are at the disposal of the authorities for the purchase of the signs. Once these are obtained, however, inspectors could be turned to the work of selecting the locations for them, using the extensive data at the command of the automobile clubs as well as their own knowledge of road conditions. Possibly the actual work of posting the signs in the selected positions would have to be done by the automobile men, there being a possibility of some legal obstacle to the use of the State's men for this.

TROUT SEASON RATHER LATE.

SHOULD BE GOOD NOW UNTIL LATE INTO THE AUTUMN. SOME GOOD TIPS.

BY H. E. DOWNING.

Trout fishing in Southern California this year has been delayed on account of abnormally high water and it is only now that the fish are readily rising.

All the mountain streams are filled with the gamy beauties and to the skilled fisherman, and tyro, a well-filled basket is assured if reasonable care and caution are used in the pursuit.

At this time of the year, the wriggly angle worm is losing caste, the appetite of Mr. Trout having changed from plebeian to aristocratic flies now being preferred. It therefore behooves the angler to carry an assortment of artificial enticers to suit his lordship's fickle and exacting tastes.

In choosing flies the character of the stream and surrounding country, the day, and even the time of day are factors to be studied and the fly used must be selected accordingly.

Exceedingly good results are had with the Willow fly, all the hackles, the Royal Coachman and Black Gnat. Do not make the mistake of buying large flies. There are few large flies around the Southern California streams and immediately a large artificial fly is used, the trout become suspicious and refuse to rise.

Keep out of sight as much as possible when approaching the stream or casting. Trout are wary and will not tolerate boisterous conduct, preferring to view strangers from a safe retreat under a rock or from behind a log.

The spinner is also an effective bait, some of the largest and therefore most desirable fish being taken by it. Some little skill is required in handling this lure as the erratic actions of a wounded fish are somewhat hard to imitate. Don't attempt to draw the spinner up stream or against the current. It will spin faster and look more enticing when handled that way, but will catch few fish. Draw across or down the stream or current, thus taking the line of least resistance, as would a wounded fish.

In outfitting for your excursion, be governed by the circumstances likely to surround your trip. All of the sporting goods houses are admirably equipped with just the things needed—it is surprising the number of necessities that can be packed in small space. Do not make the mistake of overloading yourself with a large amount of dunnage for many a trip has been spoiled by carrying too much truck that was not used and was in the way.

If a week or more can be taken for your trip, a journey to the Sespe will well repay the effort. The fishing is superb on that stream and the fish run a nice uniform size of about nine inches, with an occasional big one for additional zest. Nearer at hand are the San Gabriel and Santa Ana Rivers and their tributaries, both of which rivers are splendid trout streams and will yield a good day's sport. A little farther away Deep Creek and Little Bear are situated, but they well repay the trip. Both can be made in a good machine with no discomfort.

While the trouting season is later than usual this year, it bids fair to hold out longer and royal sport until late in the autumn seems assured. This feature is unusual in Southern California, but as one of the great pleasures of trouting is its uncertainty, when the locality aids and abets that feature by climatic conditions, it increases the pleasures of an invigorating and incomparable sport.

DON'T litter up the camp grounds; burn all trash, bury the garbage and empty cans.

Advice to Hikers.

washing, wood chopping, water to carry, and beds to make that requires a certain amount of energy that is hard on a lazy man.

Always consider your personal comfort when planning what to take on the trip. People that have a cabin or intend to stay at a mountain resort do not have to plan as carefully as the vacationist that pitches camp out in the open. Eating and sleeping are the big things on a camping trip, and the utmost care should be taken to provide for good sleeping and eating accommodtaions. Take a camp stove, plenty of bedding and a cot for each person. Folding camp stoves and folding cots can be carried in a compact package.

Flour, and plenty of it, is the main food ration to take. The flour will provide bread, biscuits, muffins and flapjacks. Sugar for syrup and other uses, is necessary. Beans, bacon or ham, eggs, butter, potatoes, milk, coffee, salt, pepper, spices, canned vegetables, lard or Cottolene, and preserves are the only other food supplies I have found necessary in the mountains. You can depend upon your trout lines for fresh meat. Preserves, jam and jells go fine with hot biscuits.

The clothing proposition depends entirely on taste, but I have found that the best outfit for a man consists of light but strong khaki trousers, woolen shirts, woolen socks and regular mountain shoes. I always take a pair of hiking shoes with an elk-skin sole, soft buck upper and no heels on the shoe. The American Indian was the best hiker we ever had, and he wore moccasins which had no heels. The "on-heel" shoe is easier on your feet, and much more comfortable to walk in. Tennis shoes have always given me the best service on a fishing stream.

GET A CABIN.

I have spent the last four or five summers in a cabin, and these vacations have been by far the best because of the little comforts you can have while still roughing it. Before that I camped out in a tent, and several times just tramped around the mountains, camping wherever I was at dark.

Never do that. It is a tiresome and tedious form of vacation that will do you little good. The main idea of a vacation is to make a fellow fit for another year's work, and several weeks of sleeping on the ground and eating half-cooked food will not accomplish this purpose.

Make your camp in some good place and then take your hunting and fishing trips in any direction. Your vacation will be twice as successful if you have a camp where your cooking and sleeping equipments are comfortably arranged. Try to locate your camp under big pine or oak trees and near a spring, for it is no fun packing water over a mountain trail. It is a poor plan to camp near a stream on account of mosquitos. A camp where a cool breeze blows will have the least trouble with flies and gnats.

THE COST.

Four people can secure food enough for a month's vacation for $10 apiece. The camp stove will cost $2.50, the cots $3 each, the blankets and dishes can be taken from your own home. A complete fishing outfit can be bought for a price ranging from $5 up.

Vacationists always have plenty of old clothes that can be worn out in the mountains, but about $5 should be allowed for miscellaneous clothing.

The expense of the trip, of course, depends on the place selected. The fare to Ventura and points near there is $3.50 a round trip for each person. The railroad fare is less to points nearer and is $3.15 to San Bernardino, where a stage will take you to the mountains for $3.50 a round trip. Freight rates on your supplies will be 1 cent a pound. A party of four, dividing the expense equally, can take a month's camping trip to the San Bernardino Mountains for $30. Ten dollars apiece for food, $7 for transportation of each person and their share of the luggage and $13 for fishing or hunting supplies, clothes and miscellaneous articles.

SOME DIVERSIONS.

After the camp is made and the vacationist has settled down to the outdoor life, plenty of lively diversions will turn up.

Fishing and hunting are the two big sports, with fishing a headliner on account of the passing of game. Trout fishing is a simple pastime that requires more practical sense than skill.

A steel or bamboo pole is the main essential for trout fishing. Plenty of stronk silk line, at least a three-foot leader, and good hooks should be used. Split shot make a good and convenient weight if it is necessary to use any. A reel is a splendid thing to have, as the various depths and widths of a trout stream demand various lengths of line.

Bait depends on the time of year and the locality. Worms, creepers, and all forms of live bait are good most any time. Salmon eggs can be used with great success during the entire season, but give the best results early in the summer.

Many experienced anglers claim that the true sportsman uses nothing but flies, but these anglers have little sympathy for the unskilled fisherman that couldn't catch a trout with a fly if he fished all season. Flies and spinners are good on big pools and the larger fish are usually caught by the use of this method of attack. For the average fisherman the salmon egg will be the most satisfactory.

HOW TO DO IT.

Fishing down stream will be more apt to scare the fish because the sound carries down stream, but it gives the best and most concealed approach to the pools. Too many anglers have the female curiosity when fishing and want to see the fish. This is a disastrous plan, for a trout once scared is seldom hooked. Quietness and careful concealment are essential.

In the San Bernardino Mountains the campers can find dancing, tennis, pool and billiards open for them at the summer resorts. Wienie roasts, barbecues and hard-time parties are held every week at the camps and it would be hard to find a more congenial crowd or to have a better time. Jimmie Swinnerton, the famous cartoonist, and creator of "Little Jimmie," gives an all-day barbecue and celebration at Strawberry Flat every summer. He has his twenty-two-piece band up from the valley below and the merry crowd gathers on the flat and have the Virginia reel and the old square dances. This is but one of the many gay times that I have been fortunate enough to enjoy.

Beautiful walks, the view of fifteen cities, all lit up at night in the San Bernardino Valley, is well worth the trip. Auto stage parties and points of interest to be seen will take up a big part of the time.

WATCH FOR SNAKES.

The one danger that must be watched is with rattlesnakes on fishing trips. The trout streams are mostly on the desert side of the mountains and the black diamond rattlers frequent this country. Their favorite resting place is in the hot sand.

When walking along a stream or trail, watch carefully for snakes coiled in the sand taking a sun bath. They are so near the color of the sand that they are hard to see. Carry a pen knife, a little box of pernanganate of potash and a bandana handkerchief along on these trips. If bitten, cut around the wound and suck the blood from it, spitting it out. Then rub the permanganate of potash into the wound and bind the bandana handkerchief above it, if possible, and twist it with a stick until it shuts off the circulation of the blood. Then keep still so as to prevent the blood from circulating faster by moving around, and there will be little danger of death.

In my many vacations I have seen only two snakes, except down on the desert trout streams, and the mountains are a safe and splendid place to spend a pleasant, healthy and inexpensive vacation that will never be forgotten.

A Question.

WHAT TO TAKE ON YOUR TRIP.

HERE'S A LIST OF NECESSARY ARTICLES.

Sierra Club Provides First-Class List of Essential Things for a Two or Three Weeks' Outing and Also Gives the Approximate Weight of Each Article.

Many people when going out for a two or three weeks' vacation trip in the mountains are at a loss to know what to take and how to take it.

For the convenience of its members the Sierra Club has made up a list of the various necessaries for such a trip, exclusive of the allowance for food.

Below will be found a complete table of the necessaries for a comfortable trip with their approximate weights:

Sleeping outfit—	lbs.	oz.
Wool comfort or elderdown bag	8	..
Sheet of water-proof silk 6x7 feet	1	10
Total	9	10
Clothing in addition to what is worn—	lbs.	oz.
Sweater	1	8
Pajamas or nightgown	..	14
One suit underclothing	1	2
Light pair shoes	2	..
Six bandanas	..	8
Men: One pair trousers
One overshirt
Six pair socks
Women: One skirt	1	8
One waist	..	10
Six pair stockings	1	..
Total	9	2
Miscellaneous—	lbs.	oz.
Toilet articles	2	..
Towels, 1 bath, 2 face	1	4
Knapsack or pack harness	1	6
Pocket roll (denim)	1	2
Dunnage bag	2	..
Candles and lantern	..	8
Total	8	4

This is a liberal allowance, making a grand total of about twenty-seven pounds and leaving a small balance for cloth enclosure, fishing tackle, writing and sewing outfit.

POCKET ROLL IS A BIG HELP TO EASE.

A pocket roll facilitates the care and packing of one's effects. It should be made of denim or drilling, as follows: a piece three feet square is first taken as a back, and three box-plaited pockets, each a foot deep and extending the entire width, are securely sewed to the back and bound with tape.

The upper pocket can be divided into three divisions to hold small articles. All these pockets can be closed with flaps or tied with tapes. Into this roll all one's belongings except bedding can be packed, and it can be arranged with eyelets and cord and hung to a tree when in camp.

Rattlesnake Not Fatal.

poison out of my system followed during the next seven months.

My life was saved by a few simple quick acts and the permanganate of potash.

ADVICE.

My advice to people going into rattlesnake country is to go prepared. Always carry a little permanganate of potash with you and a knife of some description. Don't be afraid to cut around the wound for it is a matter of life and death, which makes a deep cut sem very insignificant. Rub the potash in well and bind the handkerchief above the wound tightly if the bite is on the arm or leg. Twist the cloth with a stick, if necessary, to stop the circulation of blood and keep the poison away from the heart.

More important than all this is advised before being bitten. A rattlesnake will usually give a warning and few people would be bitten if they did not hunt for the snake as I did. A snake is twice as fast as you are in striking, can see you fist and above all is hard to see in brush or grass so near its own color.

A DOZEN DON'TS.

For Those Who Hike.

DON'T forget the kodak, as your negatives will help you live your vacation over again.

DON'T pollute the streams; you are subject to arrest if you do; besides you should think of your fellow-camper below.

DON'T attempt to sleep on the ground if you are not accustomed to doing so—gunny sacks filled with dry grass or leaves make a good mattress and will keep you off the damp ground. A light canvas hammock or a piece of canvas stretched to a framework of saplings and suspended off the ground will prove a most comfortable bed.

DON'T eat too much greasy fried stuff; bake or boil your food every chance you have, and thereby avoid being constipated.

DON'T ignore the rangers; heed their warnings, especially pertaining to fires, for careless campers often cause costly conflagrations.

DON'T overdo it! Rest and relax at every opportunity. A short, pleasant trip is more beneficial than an extremely strenuous one.

PHILIPPINE CARS.

Of the non-contiguous territories of the United States the Philippine Islands are the ones showing the greatest gains in the imports of American motor cars, according to figures made public by the Federal Bureau of Statistics. During March sixty-five cars were shipped to the Philippines, the value being $55,736, while in March a year ago the number was seventeen and the value $23,862. During the nine months ending with March, the number of cars shipped there from this country was 345, valued at $413,840, in 1913, and 518, valued at $614,679, in 1914.

TRUCK REPORTERS.

To assist motor truck owners in securing better service from their drivers, the Motor Truck Club of America has embarked on a campaign in which each of its members is being asked to turn himself into a reporter of truck abuse. Postcards have been given to the members, bearing space for the license number and details of the driver's offense. One of these is to be filled out each time a member observes a truck being carelessly or recklessly operated, and mailed to the club. The club, in turn, will take care to see that the owner of the truck is notified of the driver's dereliction.

ARROWHEAD HOT SPRINGS.

Where will you spend your summer vacation? Where do you take your outings over Saturday and Sunday during the summer months?

If we can by printed word give you but the faintest suggestion of the charm and beauty of Arrowhead, of the enjoyment and benefits to be obtained there, we know you will surely visit us for as long a stay as your circumstances permit.

The most mysterious and romantic mountain in the world is the Arrowhead, seven miles from San Bernardino and 69 miles from Los Angeles. Here you will find a hotel possessing every luxury, built in mission style with broad verandas, superb foyer and lobby, large cool rooms with matchless view from each window. It is planned for quiet, comfort, repose and health. Its luxuriousness, equipment and furnishings make it fulfill the most exacting expectations.

Nowhere in America are afforded such abundant opportunities for quiet rambles or invigorating mountain climbing. Mysterious canyons, penetrating deep into the heart of the ranges, lead from the hotel. Deep, narrow valleys where a precipice two or three hundred feet high in places shuts out the sunlight; and opening out into delightful nooks and coves that are veritable flower gardens. To all these heavily shaded gorges are places of delight. Flower decorated and musical with the songs of mountain brooks. Overhead are the arches formed by the branches of the heavy tree growth, sycamore, maple, oak, alder, pine, cedar and juniper, hiding the sun. An hour's climb will carry you from the semi-tropic through the temperate zone to the Alpine. The mouths of half a dozen canyons can be reached in 15 minutes' walk from the hotel.

For those who enjoy more vigorous exercise, unrivalled tennis courts have been provided. Within a minutes' walk of the hotel and directly facing it, at the foot of a precipitate drop of about 20 feet, Mother Nature herself has levelled off a fine plateau just large enough for the courts. From the end of the plateau the mountain continues with an abrupt descent to the valley, some 2000 feet below. Here one could almost imagine himself playing a game of tennis on the edge of the world.

The outside swimming pool, a few steps back of the hotel, is a great rendezvous on warm days. The water is always fresh, as a constant stream runs into and out of the pool. The depth grades from 3 to 7 feet. After a mountain climb, nothing is so vigorating and refreshing as a dive into the clear depths of the clean, fresh water, from the spring board, coming up at the far end of the plunge then a short run along the board walk to the bathhouse for a rub and a rest.

In back of the hotel and immediately adjoining the bathhouse, space has been set aside for an athletic farm. A small running track with graded hurdles has been provided. There are also punching bags, parallel bars, etc. Part of the grounds are covered with regulation canvas for boxing and wrestling. In short, every facility is furnished for physical betterment.

Good fishing will be found in Cold Water Canyon. In fact, Arrowhead offers in one spot more variety for pleasure, enjoyment and health building than any place in the world. You get all the benefits of a mountain resort, and also opportunity for still water bathing, which many prefer to the seashore. The nights are always cool, even in the dead of summer. One can therefore sleep well and is always refreshed and invigorated for the following day.

The table is supplied with fresh vegetables grown right at the hotel. The hotel also owns its own dairy and chicken ranch and the meals are always of the best quality and sufficient variety to tempt the most delicate appetite.

In addition to the many attractions of which but a few have been briefly described above, the hottest curative mineral springs of the world are found at Arrowhead. These waters are not only wonderfully healing for many of the ills that human flesh is heir to, but they possess great tonic value for everyone, whether sick or well. It is impossible to drink these waters without feeling renewed energy and added strength. It is impossible in this brief announcement to convey any impression of the value of these waters. Ask your physician.

These are just a few, a very few of the reasons why you should visit Arrowhead. Come and stay as long as you can—a royal welcome awaits you and you will return to business with renewed vigor and vim to carry on your appointed work. Come if only for a week-end—the glorious scenery will take your mind off of business and the wonderful waters and good table will tone up your body. Come if only for a Sunday—the drive from Los Angeles by automobile is one of the finest in Southern California. Arrowhead is so good you cannot get too much of it, but even the briefest visit will charm and delight you.

GILMAN'S RELIEF HOT SPRINGS.

Formerly San Jacinto Hot Mud Sulphur Springs, San Jacinto, Cal. Best tule mud baths in Southern California, hot water, mud baths and hot soda water baths. These baths are unequalled for rheumatism in all its forms, diseases of blood, stomach, kidney, liver and nervous complaints. Iron and arsenic spring for blood, nerves and complexion. An ideal health and rest resort. Altitude 2100 feet. Always open.

This popular resort, where many wonderful cures have been effected, recently has been acquired by the Gilman Brothers of Ocean Park, who have made extensive improvements in the place, thoroughly modernizing it in every respect, and who give to its patrons the same incomparable service that has made the Casino at Ocean Park famed throughout Southern California for its cuisine.

Relief Hot Springs is located under the foothills of the San Jacinto Mountains, four miles northwest of San Jacinto city, the town in which Helen Jackson, with the flashlight of her imagination, mirrored many of the characters and scenes of her famous book, "Ramona."

The curative properties of the waters for many diseases cannot be questioned. The sulphur water is soft and palatable for drinking and delightful for bathing, the soda water destroys acidity quickly, the iron and arsenic water is a fine tonic and excellent for the blood, nerves and complexion and the tule mud used in the hot mud sulphur baths is taken from the tule roots at a depth of from 10 to 15 feet where it has been buried in the hot sulphur waters for ages and is as soft as silk. Each of these waters has a fine chemical analysis.

The temperature of the water ranges from 96 to 117.

The Springs are nestled under the foothills of the range, and overlook thousands of acres of level grazing land that spread out to the south and west, terminating, as they unfold, at the foot of another range further south and miles away.

Rates: $12 to $15 per week, including board, baths, blankets and all conveniences of hotel.

Train leaving Los Angeles 9 a.m. daily—Sunday included—arrives at San Jacinto 12:21 p.m. Train leaving Los Angeles 2 p.m. daily—except Sunday—arrives at San Jacinto 6:25 p.m. Train leaving San Jacinto 6:25 a.m. daily—except Sunday—arrives in Los Angeles 10:15 a.m. Train leaving San Jacinto 12:50 p.m. daily—except Sunday—arrives in Los Angeles 5:30 p.m. Train leaving San Jacinto 4:30 p.m.—Sunday only—arrives in Los Angeles 9:10 p.m. Free auto to Springs connects with all Santa Fe trains. The Springs can also be reached by Southern Pacific via Beaumont. Conveyances can be had at Beaumont to carry passengers to the Springs, eight miles.

For further information address Gilman Brothers, Proprietors and Managers Relief Hot Springs, San Jacinto, Cal.

GLENN RANCH RESORT.

Elevation 3256 feet. Beautifully located, twenty miles northwest of San Bernardino, in Lytle Creek Canyon, two and one-half miles from Keenbrook and seventy-six miles from Los Angeles. Orchards, garden, good fishing, mountain climbing, dancing and tennis, and all other amusements usually found at mountain camps. Glenn Ranch is a typical ranch home, containing 360 acres, and here one can eat, sleep, loaf and play close to nature.

Lytle Creek runs through the ranch and it excels in scenic beauty. The beautiful automobile stage ride through the famous Rialto orange groves and picturesque Lytle Creek Canyon, and the desirable altitude make this camp a favorite rendezvous for Angelenos. Accessible from Los Angeles by splendid automobile road via Foothill Boulevard and Etiwanda. Well equipped tents and cosy cottages, abundance of cherries, peaches, pears, plums, apples and fresh milk, eggs, butter and vegetables.

Round-trip fare via Santa Fe Railroad to San Bernardino, and automobile to camp, $6.00.

Rates: $2.00, $2.50 per day; $12 to $15 per week.

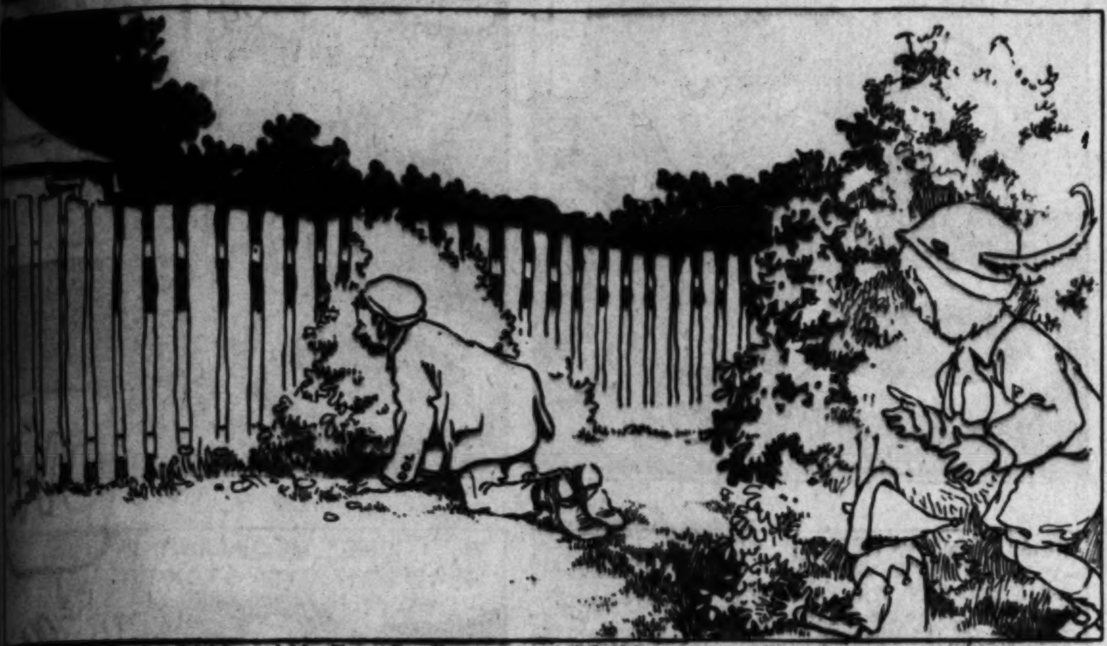
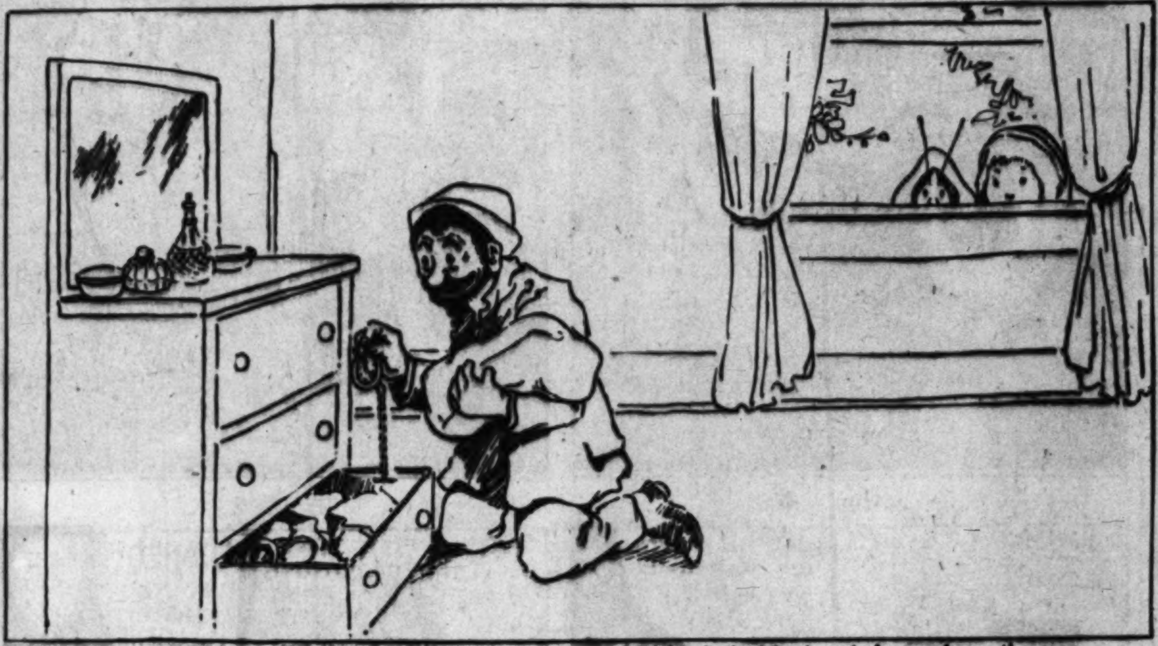
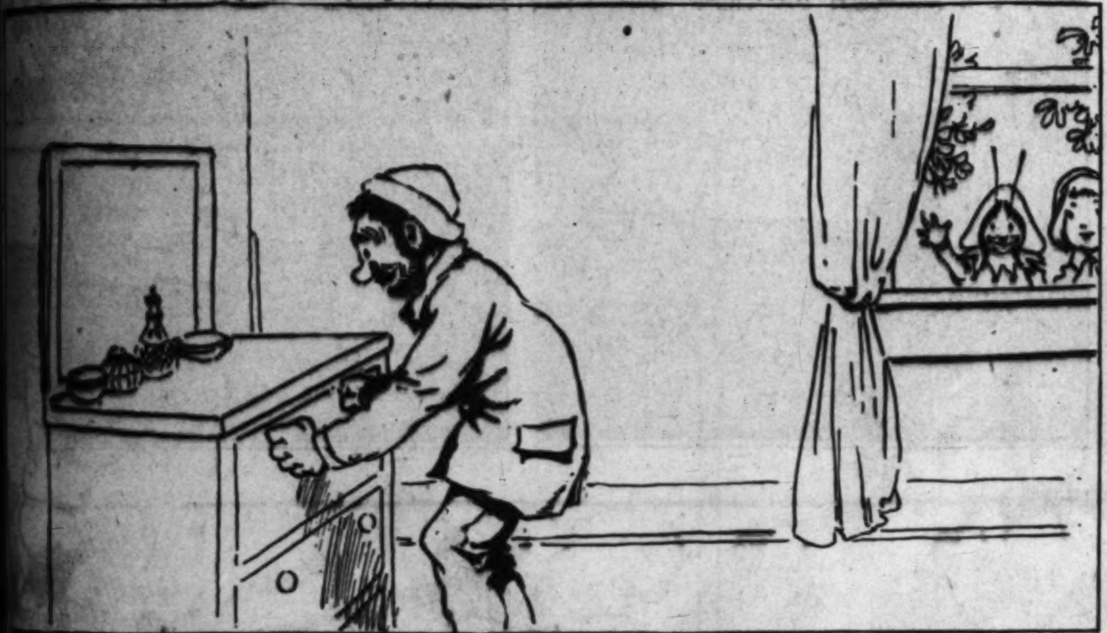
MR. TWEE DEEDLE



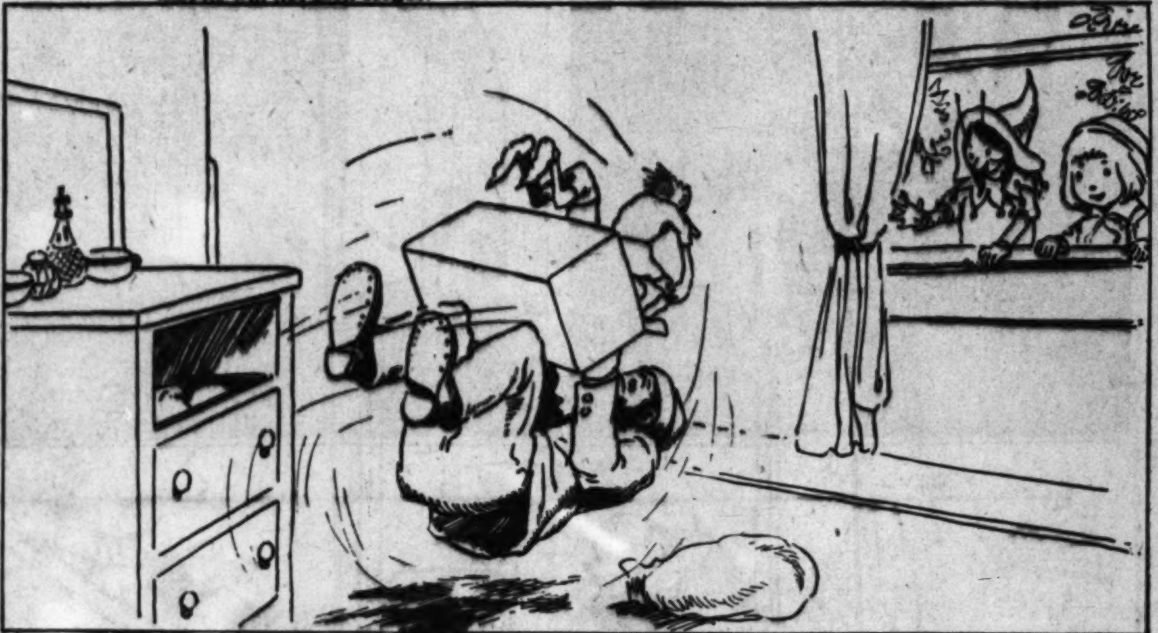
One day Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle saw a rough looking man sneaking up to Gran'ma Hawkin's fence and watching the house. Presently they saw Gran'ma leave to do some shopping, and immediately the man jumped the fence and ran to the window and climbed in.



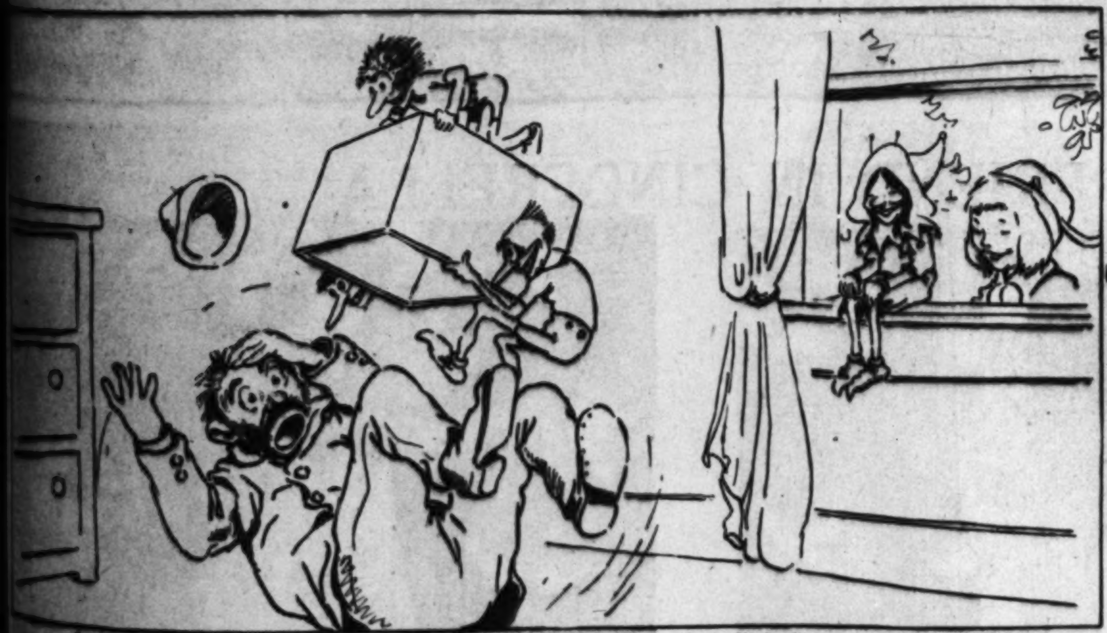
2—"Well!" exclaimed Mr. Twee Deedle, as he and Dickie looked in the window and saw the man going through a dresser drawer, "this will never do at all; we'll just give him a nice lesson that he will not soon forget!"



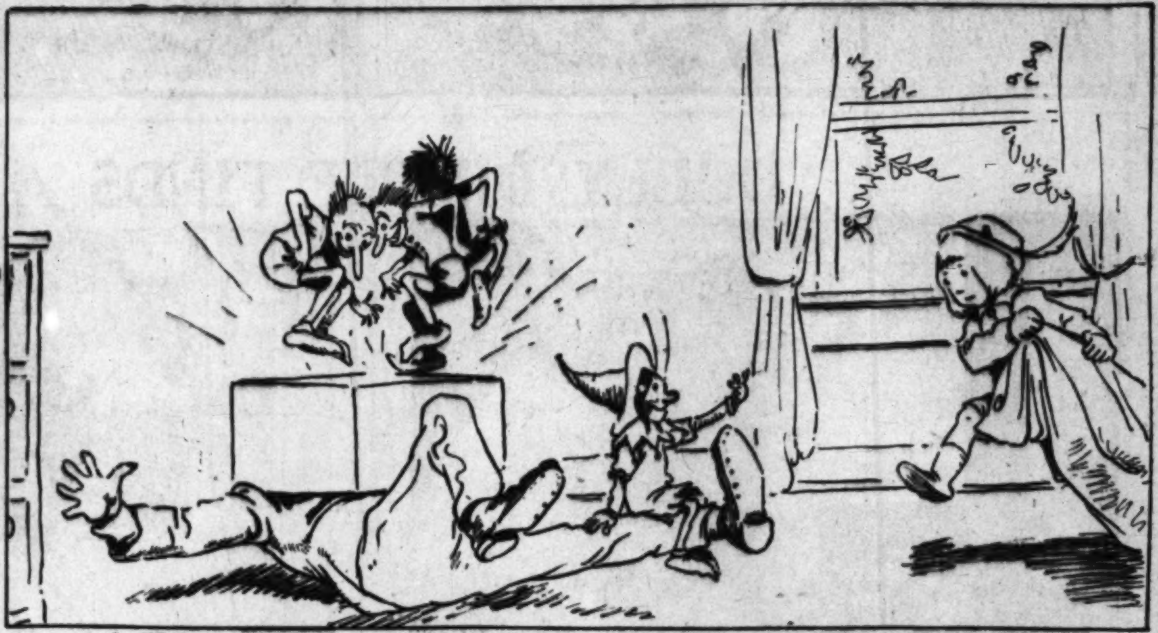
3—When the man had taken all he wanted out of the lower drawer, he tried the top drawer, and Mr. Twee Deedle said something in magic. Then the man pulled and tugged, trying to pull the drawer open.



4—After letting the rough looking man pull and pull at the drawer, Mr. Twee Deedle said another magic word and the drawer came out so easily that the man lost his balance and fell over backward.



5—Now, as the drawer popped out of the dresser, Dickie saw three little figures spring out of it and before the drawer touched the floor they had it and, with a big swoop, they carried it up in the air and down over the man's head.



6—While the little Surprises, as Mr. Twee Deedle called the little figures, danced upon the box, Mr. Twee Deedle held the man's leg while Dickie brought two or three sheets from Gran'ma's bed.

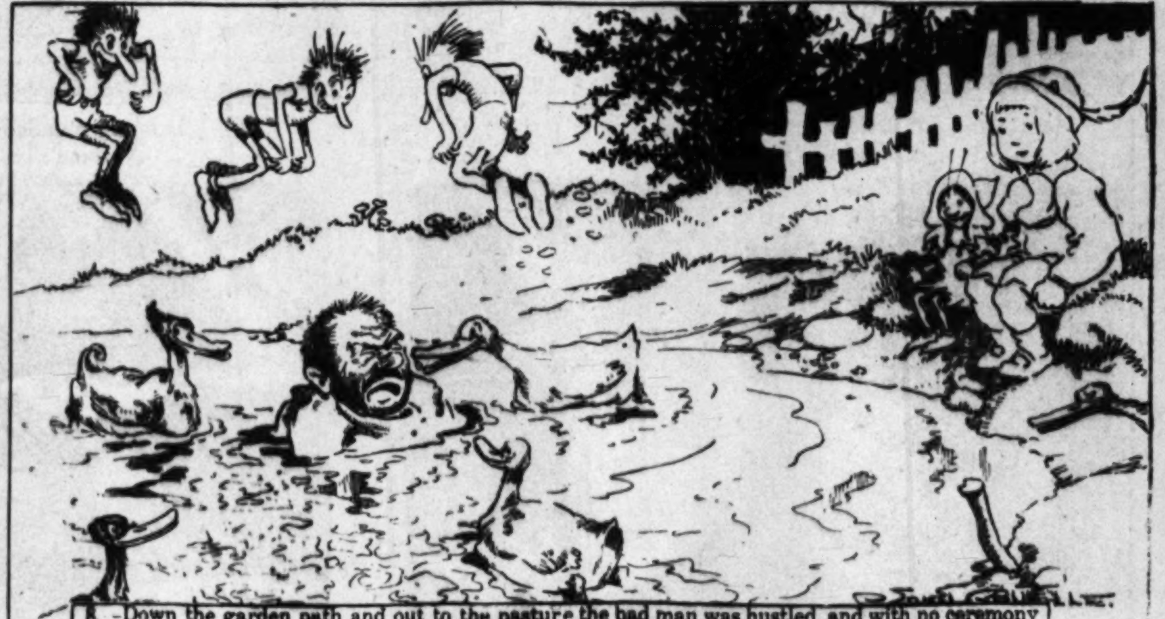
7—It was only the work of an instant to bundle the man up in the sheets, so that nothing but his head stuck out. Then the three Surprise boys dragged him out of the house and down the back steps, bumpity-bump, while Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle helped him along with their feet.



8—Down the garden path and out to the pasture the bad man was hustled, and with no ceremony he was dropped into the goose pond, where he could have plenty of time to think over his crime, while the ducks quacked quite close to his nose. "When he gets out of this," said Mr. Twee Deedle, "he will never care to enter another house to steal anything again."

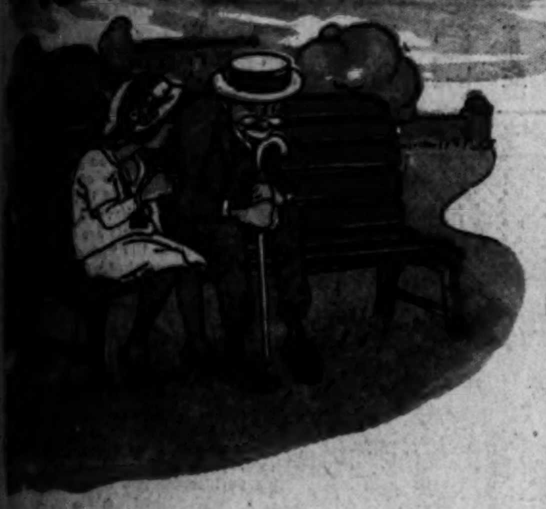
ZOTWOTS

OW THE WOT GOT THE WHOOPING COUGH

STORY AND PICTURES BY "BOB" DEAN



OW are the Zotwots?" I anxiously asked my little friend, whom I chanced to meet walking in the park the other

"Oh, they are all well," she replied, "except the Wot. He e whooping cough."

"I am sorry to hear that, I'm sure," I exclaimed. "How e catch it?"

"Well," she said, leading me to a bench, "you remember embarrassed he felt because the Jay-fowl laughed when ll off his Muke?"

"Yes, yes, I remember—he met the two Slinks and told all about it. They made him feel worse and persuaded to release the Blubberingboo, which they said would catch the Jay-fowl and swallow him."

"That's exactly what they did!" she indignantly agreed. the Blubberingboo sobbled out of his den and tled down the road, the Wot, who had scurried to a place ty, peered out of his hiding place and grinned. The snickered and nudged each other delightedly as he be- chuckle with glee to see the Blubberingboo sniffing at Jay-fowl's tracks and excitedly wagging his tail.

"When the Blubberingboo galloped away with open on the Jay-fowl's trail the Wot burst into peals of ter and rolled on the ground and kicked up his heels. Slinks giggled shrilly at this and commenced to caper d, singing:—

"'The Blubberingboo is a snoggling sight—
He whimpers and snivels and bawls in the night.
He mutters and sobs and blubbers and groans,
And frightens himself with his pitiful moans.
So always beware of the Blubberingboo!
Be careful! Be careful! Don't let him see you.
Beware! Oh, beware—don't let him see you!
Beware of the snoggling Blubberingboo!'

"The Wot instantly stopped laughing and shouted at to stop. He shuddered at the thought of how it must to be swallowed by the Blubberingboo. Then he began sorry for the Jay-fowl and wondered if he had been owed yet or not.

"He spoke to the Slinks about it. They told him to have ce, that the Zotwots would let him know as soon as they d out what had happened to their little pet. This made ish that the Jay-fowl might escape, and he became so to know what had really happened that he made up ind to go and find out at once.

"The Slinks tried to talk him out of the notion, but he not listen to them. So they finally set out in haste for Zotwots' flats. As they hurried along the Slinks advised Wot to say no word to the Zotwots about the Jay-fowl or the Blubberingboo—to pretend he had come to pay them a visit, and that they (the Slinks) would manage to find out everything by just looking around.

"It was just about this time that the Blubberingboo crept up to swallow the Jay-fowl and was kicked end over end by the Muke, and then they both ran away, frightened, after catching a glimpse of each other's face. The Jay-fowl, who couldn't believe his eyes and thought he had been dreaming, walked in the house and asked for his supper.

"Of course the Zotwots looked up from their work in surprise, and the cook said, 'Why, it isn't lunch time yet!' But he was so sure they were teasing that he insisted on having his supper right away—said he knew it was long after his bedtime. Then, as soon as he was fed, he climbed up to his perch and went to roost.

"Thinking he was tired out from his long walk that morning and that a nap would do him worlds of good, the Zotwots carefully draped a cloth over him to shut out the light and he was soon sound asleep.

"They had hardly settled to their work again before the Wot bounced in, too excited and out of breath to speak. The Slinks, bowing very low to the Zotwots, told them the Wot was lonesome and had come to make them a visit.

"But the Zotwots could see from his nervous manner and the anxious way in which he kept glancing around that he had something else on his mind, and they wondered if the Jay-fowl had been into mischief again. So they greeted him very warmly and asked how he was getting along.

"He grinned at them sheepishly and tried his best to appear at ease; while the Slinks began to tiptoe around, peeking behind curtains and prying into closets for some trace of the Jay-fowl. Just as they were about to give up the search, all were suddenly startled by a queer noise that sounded more like a peanut roaster than anything else.

"They all stared around in dismay, but none of them could guess what caused the noise or where it had come from. Then, just as the Wot began to tell a funny story, they all heard the same sound again, only this time it was louder and so shrill that the Zotwots at once knew it was the Jay-fowl snoring. So they fell to talking very loud and fast, while the Slinks huddled nervously up to the Wot and tried to give him a hint to go by winking and tugging at his coat tails.

"Finally he understood and got up to make a bow. Then the Jay-fowl suddenly snored again.

"One Slink at the sound gave a frightened squeal and tumbled backward into a tub of water, pulling the other Slink and the Wot on top of him. They all splashed and floundered around so that the Jay-fowl was awakened. He poked his head out from under the cloth and went into such spasms of laughter at the sight of the drenched Wot and Slinks that the Zotwots had quite a time calming him.

"When the Wot saw the laughing Jay-fowl he screeched with rage and stormed out of the flat, vowing he'd make him pay for his drenching or know the reason why. But he has been so sick with the whooping cough ever since that I guess he has gotten over his temper by this time."

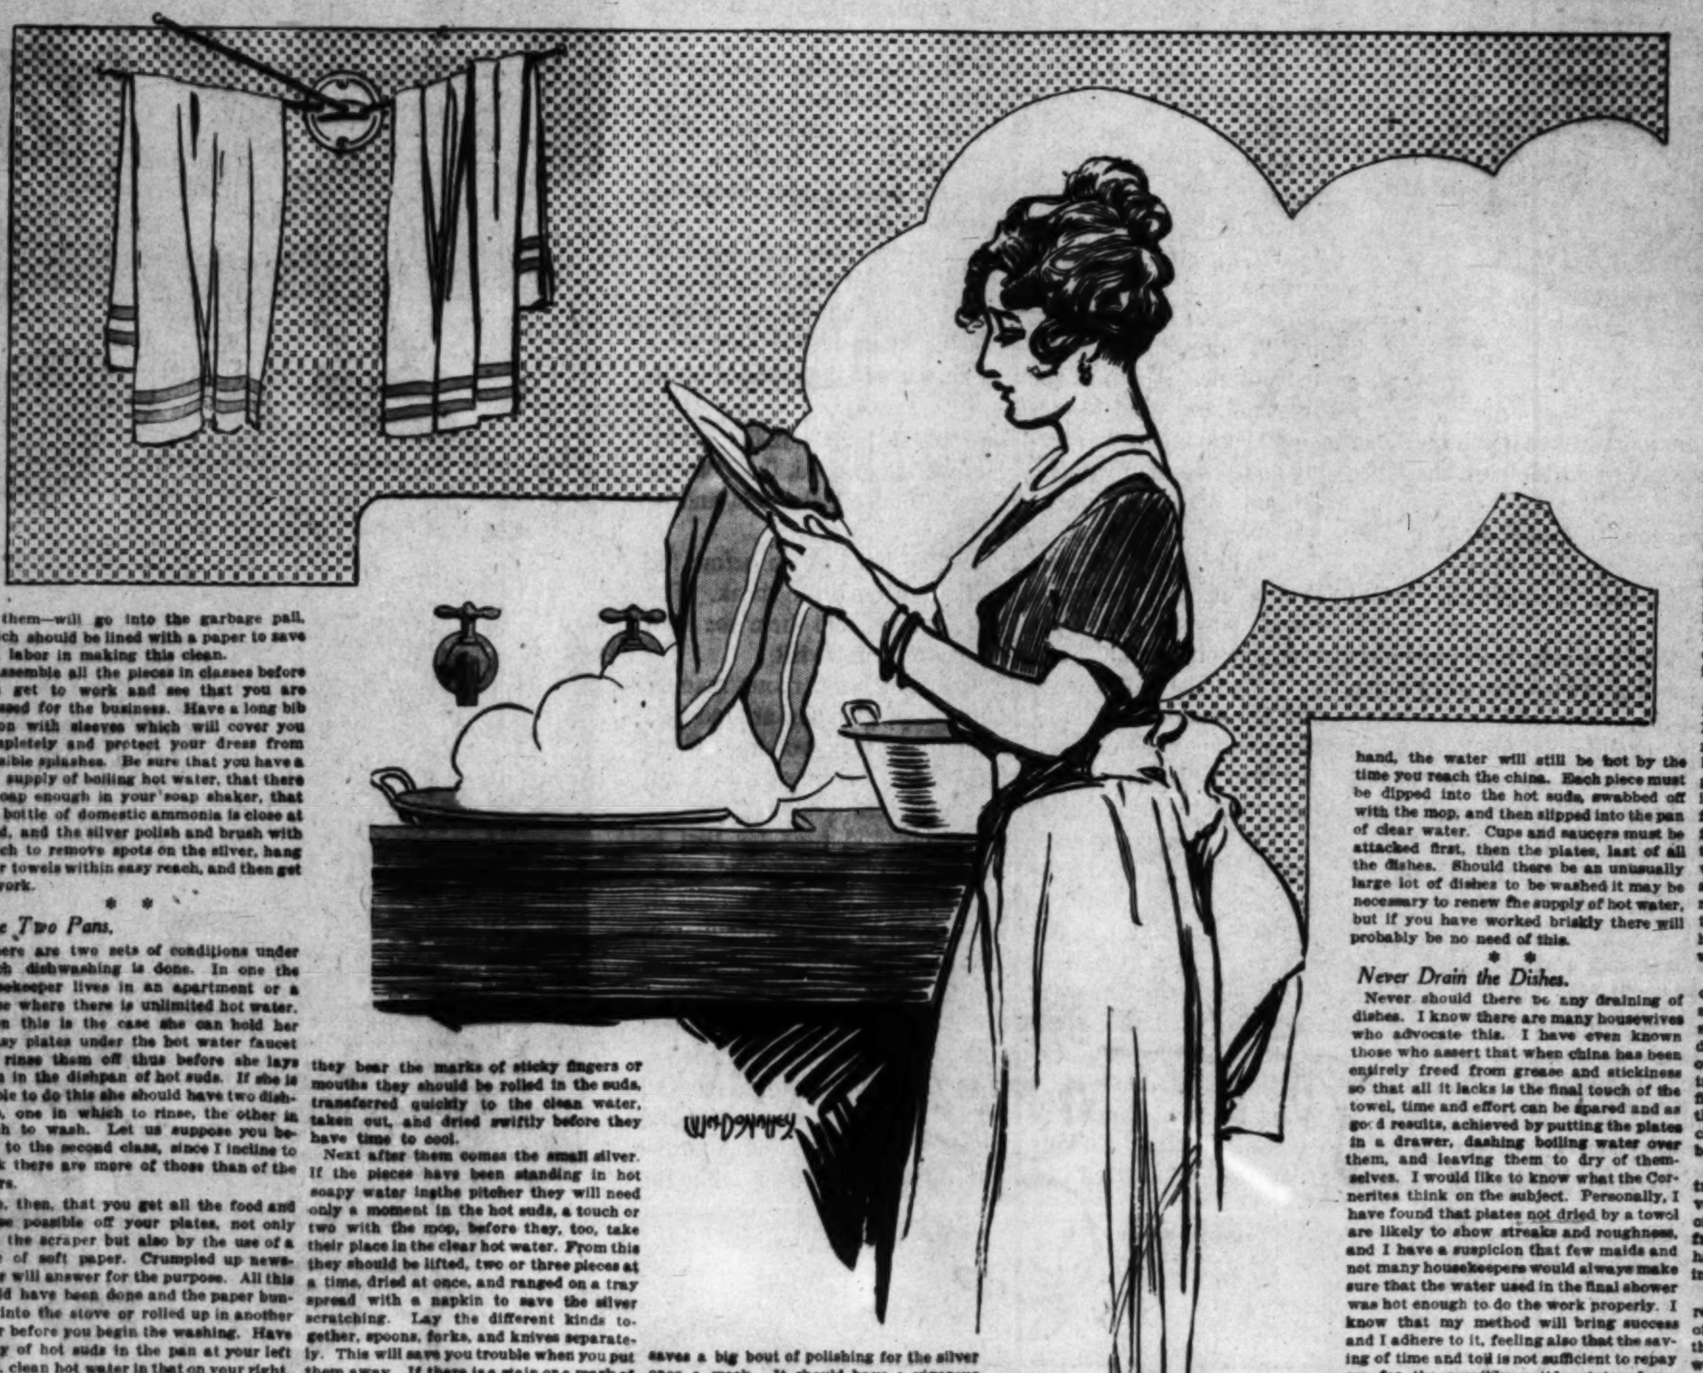
MY WAY OF WASHING DISHES.



"WILL you tell me the proper way to wash dishes? It is my biggest problem, yet I like it and want to conquer the worst details." So writes one of my valued Corner correspondents.

I wonder if she and some of the rest of you will believe me when I say how few to my mind are "the worst details" of dish washing. Frankly, I like it. I have always liked it ever since I learned that there is a dainty way of doing it.

When I hear women lament, as I do frequently, over the time and trouble that must be spent in washing dishes I marvel to myself to what better use the rest of their time is consecrated that they should grudge even a little of it to dish washing, and then catch myself up with the thought that they don't know what enjoyment there really may be in this work when it is properly done.

I am not prepared to say that I would like dish washing if I had to do it with the wrong tools or with those that are imperfect. I cannot blame any woman for detesting it when I see how some of them set about it. If I had before me a pile of greasy dishes piled haphazard into one big pan half filled with lukewarm water, a piece of soap floating about in it, a ragged and dirty dishcloth my only means of cleaning the various articles, and an insufficient supply of small thin towels to dry the dishes with I am quite sure I, too, should turn from the task with loathing and shirk it in any way I could.

Not so do I wash dishes when I have my own way with them. Two dishpans, plenty of hot water, a piece of soap in a soap shaker, a long handled mop, a tray on which to pile the dishes when dry, abundant clean towels with which to wipe them—compared with the other method or lack of method which I have outlined my way seems sheer play and pleasure.

Way to Rinse Silver.

Suppose you try it for a while and see how you are impressed by my plan.

To begin at the beginning sort the dishes when you clear your table. If they are carried from the dining room to the kitchen before scraping them try to do some of the sorting as you put them down—the glasses in one group, the teacups and saucers in another, the plates with food on them in still a third. Have a tall pitcher at hand and stand your silver in this, the tines of the forks, the blades of the knives, and the bowls of the spoons downward, and fill the pitcher half full of hot water with a teaspoonful of ammonia in it. Then when you have time to come out and make the dishes ready for washing you will find your work diminished.

When this time arrives, begin by scraping the food from the dishes and plates, using for this a knife with a flexible blade. A palette knife, such as artists use, is good for this purpose. As a matter of course you will put into small saucers or bowls such portions of the food in the dishes as can be served again. Don't put the dishes in the icebox or pantry with the remnants of food in them. When this is to come into service the dishes will have to be washed and it is better to do it now. The scraps which are to be thrown away—I hope there may be few of them—will go into the garbage pail, which should be lined with a paper to save you labor in making this clean.

Assemble all the pieces in classes before you get to work and see that you are dressed for the business. Have a long bib apron with sleeves which will cover you completely and protect your dress from possible splashes. Be sure that you have a full supply of boiling hot water, that there is soap enough in your soap shaker, that the bottle of domestic ammonia is close at hand, and the silver polish and brush with which to remove spots on the silver, hang your towels within easy reach, and then get to work.

Use Two Pans.

There are two sets of conditions under which dishwashing is done. In one the housekeeper lives in an apartment or a house where there is unlimited hot water. When this is the case she can hold her greasy plates under the hot water faucet and rinse them off thus before she lays them in the dishpan of hot suds. If she is unable to do this she should have two dishpans, one in which to rinse, the other in which to wash. Let us suppose you belong to the second class, since I incline to think there are more of those than of the others.

See, then, that you get all the food and grease possible off your plates, not only with the scraper but also by the use of a piece of soft paper. Crumpled up newspaper will answer for the purpose. All this should have been done and the paper bundled into the stove or rolled up in another paper before you begin the washing. Have plenty of hot suds in the pan at your left hand, clean hot water in that on your right.

Start with the drinking glasses. If they have only clear water in them they will not need to be washed in the suds. When they bear the marks of sticky fingers or mouths they should be rolled in the suds, transferred quickly to the clean water, taken out, and dried swiftly before they have time to cool.

Next after them comes the small silver. If the pieces have been standing in hot soapy water in the pitcher they will need only a moment in the hot suds, a touch or two with the mop, before they, too, take their place in the clear hot water. From this they should be lifted, two or three pieces at a time, dried at once, and ranged on a tray spread with a napkin to save the silver scratching. Lay the different kinds together, spoons, forks, and knives separately. This will save you trouble when you put them away. If there is a stain or a mark of tarnish on a piece of silver it will require but an instant to remove it with your silver polish. Such attention as this every day saves a big bout of polishing for the silver once a week. It should have a vigorous rubbing with the towel when you dry it, too.

When your work has been rapidly done, as it will be if everything is ready to your hand, the water will still be hot by the time you reach the china. Each piece must be dipped into the hot suds, swabbed off with the mop, and then slipped into the pan of clear water. Cups and saucers must be attacked first, then the plates, last of all the dishes. Should there be an unusually large lot of dishes to be washed it may be necessary to renew the supply of hot water, but if you have worked briskly there will probably be no need of this.

Never Drain the Dishes.

Never should there be any draining of dishes. I know there are many housewives who advocate this. I have even known those who assert that when china has been entirely freed from grease and stickiness so that all it lacks is the final touch of the towel, time and effort can be spared and as good results, achieved by putting the plates in a drawer, dashing boiling water over them, and leaving them to dry of themselves. I would like to know what the Cornerites think on the subject. Personally, I have found that plates not dried by a towel are likely to show streaks and roughness, and I have a suspicion that few maids and not many housekeepers would always make sure that the water used in the final shower was hot enough to do the work properly. I know that my method will bring success and I adhere to it, feeling also that the saving of time and toil is not sufficient to repay me for the possibly untidy state of my china.

I spoke a while ago of having the bottle of ammonia at hand. Do you recollect that in that charming book of Mrs. W[illegible] "We Girls," written [illegible] housekeeper spoke of [illegible] kitchen maid"? I have [illegible] that when I have [illegible] miraculous effects are [illegible] ammonia in the water [illegible] dishes are washed. [illegible] when large dishes which [illegible] and fat are to be washed, [illegible] saucepans in which [illegible] been done. A little [illegible] the hot water with which [illegible] will cut the grease and [illegible] cleanse the articles with a [illegible] labor. Lacking the ammonia, [illegible] used in its place. Both are [illegible] which mix with the grease [illegible] saponaceous compound that [illegible] purifies.

Other Things that Make Job Easy

Here, therefore, is "my way" [illegible] ing dishes. There are a few [illegible] will perhaps be of interest. In [illegible] place I have a large tray on [illegible] carry a good many dishes at a [illegible] better even than that is an [illegible] like a tea wagon which is [illegible] than a tray on wheels. All the [illegible] can be put on this and wheeled [illegible] kitchen, and the clean articles [illegible] from the kitchen in the same way [illegible] lessens the amount of traveling [illegible] forth between the dining room [illegible] or butler's pantry or sink, or [illegible] it is that the dishes are washed.

Next, I always wear gloves [illegible] ing dishes. Fond as I may be of [illegible] I do not care to sacrifice any [illegible] my hands may possess to this [illegible] branch of housewifery. The [illegible] gloves of the men of the family [illegible] in good stead, since the task [illegible] freedom of fingering tight [illegible] forbid. I clip off the finger [illegible] the ends of the cut seams [illegible] will not rip, and go about my [illegible] secure that my hands are not [illegible] reddened and roughened. [illegible] the mop is a further protection. [illegible] handle saves my having to [illegible] water in order to cleanse the [illegible]

Not long ago some one told [illegible] considered the mop for dish [illegible] sanitary. There is no reason [illegible] should be any more [illegible] dish cloth. My mops are not [illegible] out at the conclusion of my [illegible] ing, but once a day they are [illegible] fire and boiled as my dish towels [illegible] then hung up to dry. They are [illegible] clean as the towels and have [illegible] become musty or ill smelling.

I wish that other housekeepers [illegible] try my way, or tell me of [illegible] vance what arguments they [illegible] of their own methods, when [illegible] from my own and against those [illegible] have told. I think the letters [illegible] interesting and profitable reading.

I have told elsewhere of the [illegible] recollections I have of the [illegible] of my earlier days, of how my [illegible] the evening paper to me while I [illegible] work at night with dishes and [illegible] the children went over their [illegible] me as I washed the breakfast [illegible] not some one else similar [illegible] to tell in connection with her [illegible]

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

SO much has been said on different phases of the stepmother question that I had concluded to close the subject, believing that nothing new or striking would be uttered concerning it. But the other day a letter came which led me to change my mind and determine to give place to one more communication relative to stepmothers. I wish I had space for the whole letter—it is worth printing—but the pressure of other correspondence forces me to condense some portion of it, to my great regret. I know that the part I am able to use will be read with keen interest and appreciation.

"I, too, have a stepmother, and after reading some of the letters you have recently printed I can scarcely wait to tell you that of all the women I have ever known she is, without a single exception, the grandest and noblest. There are many, many incidents in our life together which I cannot think of without becoming all 'choky,' especially when I consider how poorly I have repaid her for all her kindness. I can see so clearly that whatever trouble there was at any time was altogether my own fault.

"Of course, it makes a great deal of difference whether one is still young when acquiring a stepmother, and whether one has little or no recollection of one's own mother. I was less than 3 years old and my younger sister only a few days old when our mother was taken from us and so have absolutely no recollection of her. We had an unnatural existence at our home with various 'housekeepers' and at my grandmother's for about five years and I can recall how we hailed with delight the news that we were to have a new mamma.

"She was such a pretty little woman, so full of fun, and she could think of the most wonderful things to amuse and delight children. She had the most exquisite taste in the selection of birthday and Christmas gifts and she put so much time and thought into everything she did for us. I still have the wonderful letters she wrote to us when we went visiting, some written on fancy paper or scalloped all around the edges, profusely illustrated, often in rhyme and written in the most delicious style. She remembered to inquire after the health of each doll by name.

"When I took scarlet fever a little more than a month before her first baby came (and she had never had the fever herself) papa and the doctor had to lead her from the room forcibly—she insisted upon staying to take care of me. I look back on that month as one of the happiest of all, strange as it may seem, and it was mamma who furnished the happiness. She invented dozens of ways to keep me amused, made me two wrappers of which I was very proud, and when I was enough better I'd open the door into the hall a crack and she would sit at the foot of the stairs and read to me or write letters at my dictation.

"When I consider the vast difference between her nature and mine I can only marvel, and also be devoutly thankful that she didn't utterly despise me. If I have any regret about mamma it is only that she wasn't my very own so that she would have felt free to direct and correct me and help me, if possible, to overcome hereditary tendencies. In the first place was weakness—I knew I had many hateful habits, but I never made much of an effort to fight them. I am slow, inefficient, self-centered, insincere at times (but not in this letter, I can assure you), critical, inclined to melancholy brooding—in childhood, plain sulky—and other things too numerous to mention.

"Mamma is first and foremost a mother and always does far more than less than might be expected and she is the most wonderful homemaker I ever knew. She helps every one and is the life and soul of every organization with which she is connected. The most casual glance into her beautiful brown eyes will reveal a depth of understanding and sympathy rarely met.

"She has gone through many situations more than usually trying and yet I have never seen her lose her temper; I have never heard her voice raised in anger at any one. She has never been cross or even hasty with any of her own five children or with my sister or myself. The five half-brothers and sisters are dears—I never saw any other children to compare with them, all so sunny, so bright, so loving and lovable. Next to my love for my husband (I believe I do not exaggerate when I say it) come my deep regard and admiration and thankfulness for my stepmother. E. E. W."

Again I must express my regret at my inability to print the whole of the long letter from this correspondent instead of selections. It is one of the most remarkable letters I have read and I cannot thank the writer sufficiently for having opened her heart in it as she has done. It is a letter to make even discouraged stepmothers take fresh heart and believe that there may be a chance to win love and understanding that they have thus far missed, and it should move stepchildren to make stronger efforts to look for the good in the parents whom they have thus far failed to understand. For my own part I confess to a great wish to know not only the stepmother but the stepdaughter as well.

Wants Start in Poultry Business.

"I wonder if you know of any one who will help a person to help himself. My husband and I have tried and are willing to do anything that is honest, and if we could only get some one to give us a start I am sure we could make a success. We have a fine chance to raise and sell chickens profitably if we had incubators and eggs to fill them. We have had experience and thoroughly understand every feature of the poultry business. So many go into chicken raising and get discouraged, often throwing incubators, etc., aside, that I wondered if there were not some way to get into communication with parties who had given up and induce them to lend us their outfits until we were able to get our own. I am not asking that any one donate these articles, but I am simply asking the use of the same until we get on our feet. Here is another proposition. We are where dozens of school girls pass every day, and I could do well taking pictures if we could only get the right kind of equipment. Those little penny pictures always sell, and so do pictures taken on post cards. We have a nice parlor that we could turn into a studio, but there is no way to get a start, as it takes every penny we can rake and scrape together to get through each day. Now I know there must be scores of people who have idle incubators and idle cameras who would be glad to lend them to worthy people, but do not know to whom to offer them, just as we do not know whom to ask. If you can help us in any way to take care of ourselves you cannot conceive the amount of good you will accomplish. The greatest work in the world is not supporting people gratis, but putting them in a position to help themselves, which nine persons out of ten prefer to do every time. M. R."

The more personal part of this letter I regard as confidential, but it has moved me to a keen desire to help these people to help themselves. I am afraid I rather doubt her statement that nine out of ten persons would rather do this than be supported, but I am quite convinced that she belongs to the proportion of those who wish to be independent and to work. There are undoubtedly unoccupied incubators and unused cameras that would help her to carry out her desire of earning her own living, and I hope and pray that the eyes of the owners of these articles may light upon this letter and the hearts be opened to her plea. As she says, she does not ask to have those things given to her, but lent until she can establish herself in a self-supporting occupation. I do not wish to give her name to any except those who have the articles she wishes or can put her in the way of getting them. I shall hope to receive early requests for her name from those who are in a position to give her the lift she asks toward enabling her and her husband to take care of themselves.

Self-Freezing Ice Cream.

"Will you please tell me just what is meant by 'self-freezing ice cream?' Some one told me that it could be frozen without turning in an ordinary tin pail and would be just as good as any made in a regular freezer. I tried it and it froze all right—in fact, it froze too hard. It was like a brick! I had to chop it apart, for no knife would cut it and it was like eating chunks of sweetened and frozen milk. I had made what they call Philadelphia ice cream, made with scalded milk and cream mixed and flavored, but with no eggs. Would it have been better if I had put eggs in it? We have plenty of milk and cream and plenty of ice, and I would like to make ice cream often if I didn't have the bother of turning the freezer with a rather weak pair of arms. But I'd rather turn a dasher night and day or do without ice cream all summer than have such a product as my last 'self-freezing ice cream.' DISCOURAGED."

I am sorry for your disappointment, but I assure you that for years I gave my family "self-freezing ice cream" for their Sunday dinner every Sabbath throughout the summer, and it was soft and smooth as velvet with not the least resemblance to a "chunk of frozen and sweetened milk." This is the result of a lack of stirring. When cream is not frozen by turning so that the dasher churns the cream and makes it smooth and fine grained, the want of stirring must be made up for in another way. Let me tell you how I managed with my "self-freezing" ice cream. I made the custard for it Saturday afternoon, using six or seven eggs to a quart of milk. I beated the milk to scalding, poured it upon the eggs beaten light with four cups of sugar, returned the double boiler to the stove and cooked the eggs, milk, and sugar long enough to thicken well, flavored them with vanilla—I usually boiled a vanilla bean with the milk—and put it where it would get cold overnight. Sunday morning I went to the cellar before breakfast and packed the cream. I used plenty of ice and coarse salt and beat the custard well. When I put a quart of cream in it, then packed ice and salt around the freezer, covered it with a piece of carpet, and left it for two hours. Just before it was time to leave for church I went downstairs again, opened the freezer, scraped the cream off the sides and bottom of the freezer, where it had [illegible] congeal, and beat it with all my [illegible] five minutes or more, so that the [illegible] the unfrozen parts were thoroughly [illegible] ed. Then I packed it again, [illegible] ice fine, as had been done before [illegible] about four times as much [illegible] ting them in alternate layers. I [illegible] water which had melted from the [illegible] ered the freezer again and left it [illegible] when we were ready for our [illegible] cream would turn out, perfectly [illegible] solid column and smooth enough [illegible] any one. For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

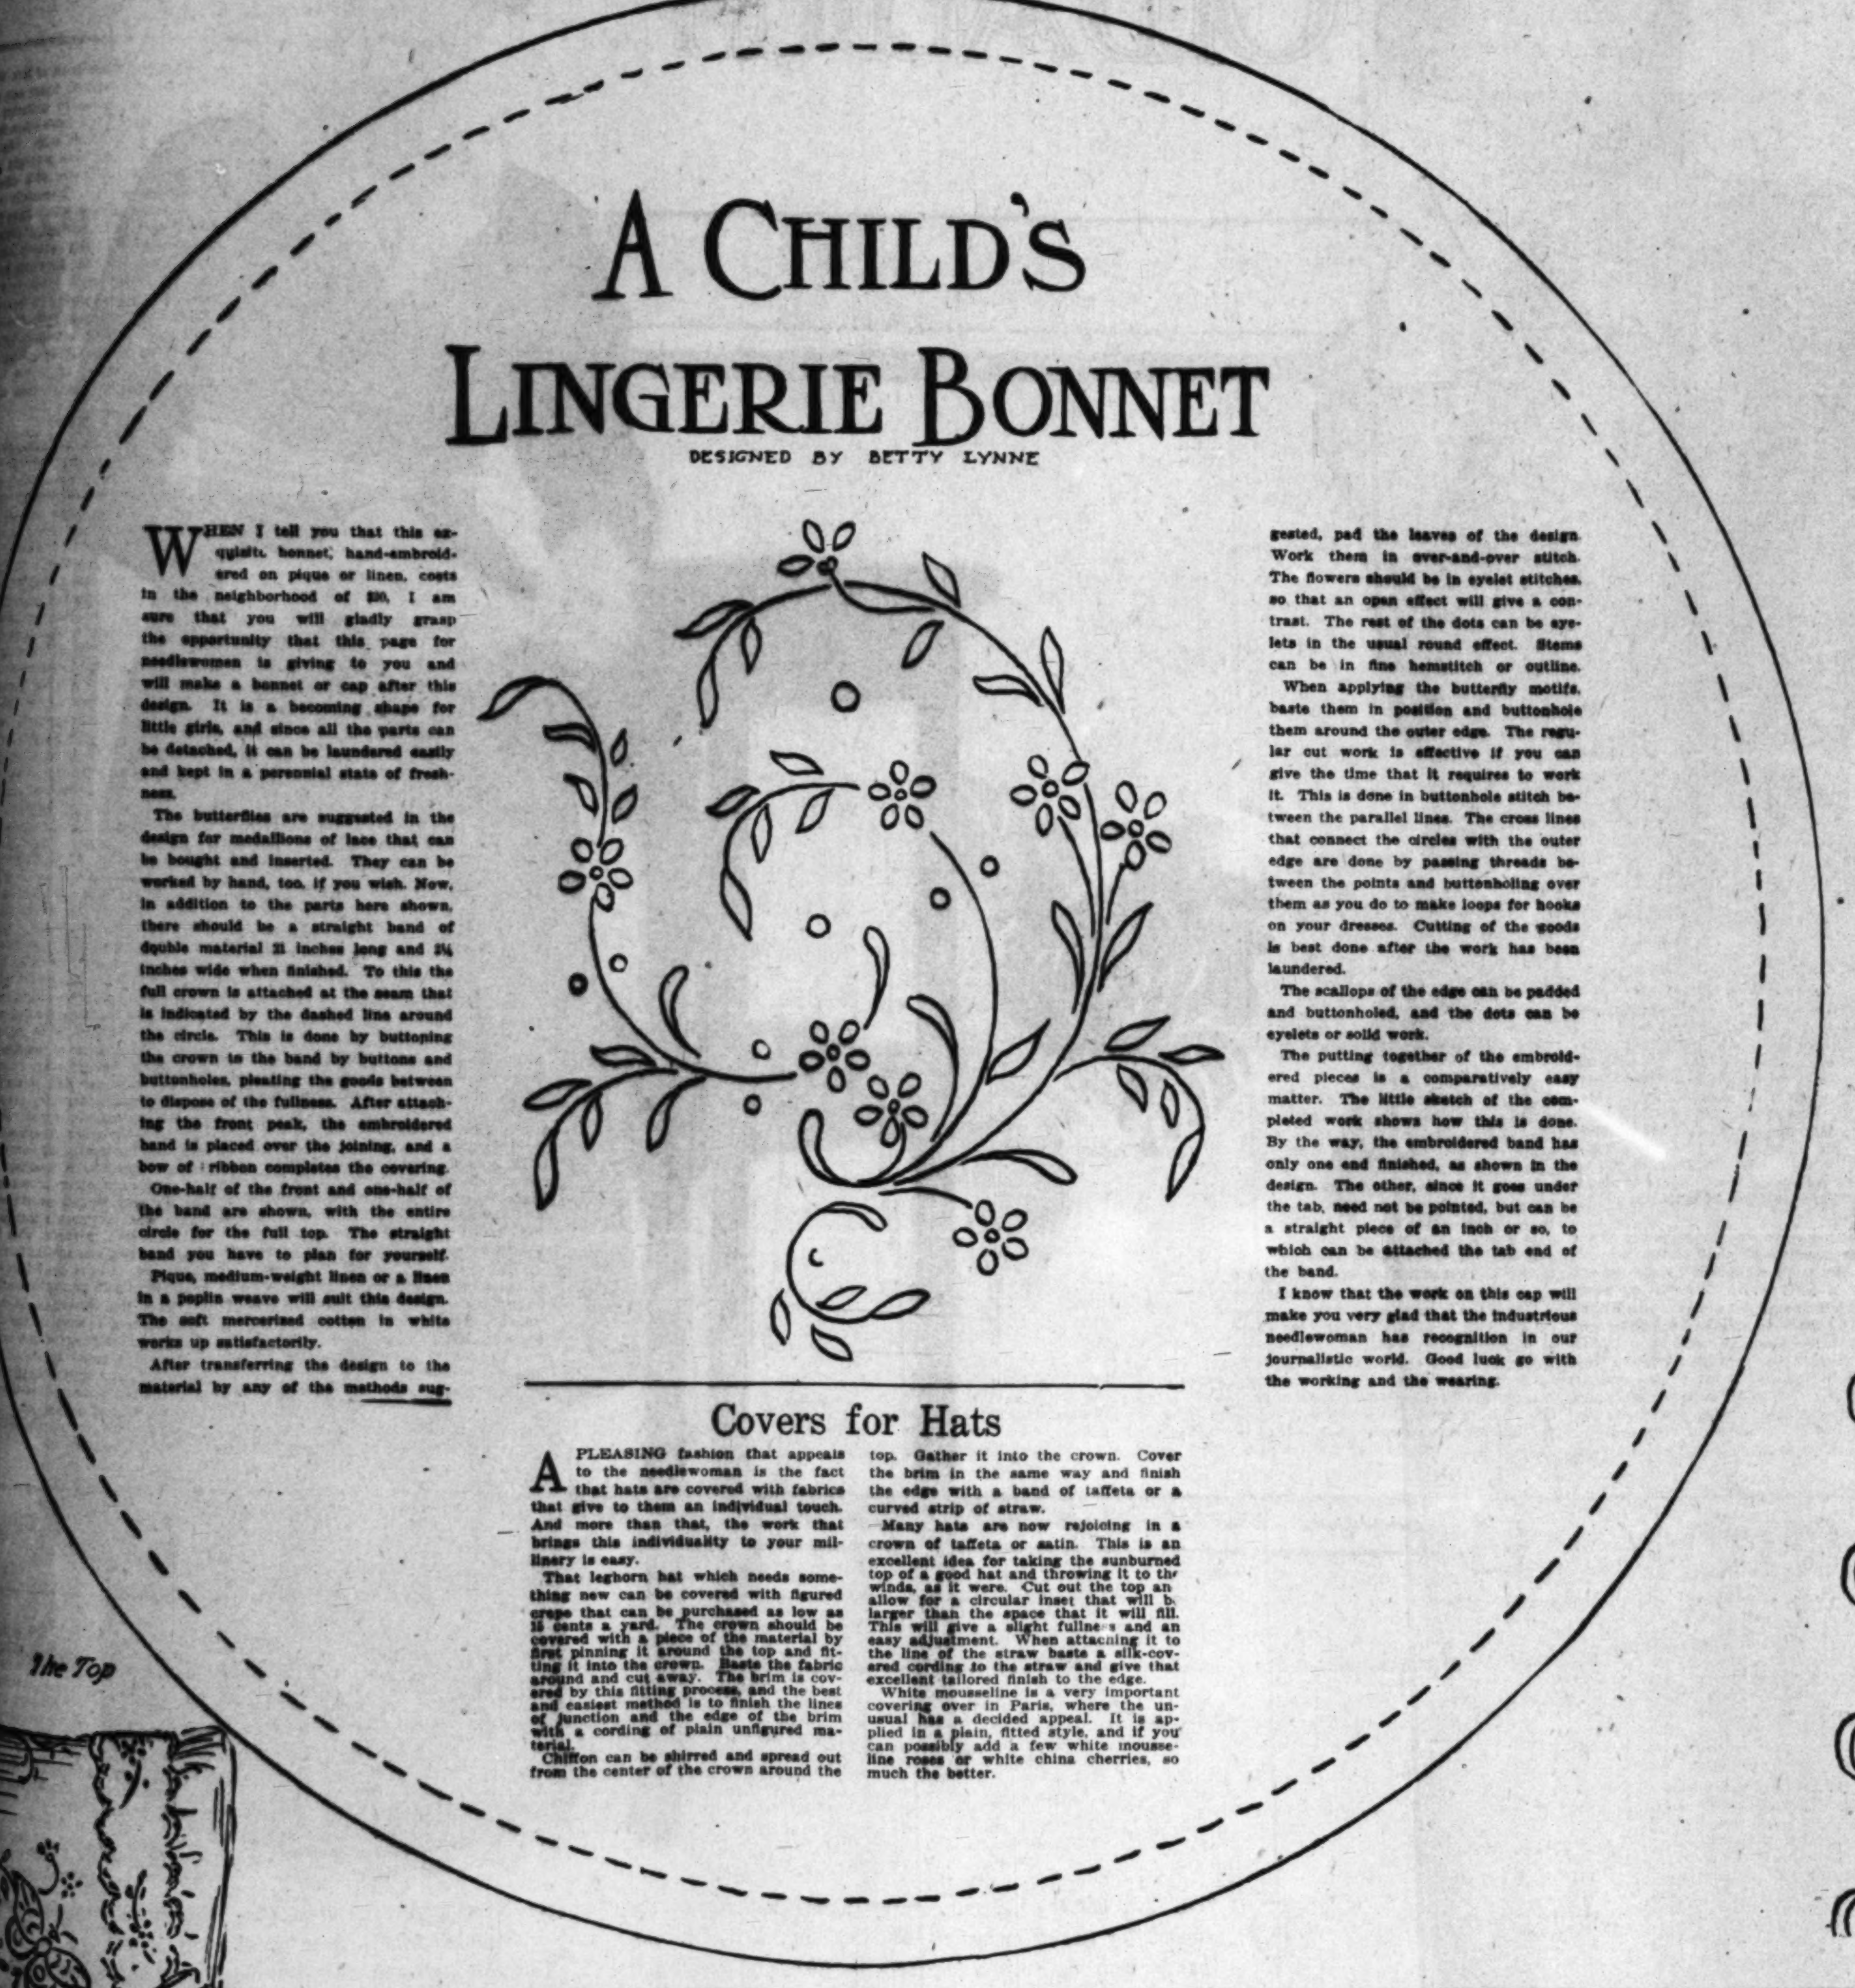
By ADELAIDE BYRD



A CHILD'S LINGERIE BONNET

DESIGNED BY BETTY LYNNE

WHEN I tell you that this exquisite bonnet, hand-embroidered on pique or linen, costs in the neighborhood of $20, I am sure that you will gladly grasp the opportunity that this page for needlewomen is giving to you and will make a bonnet or cap after this design. It is a becoming shape for little girls, and since all the parts can be detached, it can be laundered easily and kept in a perennial state of freshness.

The butterflies are suggested in the design for medallions of lace that can be bought and inserted. They can be worked by hand, too, if you wish. Now, in addition to the parts here shown, there should be a straight band of double material 21 inches long and 2¼ inches wide when finished. To this the full crown is attached at the seam that is indicated by the dashed line around the circle. This is done by buttoning the crown to the band by buttons and buttonholes, pleating the goods between to dispose of the fullness. After attaching the front peak, the embroidered band is placed over the joining, and a bow of ribbon completes the covering.

One-half of the front and one-half of the band are shown, with the entire circle for the full top. The straight band you have to plan for yourself.

Pique, medium-weight linen or a linen in a poplin weave will suit this design. The soft mercerized cotton in white works up satisfactorily.

After transferring the design to the material by any of the methods suggested, pad the leaves of the design. Work them in over-and-over stitch. The flowers should be in eyelet stitches, so that an open effect will give a contrast. The rest of the dots can be eyelets in the usual round effect. Stems can be in fine hemstitch or outline.

When applying the butterfly motifs, baste them in position and buttonhole them around the outer edge. The regular cut work is effective if you can give the time that it requires to work it. This is done in buttonhole stitch between the parallel lines. The cross lines that connect the circles with the outer edge are done by passing threads between the points and buttonholing over them as you do to make loops for hooks on your dresses. Cutting of the goods is best done after the work has been laundered.

The scallops of the edge can be padded and buttonholed, and the dots can be eyelets or solid work.

The putting together of the embroidered pieces is a comparatively easy matter. The little sketch of the completed work shows how this is done. By the way, the embroidered band has only one end finished, as shown in the design. The other, since it goes under the tab, need not be pointed, but can be a straight piece of an inch or so, to which can be attached the tab end of the band.

I know that the work on this cap will make you very glad that the industrious needlewoman has recognition in our journalistic world. Good luck go with the working and the wearing.

Covers for Hats

A PLEASING fashion that appeals to the needlewoman is the fact that hats are covered with fabrics that give to them an individual touch. And more than that, the work that brings this individuality to your millinery is easy.

That leghorn hat which needs something new can be covered with figured crepe that can be purchased as low as 15 cents a yard. The crown should be covered with a piece of the material by first pinning it around the top and fitting it into the crown. Baste the fabric around and cut away. The brim is covered by this fitting process, and the best and easiest method is to finish the lines of junction and the edge of the brim with a cording of plain unfigured material.

Chiffon can be shirred and spread out from the center of the crown around the top. Gather it into the crown. Cover the brim in the same way and finish the edge with a band of taffeta or a curved strip of straw.

Many hats are now rejoicing in a crown of taffeta or satin. This is an excellent idea for taking the sunburned top of a good hat and throwing it to the winds, as it were. Cut out the top an allow for a circular inset that will b larger than the space that it will fill. This will give a slight fullness and an easy adjustment. When attaching it to the line of the straw baste a silk-covered cording to the straw and give that excellent tailored finish to the edge.

White mousseline is a very important covering over in Paris, where the unusual has a decided appeal. It is applied in a plain, fitted style, and if you can possibly add a few white mousseline roses or white china cherries, so much the better.

acation Accessories

[illegible] spend the hot months at a [illegible] resort you will [illegible] a bountiful supply of accessories. The clever needlewoman will be [illegible] she can fashion these when [illegible] a glimpse of the sum spent by her less fortunate sister who is [illegible] to purchase everything required [illegible] vacation.

[illegible] of all, you will need a pretty [illegible] to slip on while dressing or [illegible] Fashion this of a washable [illegible] such as crepe de chine, cotton [illegible] or embroidered swiss, ba- [illegible] figured dimity. You will have [illegible] in fashioning a becoming de- [illegible] using this negligee, for many [illegible] for the purpose. Join the [illegible] with entre-deux [illegible] and trim the front [illegible] of lace insertion. [illegible] with a sailor collar [illegible] a narrow frill of the material [illegible] lace. Above this place [illegible] of insertion. Fasten [illegible] with rosettes of ribbon to [illegible] contrasting color of the [illegible]

[illegible] you will need a tango [illegible] plain white or [illegible] the crown and gather or [illegible] head snugly. The brim [illegible] lace fitted over a wire [illegible] pointed wing ends which [illegible] of the stiffly starched [illegible] of the Normandy peasant. An additional charm is produced by sewing small pearl beads about the edge of the brim, and the more expensive caps have the design in the lace outlined with the beads.

The summer-vacation wardrobe should be well stocked with neckwear, and the dainty chemisettes and collars of white mull are practical for summer wear. Make a shallow half-collar of the mull, hemstitching the border. To each end join a stitched frill which can be drawn down each side of the pointed neck line. Four of these collars will not be too many for the vacationist.

A variety of blouses is a necessity to the woman who spends the summer away from home. If you purchase crepe de chine or batiste, you will find them most satisfactory materials for fashioning the summer blouse. Use a pattern with kimono sleeves or dropped shoulder seams and join the sections neatly, stitching them by hand. There is an inimitable charm about the hand-made blouse. A model having a surplice front is also to be recommended, for a single or double frill of valenciennes lace outlining the neck line and front is all the trimming required to make this a blouse of exceptional beauty. Loops and buttons sewn to the underside of the blouse front will close it properly. Frills of lace stitched to the long or short sleeves complete the blouse.

Other accessories which you can make are boudoir caps and slippers, coatees of silk or linen, lingerie and capes for evening wear.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

That Borrowed Book

WHEN you borrow a book you, of course, expect to return it in good condition—that is, the condition in which it was loaned to you. Perhaps, if you were the only one in your household to read that book, the book would come to no grief; but to avoid being called selfish you are obliged to let every one in your home who has passed the primary grades read that borrowed volume. So, resignedly, you put a paper cover upon the book with the very faint hope that it will stay on until the poor volume has run the gauntlet of careless and sometimes soiled family fingers. But that cover doesn't stay on half the time, and you know it!

"But what shall I do?" you question, with outstretched hands and raised eyebrows. Do? Make a buttoned cover of linen or some serviceable not-too-thin material. Cut it much in the same fashion that you cut the paper cover that turns in on three sides of each of the two backs of a book. Then bind it with tape or hem it. Make buttons and buttonholes to keep it fastened, or securely fasten it with pins. Lay the book upon the open cover (after the cover is made) and turn the three flaps in on the front board of the book and then fasten them by tiny buttons (if they are not very small they may injure the book) or pins; and then turn the three flaps in on the back board and fasten them. So fastened, the book will have a far more difficult time escaping from its protector than from the slippery paper cover. The cover need not fit the book exactly. Made the size to fit a volume eight by six inches and two inches thick, it should be suitable for nearly any ordinary book. If the book is smaller than the above size, the cover can be fastened in somewhat when the flaps are adjusted.

It is surprising how satisfactory such a book protector is, and when you once have one you will wonder why you did not think of such a convenience before. If embroidered with a monogram, they make very nice little gifts for either men, women or children.

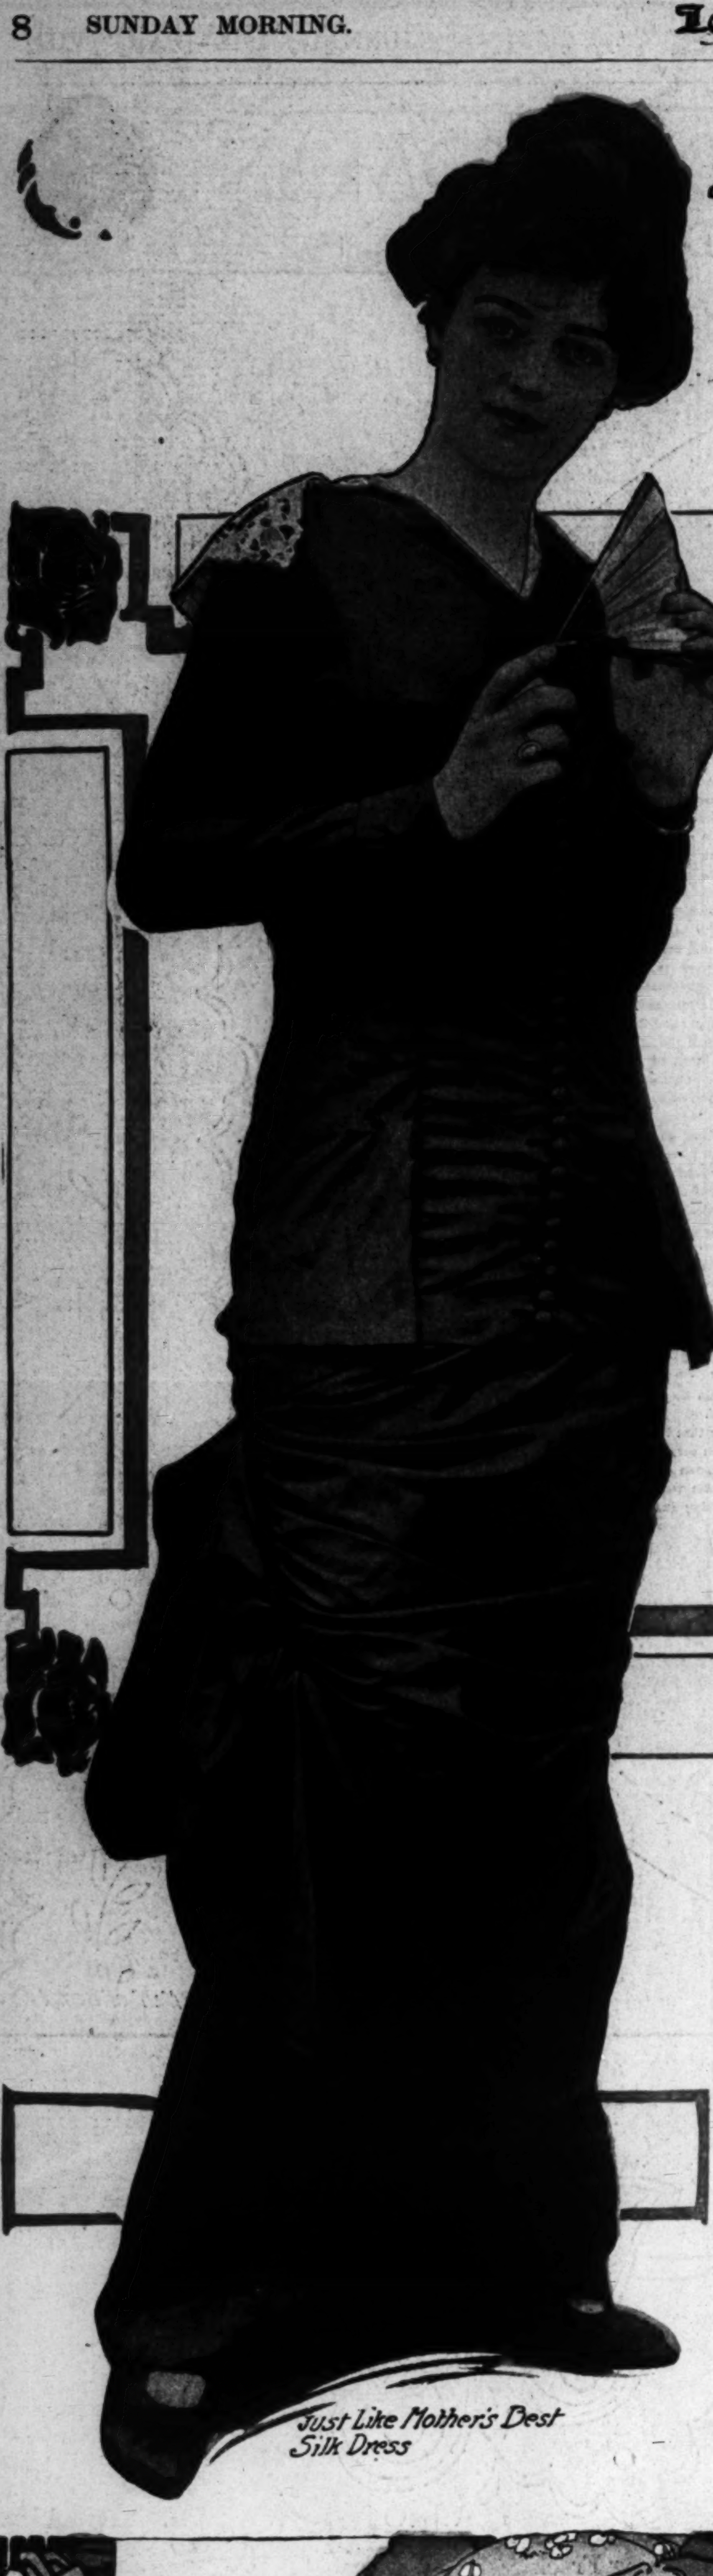
A Charming Frock

"OH, I cannot wear green!" a woman exclaimed emphatically when a gown of that color was suggested for her.

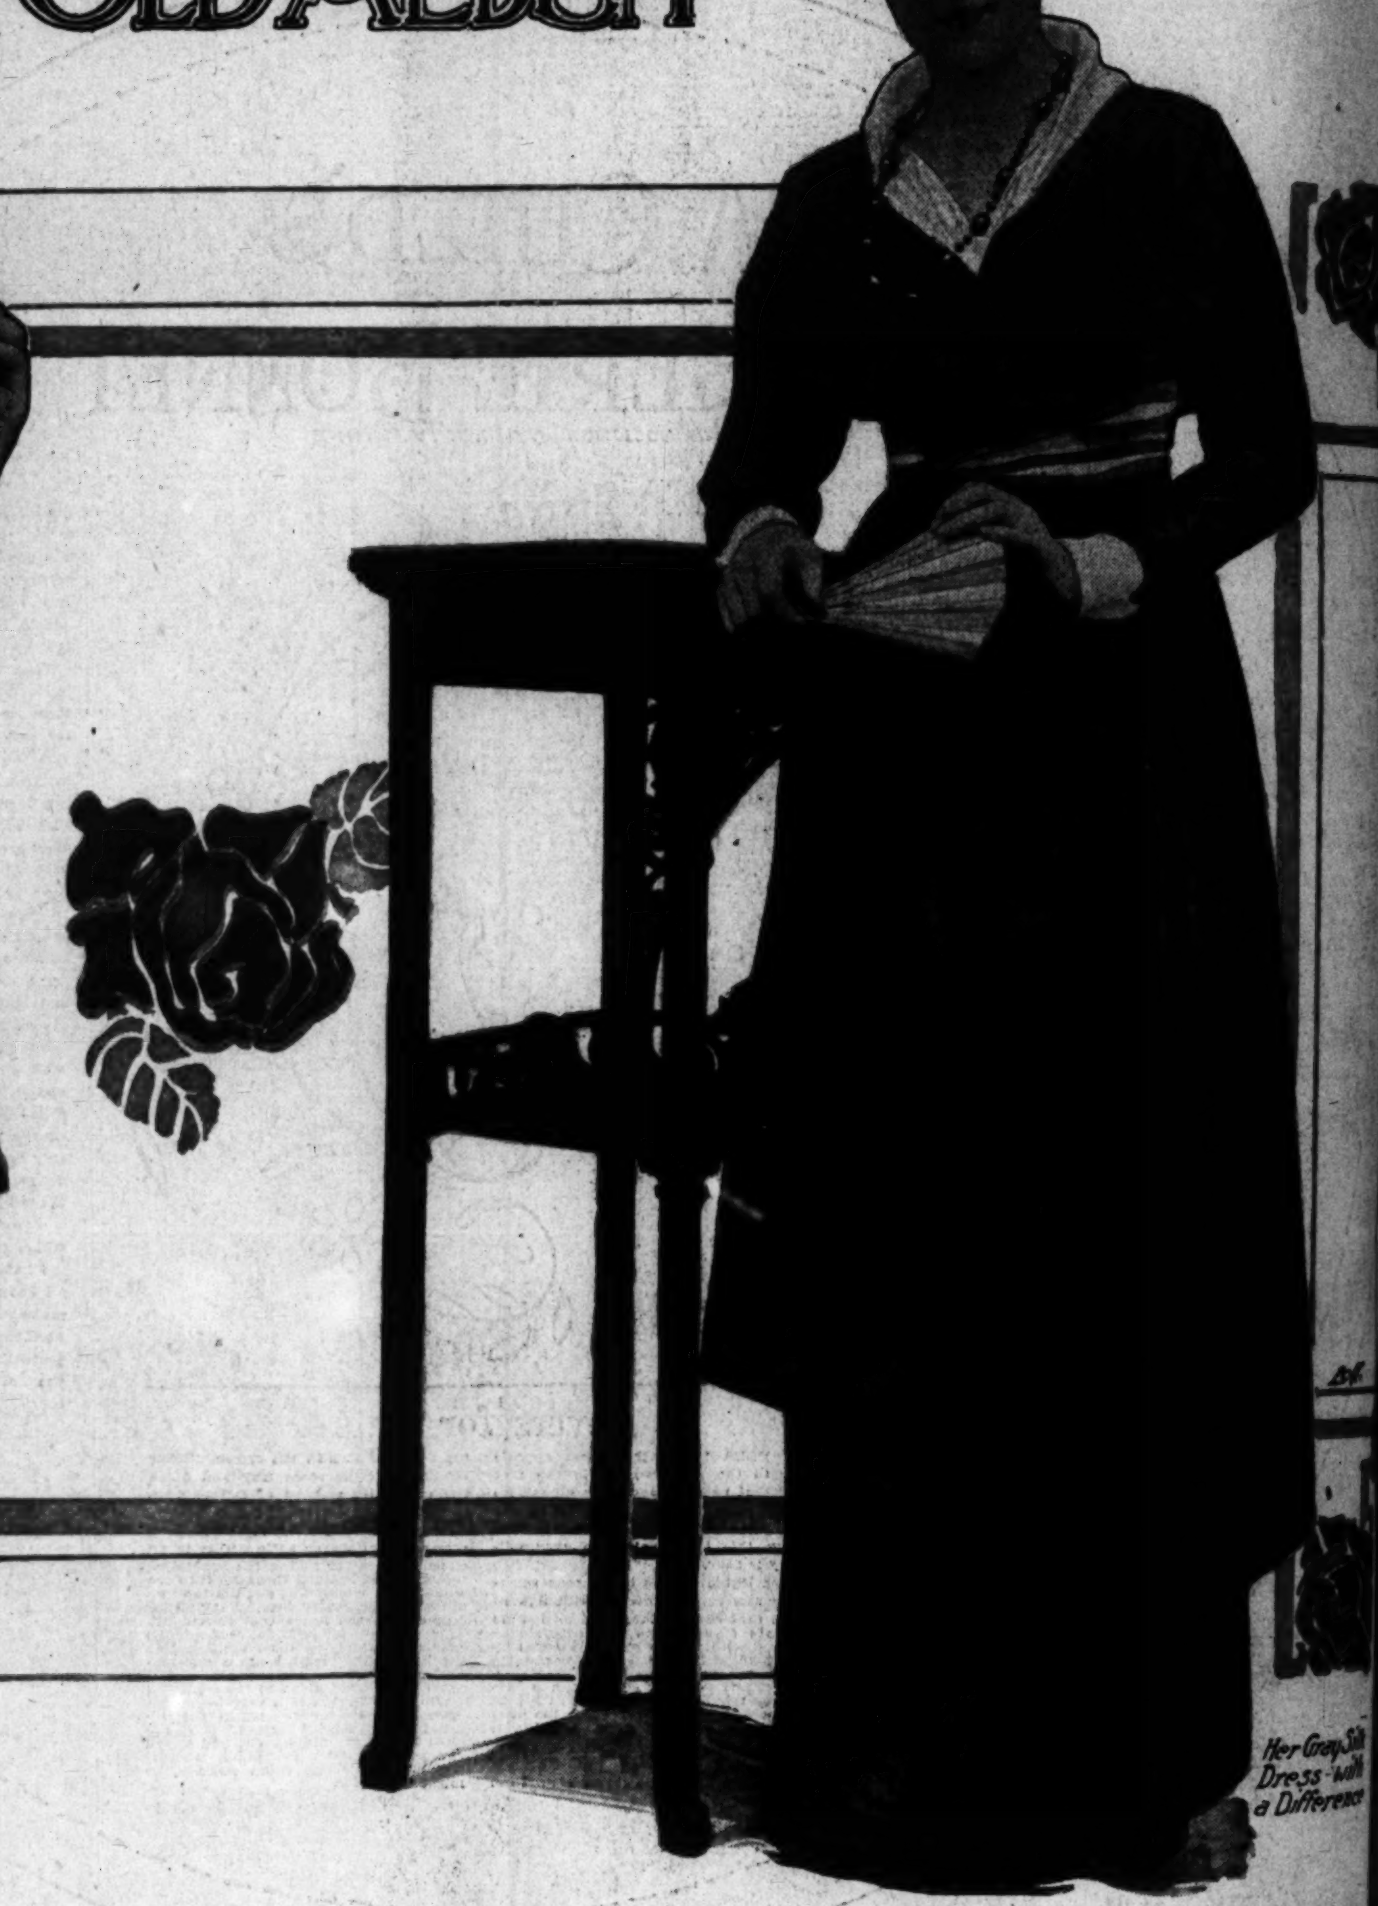
"There you are mistaken," said an artist who was one of the party, quietly. "You may not be able to wear all shades of green, but there is certainly a shade which belongs to your complexion. Green is nature's own color, and is neutral. When we artists speak of a neutral color, we mean one with which every shade under the sun will harmonize. You may not be able to wear one of the blue greens, but there is surely a shade in the yellow greens that you can wear. Personally, I cannot wear any but a certain shade of gray green."

However, you who are still doubtful about a whole frock of that color, why not have a little summer frock embroidered in green? The material may be any of several pretty things, but let us suggest a soft, deep ecru batiste. The waist may be softly surpliced and the sleeves raglan, a little scallop or border edging both sleeves and surplice. The skirt would be very smart and attractive with a plain underskirt of the material and two short tunics (making a three-tiered skirt in all). The short tunics should be slightly full. About their edges place an embroidered border of green. Either a girdle of the batiste edged with an embroidered border or a girdle of green silk or velvet is suitable. Such a combination would be very effective. If your skin will not stand the tone of the ecru batiste, use white.

NEW DRESSES from the OLD ALBUM



Just Like Mother's Best Silk Dress



Her Gray Silk Dress—with a Difference

DO YOU drag out the old photograph album when you are in a mood for fun or memory? Do you laugh at the frocks that at that time were decidedly no joke, and recall the trouble that you and Miss Jenny had in the drapery of the skirt of the going-away dress? Do you marvel at the miles of hand-pleating that you made for the best frock, and recall the shirrings and puffings that kept the feminine contingent of the household busy for days in the fashioning?

The old album holds many thoughts that will help to pass an evening. Mother will smile and, when you are not looking, drop a tear over the wedding dress or her finest silk frock. She will bring back the old friends of her schooldays, the rivals, her cavaliers and her sisters and her cousins and her aunts. And with the turning of the stiff leaves of the family album, time will be turned backward in its flight.

Yes, there is that old dun-colored silk dress that was the talk of the town. How it fitted over the figure, and how the fullness of the draped overskirt was drawn in around the hips! And the buttons and buttonholes! Well! well! And the night that the silk dress was worn was when mother saw "Jim the Penman" with father. My! how time flies!

And see the gray gown that was the envy of the girls in the old set! Brother Andrew always said that it was like a soft pussy willow. Poor Andrew! Dead these many years!

You will sigh and close the old album, and many things will "flash upon that inward eye, which is the bliss of solitude." But wake up!

Here come some dresses that look as if they were stepping out of the old album. They are dresses of today, though. They are going to be worn by you, if you are in the front ranks of style. Don't deny them.

Do you see the brick-red taffeta dress? It is going to show the ideas of other days on the figure of today. Look at it! Cop it! Wear it!

And look at the gray frock that has a modern quaintness, if that is not too paradoxical for you. Its colored girdle, its ruffles of taffeta, its white organdie-and-lace vest are here. Try them on your up-to-date figure.

If father is sitting in the twilight, put one of these dresses on and walk into the room. He will think that memory is playing him a dear trick and that mother has come back to him just as she was when he won the sweetest little woman in the world.

The old album never thought that it would play an important part in 1914 styles. But things happen now and then!

Preserving the Star Spangled Banner.

By a Special Contributor.

A SACRED RELIC.

LIKE another Betsy Ross, a gray-haired woman sits today mending an old American flag in the Smithsonian Institution.

It no longer looks like a proud banner. Its "bright stars" are tattered; its "broad stripes" are faded and yellowed with age. Apparently, it is a worthless "old rag"—a bit of cheap, time-stained bunting.

But yet the few folks who see it now, stretched out upon a table in the Smithsonian "chapel," instinctively lower their voices as they pass, and none would lay upon it a profaning hand.

For the bit of old bunting is sacred.

It is the flag which gave to the nation its immortal poem—"The Star Spangled Banner!"

A hundred years have been swallowed into the maw of history since first that bit of bunting whipped proudly in the wind above old Fort McHenry—and "gave proof through the night" that the old fort still stood undefeated.

But when the colors of this flag began to fade from its warp and woof they seemed to become an integral part of the nation's patriotism and love. Its blue—ever the symbol of fidelity—became the keynote of the character of Americans and American soldiery. Its red became symbolic of the sort of blood which not two months ago was shed freely and unquestioningly because of an insult offered to the banner of the "free and the brave."

And so this bit of bunting has grown to be a national heritage; a priceless treasure; a national brevet!

It was Betsy Ross who gave to the infant republic its first flag.

It is Amelia Fowler, another of the sisterhood of needlewomen, who is preserving to all the generations of Americans to come its most cherished emblem.

Betsy Ross made each stitch in her banner a message of love and patriotism, a charge upon the soldiers of the new country to go forth to do their best—if need be, to die.

And this other gray-haired woman, a century later, is putting love and patriotism into her work, and a message. But hers is a message of peace—"Lest we forget."

No matter how carefully cared for, a flag will in time become but a mass of rags and tatters, be it in daily use or a cherished relic. The fate of the real Star Spangled Banner is but the fate of all our priceless old banners—the fate of the priceless banners of the world.

For many years this flag has been exhibited in the main hall of the old museum of the Smithsonian Institution. There, under strong lock, and practically in view of the watchman kept ever at the door of the building during hours when visitors are allowed, this banner has lain. Reverently folded, but a couple of its "bright stars" and a touch of its blue field were visible. It was too priceless to be displayed entire.

Yet the ravages of time did their work. The flag, despite care and love and reverence, literally disintegrated.

And so it became apparent that if future generations were to have the heritage of this flag kept for them intact it must be preserved and in such a way as to insure it from further decay.

But how?

Gray-haired veterans, who would willingly have offered their lives to save it, were helpless. Scientists knew of naught that would answer the purpose. And so the Star Spangled Banner has lain torn and faded and untouched. But now it is being preserved!

In Boston lives Mrs. Amelia Fowler, first an expert needlewoman, and today the only scientific preserver of flags in the country, perhaps the world. And to her is due the credit for the invention which is making possible the preservation of the Stars and Stripes.

Mrs. Fowler's method is simple. Yet it represents sixteen years' work. It stands for years of experiment and study, and the evolution of an unknown study to the science of a profession.

The Star Spangled Banner, thought to be the largest American flag ever in actual service, measures 29x32 feet. It has fifteen stripes and the same number of stars, the blue field occupying more than a fourth of the surface of the flag. One star is entirely gone, and a small portion of the stripes, while it is practically riddled with holes, due solely to the natural decay of the bunting.

First a backing, the dimensions of the flag, is being made of the finest Irish linen manufactured. Upon this the banner will be laid.

It must then be tacked down in the position it will eventually keep. So difficult, so delicate, is this work that only Mrs. Fowler herself will do it. Not a thread must be stretched too tight, else when the flag is finished, the strain will break it. Not a single one of the raveled ends must remain uncaught, else they will entirely disappear through rot.

Then comes the final sewing. This may require the services of fifty girls, each an expert in plain sewing, each filled with the responsibility of the work being done. More than 1,500,000 stitches will be necessary to preserve the flag. By Mrs. Fowler's method, which requires a special stitch, every square inch of the flag will have ten stitches in it. That means 360 stitches to every six-inch square. In this way the old flag is literally made a part of the linen, but all the wear and strain comes upon the latter. The work will take almost six weeks.

Special linen thread is required and this is dyed to match exactly the portion of the flag on which it is used. On those portions of the linen left exposed because of holes in the banner, the stitching will still be done. In this way an exact idea will be obtainable of what the flag should have been—intact, while yet not actually having been repaired with new bunting.

It is really the west hall of the Smithsonian Institution in which the work is being done, but somebody gave the room the name of "chapel" and it is more popularly known under that title. Nor is it unfitting. A long, high-roofed room, with curved windows at either end, it bears, in all truth, a close resemblance to a chapel.

At one end, laid out upon a specially constructed table, lies the real Star Spangled Banner. And at the other stands the Greenough statue of Washington. Was it, after all, but chance that brought these two together?

In classic garb sits the "Father of His Country." In one hand, extended, is a sword. The other is raised, as if to bid silence in this room, which contains so much of value to the nation.

In the midst of this sits Mrs. Fowler, gray-haired, serene, her deep, blue eyes tear-dimmed as she talks of this flag, her flag, our flag.

And over all seems to brood the spirit of Betsy Ross.

"We need our flags," Mrs. Fowler said, her voice vibrating, "not because of the deeds of valor they stand for, as much as for the heritage of inspiration they represent.

"We live, sad to say, in an age of little patriotism. Somehow the dear old flag seems to be all rolled up in a tight wad, with a string tied around it. And hidden deep in its folds lie all those things which should be part of our daily life.

"The flag is not a thing to fold up and lay away. It is something to keep ever in sight—something to live by and for, as well as to die for. It stands not alone for battle. Its mission today is one of peace, one of inspiration toward progress.

"Teach the children of today to love the flag, as well as to honor it, and we will teach them inherent patriotism. Do not have a flag tucked away, to bring out on the Fourth of July, Washington's birthday and other such occasions. Keep one hung in the child's own room. And then when he is disobedient don't send him to a dark room to repent. Bid him stand before the flag of his country and be ashamed to be an integral part of it. Ask him is he willing to face it, and yet not be an honor to it."

None who hear Mrs. Fowler can doubt the sincerity of her devotion to the flag. Her work, first started through the need of preserving the banners, has grown to be a labor of love.

"Nothing of mere 'ordinary' quality is used in the preservation of the flags. For instance, a flaw in the linen backing might result in making the whole worthless. Throughout the work countless points of that nature must be guarded against. And in order to know just what must be avoided, as well as accomplished, required fourteen years' study. It demanded an intimate knowledge of linen—a study in itself. Not only the best obtainable, the linen used is of special weave."

Characteristic of the predominating idea with which Mrs. Fowler has done her work is her reason for choosing the linen she has. It is Ulster, Ireland, linen.

"I choose it," she explained, "for the reason that there the production of the linen is not an industry so much as a work of love. From the time the first sprouts of flax appear the Irish peasants love it. They tend it willingly, tenderly. And when the flax is ready to be washed, it is accomplished by hand, not machinery. Ulster linen is the finest in the world for just that reason. I want love to be the keynote of the entire work."

The preservation of the Star Spangled Banner is not the first national flag which Mrs. Fowler has lovingly secured to future generations. But three years ago, with a corps of sixty assistants, she performed a similar task at Annapolis, where she preserved nearly 150 banners, the flags in Trophy Hall at the Naval Academy.

As interesting as the work itself is the way in which Mrs. Fowler came to take it up. It started in Massachusetts, and really dates back to the time when but four years old she showed a decided ability with the needle. This, fostered along original, even daring, lines, made her, in later years, one of the most expert embroidery artists in her State.

Regimental flags, before Mrs. Fowler's time, were hand-painted. But, even though the finest quality paint was used, the silk would always split. Charles O. Eaton of Boston, who for years made the flags of the Massachusetts regiments, determined to find another way.

In Europe, the Japanese method of embroidery is used, which makes it possible to have both sides perfect. But European flags invariably had the same design on both sides. On our regimental flags each side bears a different emblem. The Japanese method, therefore, was worthless.

Mr. Eaton started to find some one who could get around this. One woman took two pieces of silk, embroidered the emblem, and then sewed them together. The result was a banner too weighty to unfurl in the breeze. Another tried applique. This, too, failed. At his wits' ends, Mr. Eaton began a systematic search through the telephone and city directories for women doing embroidery. He stumbled across Mrs. Fowler.

He explained what was wanted. She answered that it had never been done.

He replied, he knew that only too well.

"Give me ten days, and I will tell you if I can do it," she told him.

At the end of that time she said she could. He hardly believed her, but gave her a chance to prove her statement. To make a long story short, she succeeded so well that she made all the silken banners carried by the Massachusetts troops during the Spanish-American War.

So much for Mrs. Fowler's introduction to working in flags. One day she visited Memorial Hall, Boston, where, Mr. Eaton in charge, all the trophy banners of the State hung in splendid display.

"They are beautiful, wonderful," Mrs. Fowler exclaimed. "But they can't last. They are falling to pieces now. They should be preserved."

"I know," said Mr. Eaton, sadly. "But how, how?"

"The insistence of that question," says Mrs. Fowler, "rung in my ears long after I had left the hall. It would be tragic to lose the flags which have stood for so much in the history of this country. I would save them. But how?

"No one can know the love that went into my work, nor the sacrifice. My life became dedicated to my work. I gave up everything possible to follow my studies. Fourteen years I spent in making my work a profession. I studied flags, old and new. Most of all I studied our flag. I learned its meaning. From a mere piece of cheap bunting it came to represent to me the greatest inspiration a country could possess.

"It isn't the actual strips of bunting, nor the field of blue. It's what they stand for. What they have stood for all these years. Think of Francis Scott Key, standing upon the deck of that ship, compelled through circumstance to witness the bombardment of Ft. McHenry by the British. Just think what it meant to him.

"He knew not whether the 'red coats' were victorious or not—but by a single token—the Stars and Stripes which floated above the fort. So he watched them—he made them represent the fate of the fort.

"Twilight came, and slowly, even they were blotted from sight. What was happening? And then—

"And the rocket's red glare, the bomb bursting in the air, Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there."

"Think of the agony of suspense between those loud reports, and the consequent 'glare,' when, for a single instant, perhaps, the banner of his land stood out against the inky sky.

"And then morning came.

"On the shore, dimly seen through the mists of the deep,

* * * * * *

What is that which the breeze o'er the towering steep
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam."

"It was the flag—his flag—triumphant! McHenry still stood!

"Can any American today stand before this flag without feeling something of the suspense, the agony of hope, which was Key's? Can any one looking at this faded, priceless piece of bunting, fail to realize what it represents; fail to feel a thrill of deep, sincere love for this—the emblem of his, or her, country? I think not! I hope not!" W. S. S.

Influence of Instinct.

[Washington Star:] That even in man instinct is sometimes stronger than reason is illustrated by these two cases.

There had been shipped on a Mississippi River steamboat a box, with a glass cover, containing a very active rattlesnake. Whenever any one approached the box the serpent would strike the cover. The owner of the reptile challenged any one to hold his finger on the glass and let the rattler strike at it. There was no danger and it seemed an easy thing to do. First one and then another tried it, but when the snake gave its vicious spring the finger was invariably drawn back with a jerk. Instinct was stronger than reason and will combined.

A young man in Paris had lost his last sou at the gambling table. Not only was he without means, but he had lost a large sum belonging to his employer. He started for the Seine with the intention of drowning himself. On the way there was a great commotion, caused by the escape of a lion from a strolling menagerie. The animal came galloping down the street, and people fled in every direction.

Instantly the man who was seeking death climbed a lamp-post and clung to the top of it, trembling in every limb. When the animal was captured and the danger over he proceeded to the river and plunged in.

A Suspicious Conductor.

[Dallas News:] Gentleman (in railroad train:) How did this accident happen?

Conductor: Some one pulled the cord and stopped the train, and the fast train ran into us. It will take five hours to clear the line for us to go ahead.

Gentleman: Five hours? Great Scott! I was to be married today.

JEAN INTERVENES.

THE Ranson Lumber Company were working double shift, so plentiful were their orders. System, under these strained circumstances, in the mill, yard and ofttimes in the office, was an unknown quantity. Get the orders out regardless of the amount of lumber damaged in doing so. That wasn't the law at Ranson's, but that is the way it was done nevertheless. That had been Ranson's accepted method of doing things for years. They had been favored with an abundance of work, and in their eagerness to serve their patrons with deliveries above the normal speed of their competitors had wholly overlooked the fact that a goodly fortune went to waste each year through their slovenly practices around the plant.

But a time came when orders slackened and business assumed a pinched aspect. Men were laid off and only sufficient help retained—help that had been in the company's service for some time—to handle the few orders received daily.

Of the men retained the Ranson Company entirely ignored the fact that they had, during the days of "big business," engaged these men, who were ambitious and wished to make good, and made "sluffers" out of them. While with Ranson's these men had been schooled in methods of carelessness, shiftlessness and utter disregard of the fundamental basis of business—system. The company, in their desire "to be always ahead," had undermined the systematic principles of their men and made them educated slovens.

Of the men retained was a young fellow by the name of Moore. He had been with the company for some time, and during the rush days of "big business."

Moore, under Ranson's tutelage, had been educated to accept their way of doing things. At one time he had offered a suggestion for improvement in their system. He had been promptly ignored, and from that time on he had accepted their methods as being what they desired, whether business was brisk or not. Therefore, it became a part of Moore to carry into effect the company's wishes under any and all conditions.

One day the manager, Briggs by name, in the passing noticed Moore at work. Moore was none too careful over the way he was tossing the lumber about. Briggs acquiesced in Moore's actions and went to the office. Later Moore was called into Briggs's office.

"We'll have to lay you off for a few days," Briggs told him.

Moore mentally staggered under this declaration.

"Am I fired or am I laid off?" Moore asked.

Briggs's reply was slow, and Moore repeated his question.

"You're not fired," Briggs assured him, keeping his eyes on the letter he was reading; "only—only laid off."

Later when Moore was gathering together his belongings he tried to learn from some other of the men why he had been laid off. The case was one of surprise to all, for Moore had been considered one of the best factors about the plant. His efforts to learn something about the probable cause of his lay-off proved futile.

He was leaving the yard and passing the office, when he encountered Briggs. Briggs halted him and spoke.

"Moore," he said, "your whistle call is one and four, is it not?"

Moore said it was.

"And you live in the next street and can hear the call whistle," the manager intimated suavely. "That's right, isn't it?"

Moore nodded.

"Well, then," Briggs concluded, moving toward the office, "when we want you we'll blow one and four on the salesmen's call whistle. A little vacation will do you good," he added, going into the office.

It was a hard blow to Moore. Just at a time when he had planned so many things this misfortune must occur. His marriage of three weeks hence must be postponed. His half-finished home, for the lack of meeting contract payments, would probably revert to the realty owners. His insurance, which he had assumed in view of his marriage, and on which a premium would soon be due, would probably go to the wall. All in all, it probably would be disastrous and wrecking to the melancholic disposition that Moore unfortunately possessed.

Times were slack and Moore put in weary hours looking for employment. Two occasions, however, presented themselves where an energetic man was wanted. Moore applied. References were required and Moore furnished the Ranson Lumber Company. Later he went back for an answer.

"We told you we wanted an energetic man," he was told in both places. "We can't use you."

It dawned upon Moore a little later that there was more to his lay-off than Briggs had told him. Evidently his Ranson references were valueless or he would have certainly got employment at one of the last places he had applied. This ran through Moore's mind and it was the initial move that actuated brooding.

"Laid off for some good reason," he brooded, "and that same reason keeps me from getting work."

From that moment Moore's melancholic disposition engrossed him. For hours at a time he would sit at his window and listen to the whistle calls at Ranson's. His never sounded, and it grieved him.

"One and four is silenced forever," he would say after sitting at his window for hours. "It's no use. It's a thing of the past."

The mill boys would come in occasionally and see him. From them he drew what they had heard concerning his lay-off.

"I heard on good authority," one of them ventured, "that you were not laid off, but fired for your slovenly work around the yard. Briggs told you you were laid off only to let you down easy. Briggs has lied like that before."

The others had theories, but this one impressed Moore fully.

Shortly after Moore's lay-off business picked up again. This, despite what he had heard, inspired Moore to hope for reinstatement. Instead of enlisting his services, Briggs engaged new men. This further stimulated Moore's brooding.

The entire company's business, conveyed on auto trucks, passed Moore's door. He knew the truck number by the click of the drive chains; he knew each driver by the sound of the engine. All these details only served to aggravate Moore's mental condition and cause fretful ponderings over his misfortune.

Then came notification from the realty men that another payment was due on his bungalow. In the same mail came a like notice from the insurance company. And to add to this came a letter from his fiancee saying she would return that day and that he must be sure and call on her that night.

"And tonight Jean must be told," he declared. "I shan't drag her into this."

He tossed the letters on the dresser, and as he did so, caught a glimpse of himself in the mirror. He staggered. Had this worry distorted his face like that? Had his broodings weakened the luster of his eye and allowed it to be supplanted by such wildness? His face was haggard and emaciated, and his lips dry and drawn. He turned away from the glass. He stopped short and listened. The call whistle, for the first time that day, was blowing. Perhaps, at last, it was his number. He counted.

"One long—one, two, three, four——" He held his breath; there was a slight pause. Then the whistle tooted a fifth short blast and again the flag of disappointment was unfurled.

He put his hands to his head. He began to feel dizzy and hot. A rush of fever swept over his trembling body. He staggered toward the bed, heaved forward and, missing the bed in the fall, struck the floor heavily.

When next Moore opened his eyes he was in bed well blanketed. He cast his eyes about the room, and in one corner stood the doctor, speaking in low tones to the landlady.

"He's in a serious condition," the doctor was saying. "Some mental worry has brought on this collapse."

The landlady nodded.

Moore became flighty. Raising himself in bed he gazed about the room.

"We—we can rush your order through—through today," he mumbled. "The two-by-fours and the plank will come out on the next truck. I'll take care—I'll take care of you, Jean—and our house—and the insurance. Oh, Jean—I'll take care—when—when—my whistle—blows. When one—and four blows. Why don't it blow? My head——"

The doctor and landlady stood listening. Moore's head went back, and the doctor rushed to him. Moore, still mumbling about his whistle, was given a sedative and soon slept.

With the shades of night Moore's fever arose. The sedative the doctor had administered had worn off and he was again delirious. The landlady was in the room with him. The doctor had gone, at the suggestion of the landlady, to find Jean, who resided in the next street. The 'phone, at the other end of the hall, rang. The landlady, giving a parting glance at Moore, whose eyes were closed, left the room hurriedly to answer the 'phone.

A moment later she returned to find Moore out of bed and at his bookcase. He was taking the books from the case and disposing of them as lumber to imaginative customers.

"Plumb crazy," cried the landlady. Frightened, she rushed from the room, turned the key in the door she slammed after her, and made her way downstairs. The front door opened as she reached it, and, to her instant relief, she met the doctor and Jean. The girl was white and nervous.

"He's gone crazy," the landlady blurted out before the doctor had an opportunity to ask after the patient. "Clean crazy," she added, following the doctor and Jean upstairs. "He thinks his books lumber and he's selling them to nobody in the room."

The landlady was about to open the door when the doctor's hand arrested her.

"Wait," he ordered. "I want to hear what he's saying without disturbing him."

Moore was still selling lumber. His words seemed choked, and Jean, sure he was dying, wanted to force her way to him.

"Wait a moment, little girl," the doctor admonished. "It is at moments like these that the patient usually gives some hint as to what brought about such a mental condition."

They waited.

"Yes, Briggs," said Moore after a slight interval, "you lied. You—you lied to me. You told me I was laid off because—because of slack business. Then you told a friend of—of mine—you didn't know he was a friend of mine—that I—I was the worst sloven in—in Ranson's yard—and—and that I'd been laid off—an easy word for fired—for being a—a sluffer." Another interval during which Moore pranced about the room like a wild man. "You—you lied to me, Briggs," he went on; "you lied—Briggs—you lied. I—I was a good man when—when you hired me, and—and through your rotten methods and—those under you—you—I was taught to be a sluffer—and then—then—you—fired me—for—for—for being just what you—you made me—Briggs—you—lied—and—if—I can—find—my—my—gun——"

The door flew open and Jean rushed to Moore. She threw her arms around his neck.

"Oh, Harry," she sobbed.

Her voice and presence awakened a lucid moment.

"Jean," he cried like a delighted child. Then the cloud hovered over him again. "Jean," he mumbled, "we—we can't get married. I've lost my job. I—I must lose you—my house—my insurance—and—my boarding-house——"

"Never," put in the landlady, rushing to him. Moore neither saw nor heard. His lucid interval had passed.

"Briggs lied to me," he muttered, crowding Jean aside and going to the window. One and four—one and—and four, why don't you blow Briggs, you lied—curse you and your home—curse your babies—you lied, Briggs—and — and — I'm going — to—kill you——"

He collapsed and went into raving delirium. The doctor and the landlady put him to bed with force. Jean's tear-stained face appealed to the doctor.

"I must do something," she pleaded. "Tell me, doctor."

The doctor looked uneasily at his raving patient. The sedatives were having less effect upon him. Then he drew Jean aside, as the landlady left the room to attend to her kitchen duties.

"This is a bad case," the doctor told Jean frankly. "There will be a crisis at midnight, which will decide for the better or worse. You had better stay here tonight. He may want you, and perhaps by coming in at the right moment the stem of the malady may be turned."

The landlady gave Jean a room next to Moore's. Jean disrobed and, throwing a bathrobe about her slender form, drew a chair close to the wall. She could hear the lowest of her lover's incoherent words and the low murmurs of the doctor and the landlady.

"If the crisis goes against him," she heard the doctor say, "he will not survive forty-eight hours. Inflammation of the brain carries them off quick. Drugs, aside from soothing, will do him no good. There has got to be some mental reaction to pull him over. A something must happen that for an instant will carry him back to a point in his mind where this infliction was unknown. That's the only saving grace, and at this hour the chances against such a thing happening are a thousand to one."

"Sad, sad," the landlady commented. "We all liked him."

Jean brushed aside her tears and looked across the room to the clock. Eleven-thirty! She got to her feet quickly: Moore was raving again. She placed her ear against the wall.

"The beginning of the end, I fear," she heard the doctor say.

Jean drew away from the wall. She walked about the room in anguish. She could hear the doctor and the landlady trying to keep her lover in bed as his ravings became worse.

"Good God," she cried, holding her outstretched arms heavenward, "good God, tell me something to do." She covered her face with her hands and wept.

Moore's deliriums continued.

"Why don't they pull—pull one and—and four on the whistle?" he shouted. "Why don't they pull—pull that mill—my whistle——"

Jean looked instantly toward the room where her lover lay. Her mind cleared; her eyes widened.

"An answer to my prayer!" she cried, and darted from the room.

Jean ran from the house toward the mill. Her bathrobe and her slippered feet were poor protection against the midnight air. She shivered. The mill yard was dark. Here her slippers came off and she sped on without them. She knew where the whistle was. She had seen her lover there many times and he had explained it to her.

Through the cindered gangways she ran, heedless of the injury the cinders were accomplishing on her tender feet. Finally she reached the spot where the whistle cord hung. She pulled it to make the first long blast. The whistle did not respond.

"No steam!" she cried. Just then the watchman, with his lantern, passed close to her. She retreated and watched the lantern until it reached the further end of the yard. Then she came out and looked at the mill. There must be steam somewhere, she could hear it sizzle. Then she remembered the day Moore had taken her through the engine-room and explained everything, even to the whistle cord. She hurried to the mill and made her way to the engine-room. There WAS steam in that place. And there was the whistle cord. She grasped it.

Moore became violent, and the doctor knew, by consulting his timepiece, that the crucial moment was at hand.

"Jean—I want Jean," Moore shouted.

The landlady rushed to Jean's room. The door was open and Jean was gone. She rushed back and told the doctor.

"Good heavens!" cried the doctor. "She said she'd stay. I told her that her presence at the right time may be the turning point for the better. I don't understand, I don't——"

He was interrupted by a long, shrill blast of Ranson's mill whistle and four short blasts following it. The doctor bowed his head as the blasts were repeated. He began to understand why Jean had deserted. The blast for the third time stirred the still-

A Feminine Realist.

HE WAS enraptured with the scenery. His fair companion at the country resort sat upon the stone wall beside him.

"Behold that exquisite sunset!" he exclaimed. "Note the delicate flesh tints, the cream shades, the long dashes of vermillion, and the almost living fire that leaps up from the sinking sun as from a fountain. Behold the framework of darkening skies and of deep green. Isn't it wonderful?"

His fair companion sighed heavily.

"You just bet it is!" she exclaimed. "It looks just like a great big lobster salad!"—[Lippincott's Magazine.

The Hyena.

PROF. HENRY CORSON TAYLOR said in an address in Baltimore of the new claims for radium:

"These new claims for radium as a medicine are ridiculously inaccurate. They remind me of a circus I once visited.

"In the menagerie of this circus there was a man who led us from cage to cage, describing the animals in each. When he came to the hyena's cage he said:

"'And in this here cage, ladies and gents, we have a remarkable specimen of the laughin' hyena. The laughin' hyena lives on garbage, he is despised and rejected by all the other ferocious denizens of the jungle, he is a hopeless coward, and what he's got to laugh about I can't imagine."—[New York Tribune.

Might Have Been.

THE conversation turned to golf the other evening, when Congressman Francis E. Warren of Wyoming told an anecdote along that line.

One afternoon, the Congressman said, two men met in the smoke end of a Pullman, and eventually one of them, who was an enthusiastic golfer, began to recount some of his experiences.

"I recall one case in particular," the golfer reflectively went on. "I had come to the seventeenth hole and was about to drive when I saw a bull staring at me through a hedge."

"A bull," sympathetically responded the other. "I see."

"Yes, sir, a bull!" declared the golfer with some emphasis. "Now, wouldn't you consider that a rather remarkable thing?"

"I don't know," answered the other, hesitatingly. "You see, old fellow, I don't know a deuced thing about golf."—[Philadelphia Telegraph.

They All Swim.

SECRETARY BRYAN, in one of his eloquent Chautauqua addresses, said of drunkenness:

"A frequent cause of drunkenness is the desire to drown sorrow. No sorrow can be drowned, though, in any such way.

"Once, in Paris, I found a promising young friend seated on a cafe terrace swallowing glass after glass of absinthe hurriedly.

"'My boy,' I cried, 'what on earth are you doing?'

"My young friend made a gesture of despair, and, looking up at me with bleared and sorrowful eyes, he replied:

"'Mr. Bryan, I am trying to drown a care that has learned to swim.'"—[New York Tribune.

Cause of Death.

"YOU say your automobile did not touch this man, and yet he was dead when you picked him up?" shouted the prosecuting attorney.

"That's my claim," coolly retorted the prisoner. "My machine didn't touch him."

"And you saw this man start to cross the street?"

"Yes."

"Did you blow your horn?"

"I did."

"What sort of a horn is it?"

"One of those new-fangled clatter-boxes that create a sound that is a cross between a shriek and a dying wail."

"That explains it." "You simply scared the man to death."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Obeying Orders.

THE first and the last duty of a common soldier is to obey orders.

In a seaport town a general and an admiral were neighbors. The general's house was fronted by a grass plot, on which he claimed the right to pasture a cow.

One day his wife complained that the supply of milk was falling off. The sentinel accounted for the deficiency by saying that the grass had lately been much trodden down by the public.

The martial despot immediately gave orders that no animal, human or other, except the cow, should be allowed on the grass plot; and he added—men were not particular in those days—that if this rule were infringed, the sentinel should be flogged.

Soon afterward, the admiral's wife, having a pressing engagement, took a short cut over the grass in disregard of the sentinel's repeated order to halt:

"My man," said the offended lady, "don't you know who I am?"

"All I know is that you are not the general's cow."—[Boston Advertiser.

Duly Charged.

"I SHALL refuse to pay for attendance," said the irate tourist who had been staying at an old-fashioned country hotel and who had just been presented with his bill. "Why, the bells in the rooms are a perfect disgrace; not one of them would ring. Everything I wanted I had to fetch myself. I must have spent some hours tugging at those bell-pulls."

"It's true we have charged for attendance," said the smiling proprietor, "but, see, we have charged you nothing for your physical culture course."

Punctual James.

AN OLD Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly 80 yeads of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking.

"That is very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner."

"You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott, the traveler."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?"

"Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely 2 o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."—[New York Journal.

"That's not very unusual," remarked another.

Might Have Tried It.

THE Rev. James Hamilton of Liverpool, while on holiday in Scotland, had a narrow escape from drowning. Accompanied by a boy, Mr. Hamilton was fishing for sea trout when he slipped on a stone, lost balance, and, being incumbered with heavy wading boots, had great difficulty in keeping his head above water. Finally he managed to get back to the shore, although in a very exhausted state, and said to the boy:

"Fish, mostly," responded the man.

Favored the Bishop.

"THE late Bishop Bowman," said a Philadelphia minister, "once rebuked my too soft and conciliatory leanings by telling me a story about a little girl.

"This little girl, it seems, had written with great pains a composition on the cow. The composition ran as follows:

"'The cow is a very useful animal.'

"That evening the Bishop dined at the little girl's house, and her mother, since she was a very little girl, indeed, was proud of the composition, and requested its author to read it aloud.

"The little girl got her manuscript, but instead of reading it as it stood she amended it on the bishop's behalf, so that it ran:

"'The cow is the most useful animal there is except religion.'"—[Cincinnati Enquirer.

Expressive Army Slang.

THERE is more slang among soldiers than one would find at all the schools in England. Some amusing examples are are given by Corp. P. L. King of the Second Life Guards in the Household Brigade Magazine.

A "Tom Clarke" is a swab, and it is also a kiss. Hence one may hear a soldier refer to "Tom Clarking his straight missus," which means kissing his prospective bride. Nobody knows who the original Tom Clarke was.

"A touch of the Lawrence" means a fit of laziness.

A pennyworth of bread and cheese is known as a "rimer" for some inscrutable reason, and tea is "dirty 'ot." Meat is "saddle flap."

To "put half a gauge on" anything is to do work for a man for sixpence, which may have some connection with the fact that a half-gallon can is known as "half a gauge."

A man wearing a muffler is in "burglar order," and is open to the question, "Where are the ferrets?"

If anyone has an unpleasant surprise he "drops about seventeen holes." Should you agree with a statement you say: "Same as that," whereas, if you disagree, you remark: "What's coming off?" Bandsmen are referred to as "wind jammers."—[Baltimore American.

"'Now you must stop sucking your thumb. If you don't you'll swell up like a balloon and burst. Mind what I say.'

"The urchin was much impressed. He promised to do his best to break himself of his bad habit.

"Well, it happened that Chesterton dined at the litterateur's that evening. With the dessert the little chap came in. He looked at Chesterton and started. He turned pale. Then he sidled up to the mountainous writer and said in a compassionate and yet reproachful voice:

Not What She Expected.

HE WAS a shy young man, but on his way home from the city he managed to screw up his courage sufficiently to enter a jeweler's shop and purchase a small gift for the lady of his heart. This, he hoped, would pave the way to the popping of the great question. That night he called at her house and found her alone. Producing a small, square box from his pocket, he said, nervously:

"I have ventured to bring you a small present, Miss Finn, but I am afraid that perhaps it will not fit your finger. Will you try it on?"

"Oh, dear!" said the girl, blushing most becomingly, "this is quite unexpected. Why, I never dreamed that you really cared enough——"

California "Filibusters," and Their Motives.

By Genevieve Farnell-Bond.

LIGHT ON OLD TOPIC.

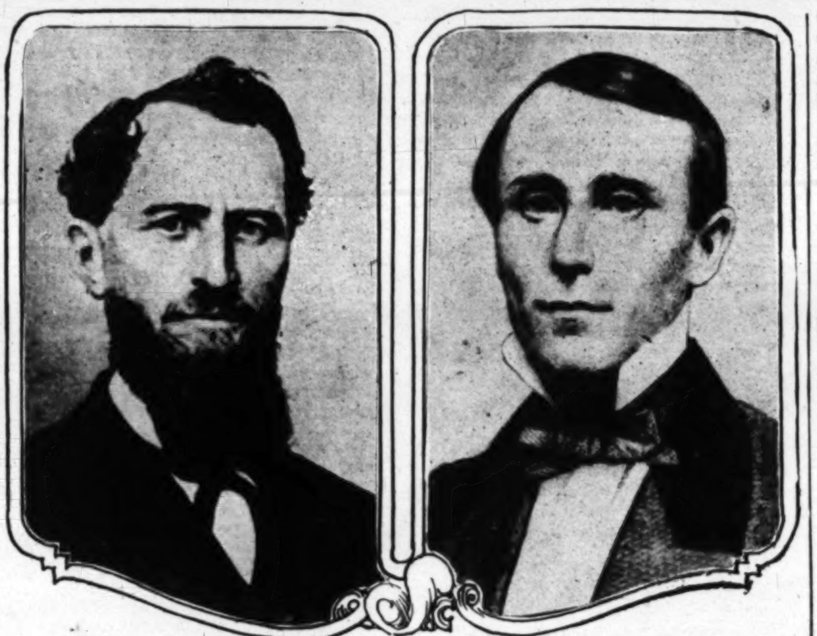
MANY have been in the habit of looking upon filibustering as so closely akin to piracy that it is difficult to draw the line of distinction. This is not quite a fair conception. Of course it is thoroughly understood that the proceedings of the simon-pure filibuster cannot be termed exactly legal. But there are filibusters and filibusters. Some of the finest men that ever walked shoe leather were secretly landing arms and ammunition for the Cubans before Uncle Sam declared war with Spain. We are all in favor of law and order, but sometimes the machinery of government moves very slowly, and immeasurable harm can result while it is merely beginning to get into action. In the meantime, a cause and many lives may be sacrificed.

A certain historian is pleased to lay the blame of past filibustering from California at the door of the Southern contingent predominating here in early days, the motive assigned being the extension of the institution of slavery. He claims that the same motive was responsible for the settlement of Texas, and her application for admission into the Union. History does not exactly support these assertions.

When the Americans gained possession of California, they made it rather difficult for foreigners to operate among them during the gold rush. Many of the Mexicans, Spaniards and Frenchmen were forced out of the mining regions, and having staked their all in these ventures, found difficulty in making a living. Count Gaston Raoul de Raousset-Boulbon, a French nobleman who had lost his holdings in his native land, and who did not find the opportunities on this Coast, in his reduced circumstances, that he had anticipated, was moved to do something for his many countrymen who, like himself, had found their prospects limited by prejudice against the Latin races in the race for gold. He conceived the idea of establishing a French colony on the border of Sonora, with the intention of opening up the mines in this region—abandoned on account of the Apaches—and incidentally to check American encroachments.

Raousset did not proceed after the manner of a filibuster. He first laid his plan before Dillon, French Consul in San Francisco, gairing the Consul's hearty sanction. Then he proceeded to Mexico City, and there President Arista made the necessary land concessions, promising the support of a prominent banking house upon condition that Raousset bring an armed company of his countrymen into Sonora without delay. The nobleman's 250 French recruits were not idle, ignorant vagrants, ready to follow the first call that promised adventure, but were, on the contrary, well-born, well-educated, well-intentioned men. The party sailed, arriving at Guaymas in June, 1852. All might have been well had the Mexican government kept faith. But instead of carrying out its promises, the Raousset party was at once regarded with suspicion, and detained in Guaymas for a month. At length, proceeding on his way, Raousset was joined by a party of eighty more Frenchmen, whose leader, Pindray, had died mysteriously. The conditions laid down to Raousset were that he and his men should either become naturalized citizens of Mexico, await letters of security from the capital, after which they would be allowed to proceed to Arizona, where they might take possession of such mines as they found, or put themselves under the leadership of a Mexican officer. Raousset refused these terms with spirit, and rousing the inhabitants of Sonora to follow him in revolt, he marched upon Gen. Blanco in Hermosillo—150 miles distant—and took the city. But it would seem that the courageous Frenchman was not supported with sufficient strength by his followers, to complete his victory, and take Sonora. As it was he found it expedient to ship with his men on the vessel chartered by the Mexican government, $11,000 having been raised by Arista for the filibusters to return to California, where Raousset found himself regarded as a hero.

Almost exactly a year later, Raousset returned to Mexico, and went to the capital at the invitation of Santa Ana, who had grasped the reins of Mexican government. He requested that Raousset recruit 500 Frenchmen to protect the border of Sonora from the Indians. But the Frenchman discovered treachery, and rode several horses to death to make Acapulco ahead of his enemies and get out of the country, which he succeeded in doing.



Col. E. J. C. Kewen. Gen. William Walker.
(From Ingersoll Collection.)

Once again Raousset was lured by the promises of Santa Ana, this time through the intervention of Luis del Valle, the Mexican Consul in San Francisco. William Walker had landed at La Paz on November 3, 1853, with forty-one followers, and proclaimed the Republic of Lower California. This had caused alarm in the Mexican capital. The French Consul, Dillon, persuaded Raousset to raise 800 men, according to Santa Ana's request, and again enter Mexico. As a ship with 300 men was about to sail, the Federal authorities attempted to interfere. But the boat cleared. There was some trouble with the Consuls for a time on the score of violation of the neutrality laws, but nothing was done. Raousset joined his men at Guaymas. The strip of land of which he had aimed to take possession in his previous expeditions had been sold to the United States. It would seem now that the ambition entered the Frenchman's head to conquer Mexico in the name of his own native land. He dispatched a messenger to Desmaris, ordering him to attack and capture the city. The message fell into the hands of the Mexican authorities, and although the Frenchmen made a brave assault, the Mexicans had collected sufficient troops to defeat and make prisoners of their opponents. The French Consul, into whose hands Raousset had been given, treacherously turned him over to the Mexican general. Raousset was court-martialed and shot on August 12, 1854. His men were shipped back to California.

William Walker had come to California in 1850. He was a brilliant, thoroughly educated man, trained both as a doctor and a lawyer, finally entering the field of journalism. He was a Tennesseean by birth, and a thorough Southerner in principle. He was brave and bold in politics, and not a pirate at heart, as some writers would lead one to believe. He at one time brought down the wrath of the California bench upon himself by denouncing bitterly the lax and ineffectual methods in meting out justice in criminal cases. Judge Levi Parsons fined Walker $500 for contempt of court. Walker felt himself to be right, and disdained the whole proceeding. He refused to pay the fine, and went to jail. The people idolized him, and soon had him out on writ of habeas corpus.

When Walker took possession of Lower California he established there a code according to the laws of Louisiana. It is said of him by violent partisans that he made these expeditions into foreign lands for the purpose of extending slavery territory. This is probably quite as erroneous as the belief that the Mormons proselyte for the one purpose of spreading polygamy. While in Lower California he drilled his recruits for the Sonora expedition. Walker had his difficulties, and scandals were repeated about him. He may have done things which would not quite fit into Sunday-school ethics. That he met with vicissitudes one may be sure. He started for Sonora with a hundred men and a small herd of cattle. Had his following possessed constancy to the measure of Walker's ambition, the results would not have been as they were. Between desertions and the stealing of his cattle by the Indians, he was left with but thirty-five men, and scant provisions. They crossed the American line from Tia Juana, giving their paroles to Maj. McKinstry of the United States army. Walker was tried for violation of the neutrality laws, defended his own case, and was acquitted.

Walker was at his newspaper work when Byron Cole, who had been, at one time, proprietor of a newspaper edited by Walker, wrote to the latter concerning conditions then rife in Nicaragua. The "Democrats" and the "Legitimists" were engaged in a partisan struggle characterized by none of the usages of civilized warfare. William V. Wells and Byron Cole had embarked in behalf of a San Francisco company in 1854 for the purpose of developing mining resources in Honduras. Castellon, the leader of the Democratic party, induced Cole to make the proposition that 300 Americans under Walker be brought into the country, to be placed on the pay-roll of the army, and a grant of 21,000 acres of land made to them. Walker considered the offer a violation of the neutrality law. Now those who were close to Walker declare that his motives in entertaining this proposition were anything but those of a filibuster—that he was fundamentally patriotic; that his desire was to help that harassed country, so capable of rich productiveness, but now, because of its devastation resulting from internal war, yielding but the poorest living to its inhabitants. Stable colonization and ultimate improvement were his objects. Cole drew up a second contract increasing the land grant to 52,000 acres, the colonist idea, upon which Walker insisted, being made evident. Both the District Attorney and commander of the Department of the Pacific pronounced the contract free from neutrality violation. Walker raised money by private subscription, and chartered the "Vesta," a "leaky old brig," as it is somewhere described.

"When the vessel was ready to clear," declares Perry Kewen, son of the late Col. E. J. C. Kewen, "the Sheriff went on board, with the purpose of frustrating the expedition. There were fifty-eight recruits—all young men of good family and education, virile fellows who did not know the meaning of the word fear. They were all in high spirits, and surrounded the Sheriff in a mood of hilarity. About midnight, when the Sheriff was below with Col. Walker, the little tug Resolute dropped alongside, and was taking the ship out to sea. The Sheriff became greatly frightened, not knowing what to expect. Presently the young men took him to the deck and handed him tenderly over the side into the charge of the tug crew. The Vesta proceeded on her way."

Upon landing at Realejo, Walker marched at once to Leon, and allied himself with the Democrats, forming his men into the American "phalanx," and retaining his rank of colonel. The first battle of Rivas was fought shortly thereafter with the Chammorrists, when Walker found himself deserted by the natives he had mustered, leaving the little band of fifty-eight Americans to fight their way to safety through 500 opponents, which they did, dealing death generously. But two of Walker's favorite officers, among others, were left lifeless on the field—young Col. Achilles Kewen, "one of the bravest of men," and Maj. Crockett, "the lion-hearted." Col. Kewen had been second in command to Walker himself.

The news of the death of this young man was brought to his only surviving brother, Edward J. C. Kewen—identified with the history of Los Angeles—when he was in New Orleans. He had come to California in 1849, having entered into the legal profession at an exceedingly early age, becoming suddenly famous as an orator. Sergt. Prentiss, sharing honors with Kewen upon one occasion, declared, after hearing the young orator speak, that he would never again risk his reputation by speaking from the same platform.

Kewen, accompanied by his valiant wife, went to his friend, William Walker, who welcomed him with open arms, being then military head of the Nicaraguan government. Kewen was almost immediately appointed a member of a judicial tribunal, organized to adjust the rival claims of Vanderbilt and Garrison & Morgan. The decision reached, after due deliberation, was that Vanderbilt was indebted to the Rivas-Walker government to the amount of one-half million dollars. In the meantime were fought the battles of Rivas, Massaya and Granada.

In this second battle of Rivas, Capt. Kewen was shot down in the plaza. "At the end of the street before him," relates his son, Perry Kewen, "was a church in the door of which the Legitimists had stationed a cannon, and they were shooting also with their rifles from the windows. Far down the street, in another direction, their reinforcements were approaching. Col. W. K. Rogers came up to the prostrate Kewen, believing him dead. But the dead man raised his head, and said thickly, 'Rogers, are there any of the boys who will follow me to hell?' Rogers turned to the few others who were with him. 'Boys,' he asked, 'how many of you will follow Kewen to hell?' Six volunteered, including Rogers, Capt. Barney Wolf and Ned Sanders. Kewen and his men crept stealthily up to the church, and when they were very near, they made a rush, and entered. They turned the guns in the direction of the approaching enemy and mowed them down as they came. The Legitimists inside, thinking that the whole phalanx had arrived, scrambled out of the windows and disappeared.

"There had been another spectator to the fall of Capt. Kewen in the plaza—a white-faced woman sitting at the window of a near adobe. She arose and came forth. Approaching a sergeant who was holding a horse, she took the bridle from his hand, and vaulted to the saddle. With her husband lying dead, as she supposed, she was still determined that the day should not be lost. Placing herself at the head of the balance of the phalanx, she led them on to victory. Then she went back to her adobe, and sat broken-hearted among the gathering shadows. Suddenly there was a footfall, the door slowly opened, and a man wearing the enemy's hat pulled well over his eyes, staggered in, blood-smeared and bandaged. She leaped to her feet and stood at bay. 'What do you want here?' she demanded. 'Don't you know me, dear?' And the man threw off his hat. It was Kewen!

Fate and Cousin Phineas. By Leonard A. Hartman.

THE MARRIAGE LICENSE.

JULIAN'S uncle, Tobias Rowland, was a man of considerable fortune. But, as the Sunday-school papers often tell us, money alone does not make happiness. Although Uncle Tobias was rated by Messieurs Bradstreet and Dun as being A No. 1, financially speaking, he was sour, cantankerous, and discontented. He never married. Instantly, married readers will, I presume, rise to declare that he should have taken unto himself a wife.

During his later years, old Tobias came to be of this opinion himself. "Every man," he declared to Julian, "ought to marry."

He had this declaration in mind when he made his will, about a year before he died. His nephew was to inherit the estate in case he married within one year of his uncle's death. In the event of the marriage not taking place, a distant cousin, Phineas Parker, would receive the legacy. In due time and according to the course of human events, Uncle Tobias died, leaving his money and his will behind him.

When Julian learned of the marriage clause in the will, he was surprised, but not downcast, for he already contemplated marrying; he was sure Miss May Ivins—that was the young lady's name—would not object to the taking place of the ceremony within the year. May most emphatically did not. Julian seemed about to gain a wife and a fortune.

Cousin Phineas, the next in succession, was elated. He had not expected a sou and now was, possibly, in a fair way to gain the whole estate. Cousin Phineas, being by way of profession a money lender, was neither very poor nor very honest. He resolved to trust in Fate and to wait watchfully.

In truth, Fate did seem to smile upon him. Three times the wedding day was set and as many times was it postponed. In June, the bride's mother became suddenly ill; in September, an unexpected rain washed out the railway and kept several important guests away. The wedding was put off until Thanksgiving. Two days before the chosen date, the colored maid developed a case of scarlet fever and the entire family, including the bride, was quarantined. Naturally, the wedding festivities were interrupted. The quarantine was removed on Friday, the 22nd of December. The year of grace ended at midnight of the 24th. Unless Julian were married by that hour, he would forfeit the fortune to the heir presumptive, Mr. Phineas Parker.

Accordingly, Sunday noon was decided on as the day and the hour. Julian would have preferred to have a larger margin of time but, though the wedding was to be a quiet home one, Mrs. Ivins declared she must have a day in which to prepare.

"A wedding is a solemn event. Sunday will hallow and dignify it," she said to Julian. He was forced to aquiesce.

Phineas had fully acquainted himself with all these details. Although he was apparently about to lose a fortune, he resolved to trust in Fate.

Saturday morning being dreary and chilly, few persons entered his money-lending office. It was a gloomy place, with dirty windows and dusty corners. Phineas sat before his desk. On his sallow face was a complacent expression. Frequently a hard smile creased his leathery cheeks. He was thinking of the Rowland fortune. The marriage had been postponed so many times that it really seemed as if Fate was intervening and—

Suddenly Phineas sat up straight. He reached for the desk telephone.

"Is this the Edmont apartments? I should like to speak with Julian Rowland."

Julian was a little surprised to receive a call from the money-lender and still more surprised when that worthy smoothly asked him to call at his office about 5 o'clock to receive a little wedding gift.

At four, Julian had a most important engagement: in company with May he was going to the Courthouse for a marriage license. However, he felt quite benevolent and he resolved to let the chauffeur drive May home while he should go directly from the Courthouse to visit Cousin Phineas.

Thus, Fate once more came to the aid of Cousin Phineas.

Getting a marriage license—for the first time at least—is usually considered to be a confusing situation. Julian accomplished the operation as successfully as most novices do. While he was consummating this annoying but necessary matter of red-tape, May waited for him in the motor car. Then followed that other inevitable forerunner of a wedding, the engaging of a minister.

"Let me see the license, Julian; I will look at it while you are at the minister's," said May with a faint blush.

He handed her the document: it was in a long manila envelope with the words "Marriage License Bureau" printed in large black type across the front.

"I shall be gone only a minute," and he ran up the steps to the Rev. Mr. Newton's front door.

Dr. Newton, who was a social favorite, was engaged. It was some time, therefore, before Julian came out. May said she had not become impatient, for after she had finished reading the license, an Italian with a very squeaky organ and a sadly agile monkey had taken his stand on the corner, to the great delight of thousands—so it seemed—of children.

The distance to Phineas's office was short. Here, Julian left May. The chauffeur was to drive her home. Not until he was getting out of the automobile, did Julian think of the marriage license, emblem of the law's majestic power. May handed it to him and he stuck it carelessly in the outer pocket of his overcoat. The glaring letters proclaimed its contents to all the world. He did not mind; like all bridegrooms he wanted everyone to know he was going to be married.

Phineas came out of his inner office to greet Julian.

"I have a caller, but he will detain me only a few minutes. Have a chair. I'll be with you soon."

Then he retired to his office, and Julian could hear the mumble of voices. The temperature of the room in which he sat was tropic. The old-fashioned hard coal burner shone red hot, and not a window was open. Julian felt the beads of sweat on his face. He went to the window and raised it and took off his overcoat. There was no coat rack, so he threw it over the back of a chair. The long envelope stuck out conspicuously from the side pocket.

Phineas lingered in his inner office after the visitor had left. He was thinking.

Fate seemed yet to favor him. The moment the boy had entered the office he had noted the marriage license in his overcoat pocket. He glanced at his watch. The hands pointed to 5:30. The Courthouse closed at 5, and would not be opened till 10 o'clock Monday morning. To win the legacy, Julian must be married by midnight of Sunday. If by any chance the license should be lost, another could not be got before Monday, and—

Phineas jumped from his chair. Fate clearly pointed the way. He walked resolutely into the outer office. The overcoat still lay on the chair.

"Oh, Julian," he cried, "come back into the office. I want to show you some little trifles I bought this morning."

From a drawer in his desk Phineas took three tiny boxes. In each sparkled daintily a diamond scarf pin.

"Choose the one you like best and accept it as a wedding gift from me," he said munificently.

Julian took the boxes a little fatuously. He was astounded by such unusual generosity. At that moment the telephone bell in the other room rang. Fate was surely aiding Phineas.

"Pardon me a moment," and he left Julian to admire the gleaming pins.

It took but a second to dispose of the telephone. "I am busy, call me later," he cried in the mouthpiece; in his haste the words fairly leaped over each other. Then he swiftly tiptoed across to Julian's coat and drew out the envelope. In another instant he had placed it in the great safe, pushed the heavy door shut and set the time-lock.

Julian had chosen one of the pins when his cousin rejoined him.

"I hope you like it."

"Indeed I do: I shall always remember your kindness."

Phineas led the way back into the outer office and graciously assisted the visitor into his coat. Julian, dazzled by the brilliant gift, entirely overlooked the fact that his license was gone.

When his guest had departed, Phineas sat down at his desk, lit a cigar and chuckled. Then he laughed, long and softly. By-and-by some one came up the stairs, two steps at a time. The door was flung open and Julian dashed in. He was panting and his face was red with running. He was very much excited.

"I have lost my marriage license," he cried. "I must have left it here. I hadn't gone a block when I missed it. It must be here."

"What does it look like?" asked Phineas slowly.

"It was on a long Manila envelope in my outside pocket," Julian explained.

Phineas threw back his head and slowly blew out a great cloud of smoke.

"Why, yes, I did see such an envelope." He paused to flick the ashes from his cigar. "I was sure it must hold some important document, so I put it in my safe that no harm might come to it."

"Oh, then I can get it," said Julian, and he breathed a sigh of relief.

"No, I'm afraid you can't. The time-lock is set for Monday morning. No power short of dynamiting the building can open that door before then," answered Phineas cooly.

The room had grown dark, but not too dark to prevent Phineas seeing Julian go white as death. He stood there silent, motionless. Finally he spoke. His voice was harsh and tired.

"That means," he said, "that I shall be penniless."

Phineas said nothing. He merely smiled. Suddenly the boy spoke, and his eyes lit up. "I don't care if I am a pauper, so long as I have May."

"It is not likely that she will care to marry you, now that you've lost your money," and Phineas laughed merrily.

"That isn't true. You know it's me she cares for—not the money," exclaimed Julian.

Phineas drummed idly with his fingers on his desk. He was becoming bored.

"Perhaps," he murmured indifferently.

Julian said no more, but turned and went out. Phineas sat in the darkness for a long time. He did not know how long, for he was absorbed in pleasant schemings. The ringing of the 'phone at his elbow brought him out of his reverie.

"Hello."

"This is Julian," came the voice on the wire.

"Humph."

"Cousin Phineas, the marriage license is not in your safe. May had it in her handbag. She put it there this afternoon while I was at the minister's, for she was afraid I would lose it. But in watching an Italian organ grinder and his monkey, she forgot all about the license and gave me the empty envelope. We should be delighted to see you at the wed—"

Phineas let the receiver drop.

"Well, I'll be —" but why go into details? Fate had tricked Cousin Phineas.

California "Filibusters."

What a moment for the brave little woman warrior!

"And this was not the last of her brave deeds. When the awful epidemics of cholera and yellow fever broke out, she was at the bedside of the suffering, relieving them, and in many instances saving their lives.

"My father was Vice-President and Secretary of State in the new government. Of course Walker was too wise to accept the Presidency, although it had been offered him, and remained commander-in-chief of the army. My father took possession of the steamers belonging to Commodore Vanderbilt, on Lake Nicaragua, being instructed to do so by Walker, although he disapproved the measure, predicting the disaster that it precipitated later. He visited the southern States to raise additional forces, at Augusta, Ga., rallying 800 men with ample arms and provisions. He had negotiated with Garrison and Morgan to convey these men to Nicaragua, when he heard of the capture of Walker by Commodore Paulding, by instructions from Washington. Later my father was sent by Walker to Washington, and was on his way by boat to St. Louis when the boiler exploded, and the craft caught fire. My father carried my mother to shore in his arms." Shortly afterward the son, conceived amid the grime of battle, was born.

Before Kewen was able to reach Washington, he received news of the disasters which had befallen Walker. An agent of Vanderbilt assumed control of the San Juan River, gaining possession of every available vessel, and forcing the Americans to appeal to the British fleet, in order to save themselves from starvation. "American capitalists had set up the filibuster dynasty in Nicaragua," writes W. O. Scroggs, "and it was American capitalists that pulled it down." Walker made his last stand at Rivas, not realizing his final defeat by disease and desertion. He became the victim of treachery, when Capt. Salmon, a British naval officer, lured Walker into his power, then wantonly delivered him over to the Guatemalan authorities. The intrepid general was court-martialed and executed before Kewen could get to the proper authorities to save his friend. "Walker was neither the agent of capitalists nor the tool of slavery propagandists," declares Scroggs. "Animated by personal ambition, he desired to form out of the weak Central American States a military empire with himself at the head."

Edward Kewen had been elected Attorney-General by the State Legislature soon after his arrival in California. In 1858 he became a resident of Los Angeles, was elected District Attorney, and twice served a term in Congress. He was always exceedingly popular both in public and in private life. He was one of the sixty remaining members of the old Phalanx that for many years met annually in commemoration of the brave old days. The only survivors now are old Gen. Jamison, 98 years old, Baldwin and Rogers. At the last banquet, which Jamison came all the way from Oklahoma to attend in this city, Perry Kewen, the son of Col. Kewen, was elected a member of the Phalanx, and decorated with the blue, white and blue, and the jeweled dagger.

After the fighting was over, Ned Sanders was reported killed, and his total disappearance was accepted by his widow as corroborative.

Rogers, in the meantime, had returned to Sacramento where Mrs. Sanders lived. The two married. Not so very long afterward, the situation was disrupted by the return of the supposedly dead man. Sanders was no Enoch Arden. He challenged Rogers to a duel. "You've taken my wife away from me, and I'm going to kill you!" he cried. When the handkerchief was dropped, Sanders aimed at Rogers's heart, and Rogers shot into the air. No harm was done. The performance was repeated with the same result. When this happened the third time, both men threw down their weapons. Rogers approached Sanders and silently extended his hand. Sanders spurned it, and rushed blindly away. The poor fellow met his death through dissipation within the year. Rogers and Mrs. Sanders afterward went through the marriage ceremony once more.

The one other so-called filibuster leader in the State was Henry A. Crabb, a Stockton lawyer. He had served in the Assembly, and one term in the Senate. He is credited by some with the authorship of the bill to allow slave holders who had come to the State of California before its admission to the Union, to take back their negroes into bondage. He was a picturesque, but—if history be true—a not over-scrupulous filibuster. He gave his men free license in looting homes and sacred edifices, and perhaps in other crimes. Their expedition to Sonora ended as such ventures usually end—the men surrendered through the treacherous promises of the Mexicans, and they were summarily executed. It would seem that a boy of 15, Charles E. Evans, was the only member of the band spared. Crabb's head was cut off and preserved in a jar of muscatel.

The Sacrifice. By George Rankin Allen.

HELEN'S DAUGHTER.

WITH a growing sense of envy—and shame—Helen watched her daughter's lithe motions, swift and certain with the confidence of youth. Envy of the glorious young life: shame that she could harbor such a thought.

Lightly clad, her blonde hair flaunting undaunted with the breze, Lois served the winning ball at a speed which brought a cry of admiration from the young man playing opposite.

A sense of lassitude which Helen had been fighting all the morning overpowered her. Looking across the net to Robert, she called out, with a forced smile:

"You play the next set with Lois, alone. I think she can make you stretch yourself. I'm getting too old to keep up with you young folks, anyway."

Robert stared at her amazed.

"Why, Helen," he protested, "what in the world are you talking about?"

Helen tried to laugh it off. She had tried to make her voice appear natural, but was aware she had failed, as one always does under such circumstances.

She glanced uneasily at Lois. The young girl made no comment, but stood there, juggling her racket skillfully, as if completely disinterested in Helen's actions.

With a woman's insight of her own sex, Helen felt that her daughter had read her.

"Ready!" commanded Lois, with a hint of defiance. She fingered a ball gingerly preparatory to tossing it in the air.

Robert walked slowly back to the line and took his position.

From her seclusion on the porch Helen watched the game. Lois played with even more than her usual dash; but Robert, it seemed to Helen, lagged.

Helen's husband had been many years her senior. She had been what is humorously called "an old man's darling"—although the humor lies on the outside. From the hour of the engagement into which she had let herself be led until the hour of her widowhood she had sought to do her duty by him. But she had never loved him in the way a young girl dreams of loving. And he, for his part, with a philosophy and restraint which she learned to reverence, had contented himself with what she gave him freely.

His death had left her still a young girl. Without any prejudice against a second marriage, she had nevertheless remained single. But now, ten years after her husband's death, there had come into her life this belated passion.

What was wrong about it? she asked herself bitterly. The accidental fact that it was the woman who was the oldest? Why not the woman?

But after she had fought down this objection, one still remained—the real one. One which her own heart would not permit her to gainsay. Every day made it plainer that Lois, too, was in love with the handsome young physician. And in a contest with Lois, with youth, beauty and charm all on one side, there could be but one outcome.

Again the injustice of Fate struck her poignantly. At Lois's age love could mean nothing—a mere girlish affair such as she might have a dozen of and be none the worse for. But for her, Helen, it would be different. Never again would this deep-hued flower be extended her. With this offering, the chapter in her life entitled Romance would close.

But although she argued the question defiantly, only too well she knew there would be no contest. Was not Lois her own substance—the very breath of her life? The touch of jealousy she felt toward her now was undeniable. Her cheek flushed at the acknowledgment of it. But above and beyond everything she would place her child's happiness. Whatever the sacrifice, if it was for her, she would not falter.

Her gaze followed affectionately Lois's quick, lithe movements—her coquettish airs and graces as she laughed and flirted with Robert.

A well-matched pair, truly—no eye so prejudiced as to deny that. Both afire with the joy of living. She so slender, so lithe: he so strong, so powerful.

The ache in Helen's heart grew too sharp to endure. She fled to her own room, where she could give vent to her grief.

Facing her reflection in the mirror, she studied it impartially. The relentless light of day fell full on her face. She looked first for the telltale lines round her eyes—they were there. And two deep furrows which she had not noticed before showed vertically above each corner of her mouth. She knew their mission. They told their own story. To all the world they proclaimed an old woman's envy and disappointment.

The tide of bitterness reached its flood, and began to ebb.

How could she have changed so much in so short a time? What was different from yesterday—from that very morning, when she had jumped so eagerly to accept Robert's challenge?

She paced to room defiantly, tossing her head to recover her courage. Again she paused before the fateful mirror and dared its verdict. It showed her a figure fit for a goddess—perhaps not the slim, fast lines of a girl, but the rich curves of a woman. A face undeniably pretty: some would say beautiful; a complexion white and clear, with large dark eyes and heavy lashes. Hair black and luxuriant, with not a hint of gray—yes, no use to deceive herself: two gray hairs she had plucked furtively a week or so before. But they left no hint behind them. As for the two deep furrows, they were transient: unless she nursed them on envy, they would disappear.

Taking heart from her meditation, she returned to her place on the porch.

Robert and Lois had apparently finished their set. They were standing on opposite sides of the net. Something about their attitudes suggested a disagreement. Robert was searching the ground awkwardly, while Lois scanned the horizon.

As Robert looked up and saw Helen, he made a remark in a low tone, and they both came forward.

"Who won?" Helen called out, with an affectation of gayety.

"Robert, of course." Lois gave a slight inflection to the words which wounded Helen, without her being able to detect just why.

Robert sprawled in one of the porch chairs. Lois cast an enigmatic glance at her mother, and then continued on up to her room.

When she had gone, Robert gathered himself together in a more conventional attitude. Once or twice he glanced nervously toward Helen. Without appearing to watch him, she was acutely aware of his every motion.

"Helen——" He ended abruptly where he began. His voice sounded parched.

Her heart leaped forward alarmingly. Something warned her what was coming—warned her, too, that she ought not let him go on. But if she could not possess the flower, enough of Eve was in her to desire the perfume. She would at least hear what he had to say. This much she told herself was her due.

She waited expectantly for him to continue. But he remained silent.

"Were you going to say something?" she asked, in a voice as indifferent as she was able to make it.

He looked up with a jerk.

"Why, er—I was thinking of something else," he replied irrelevantly, his face crimson and white mottles.

Helen's heart sank. Was it all an illusion, after all? Had she fallen so low as to cheat herself with fancies which belonged only to youth? Had she reached the stage where people could quote ancient proverbs at her? She burned with shame.

"I say, Helen," Robert burst out abruptly, an unnatural huskiness in his voice which started every nerve in her body tingling, "what did you mean by that tommyrot about leaving us young folks to play together? Have I ever done anything to deserve that?"

She knew now that it was coming. And though the pain of refusing him was going to wring her beyond the bearing point, her senses sprang exultantly to meet him.

She snatched a quick but keen glance at his face. It looked drawn and pale—but set. And the fact that it cost him such an effort, what other men spoke so lightly, thrilled her with pride.

"Why, Robert," she parried, "what do you mean?"

Her own emotion showed in her voice. She wondered if he had noticed it.

"You know well enough what I mean, Helen," he said directly. "What has come over you, with this new pose of your being a grown-up woman and I just a 'kid.' I'm 26 years old—that's a pretty good-sized 'kid,' isn't it?"

He tried to laugh, but succeeded none too well.

She braced herself to the task ahead of her.

"I didn't mean at all to imply that you were a 'kid,' as you say, Robert. Only, really, you are, compared with me," she turned off jokingly, with a pained laugh. "I'm 35, you know."

It seemed to her that he recognized what this cost her. He half sprang from his chair and leaned toward her.

"You needn't brag about it so, if you are," he retorted. "I expect to reach that advanced age myself, with a fair amount of luck. And I presume there are people even older than that, if you looked far enough, who get around without wheel-chairs."

"Thanks for suggesting the wheel-chair," she returned.

"Now, Helen," he pleaded, "don't misunderstand everything. What have I done, anyhow? You know I don't care anything about your age. I don't want to talk slush—but you must know how much I care for you. I might just as well tell you now, Helen——"

She reached out her hand passionately and stopped him. They had both risen to their feet, apparently unconsciously.

"Don't, Robert, please don't," she begged him. "I mustn't listen to you. It isn't right. Why, I'm old enough to be your mother." She tried to laugh it off.

"You'll have to do better than that, Helen," he came back, with a trace of bitterness. "That's hardly original, you know. Just tell me one thing"—his voice grew tense—"Do you care for me at all?"

Helen turned abruptly away. She felt that she dared not show him her face.

"Don't force me to answer that, Robert," she said gently.

He grew very white.

"I understand," he answered, after a moment. "I see now what you have been driving at. I suppose it was kind to try to head me off. But I had to have it hammered into me."

With a great effort she whipped her resolution to the sticking point.

"It was just a mistake, Robert, that's all," she said evenly. "I DO think a great deal of you. But I hoped you were growing fond of Lois—I am sure she thinks a great deal of you."

Lois's clear young voice singing from "The Chocolate Soldier" came from the garden at the side of the house. Perhaps she suspected she might take them unawares.

Robert turned his head quickly in her direction. The act shot a bitter pang into Helen's breast.

"There is Lois, now," she said coldly. "You had better go talk to her. I must go upstairs."

He swung quickly toward her. She met his gaze bravely.

But suddenly her nerves relaxed. Her eyes threatened to betray her—she averted them precipitately.

"Good-by," she barely uttered, and turned and left him.

In her own room she sank weakly into a chair. She had made the sacrifice. Was the consciousness of it, as is often said, its own reward?

She was too exhausted to think. For a long time she sat there, unheeding, uncaring. Far down the walk she heard footsteps. They grew fainter, fainter, as something passing out of her life.

When at length she roused herself, her eye fell on the photograph of a man well past the fevers of youth. It was not new to her. For ten years it had stood there, day after day, looking out on her with a fond gaze, longing, but foregoing.

She saw it now with a new insight. She picked it up and studied it. There was a brave, unyielding philosophy about the expression which gripped her. So, too, perhaps, had he suffered, as she now was suffering.

Somehow this silent communion brought peace—gave her strength to face what she must face.

She did not want to appear as if she were secluding herself. She viewed herself again in the mirror. She looked harrowed, but less bitter. Erasing as well as she could any trace of her grief, she descended the stairs to await the return of Robert and Lois.

As she entered the living-room a tall figure sprang up before her.

"Robert!" she gasped. "I—I thought you had gone."

"I came inside to think," he answered. "It did not seem fair to leave you that way."

Ice and flame played havoc with Helen's resolution. She had fought valiantly, and had won—but to fight the battle all over again, in her exhausted state! It was beyond her powers. She could not. She let go her hold.

"I have been pondering all this time what you told me," Robert went on. His voice seemed to have a new note of mastery. "I want to follow out your wishes in regard to Lois. I AM fond of her. And I hope she is fond of me, and will grow still fonder—as a girl should, of her father. For that is what I am going to be to her."

Helen did not speak—nor did she move. White and trembling, she let her gaze meet his.

"You may be the oldest, Helen," he told her, "as you will always be the best. But I'm the meanest. And I'm going to have what I want—and I want you!"

Her strength failed her utterly—her nerveless limbs refused longer to support her. Her breath caught—she tottered dizzily.

Robert spread out his arms and gathered her in.

The Roast Beef of England.

[Washington Post:] "In England, Scotland and Wales the cost of living may have climbed just as it has in other parts of the world, but there never will be a time when beef prices will reach the high figure at which they are sold in this country," remarked F. D. Clayton of Milwaukee, an old pork packer of that city, at the Willard.

"Last year I was in Wales and walked into a butcher shop in one of the principal cities. I saw a fine cut of beef that would have been priced in this country at 35 to 40 cents a pound. I asked the butcher what it was selling at, and he replied:

"'That's the best cut of beef in Wales and it is worth 20 cents a pound. That particular cut is going to Lord Roberts.'

"Conditions are not such that high prices as we have in America ever can prevail. There is no disposition among the dealers to boost the prices when occasion gives them a chance to take advantage of conditions that would seem to presage a shortage and resultant higher prices."

A New Rifle Grenade.

[Popular Mechanics:] The rifle grenade has already been adopted in some countries as an integral part of the soldier's equipment, and is likely to come into general use among the armies of the world. It is expected that it will to a great extent supplant the use of the bayonet and do away with the necessity for close-quarter fighting, as it will provide a means for attacking trenches and covered positions and rendering them untenable without recourse to hand-to-hand combat. The grenades can be fired singly or in volleys and the effect of volley firing with such weapons would probably be astounding. In hilly country especially, where the bringing into action of field pieces is extremely difficult, the use of the grenade will prove of incalculable benefit to the troops equipped with it.

Ticklish Suspension Bridge Work.

[Popular Mechanics:] The most interesting and dangerous-looking stage in the construction of a suspension bridge is the building of the floor. In this work the builders have nothing to rest their work on and must build out each way from the towers, securing the floor, piece by piece, to the heavy steel bars suspended from the main cables far above. The work is done with derricks that are equipped with booms long enough to reach out ahead of the finished structure and hold the girders suspended while they are being riveted in place. As each section of the floor is completed, the derricks are moved ahead and the construction of the next section is begun.

Wild Gardens.

SOME OF THE CONDITIONS WHICH ARE ESSENTIAL.

CALIFORNIA should contain the finest wild gardens of any section of this country, for on every possible point or phase nature comes to our aid with most unusual offerings. The wild garden is not one needing no care or attention, yet it should require but a minimum of either.

The term "wild garden" merely indicates an absence of formalism, unnatural effects, evidences of man's interference with nature and all obtrusion upon the scene of man-made or man-built objects. Therefore rockwork in such gardens must not be overdone in design, but should consist only of work the counterpart of which may be found in nature. Arbors must not only be made of rustic material, but of natural design, and so covered with one sort of vine as to give the impression of being a natural retreat.

Roads and paths must not be formally outlined with cement or wooden curbs or rows of stones or so outlined that some design is shown. Their with, direction, and extent should be somewhat indefinite and obscure. Planting must not be in rows, or formal beds or clumps, but in masses and undefined outline. Everything should be rather carelessly disposed, and over all should hang an air of comfort, somewhat of seclusion and yet one of sufficiency without "finish."

Wild gardens should be informal in outline, and a rough or broken topography will lend strongly to desirable effects. A canyon, wash, hollow, any rough and unfinished piece of ground will make an admirable and attractive site. A little water, preferably running, or a pond will help materially. In California, where such a garden may be visited and enjoyed every day of the year, we should have many. Our native vegetation will allow the veriest minimum of care and yet produce leaf and flower and perennial results throughout all seasons. In this climate wild gardens should prove of greater value and attractiveness than elsewhere, for it is essentially a style most peculiarly suited to our needs—a really natural California product.

First Year's Pruning.

THIS week we illustrate how the tree shown on this page last week looked after its first pruning, at one year after planting. The tree was topped at ten feet high and each branch was left a stub of six inches to a foot long.

The proper time to prune these trees (the Silver Wattle) is during spring. Immediately thereafter it starts out with a vigorous growth, and upon this growth are soon set the buds for the next spring's crop of blossoms. If pruning is done later, a shorter season is left for growth, the flower crop will be cut away, and the tree trunk may be uncovered just before a hot spell which would badly scorch the tender bark.

None of the branches are cut off close to the trunk the first year for the reason that they are needed to grow shade for the trunk, to avoid sun-scald of the tender bark. After another summer's growth the bark on the base of the trunk will have become much thicker, tougher and somewhat rough. If lower branches are in the way they may be pruned off with a small-toothed sharp saw, just as close to the trunk as one may cut this fall; a clean smooth cut, with a little paint put on it, will quickly heal over. All the cuts on tree shown were painted as soon as pruned, and while this is excellent practice, it is by no means necessary.

If this season's growth rivals that of the past season, the branches will all grow ten or more feet in length, as this is a very vigorous and responsive tree. Next spring, after the flowers have faded, all branches up to at least six feet above the surface of the soil should be cut away. Even now these trees should be root-pruned by digging down and cutting all roots within one foot of the surface. As all trees have ample supporting stakes, this would not endanger the tree. Next spring, after all branches have been cut back to two feet in length, all roots within eighteen inches should be cut away, to induce a deep root system. After that the roots may be left to care for themselves. Thus treated the roots will be far enough below the surface so that neither curb nor sidewalk will be broken, nor will trees be blown over when a high wind follows a rain. The roots will also be far enough below the surface not to rob the parkway lawn or ground cover. This root-and-branch pruning has been practiced with the Silver Wattle in the writer's garden in years past. The trees shown are those aligning the streets around Inglewood's park system and were planted, cared for, and pruned according to the present writer's specifications. The total number, over 100, made an average growth of twenty feet in height during the first year after planting. The Silver Wattle cannot be pruned too much.

The New Pentstemons.

AT THE last meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, a private gardener, W. W. Felgate, showed a collection of pentstemons, grown at the country home of Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow, that far surpasses any ever seen in this State, especially for size. Among the scores of gardeners present none had ever seen anything to equal them, and all were astounded at the unusual size. This is partially due to the excellent care bestowed on the plants, but due chiefly to the superior quality of this strain of pentstemons. It is not known to the writer that any of them are on sale locally, and the seeds came from England.

Man's Limits and Ambitions.

[South Bend News-Times:] Every one has a limit. Disease, accident, competition of others, obstruction by natural laws may make that limit, regardless of our thinking. Our salvation lies in the fact that we don't know our limit, and so we wisely go struggling onward and upward. We can not think ourselves into any sort of substantial success. We may think ourselves into a state of complete self-satisfaction, but that state is per se a limit, and it is one of the most dangerous of limits. To say that we are unlimited in possibilities is to say that we are creators, which we are not, nor ever can hope to be. We simply rearrange arranged things. This is a vast field that we have as yet barely touched, and we might say that its possibilities are unlimited while present day man in that field is limited. Well is it that man does not know his limit. That ignorance is what keeps progress going. Complete mastery, perfection, is the bundle of sweet hay tied upon man's bridle, just out of reach of his mouth, to make him keep up a smart gait toward home. He thinks he can get it. He keeps on going. It is well.

Standard or Tree Roses.

THIS department has been asked about tree roses for this climate, and our answer is: "Don't," and would be the same in any climate. In this climate and also arid atmosphere, the stem, cane, or standard needs to be protected from the sun. Even in the East the best results are obtained through wrapping the stems with moss, an unsightly support at any time of the year. Tree roses are bare and insufficient in appearance, always ill-balanced on the stem, and generally need support. In California many are literally burned to death by the sun. All should have a support other than the natural one, and in summer a supporting lath, so placed as to shield the stem from sun, is a most necessary precaution. Those who wish them may grow them, but the advice of this department is, if you wish roses above the heads of the average bush rose, to grow climbing varieties, either on pillars, arbors, fence, or house. Nowhere do they grow more luxuriantly nor yield a heavier crop of blossoms. For all uses and in all positions the climbing rose is superior to the tree rose.

France Has a New Mushroom.

[Kansas City Journal:] Prof. Matruchot, the eminent French botanist, has succeeded in evolving a new and delicious edible mushroom. It has been cultivated from the wild fungi which grow in the woods and only appear in the late autumn months. A number were planted in the vast cellars of the Paris observatory, and by careful treatment a mushroom was created which grows all the year round. The stem is eight inches high and the head four to six inches in diameter. The new variety has been given the name of "tricholoma nudum." Its flavor is most delicate and captivating. The color of the stems of the first specimens obtained was a purplish blue, but this is gradually disappearing under extended cultivation. The head is of a silky white, the inside a delicate cream.

Encourage Bulbous Growth.

DO NOT stop watering bulb beds when tops turn yellow, but keep soil moist until all tops are dead. Some intelligence must be used in following this advice. With gladiolus of all sorts watering should stop when tops turn yellow, but this stage is not reached for some time after blooming, and in the meantime new corms, or bulbs, and also bulblets or multipliers, are growing. A few tops will doubtless die from a disease which is quite prevalent this year, but this must not be taken as sign of dormancy.

Other bulbs now just past blooming, as Spanish iris, for example, will very quickly lose their tops after flowering. No risk is run by constant watering for a month yet. In like manner watering of daffodil or narcissus beds may be still longer maintained without harm to the bulbs. On the contrary, such watering will prove an aid to development of bulbs. The only danger comes from lack of drainage, and all beds for bulbs should be provided with excellent drainage or good flowers cannot be grown. Many leave all the sorts of bulbs mentioned in the soil year after year, watering soil all the time, and still the bulbs live from year to year. By this it will be seen that a curing or ripening spell of dry treatment is not necessary, though good practice.

Alkmaar, the Great Cheese Market of North Holland

By Mary Richards Gray.

DUTCH INDUSTRY.

ALKMAAR is the great cheese market of North Holland. In quaint old Alkmaar on market Fridays as many as 100,000 of the much prized Edam cheeses are handled. As a matter of fact, Market Friday might be termed Market Thursday so much of the work that makes possible expeditious business on Friday is done on Thursday and during the night intervening. From all parts of the province round about in quaint old carts and canal boats and quainter costumes come the farmers with the products of their wonderful dairies to make leisurely preparations and secure advantageous places for the crucial hour on Friday, which, excepting Sunday, is the most important day of the week. Then the villagers and peasantry, arrayed in the distinctive garbs of their own particular countryside, turn out in numbers. On market day it is not sinful to stand around the street, watch the bustle and excitement, visit, and pass the news around. Besides every good housewife, the while she lends eyes and ears to the diversions of the hour, also makes use of the precious minutes by knitting. If the day is cloudy or cold, the restaurants offer good cheer along with bread and cheese. Up to the very hour the market opens one gets little idea of modern business done after modern methods; then having seen it one gasps and wonders if what he has seen can be reality.

The big, square opening on a broad canal running through the town serves for the market, and it is given over wholly to cheese. It is commodious, stone paved, immaculately clean. On two sides are tall buildings. The Weigh House, which dominates the square and the town as well, with its 20,000 population, occupies the third. Once it was the Church of the Holy Ghost, but was remodeled for its present utilitarian purpose in 1582 and furnished with its tall tower and carillon with moving figures a few years later. And whether the price of cheese is up or down, regardless of wind and weather, year in and out, the bells chime dance tunes, hymns, or a wedding march with careless disregard of surroundings.

On the well-scrubbed pavement each Dutch farmer displays his caseous wares. Unwritten laws as fixed as those of the Medes and Persians require just certain ways of handling and arranging the cheeses. In the carts and boats in which they are brought to market they are packed in several layers with boards between, but when spread out it is always in two layers. The piles run in size from a few dozens up to 800 or 900. In handling the carefully molded red and yellow balls long practice has made the Dutchmen adepts. Always two or three do the moving and unloading of each consignment. The first man begins by taking two cheeses, one in each hand, and tosses them to the second man. If the distance to be covered is not more than twenty-five feet, the two men can manage; if greater, a third assists. Barely does a man make a miss. The speed of the throwers is not great, yet just before the market opens when the late comers arrive, the red and yellow balls fairly fly through the air in a mad game. To improve the appearance of their wares and give them a fresh, attractive look, each Dutchman greases the rinds of the cheeses with oil. For the rest he depends upon the quality of his home-manufactured product and a good display.

Precisely at 10 o'clock the market opens. The Dutch farmers go to bargaining with the wholesalers with whom they deal every week with as much interest as if the maneuverings had the charm of novelty, while the latter, feel, smell, examine closely and taste cheese that never falls below a high standard of excellence. The bargain made, buyer and seller strike their hands together to signify that they have arranged preliminaries. Hereupon the porters, old men dressed in spotless white, with gay colored hats from which fly bright colored ribbons, appear with long, sled-like trays. The cheeses are piled on these, which the old men suspend from their shoulders and carry to the scales in the Weigh House. On the capacious lower floor are four great scales presided over by four masters in high silk hats and long frock coats who superintend the weighing of the cheese, furnish checks from which the owners can estimate the values and consummate their sales. Later the cheese is carried to the different warehouses, whence it is shipped to all parts of the world. So expert are the farmers and porters in handling cheese that the business takes but a short time, though the quantities handled are enormous.

Leisurely and old-fashioned are town and townsmen, and until the market hour is over one does not wake to the realization that business can be and really is done here with almost the rush and expedition of a great American city. In Alkmaar yearly disposition is made of 5000 tons of cheese, or more than half the output of the province.

Alkmaar, twenty miles out from Amsterdam, is reached by rail or canal boat, and the trip to it through the country, all below the level of the sea, is most picturesque. Among the cities of the Low Country it holds an honored place because in the wars with Spain that once threatened the independence of Holland its inhabitants were the first successfully to withstand the attacks of a foreign overlord. Now a world demand for Edam cheese makes it possible for the little city to hold a pre-eminent place.

A Reconstructed Dog.

STORY OF A CANINE OF THE CIVIL WAR.

By Louise Emory Greyton.

My story is of a dog which first saw the light during the latter days of the Civil War.

While the cavalry command of Gen. John S. Mosby was camping in the wilds of Virginia, information was brought to that officer that a much larger body was advancing upon them, and orders were given for a precipitate flight, and at once the soldiers were galloping away, leaving all their camping outfit behind.

When the Union soldiers rode into the camp, all was still, save that in the tent of the commanding officer were found two small Scotch terriers, which were bristling with indignation at finding themselves in the hands of Union soldiers.

A young surgeon took possession of one, and named him Gen. Mosby, and in a short time took him to his home, a short distance over the border in Pennsylvania, and, being compelled to return to his regiment, left him with the physician in whose office he had studied.

He was a homely little fellow, with rough yellow hair, and his ears and tail had been cut off; but when he looked in your face with his large, black, pathetic eyes, he won your heart at once.

He soon became a favorite in the town and followed anyone who gave him encouragement. One day he would be seen on the high seat of a coal wagon, leaning affectionately against the driver, and perhaps the next in a lady's phaeton, on the seat close to its occupant.

For a long time he was unable to forget his birth and early southern breeding, and when he saw a man in gray he fawned upon him, and was not satisfied unless he noticed him; while if a man in blue hove in sight, he bristled at once, and was ready to tear him in pieces, and intervention was necessary.

The physician to whom he had been given was obliged to part with him, as he had been taught to forage in the army, and killed his chickens, bringing them into the house and laying them down at the cook's feet.

He was sent to a farm, but severed the rope with which he was tied, in one night, killed about thirty ducks, and returned to town, and on being driven away from his old home set about finding another.

The town of 8000 inhabitants had been burned by the Confederates, and the residents were only erecting their back buildings, and one of them was already occupying his home. The mistress of the house was very fond of animals, and had been in the habit of feeding and petting "Gen. Mosby" when he came into her yard, as he often did.

For several nights she heard a little dog bark about the house, and on looking around in the morning, saw where he had made a bed in the kindling box, among the shavings. She made a good bed for him, fed and petted him until he was glad to adopt it as his home and stray about the town no more unless following a member of the family. When the cool nights came he was taken into the house, and then the work of reconstruction commenced. His hatred of the Union uniform showed on all occasions.

When his master was putting up his front building, a tall negro who had been in the army wore his blue trousers to mix mortar, and whenever he went into the back yard for water Mosby fiercely barred his way, and his mistress was obliged to punish him and shut him up.

One morning she said to the negro: "Have you another pair of pants you can wear to work? Mosby doesn't like Union uniforms." Next morning he came clad in a pair of plasterer's breeches, and went in and out as he pleased, without being molested by the dog.

When his friends went to an ice-cream parlor, across the street, they would take Mosby with them, and a saucer also for his use. Once, about a week or more after they had been there, the lady who conducted the place came over and wanted to know if her neighbor knew that Mosby came over every evening after dark, scratched at the door, and on its being opened, gave them to understand he wanted ice cream, and as they knew he was a very much indulged dog, it was given him.

"All right," said the indulgent master, "let him have it when he comes, and send me the bill at the end of each week." And the rations were continued during the summer.

He had one miserable trick which took patience to break. When a man went by on a fast horse, he would make a spring and catch the horse's tail, then draw up his hind legs and hang, which threw the horse on its haunches suddenly, naturally endangering the rider. One day, when this had happened, the horseman was very angry, and when his mistress went to punish him, Mosby came back slowly, limping, whining as though terribly injured and suffering fearfully, and holding up one foot to her. She thought the horse had stepped on him, and he was sufficiently punished, and she stooped to ascertain his injuries. He winced and whined when she touched the foot, and after she had petted and sympathized with him for a while, he gave a joyful bark and ran off gaily without any sign of an injured foot. That was his ruse to escape punishment.

When following some member of the family, he would rush into a grocery store, pick up some vegetable or fruit within his reach, small enough for him to carry, and take it home, showing he had been trained to forage in the army.

When he grew old he ceased to be tricky, and had long given up his love of the Gray and hatred of the Blue.

When his master took his evening walk, Mosby was to be seen following at his heels, and if he sat down on a step or box anywhere to talk with friends, Mosby sprang up close to his side, and looked from one to the other as though he understood the conversation, and no younger, playful dogs, nor anything else, could tempt him from his position.

He had long been taught to let horses alone, and also to give up killing chickens, and his friends believed him to be thoroughly reconstructed.

It is not known how old he was when captured, but his frolicsome nature proved him to be quite young, although full grown.

He contracted a disease which puzzled his friends, but from which he died at the supposed age of thirteen or fourteen years.

[Cardiff (Wales) Mail:] "How did you make your fortune?"

"By horse racing."

"Not betting?"

"No; I started a pawnshop just outside the race course for the people who wanted to get home when the races were over."

"Home, Sweet Home" - For Wife and Mother. For Daughter and Maid.

THE CHILDREN.

In Placing Nursery.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] A southeast exposure is best for the nursery, and a room that is remote from the noise is preferred. Dark shades should be placed at the windows so that the early summer sunshine will not disturb the children. A baby should sleep by itself and have its regular bedtime as well as regular hours for the day nap. A warm bath every night during the warm season relaxes the little muscles which have been under constant strain all day, and induces a sweet, refreshing sleep. A good powder for baby's tender skin is prepared by scorching four parts of corn starch and adding when cool one part of powdered boric acid.

For a good all-round rug in a room where children run about, an army blanket is just the thing. It clings to the floor, and dust does not go through it. It sweeps easily and washes without any shrinking or wrinkling.

Colors in Sand Hill.

A sand pile will hold the children's interest longer if some colored marbles, shells and pebbles are mixed through it for them to discover as they dig. Some of the sand could also be colored. Beet juice will make a beautiful shade of red or pink; a drop of blueing will produce light blue and navy; a small amount of coffee will produce yellow and brown.

IN THE SEWING ROOM.

A Pretty Cap.

[Pittsburgh Gazette:] The following is an easy way to make a pretty cap: Cut a circle twenty inches in diameter out of dotted muslin or any other material. Put a three-inch hem all the way around the circle and sew narrow lace, an inch or so wider, straight on the outer edge of the hem. Run about twenty inches of elastic through the hem and fasten. Put a small ribbon bow on one side. They launder easily when the elastic is removed, as they are then but a flat circle.

Save Fatigue While Running Machine.

If you want to run a sewing machine all day and not tire, try putting one foot forward and the other back of the pedal. As this is a more natural motion than we have when both feet move side by side, as they so often do, or when the work is done by one foot alone, it is well worth trying. Use a comfortable chair and low enough to bring your work fairly near your eyes and make stooping unnecessary. This may seem awkward at first, but you will find that your sewing will be much easier.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

[National Magazine:] It will seldom or never be necessary to clean stove or furnace pipes if all potato parings are saved and thrown on the fire. A gas is formed that cleans the flues of all soot.

It is unnecessary spending time shelling peas. Wash and place pods in boiling water; when they crack, the peas go to the bottom and the pods float on the surface and may be skimmed off.

The ordinary tin funnel makes a handy device for holding a ball of twine. Place the twine in the funnel and draw the end through the small hole. Then hang in a convenient place in the kitchen and it will save you many steps.

Sponge the suit or dress with hot vinegar and press in usual manner. No odor of vinegar will remain, all the "shine" caused by wear will disappear, and the garment will look like new. The vinegar leaves no stain.

An occasional bath in hot soapsuds, to which a little ammonia has been added, will keep gold and silver bright. Wipe dry with a piece of flannel and polish with chamois skin. Steel buckles and buttons may be cleaned with silver polish and then rubbed bright with chamois skin.

Grass stains on white canvas shoes may be removed by wetting stains with camphor. To clean shoes use a damp cloth and a good scouring soap. Rub shoes clean, set in sun to dry, and then brush off powder with a brush.

If when cleaning with gasoline, you will use a brush dipped in it instead of a cloth, it will not leave a ring.

BEWARE THE MOTH.

Blotting Paper and Turpentine.

[Washington Star:] Blotting paper well saturated with turpentine is good to put in drawers among furs and bedclothes, or wherever there is any danger of moths working their depredations. It can also be put along the edges of carpets. The following is a dainty preventive: Take one-fourth of an ounce each of ground cloves and caraway seed, one ounce of dried common salt, one-half a pound of lavender flowers free from the stalk, and one-half ounce each of dried thyme and mint. Mix well together, and put in cambric or silk bags. These scent bags placed among clothes will keep them from moths and give a delightful odor.

Pleasant Odors Effective.

Allowing castoff clothing or pieces of cloth to accumulate in a promiscuous heap is an invitation to moths. Have such things brushed free from dust and then cleaned and packed away. Camphor, moth balls, etc., keep moths away because they object to the odor, but if moths are already present the things named do not prevent their hatching out. The odor of cedar is as much a protection against moths as is that of ill-smelling moth balls, and is far more agreeable. Moths do not like the odor.

If you have no cedar chest, sprinkle a little cedar oil on the newspaper or cloth which covers the garment. When putting away furs or woolen clothes first dust and air thoroughly, then sprinkle plentifully with common table salt. Wrap them securely in newspapers or seal them up in heavy paper bags. The salt will not injure the finest goods or furs.

FOR THE DINING ROOM.

Plain Linen for Table Use.

[Baltimore American:] Plain heavy linen makes very attractive tablecloths and napkins. It is used in a restaurant where the furnishings are all interesting, and it is used by some fastidious housewives. In the restaurant referred to it is quite satisfactory, for the cloth is changed naturally, for every diner. But in the ordinary household it has this one disadvantage. It does show wrinkles and spots more quickly than a heavy figured damask does. So if there is not a fresh cloth for every meal, damask may be a better choice.

But the linen is beautiful, and in any household it might be used for a special dinner set.

Brass for Brown Room.

Brass can be effectively used on the plate rail in a brown dining-room. Antique brass can be mixed with modern brass if it is carefully mixed; of course, however, a good collection of small brass—or bronze—antiques would make an ideal decoration for the brown dining-room. The plate rail, furnished in brass, can be brought into harmony with the rest of the room if brass andirons are used in the fireplace, brass fern dishes and jardinieres are used.

CARE OF FURNITURE.

For Cleansing, Sponge and Chamois.

Good polishers and cleaners can be made at home, says the San Jose Times. Taking the wooden parts of furniture first, there is nothing better for it than a sponging-off with cold water. This not only cleanses, but, as wood shrinks, the water supplies necessary moisture. A sponge should be used not too wet for the washing and a chamois wrung out of clear water (never a dry one) for the drying. The cloths should go in one direction. Sometimes the chamois will produce a polish. When it fails to do so rub briskly with a mixture of equal parts of turpentine, linseed oil and vinegar. A large bottleful should not cost more than 10 cents.

Home-made Polish.

Mix equal proportions of linseed oil, turpentine, vinegar and spirits of wine; shake the mixture well and rub on the furniture with a piece of soft cloth and polish with a clean duster. Vinegar or oil rubbed in with a flannel and the furniture rubbed with a clean duster produces a very good polish.

SUMMER LUNCHEONS.

Fruit-filled Cantaloupe.

[New York Sun:] A small cantaloupe cut in half makes an excellent cup for the serving of some other fruit, diced and flavored with wine or a dressing of fruit juice and sugar. Peaches cut in small cubes are a good choice, moistened with a little pineapple juice. Dried pineapple combines well with cantaloupe and the liquor from a small bottle of Maraschino cherries can be used as a dressing, with the cherries as a garnish. When using these small cantaloupes for a receptacle, all should be similar in size and their exteriors thoroughly scrubbed until they present an attractive appearance with every little gray marking showing distinctly on the greenish background.

Grape fruit and Orange Wheel.

A little wheel composed of four overlapping slices of orange arranged in the center of the plate, sprinkled with mint and with a sprig of mint sticking pertly in the center is an easily carried-out suggestion for a relish and alternating sections of grape fruit and orange similarly arranged are equally good served with a dressing flavored with Madeira or sherry.

PACKING YOUR TRUNK.

To Fold the Garments.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] There is nothing that looks so untidy as wrinkled gowns, and nothing that so takes away from your smart appearance as the crumpled look of an elaborate costume, so that an hour or two expended upon careful packing is not wasted.

No garment should ever be folded until it is perfectly dry. Every plaited skirt should have each plait carefully caught in place at the hem before packing. Then the skirt should be carefully folded with tissue paper in the fold, and it will come out of the trunk in perfect condition.

Use of Tissue Paper.

Tissue paper is an essential to good packing. It should be placed within every fold; it should be used to stuff out sleeves, bows and puffs, and to place around flowers and beneath feathers and to fill out vacant corners. It is light and does not add to the weight of luggage.

If there is an abundance of space in a trunk, it is a good idea to leave coats on hangers, first filling out the sleeves and fronts, but if this is not convenient, fold the coat inside out, placing the sleeves together, front touching front, then fold once lengthwise, with tissue paper in between, the sleeves also being kept in shape with a slight stuffing.

"Think of These Things."

[Atlantic Monthly:] Many images of wrong must of necessity come to the young; let them not be multiplied in our feverish and morbid fashion of today. Above all, let them be crowded out by constant suggestion of noble images and noble thought, which will work both consciously and subconsciously, shaping the dream when the dreamer is least aware. To hold up before the ardent and impressionable young that which they may become in strength, in purity, would surely be better than placing before them this perpetual moving picture show of our civic and national transgressions. I can but believe, as I read article after article of exposure, that this continued presentation to youth of the unholy side of life, with our increasing tendency to make education a mere matter of the intellect and of the eye, is bound to lessen the moral energy of the race. Would it not be better if we were more diligent in searching history, philosophy, literature, for "whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report," and in bidding the young think on these things?

[Kansas City Journal:] "Why doesn't somebody build on this vacant lot? You seem to be short on civic enterprise."

"Quite the contrary, stranger. The man who owns that lot has too much public spirit to build on it."

"How do you make that out?"

"That's where the circus shows when it comes to town."

HEARTSEASE.

Be Content and Have Faith.

[C. Kingsley:] Be not anxious about tomorrow. Do today's duty, fight today's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things which you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them. Enough for you that the God for whom you fight is just and merciful, for He rewardeth every man according to his work.

The Fogy and His Frost.

They are dancing tonight, but I stand
  And watch with my back to the wall
While they waltz to a rollicking band
  And find myself out of it all.
I glance at the girls who go by,
  And fancy they're laughing at me,
While I think of past days with a sigh
  When I, too, was but twenty-three.

Alas! I'm left out in the cold,
  My time for such pleasure is done,
And life seems no longer to hold
  Inducements to join in their fun.
In society what a dull part
  I must play with those ladies and men,
For they'll never look on me as smart
  Except—well, perhaps—with my pen!

Now it's over—they're going to bed,
  And I feel excessively glad
That when the good-nights have been said
  There's a glass and a pipe to be had.
Yes, while there's a smoke and some grog,
  All pleasure in life isn't lost;
So throw on another pine log,
  I'll be jolly in spite of my frost!

(Brief Suggestions Invited from Practical Housekeepers.)

Growing Herbs in England.

[London Globe:] Growing medicinal herbs is a very considerable industry in England. Throughout Surrey, Suffolk, Hertfordshire and Norfolk there are many large herb farms. Among the herbs chiefly grown are rue, wormwood, comfrey, horehound, peppermint, rosemary and lavender. The English oils of lavender and peppermint are particularly famous, bringing from two to five times as much as the same oils produced in other countries. Of late years the street sale of little bunches of fresh lavender, particularly in London, has consumed a considerable part of the annual supply.

Pittsburgh's Annual Sootfall.

[Indianapolis News:] The sootfall of Pittsburgh, as determined from careful measurements during the last year, ranges from 595 to 1950 tons a square mile per annum. The destructive possibilities of this immense deposit may be illustrated by stating that if an equal amount of lampblack were ground with oil so as to form black paint it would cover from seventeen to fifty-seven square miles with two coats. Statistics of sootfall at certain places in Great Britain are as follows: Industrial section of Leeds, 529 tons; center of London, 426 tons; Glasgow, 820 tons.

The Beautiful Cypress Trees.

[Breeders' Gazette:] Of all the trees in America the cypress is in summer the most beautiful. Ever fresh and green, its tiny leaflets resemble the choicest ferns. Young, it is a thing of charm; older, it is inspiring and interesting; mature, it becomes majestic, towering, with a long, straight, thick trunk, which makes the best of durable lumber. It is a tree of rapid growth. It is hardy anywhere in the corn belt, and southward it has no insect enemies or diseases. A man could plant a cypress tree in his lawn, enjoy its wonderful presence during his life, and his son might cut it and with the proceeds send the grandson to college for a year. What other tree will afford shade, add beauty and make fine lumber at the same time? Cypress trees transplant easily, though they should be mulched the first year and looked after occasionally. Once established, they are able to forage for themselves. Cypress leaves have been found unchanged in blocks of coal deep down in the earth.

islands seemed to float upon the waters. They looked like blue balloons rising from a sheet of silver rather than the outcroppings of the highest mountain chain on our hemisphere. Coati, the Island of the Moon, I remember, rose out of the lake in the shape of a gigantic mushroom of blue velvet. Another island looked like a huge whale, whose head and tail stood high above the water, and there were other optical illusions, due to the atmosphere, that seems to work here like the mirage over the desert.

There are hundreds of islands in Lake Titicaca. They are the tops of partially submerged mountains, the peaks of the Andes that are here up to their necks in the water. Most of the islands have hillsides covered with farms. There are many Indian huts. In places the hills are terraced so that they form great steps running around with the curving shores of the lake and covered with patches of potatoes, quinua and barley.

Upon these islands are ruins of the old Inca civilization. The Island of Titicaca, or as it is called the Island of the Sun, was where the first Inca appeared. It was there that the sun dropped down upon earth the first representative of civilized man, and from there he directed this man, Manco Capac, and Mama Oello, his wife, to take the golden rod he gave them and go forth and found a great city where it should sink into the earth. The Quichua Indians still reverence that island; and you may see there today the ruins of the temples of the Incas, the walls of which were bedded in gold.

Titicaca Island was especially holy. The Indians looked upon it as a garden of Eden and thought that the grain grown upon it was blessed by the sun. They brought soil from the mainland to build up its terraces, and the corn grown upon it was considered so precious that it sanctified and preserved all other grains. Therefore it was carried about over the country, and small portions of it were put in the public warehouses. It was also said that a man who could have as much as one grain of Titicaca Island corn in his storehouse would not lack for food during his lifetime. On this island is still shown the rock where Manco Capac and his sister wife stepped when they dropped down from the sky. They were, you know, the Adam and Eve of the Incas, to whom this rock was more sacred than Plymouth Rock is to us. It is said to have been plated with gold and kept covered with a veil. The temples about it were decorated with gold, which the Incas looked upon as the solidified tears of the sun.

About six miles from Titicaca is the Island of the Moon. This island is now called Coati. In coming to Guaqui, as we wound our way around the peninsula of Copocabana, we skirted its shores, and with our glasses could see the ruins that still stand on the hillsides. Here was the Temple of the Moon and the palace of the wife of the Inca, and here also was the great convent where lived the virgins of the sun. The ruins show the remains of many moons, surrounding a court. They are high upon terraces, the walls of which the put together without cement. The stones join as closely as those in the fortifications of Sacsahuaman, or in the temples of Cuzco.

It was inside that convent that were kept the loves of the Incas, who also acted as priestesses to the sun. According to tradition, none could be admitted to this life except maidens of royal descent, who in their earliest youth had been placed under the care of aged matrons and trained for the purpose. As the girls reached maturity they were obliged to take an oath of perpetual seclusion, and were supposed to be the spouses of the sun. Some of the records say that not even the emperor was admitted to see them, but others allege that they are supposed to have been his secondary wives and, in short, his harem.

The Lake Titicaca of today is more interesting than the traditional lake of the past. It is now the half-way station on one of the chief high roads of traffic from the capital of Bolivia out to the ocean and northward to the Panama Canal. Right here at Guaqui they are now unloading flour from California. That flour has come up the Andes and over the lake, and it is now being put on the railroad train that will take it from here to La Paz. On the wharves are stacks of Oregon pine, and our ship, the Yavari, is loaded with mining machinery and other goods for Bolivia. The purser of the boat tells me that the steamers always run full, and that during his last trip he carried 120,000 pounds of tin across to Puno on its way to the sea. On our steamer we had rolls of paper from the United States for the dailies of the Bolivian capital, and also the boiler of a railroad locomotive destined for an interior railroad.

The greater part of the freight of Bolivia is now going this way out to the ocean. The distance from La Paz to Mollendo on the Pacific is about 500 miles, and the passenger trip from one place to the other costs just $20. There is an additional charge for the chair car from Mollendo to Lake Titicaca. The trip can now be made very comfortably and within considerably less than two days. The first stage of the journey is to Arequipa, whose altitude is about that of Mexico City. Here one stays over night. The next stage is an all-day ride, during which you cross a pass almost three miles in height, and then slide down to Lake Titicaca, where you are still over 12,800 feet above the sea. The third stage is the trip across the lake, and the fourth is a four-hour ride over the high plateau of Bolivia to the great basin in which La Paz lies. I doubt whether there is a journey on earth that will show as great a variety of travel and so much magnificent scenery.

Added to this is the side trip to Cuzco. That is one of the wonder tours of the age. It requires two or three days additional, but it is well worth it, and when our canal is completed it will be undertaken by thousands of American tourists.

It seems strange to think of hunting and fishing in these bleak regions of the high Andes. Nevertheless, this is one of the game preserves of the continent. I am told that there are millions of ducks that frequent these lakes. I saw thousands from the deck of my steamer as I rode across it. There were teal, snipe and mud hens, and several other varieties of wild fowl, all so close that I could have shot them with my revolver. One of the chief hunting resorts is at the mouth of the Desaguadero River, and I am told that the Americans who live in La Paz frequently go there to hunt, and that they bring back all the way from 800 to 1800 ducks at one trip. There is plenty of deer in the mountains near the lake and other fine hunting.

Titicaca has some fish, but none game enough to attract sportsmen. Horace G. Knowles, our former Minister to Bolivia, has taken up the stocking of the lake with new varieties, and our fish commission expects to send here the spawn and young of some of our lake trout, whitefish and river salmon. The Bolivian government is interested in the matter, and it may be that these high waters will eventually be populated with the best of our finny tribes.

As it is now Titicaca has two varieties that are especially fine. One is a little fish with an oily flesh that is almost boneless. Another is somewhat like the sardine, ranging in size from six or eight inches to that of a whitebait. This is called the bogus. It runs in great schools and is caught by the Indians in nets, much like herring. These fish are cured by means of ovens built of the little bowlders gathered from the shores of the lake. The ovens are heated with the droppings of the llamas as fuel until they are red hot. They are then thrown down and the fish are built up in layers of hot stones. First there is a layer of hot stones and then a layer of fish. Next comes a second layer of hot stones and then a second layer of fish. The pile goes on upward until the whole catch is one mass of steaming flesh. After the fish are thoroughly cured they are carried on the backs of llamas to La Paz and other faraway markets.

The boats now used by the natives upon Lake Titicaca are called balsas. They are exactly the same as those which were here when the Spaniards conquered the country, shortly after Columbus discovered America. They are made of certain reeds that grow near the shores in the bed of the lake. These reeds reach a height of ten or twelve feet, and a thickness of a man's finger. They are gathered by going out in a boat and using a long pole to which a knife is attached. This is thrust down to the root of the reed, so that it cuts the reed free from the bed of the lake. The reeds are carried to the shore and there bound with strings of long grass into rolls which are often fifteen or twenty feet long. The rolls are sewed or tied together, forming the sides and bottoms of the balsas. These boats are shaped like a canoe. They have a beautiful curve, and their walls are so formed that they extend out at the top to keep the water from splashing in. Many of the balsas are so large that donkeys, llamas and mules are ferried in them from port to port about the lake, and even across the lake from one side to the other. The boats are propelled by sails made of reeds. They are also pushed through the water by poles from ten to twenty feet long. When far out from the shore and there is no wind stirring, the Indians use the poles as paddles; but where the water is shallow they shove the boat along from the bottom.

The balsa reeds have a pith full of cells like the stem of the banana. They are light when dry, but after they have been in use about six months they become water soaked. In this case the boats are no longer safe. They are torn to pieces and the reeds are dried and used for roofing the mud huts that form the homes of the people. The reeds are also used for making bridges, ropes and baskets. They are almost as important to the Titicacans as the bamboo is to the Chinese.

The boat on which I crossed Lake Titicaca is named the Yavari. It is the oldest steamer now in the service. It was only 150 tons, but it can make seven miles per hour. It has fairly good accommodations for passengers, and its little staterooms are well ventilated and comfortable.

There are two other passenger steamers on the lake, the largest of which is the Inca, a ship of 800 tons. The vessels leave Puno at about 7 o'clock in the evening, and arrive at Guaqui at 9 or 10 o'clock the next morning. The fare is $8.20 gold. The captain and the purser are Peruvians, and the sailors are Indians.

All of these little steamers were made in Europe. They were sent here knocked down, the parts being carried across the Atlantic, and through the Strait of Magellan into the Pacific. From the strait they were taken up the western side of that ocean to Mollendo, Peru, and thence across the Andes on the railroad to Puno, the Peruvian port on the lake. There the boats were rebuilt, and put into the service.

The first boat was put on Lake Titicaca before the days of the railroad, being carried up the steep mountains on the backs of men and mules. The Yavari uses English coal that is brought thousands of miles through the two oceans and lifted by the railroad over the Andes to Puno, costing, I venture, something like $50 per ton.

Brazil Imports Cobblestones.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] Street paving in the towns of the Brazilian seaboard and of the Amazon River region is not the simple matter it becomes in this country. Because of the lack of accessible quarries from which paving material might be obtained, it is necessary to import cobblestones from Portugal for this purpose. Stone quarries in the lower Amazon basin are nonexistent, and the headwaters of this great river, where it would doubtless be possible to locate quarries, are not only practically unexplored but are also guarded by many tribes of hostile Indians.

No one has yet been found who will brave these dangers for the sake of the despised cobblestone. Asphalt or crude oil is unsuitable for paving the thoroughfare of tropical cities because of the intense heat. The city of Para, situated near the mouth of the Amazon, is the largest user of Portuguese paving stones. This metropolis lies almost on the equator and is the chief rubber port of Brazil.

Disease Prevented by Applejack.

[Pittsburgh Leader:] The conversation at a recent social function in Trenton turned to the extreme precautionary methods of some people and the Governor-elect told of the rule laid down by a certain fellow native along that line.

One day while in the city, the Governor said, the fellow Jerseyman happened to collide with a bunch of hygienists, and among other things they referred to the water supply of his home town.

"It isn't as good as it might be," said the Jerseyman, when questioned as to its quality. "There is something like 10,000,000 microbes to a drop, but it is the best we can do at present."

"What do you do to safeguard yourself against water of that kind?" queried one of the hygienists, with a look of concern. "You surely take some precautionary measures?"

"Oh, yes," smiled the Jerseyman. "First we filter the water and then we boil it, and then we drink applejack."

The Old Love.

A SECOND MARRIAGE WITH MY LADY NICOTINE.

By James M. Warnack.

This is not a lecture. It is a statement of facts, colored by the stains of nicotine.

A year ago I divorced "the lady" just to show her that I was master of my own household. It was not for any lack of love for such a sweet companion that I shook her from me (for she had become a very part of myself,) but it was rather from a strange and strong desire to establish my will.

For 365 days she called to me, begging to be taken back into my life, but I repelled her. Yesterday, however, I forgave her everything and remarried her.

I had written to a little cousin in Tennessee and asked her to send me a pipe of pure old leaf tobacco to smoke on my thirty-first birthday. When that morning dawned I happened to be in Imperial, Cal., one of the finest little towns in the world. Late in the afternoon I walked westward until I came to the irrigation ditch, sat down under a beautiful red eucalyptus tree, and, filling my pipe with the yellow leaf, sat down to enjoy a half-hour's quiet smoke.

But I did not smoke half an hour. There was a reason. The first few puffs gave me a sense of satisfaction that I had not known for twelve long months. The sensation was delightful. I had stepped back into the Valley of Visions. The sun was just setting, and right here let me say that an Imperial Valley sunset is the most golden idea ever conceived by the mind of the Creator. I cannot believe that anything in heaven is quite so well worth while. When the great flaming orb sinks down behind the purple mountains, turning into a shower of gold the dust specks lifted high by winds so soft they do not even whisper; when the white sands of Superstition Mountain slowly change to ashen gray; when the fleecy, whirling clouds that crown old Signal Mountain take on strange, mystic colors never portrayed by artist's hand, a combination of the beautiful is created that would make a poet of a plowman and inspire worship in the heart of the most profane.

After I had taken a few more whiffs from my cob pipe, purchased especially for the occasion, the sunset became more beautiful than ever. My soul began to swim away through universal space. I sat there under the tree, listening to the quiet waters of the canal talking in their sleep, and thought and thought and thought. I thought about everything on earth, and yet I thought coherently of nothing. I thought of the little country cousin who had sent me the tobacco; I thought of the foolishness of living; I thought of the wonder power of inanimate substance to inspire dreams; I allowed myself to think of home; I thought of "good things" and "bad things," of angels, demons, men and gods—and then, suddenly my hat began to be lifted from my head by an invisible power and I thought of nothing except of how sick I was.

Before starting out I had eaten a mince pie. I do not intend to tell what happened to the pie. I do not wish to betray the confidence of a perfectly good bit of pastry. Suffice it to say that the pie became seasick and, seeing no ocean in sight, staked out a 160-acre claim and began developments.

I stood straight up—as straight as I could stand—and threw my pipe into the irrigation ditch and watched it sail slowly away to kill with its breath some precious blade of grass or lovely flower.

Then I walked slowly back to town, knowing that I had paid the first installment on a debt contracted for the privilege of being unnatural.

I believe there is no psychology that can explain the persistence of man to destroy his integrity. It is possible that I shall never more attempt to divorce "My Lady Nicotine." But I do not deceive myself. Poisons bring dreams, but the dreams are full of fevers, and they blow from the land of death. The way of life is the golden path of sobriety, and sometimes pain. I wonder if, indeed, all sensation is sin, and if virtue lies alone in being quiet?

I do not know. I wonder.

Anyway, it seems that there is a strange necessity for humanity's struggle and the attempt to believe in the good of killing the sensibilities.

"It's over and over and over
The lesson no man wants to learn."

And yet, I wonder, will we not all have to learn, soon or later, the utter foolishness of the attempt to do and become and accomplish, and will we not all one day see the futility of fighting and the blessedness that accompanies the acceptance of the existing order?

Starting on too Large a Scale.

By J. Harry Wosilffer.

Poultry Failures.

MANY LESSONS TO LEARN BEFORE REAPING PROFITS.

[A warning to the beginner in poultry raising is timely. Too many try to start on a large scale and spend all of their capital on equipment. When the pinch comes for operation they are caught short and failure ensues.

There are many other subjects to be considered, too, such as selection of breeds, the market, the locality, etc., that have important bearing on results. Read the following article for advice:]

THE poultry industry has become so large and the publicity given it within the past few years so great that many have entered it who but a few years back would have scorned the idea of being a poultry-keeper. Today the business of poultry-keeping is regarded as a desirable business and in the ranks are found men and women of all walks in life. Failures in poultry both on a large and small scale are not uncommon, but when they do occur they are given widespread publicity.

In other lines of business the failure would be placed upon the man behind the business venture, but the poultry-raiser will seldom admit that the failure lies at his door. In the majority of cases the blame is at once placed upon the little "American Hen." Failures can be traced to many causes in poultry operations. The majority who enter the poultry field do so with but little practical experience, the only knowledge obtained being through the poultry press, much of which is good, being written by practical men of experience. Their advice is both practical, safe and sane, but reading alone will not make a successful poultry-keeper. With this knowledge must come the actual experience, which, coupled with the knowledge gained by good reading, will lead to success.

But this experience cannot be gained in a day, a month, or a year. Like any other line of business, you must face the pitfalls laying in wait for you during the first two years of the beginner's operations and then if you have the grit and the capital, each succeeding year will bring greater success.

Make Expenses First Year.

There never was, and never will be, any beginner who will make anything above running expenses the first year. Nevertheless, in the majority of cases, the average beginner thinks that a profit can be shown at the end of the first year. Poultry figuring is very deceiving. The poultry equipment is one that, in a large percentage of cases, is underestimated, but this is one of the greatest essentials of success in poultry.

The poultry raiser must have good poultry equipment, incubators, brooders, laying-houses and colony-houses for the growing stock, etc. This does not mean that these need be expensive, but they should be so constructed that they will stand the weather and give comfort to the fowls placed in them.

$1 Per Hen for Housing.

Under favorable conditions with the present price of lumber, etc., it will cost $1 per hen to house them. This does not take into consideration the cost of colony-houses, which will cost from $15 to $20 for the 6x8 or 8x10 size. Then there is the purchase of hatching eggs, chicks or stock, and here the beginner figures in the cheap stock in many cases, which means failure in the long run. More failures are caused by lack of knowledge in the operating of the starting of the poultry farm than by any other one cause. Many begin by having "hobbies," set ideas of their own, and these they follow instead of the beaten path of the experienced poultry operator. When too late they realize that the path they have taken is the wrong one, but seldom will they admit this, but place the blame upon the poultry. There is only one right system, although this may vary in a slight degree, but the principles are the same, and this system must, in a measure, be followed by the beginner.

After several years of experience, the poultry-keeper may ride his "hobbies" one at a time, and may find in them some advantage, but for the beginner to start poultry operations with "hobbies" of his own at the beginning spells failure from the start.

Another cause of failure and one that has an extensive following is the starting poultry operations on too large a scale. Only a few instances are recorded where a plant was started by a beginner on a large scale, operated and succeeded. The majority of the leading successful poultry farms which have been in operation for the past five or ten years are those started by men or women with a few hens and who gradually worked up the ladder of poultry fame and success.

Folly to Start on Big Scale.

It is less costly to experiment with a few than with many. And it is folly for beginners to expect that they can make the same profits the first or second year that the poultry-keeper of several years' experience is making. This is one of the causes of the variation in reports on poultry profits so often seen in the columns of the poultry press. Some men are better managers than others, and the better the management the greater will be the net profits.

Lack of Capital One Cause.

Again, many beginners are compelled to give up poultry-keeping just at the point of success, due to the inability to carry on the operations further due to lack of cash, due to having exhausted their funds in buildings and operations at the start. The safe way is to start at the bottom and keep the poultry operations well within your capital so that in case any reverses come, sufficient cash will be available to carry on the work. All poultry years are not the same; some are good, some poor—but always a margin of profit can be obtained when the plant is properly managed.

Don't Act Rashly.

To give up a good position in the city and at once put every dollar in poultry, is ill-advised, unless the cash outlay is sufficient to carry on the poultry operation for several years. Experience must be gained, and during this time, which largely depends on the man or woman, the profits cannot be expected to run as high for the novice as for the more experienced operator. In beginning it is wise to look over the location; consider well the markets, choose the breed or variety that is best for the zone in which the poultry operations will be conducted; consult, if possible, real poultry experts—those who have made good; visit several of the leading successful poultry farms, those that are successful and have been in operation for several years; carefully consider the requisites of the business, and you will have a solid foundation to start on.

But for the beginner to start out on a large scale, on ideas foreign to those who are successful in poultry, dooms him to failure from the start. Follow the beaten path of success—there are many such in every State in the Union—start modestly, and, as experience comes, gradually increase the flock. Two hundred fowls well handled will give a good profit. Later, 200 more, given the same care, can be made as profitable; then 200 or 300 can be added until the beginner has a flock that is a money-maker. There are many things to learn the first year; incubation, brooding, the care of growing the chicks to maturity and then the all-important feature, the getting of eggs in winter. If the poultry beginner breaks even he will be more than repaid by the knowledge gained during this first year which will prove invaluable for the future.

Scratchings

[New York Press:] Not infrequently do poultry keepers complain bitterly of the failure of their fowls to show profit, when the whole fault lies in defective housing. Poultry lead an entirely artificial life when they live penned in a run, or even when at liberty and provided with a sleeping-house—that is to say, they have their food provided them and do not sleep in the trees as their natural instinct would teach them. It is simply the difference between sleeping in a house and sleeping in trees that upsets them. When they do the latter they may not lay well, but they keep their health. More than half the diseases from which fowls suffer are caused primarily by this defective housing.

[New York Press:] The action of a fowl probably indicates best its physical condition. The physically weak is inactive and dopey, and is more likely to squat than to stand. It does not scratch or forage actively. It is the last to get off the perch in the morning, and the first to go to roost at night, and frequently is found on the perch during the day. The loudness and frequency of the crow of the male, or the song and cackle of the female, is a reliable indication of strength. The weak fowl seldom crows or sings, and is less likely to do so when in the presence of a strong individual of the same sex.

[New York Sun:] The rule with successful poultrymen is to hatch their chicks in March and April and have them well along before the real hot weather sets in. But it is by no means unheard of for a poultryman having the knack, to hatch chicks in June, bring them quickly to maturity and have the pullets laying in December. Instances are not uncommon in which June hatched chicks have outdistanced earlier hatched fowls in the matter of growth. To such growth, however, the right environment—as well as the right treatment—is indispensable. To live and grow into desirable stock, June hatched chicks must have access to both shade and sunshine. Sunlight is a natural enemy to most diseases—shade is often necessary to comfort and refreshment. The coops must be clean and free from vermin—the floor must be dry, sufficiently littered, and roomy, the chicks must not be crowded.

[New York Sun:] When healthy, growing chicks are on free range it is practically impossible to overfeed them on a well balanced ration. The constant exercise insures rapid digestion and no trouble need be anticipated from this source. Under these conditions the writer prefers to keep food constantly before the birds—dry mash in open hoppers and scratch grain in automatic feeders. This simplifies the feeding problem, since it is only necessary to refill the various receptacles at intervals of several days. There is always a supply of food to which the youngsters can help themselves at will, no rushing and crowding as when meals are given at stated intervals, no danger of the weak being crowded away from the feed troughs by the strong.

[Memphis Commercial-Appeal:] In the public market eggs are divided into eleven different classes by the trade, and sometimes more than eleven. The best the market affords is called "extras," 80 per cent. fresh; the second is called "prime firsts," 65 per cent. fresh; then follow "firsts," 45 per cent. fresh; "ordinary firsts," 30 per cent. fresh. In all the grades that follow the word "fresh" is not used, presumably they are just eggs. They are "No. 1 dirties," "No. 2 dirties," "seconds," "checks," "broken," and "spots." One would think there was nothing in the egg line worth less than a broken egg, but the trade has given eggs that show a decayed spot before the candle light the name of "spots." Lower down in the scale of infamy it is not possible for an egg to go and still find a place in the market reports.

[Memphis Commercial-Appeal:] Eggs are put into cold storage whenever there is a surplus. The month of April produces more eggs than any other month, hence April leads all other months in storage. As the April eggs are of better keeping quality than those of any other month, they are the best for storage purposes. An April storage egg is better at Christmas than an August storage egg, because it is of better quality to start with. Taking the market as a whole, there are more eggs in storage about May 1 than at any other season. The quantity grows less each month and is exhausted in February as the spring supply begins to arrive. Less than 10 per cent. of all the eggs produced go into cold storage, and it may be said that cold storage offers the only good way to keep eggs. The eggs that come out of storage wrong were wrong before they were put in, or perhaps an accident may have occurred in storage and an even temperature had not been maintained. The popular notion that eggs are stored for two years at a time or even longer is an error. It is not done for the reason that the eggs would not keep, and it would not pay if they did keep. Cold storage of eggs has been blamed in other ways for sins it did not commit. The best stored eggs to be had in seasons of scarcity are those in cold storage.

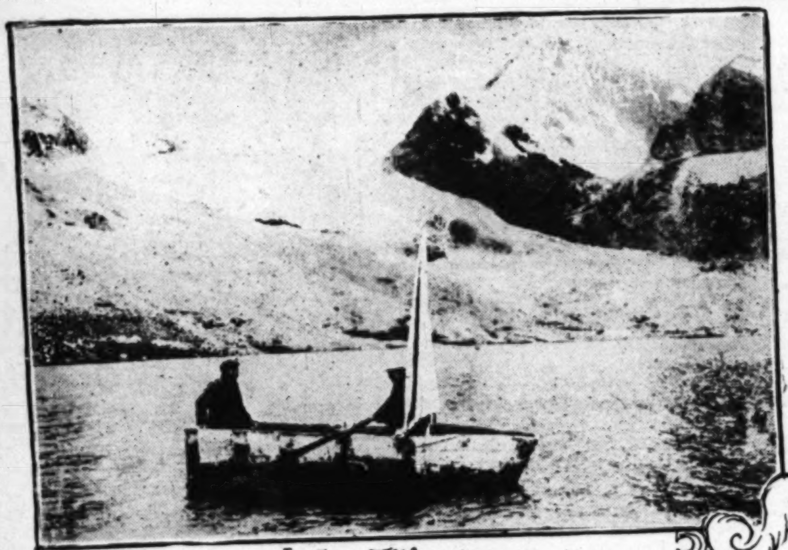
On Lake Titicaca.

A TRIP OVER THE HIGHEST NAVIGABLE LAKE OF THE WORLD.

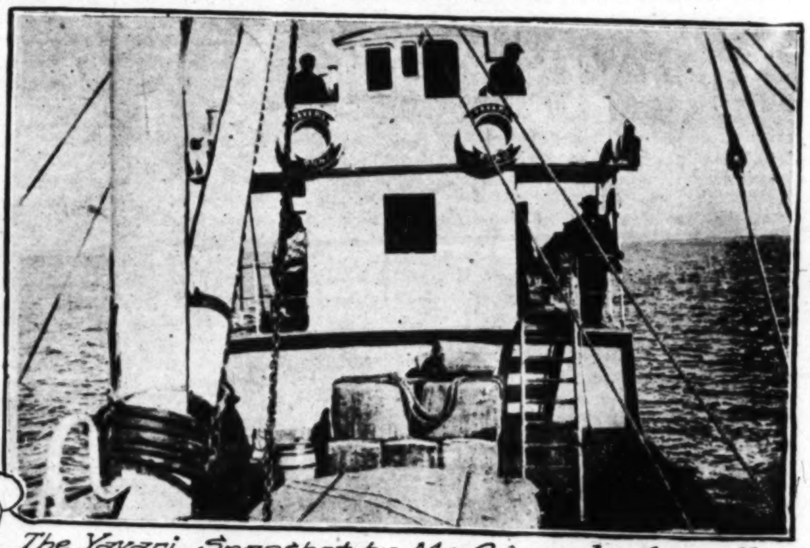
IT IS ALMOST HALF AS BIG AS LAKE ERIE AND TWICE AS HIGH AS MT. WASHINGTON—THE MAGIC CORN OF THE ISLAND OF THE SUN—OTHER SACRED ISLANDS AND THEIR WONDERFUL RUINS—NATIVE BOATS OF STRAW AND HOW THEY ARE MADE—TITICACA AS A PART OF THE TRAFFIC ROUTE FROM BOLIVIA TO PANAMA.

From Our Own Correspondent.

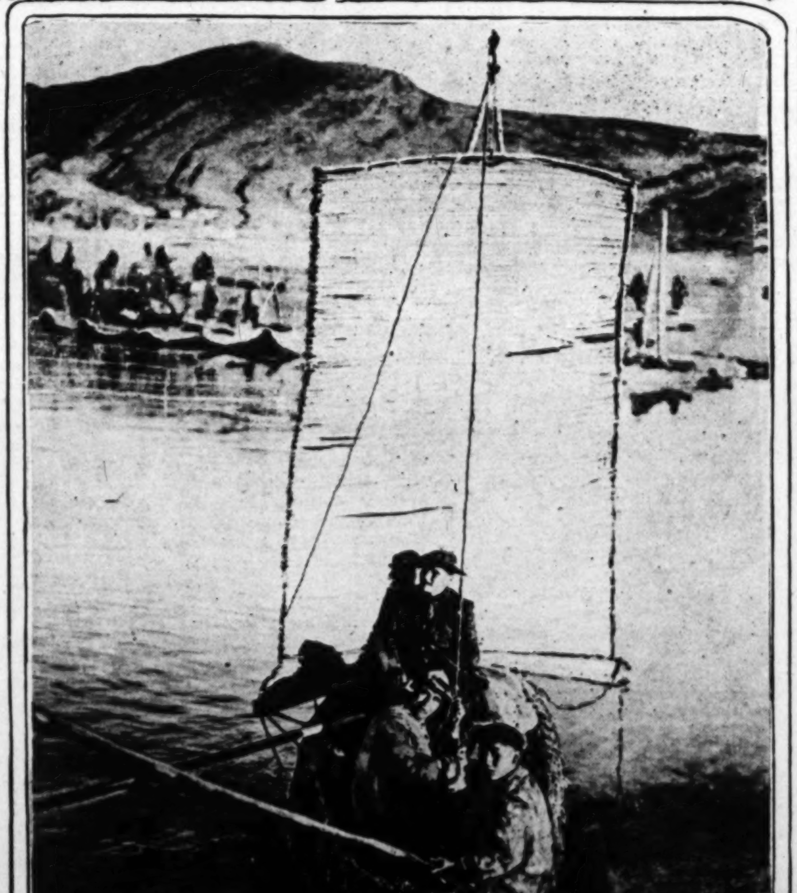
GUAQUI (Bolivia.)—Take a seat on the aeroplane of your imagination and point its nose toward the sky. Pull the lever and guide yourself straight upward until you are more than two and a half miles above the level of the sea. Then fly about 4000 miles straight to the south. Cross the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea; twist your way in and out among the high peaks of the Andes, through Colombia, Ecuador and Peru; then descend just 500 feet, and you are at Guaqui, Bolivia, on the shores of Lake Titicaca, the highest body of water that is now traversed by a steamer. You are farther up in the air than the top of Fujiyama, Japan. You are more than twice as high as Mt. Washington, and less than 1500 feet below the top of Pike's Peak. You are on the shores of an inland sea almost half as big as Lake Erie, and in plain sight of a snow-clad wall of extinct volcanoes, some of which are nearer to heaven than any point on the North American continent. Much of the high plateau that borders the two sides of the lake is 13,000 feet above sea level, and the lake itself is more than 12,500. Mt. Sorati, at one end of the ragged wall of glaciers in front of you, is more than 22,000 feet high; and the glaciers on Mt. Ililmani are so tall and so steep they have never been climbed. As I stand here on the shores of the lake I seem to be on the very roof of the world, and as I ride over the waters I feel as though, if I climbed up their shores, I would drop off into space.



Lake Titicaca.



The Yavari. Snapshot by Mr. Carpenter from the prow.



Balsa, showing sail and boat of reeds.

I came to Lake Titicaca from Cuzco, riding for 200 miles on the railroad through the high valley between the Andean ranges. The whole way I was in plain sight of mountains, some of which rose two miles above me, and I could look over pampas, the sod of which was as smooth as that of the lawn in front of your dwelling. These high Andean plains, which are so far above the sea that twenty-six Washington Monuments resting one on top of another would not reach to their altitude, were covered with sheep, alpacas and llamas, and spotted with the mud huts of the Indians. The latter part of the journey was over plains that once formed a part of the bed of the lake, and I crossed many streams that were winding their way down into it.

As I came nearer Lake Titicaca, the cultivated patches increased. The soil was [illegible], and there were hundreds of Indians working their crops of barley, potatoes and [illegible] quinua. The flocks of sheep became larger, and I was told that there are haciendas near by, each of which has flocks numbering thousands.

We stopped at Juliaca and an hour later landed at Puno, a tin and mud town of one and two-story buildings roofed with galvanized iron. I remember seeing an American windmill close to the station that seemed to wave its arms in welcome to me as the train took me out on the long pier to the steamer Yavari. There I embarked for my trip across the lake from Peru to Bolivia. The distance is 120 miles, and we were steaming all night and the greater part of the morning. I am now at Guaqui, the Bolivian port on the southern end of the lake, and not very far from the mouth of the river Desaguadero. This river forms the outlet of the lake. It carries its waters into Lake Poopo, which is only a few hundred feet lower and nearer the sea. There are a dozen rivers that flow into Lake Titicaca, but the only one that flows out of it is the Desaguadero. This river connects Lake Titicaca with Lake Pampa Aullagas, or Lake Poopo, as it is sometimes called. Lake Poopo is only one-third as large as Lake Titicaca, and it has no visible outlet. Lake Titicaca receives every minute more than 6000 tons of water from the streams that flow into it, while less than sixty tons per minute are known to flow out. Lake Poopo is its only reservoir, and the Desaguadero is the downspout from one to the other. These two lakes receive the drainage of a great part of the Andean plateau. Their outlets must be subterranean.

You can get no idea of these lofty lakes from the encyclopedias or geographies. They are represented on the maps as oval in shape, and the authorities will tell you that Lake Titicaca is fifty-seven miles wide and 120 miles long. Some authorities state that the lake has an area of 3600 square miles, while others put the area at more than 5000. From some descriptions you might imagine it a great ellipse or a rectangle. The truth is the lake has never been carefully surveyed. I have a map of it made by the railroad that shows that it has as many great bays as the tentacles of an octopus. It has depths that have never been sounded. It is spotted with islands, and its waters wind in and out in places like a river, giving a moving picture of magnificent scenes, including the islands, mountains and coasts.

In crossing to Guaqui, I went over places that were 1000 feet deep, and right next to the famous Island of the Sun, where the Inca race had its beginning, I saw one where a depth of 2000 feet has been reached. In landing upon the Island of the Sun one has to throw the anchor of his boat on the rocks of the shore, for the lake is so deep at that point that the grappling hooks cannot reach bottom.

Think of a body of water almost as big as Lake Geneva rising and falling under the winds. Let it be more than 300 miles inland from the Pacific and more than two miles and a half above the level of the ocean, upon a basin which, next to Tibet, is the loftiest inhabited plateau of the world. Remember that you must cross a mighty desert and climb one of the highest railroad passes on earth to get to it, and you have some idea of Lake Titicaca and its sister, Pampa Aullagas. You must add that the waters are fed by the Andean glaciers, for although the region has a slight rainfall, the greater part of the lake comes from the melting snow and ice of the mountain brought down by the rivers.

I have written much of the skies of the Andes as seen from the pampas and desert. Those that cover Lake Titicaca have also other beauties that are peculiarly their own. The clouds rise from the shores like walls, fitting into a vault of heavenly blue, so that you seem to be shut off from the rest of the world. The scenes change every moment. The fleecy white masses are blown this way and that by the winds from the pampas. At times great storms come up. We had a rain last night just before the sun set, and a mighty bow of all colors seemed to rise from the mountains, spanning the lake, and to lose itself in the mountains bordering upon it. As I looked I thought of the vast treasure vaults of the Andes and the gold that may really lie at the two ends of that rainbow. A little later the sun went down. The sky was still full of clouds and the blazing god of the Incas covered it with a hundred tints of wonderful hues. The sunset was reflected in the waters of the lake, and we sailed through one maze of gold, copper and blue above and below.

As we rose the next morning the air was so clear that we could see for miles. The ness of the midnight air. The effect on Moore was electric.

The Silence of One and Four.

"That's my call!" Moore was sitting up in bed as the echo died. "That's my call," he repeated with manifold elation. "I knew they would call me."

The doctor rushed to Moore; he was getting out of bed.

"You must stay in bed a little longer," expostulated the doctor, trying to force Moore under the covers.

"But they want me at the mill," persisted Moore, trying to push the doctor aside. "Didn't you hear one and four on the whistle at the mill? Where's my clothes? I don't want to be late."

The doctor persuaded him to stay in bed. He tactfully convinced his patient that his services were not desired until next day; and that the whistle was only to announce that the men in charge at Ranson's had decided at a midnight meeting to reinstate their laid-off salesman. Moore accepted what the doctor said in good faith and allowed himself to be made comfortable in bed.

"I feel better now," Moore said when the doctor had finished. "Now everything will come out right," he added, closing his eyes. "I knew they'd find out they were wrong."

The doctor turned to the landlady, who had stood awestruck through the proceedings, and said:

"He'll mend quickly now. That whistle caused a reaction."

There were agitated voices outside the engine-room, and Jean stepped back from the whistle cord as the watchman, swinging his lantern, rushed in upon her. He put his lantern in her face.

"What do you mean by blowing that whistle?" he shouted in her face. "That one and four is Ranson's new fire call. You'll have Briggs and the whole country down here—and the fire department, too. What do you mean?" he added when Jean remained silent. "I'll call the police——"

There was another mumbling voice at the door. The watchman turned his lantern from Jean to the door.

"Briggs," muttered the watchman, going closer to the door with the light.

"Yes, it's Briggs," the manager said, as he entered the engine-room. He was clad in nothing but a bathrobe and slippers. "Where's the fire, Jerry?" he added, looking around the dismal engine-room.

Jerry told him there was none.

"Then who in the devil blew that whistle?" he demanded.

Jerry swung about, and the light struck Jean, who had retreated to the far corner of the engine-room. Taking the watchman's lantern, Briggs walked to Jean and flashed it in her face.

"She's the one that did it, Mr. Briggs," explained the watchman.

"My name is Briggs," he said, eyeing her," and I'm manager of this plant. I demand your reason for blowing our fire whistle and dragging me out of bed, clad as I am, at midnight."

Jean hesitated a moment.

"Out with your story," demanded Briggs. "It may save you from the police."

"I—I did it because I thought it would save a man's life," she replied, her white face facing him defiantly.

"Bosh!" sneered Briggs.

Jean was up in defense now.

"Yes, that's the reason I did it," she went on. "You can sneer if you please, but the case is just the same. And if your name is Briggs," she added, "you are as much responsible for the blowing of the whistle as I am."

"Don't talk riddles," Briggs snapped. "I'm freezing to death."

"There's no riddle about this matter," Jean corrected. "It's solid facts. A short while ago you laid off a salesman by the name of Moore. You told him he was laid off for a few days on account of slack business, when the fact was, and you told it to others, that you had discharged him because he was a sluffer and a sloven about his work. He found this out later when applying for other positions and after you had told him that when his services were again needed you'd whistle one and four on the salesmen's call."

"Tommyrot!" said Briggs, placing the lantern on the floor.

"No, it's not," declared Jean. "If you did discharge him for being a sluffer, you taught him to be one. That's Ranson's system, I understand. You hire competent men and get them into habits so as to make a record of speed for the company. You fail to notice these cultivated defects in your men while there is a rush and whirl of business; but when business slackens they come before your eyes and you discharge men for doing precisely what you have taught them—to be careless, shiftless and slovenly."

There was an awkward silence. The watchman retired, leaving his lantern on the floor and close to Jean. Briggs, more thoughtful, was walking about to keep warm. Finally Briggs asked:

"What's that got to do with the whistle call tonight?"

"Everything," Jean replied. "Since you told Moore that you'd call him to work by his one and four blast, and from the fact that he is under heavy obligations, and not hearing his call, when he knew other men were being put on, he worried himself into bed. Tonight he is on the verge of serious brain affection brought about by brooding over his lost position and the way he was severed from it."

Jean's robe loosened and she stopped to arrange it. The lantern on the floor shone only at her feet. Jean looked down. Her feet were bleeding. Briggs saw it, too, from the shadows where he was standing. He spoke, and there was a catch in his words.

"Go on, please," he said quietly.

"Tonight he got so bad. He continually raved about his one and four call. I heard the doctor tell the lady at the house that something had to happen to cause a mental reaction. Drugs, the doctor said, would do no good. Then it was that I determined to come to the mill and blow his whistle. I knew it would make his dying easier if it didn't save him. There was no steam to blow the salesmen's whistle. I knew of the whistle in this engine-room; so I came here and blew it. I don't know whether I've saved him, but I do know he heard it, and it will make him easier."

Jean picked up the lantern and walked to where Briggs was leaning against the cylinder of the engine, his head bowed and between his hands. Jean held the lantern near his face.

"Wouldn't you like to go and see him?" she asked plaintively. "He doesn't blame you so much for laying him off, but he does feel hard against you for lying to him about it. He even cursed you for it and said in his ravings that he'd kill you."

Briggs, his head still bowed, made no effort to reply, and Jean went on.

"Time is precious," she pleaded. "Come with me to him. I don't want him to die cursing you for that lie—cursing you, your wife and your babies. And I don't want him to live and feel that way, either. Come."

She took him by the arm and he made no resistance.

"Cursing my babies," was all he said as Jean, with the lantern, led the way from the engine-room and out of the yard.

Together they walked in silence toward Moore's. The chill of the night air made Jean shiver, and her bruised feet pained. Nothing seemed to disturb Briggs: his head was bowed in thought.

At Moore's door Jean rapped lightly. The doctor opened the door and stepped back surprised. The confusion, though slight, caused Moore to open his eyes and smile. Moore looked first at the doctor, then at Jean, and lastly at Briggs. There his eyes rested. His arm slowly went out to Briggs.

"Shake, Briggs," he said feebly. "I wanted to kill you. You blew one and four just—just in time to—to save—everything. I forgive you, Briggs."

Briggs took the outstretched hand and clutched it warmly. Then he was gone.

. . . .

One day, weeks later, as Moore was sitting at his desk close to Briggs, the latter said:

"That little vacation you had, Moore, taught us all a lesson."

"Yes," Moore replied; "and here's the report showing the company's gain under a systematic regime."

Noxious Influence of Perfumes.

[Indianapolis News:] The perfume of flowers can make some people shiver. A member of the London Spiritualist Alliance tells of a woman who dreads the smell of hyacinths. Once, at a party, the hostess, knowing her visitor's horror of the flowers, hid them behind a screen, yet although they were concealed from view the woman detected them and fainted shortly after entering the room. The Princess of Lamballe, a friend of Marie Antoinette, and a victim of the French revolution, would always turn pale at the sight of a violet, and Vincent, the painter, swooned at the smell of roses.

Jim's "Violets."

THE STORY OF THE LITTLE PINK LETTER.

By Jess March.

James Wellington Flagg is his name, but you would never find it out, for everybody calls him just Jim. Sometimes "Violets" says "James Wel-ling-ton Fl-lagg!" just like that, when she tries to make believe that she doesn't like what she does like when we first step into the front hall evenings over at her house.

I've been with Jim now four years, ever since I was a puppy, and we just seem like brothers. I don't know how we could ever get along without each other.

When Jim started off to college they let me go, too. That was about the happiest day of my life. These colleges are pretty good places for us dogs, you know. Of course, we can't chew and smoke and play football, but any of us that go to college get the name of high-brow, and that sort of sets us up among the other dogs.

We made the Betas, and when it came to the initiation and they were putting Jim through the stunts to try his nerve a little, one of the fellows said: "Let's paint the bulldog with the emblems." That made Jim mad! He said: "Put one drop of paint on that dog and I'll cut the Betas dead!"

Now Gen. Flagg has lots of unnecessary cash. I don't care what pocket he puts his hand into there's a jingle. And the Betas want to build a new "frat" house next year, so—well they didn't paint me. And oh, how I loved Jim, for think of putting red paint on my handsome brown-and-white coat! It would have been ruined forever.

"Violets" was a freshman, too; that's how we got acquainted with her. Hortensia Something-or-other is her real name, but I thought it was nice and kind of Jim not to pay any attention to such a name. "Don't expect me to say Hortensia to such eyes as those," he said. "It's 'Violets,' I say."

Jim and I began by taking "Violets" walking. Those were fine times. They would talk about nothing but ME for whole half-hours at a time. How my front legs bowed, how sharp my ears were, how fine my color was, and sometimes they would say how ugly my face was, and sometimes they would say it was good-looking. Anyway, I was happy. And as I sat between them when we stopped to rest on the hillside or in the canyon back of the University, first "Violets" would pet me and then Jim would, but after a while they both got to petting me at the same time, and finally one day, when "Violets" had her hand on my head, Jim put his big hand right on hers and pressed it down hard—and they both laughed. I looked up quick, but I couldn't see what they were laughing at. But how soft her hand felt!

One afternoon we were having a romp in Jim's room with some of the other Beta fellows, when there came a special-delivery letter for Jim. When the other fellows cleared out, Jim fell on the letter—you would have thought it was a bone. He read it and grew white and whiter. In a minute it dropped to the floor and Jim flopped into a chair like a fellow licked in the first round.

I walked over and sniffed at the thing, and I knew that "Violets" had had her hands on it.

I licked his hand. That was a mistake. Jim hates sickly sympathy. He kicked me over into a corner, and I sat there and blinked at him. Then I climbed up on a couch and blinked at him some more. Pretty soon he began to feel sorry for treating me that way. I knew he would. He came over to where I was, and putting one hand on my head and the other on that one, he pressed down hard. And he whispered: "Violets! Violets!" Then I knew he had gone straight crazy—calling me "Violets" that way. I thought he had better be left alone awhile, so I got up and slipped out.

But what was to be done? Here was dear old Jim going mad because "Violets" had sent him a pink letter. I sat down on the front walk to think out a plan. A couple of puppy humans with evening papers under their arms passed, going down to the corner to bark for their suppers. They shied some stones past me—being careful to hit the walk. I raised my upper lip and showed them my fine teeth, so they went on. It is no time to play with a dog when he has something on his mind.

Soon I chanced on the thought to find "Violets," if I could, and see if she was going mad, too.

I dashed through yards and across lots to the Theta house. The garage gate was open, so I slipped into the garden. I sniffed the gravel, and then the air a minute, and then I rushed to a little summer-house. There, sure enough, was "Violets" by a table with her head in her arms. Beside her was a handful of fresh violets gathered from the garden.

"O Jack!" she screamed, and held out her arms. I put my paws on her knee, and thrust my face against her neck—I was so glad.

"Boo! Your nose is cold, Jack!" And then she pulled my ears, and ran her fingers around under my chain collar.

"Jack, Jack, you're a good boy. I know what I'll do!"

Her hands were at her head. Then I saw her take a long black hair and fasten a few of the violets together. She reached over and tied them to my collar.

"Scoot, Jack!" she said, clapping her hands. "Sic 'em, Jack. Go home to Jim," and pointed to the gate. I went. I hadn't expected such cool treatment. But she wasn't going mad, I could see that, at least, so I went home happier.

The fellows let me in and I slipped up to Jim's room. There the poor fellow sat, just as I had left him—hadn't moved a hair, but he looked whiter. When I touched his knee he seemed to see me, and he put out his hand for my head, but touched the decorations around my neck instead. Then he looked down.

"Jack, Jack!" he choked, "where have you been?"

He dropped to his knees and unfastened the violets from my collar. He ran the long, black, wavy hair through his fingers. He put the violets against his lips—I thought he was going to eat them, but he didn't. I feared he would purr like a cat in a minute—a sight which I did not care at all to see, so I went over to the opened window and barked and barked, as though I had something up a tree.

Pretty soon the telephone rang. They called Jim. He went down those stairs eight at a time.

That night after dinner, Jim called me out into the moonlight, and we made straight for the Theta house. "Violets" happened to be out in the hammock. The three of us went for a walk across the campus under the oaks. We walked around awhile, and then they picked out a little bit of a log for a seat. It was so small Jim had to hold on to "Violets" to keep her from falling off. It must have made him pretty tired.

I darted around among the trees looking for owls and sniffing for rabbit paths, just to work up some excitement, and after awhile I came back. There they still sat. At first I thought they were asleep but Jim bent his head down, and then I heard "Violets" say: "Ja-ames Wel-ling-ton Fl-lagg!" just like that, so I knew they had forgotten all about the pink letter after all.

Columbia's Aerial Railroad.

[Indianapolis News:] Work has been begun on a remarkable steel ropeway, thirty-seven and one-half miles long, which will serve as an extension of the railway from Ladorada to Mariquita, in Colombia, carrying the line over the Andes at an altitude of 11,000 feet. The steel rope is to be supported on a series of steel towers from forty to 125 feet in height, and will consist of twelve sections, at each junction point of which a motor will be installed of sufficient power to work two sections. Power is to be furnished by water brought down from the Andes.

THAT great Hebrew writer whose wisdom is still proverbial, 3000 years after he wrote and spoke, says: "A live dog is better than a dead lion."

Poor dead lion! He is a pitiable spectacle as he lies helpless and a prey to buzzards and vermin after having reigned monarch of the wilderness, dreaded by every living thing. The lion is a hunter, the buzzard a scavenger. The lion, like the eagle, must seek and take his own prey, enjoying all the intense thrills of the chase, and his dinner must still be warm with the forces of life and still quivering with vitality. The buzzard's banquet is carrion.

The Eagle loves the eagle and the leonine type of men and would not feast upon a buzzard full of putridity if he were starving. The right kind of human being resembles very much the eagle, the monarch of the air, and the lion, the monarch of the forest, and admires the noble while he despises the ignoble. The buzzard's feast is the body of the lion or of the jackal, which is a matter of indifference.

And there are buzzard men as well as aquiline men, and they are like the winged buzzard in most respects but differ in one. They would rather prey upon the noble fellow-being than upon the ignoble. There is another resemblance between the eagle and the noble classes of humanity. To get near them always means to admire them, and generally to love them. This difference subsists too in the ignoble or buzzard type of men, distinguishing them from the winged one that has no predilection for any dead body, all being equally welcome to his beak.

In the last issue of the Illustrated Weekly in which the Eagle wings his flight, he told of that aquiline man, Napoleon Bonaparte. There is a story about the deposed Emperor of the French when he fell into the hands of his enemies, and petitioned to be allowed to remain in England on almost any conditions, under the surveillance of the whole British army and with the whole navy around the little island to prevent his escape. One of the Britishers, more like a buzzard than an eagle, opposed it, saying: "Damn the fellow! If he and His Royal Highness (the Prince Regent) should happen to meet in London, in fifteen minutes they would be the greatest friends in Europe." The captain of the Bellerophon, who captured Napoleon, and all his crew, became fascinated with the man during his short stay on the ship, and such was the case with every Englishman who came into contact with him, excepting only those awfully buzzard type of men, Sir Hudson Lowe and Lord Bathurst.

There is an American whom the Eagle loves to read about and think about. He is of this generation, not a hundred years ago, and his occupation is business, not war. From an obscure origin and the most narrow poverty, he has become the wealthiest man in the whole wide world. No monarch has the wealth of John D. Rockefeller, and how the buzzard type of men do love to peck and claw at the air around him, not daring to approach in his actual presence. Vide the writings of Miss Ida Tarbarrel and of Link Stuffins, and other buzzards, vultures and vermin in human shape.

Then there are human beings neither aquiline, leonine nor buzzards or vultures. They are a sort of betwixt and between, or sometimes one thing and sometimes another. They can vie with the aquiline class of men successfully, and sink to the lowest level of the buzzard type.

Elbert Hubbard is often very aquiline and leonine. This man came into contact the other day with John D. Rockefeller, and sincerely won over by the great man's fascination does the great emperor of American commercial life even-handed justice. Let us assume that he was sincerely won over by an hour's contact on the golf links with the man that so many muckrakers malign so grossly, unjustly and inhumanly. Certainly this brilliant writer's tribute to the man to whom America owes the marvelous development of its oil industry sounds warm and most appreciative. This is as it should be, for there is no one yet who has attacked Mr. Rockefeller's character or criticised his business methods who has come within a thousand miles of proving any point against him. When a political mountebank, misled by prejudice following the clamor of the ignorant mob, fixed a fine on the Rockefeller oil industries unprecedented in its enormous injustice, the Supreme Court of the United States very quickly reversed his judgment.

The Eagle was discussing this incident years ago with a friend, and remarking that K. M. Landis, the judge, was born a fool and couldn't help it, his father having been one before him, the hearer said: "Why do you say that?" And he said: "Just look up what the initials of the judge's name stand for and you'll know."

There is one query in the tribute paid to Mr. Rockefeller by Elbert Hubbard that for nearly a month has been interesting the Eagle's mind. He asks if Rockefeller were greater than, less, or equal to Napoleon Bonaparte. As the Eagle remembers the passage the decision is a negative one, or against Mr. Rockefeller. With every disposition to grant the mental capacity of Mr. Hubbard, the Eagle takes the liberty of differing from him. His admiration of Bonaparte's mental ability is as great as that of Mr. Hubbard or perhaps any other man, and his estimate of the great general's moral character is a good deal lower than that of many people.

There is at Brussels, the capital of Belgium, a museum given to the city by an artist whose home it was, and whose studio is the museum. This dead artist's name is Wuertz, and in the museum is a painting about six feet tall and ten wide which represents Napoleon Bonaparte arriving in the domain of His Satanic Majesty, and multitudes of the denizens of that doleful region rise up with wild eyes, disheveled, streaming hair, bloodshot lips and flaming cheeks, with arms uplifted, hailing the great conqueror to his eternal punishment with screams of derision and roars of hatred. That is about the estimate of Napoleon's moral character held by many who look upon the work he accomplished in the world. It is an extreme judgment, and undoubtedly not justified by the facts—not entirely so.

In estimating human capacity the war genius is elevated too high in the minds of most people. Genius for war is not a rare human gift, but somewhat common. There are a dozen great generals in the world of history compared with one great orator, oratory being perhaps the rarest of all gifts.

As a warrior John D. Rockefeller would have very little chance against the genius of the "Little Corsican." As a statesman, had Rockefeller turned his attention to that branch of human achievement, what reason is there to suppose he would have fallen behind the most distinguished men of that class in history? Business is the predominant occupation of men in our time, and in the Eagle's mind there is room for a great deal of question as to the comparative capacity of men like John Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and H. E. Harriman, held up in parallel lines with that of men like Lord Roberts, Kitchener, and Napoleon Bonaparte. The Eagle confesses that this discussion is somewhat like comparing the beauty of the rose with that of the lily, and yet there is a predilection in the minds of many for the rose over the lily. So while it is difficult to compare men whose lives are spent in entirely dissimilar occupations, there is a substratum of fact on which to base such a comparison. If it is true that "peace hath its victories no less renowned than war," then the Eagle goes for the Rockefellers and Morgans rather than the Napoleons and the Kitcheners.

Yours,

The Eagle
HIS MARK

THE LANCER

A BROTHER scribe is bemoaning that women are so selfish. Among other indictments he cites the fact that they don't hesitate to break off an engagement if they see someone they like better. He draws a pathetic picture of broken masculine hearts and blasted hopes, and recalls how rare it is for a man to backslide from a matrimonial engagement under similar circumstances.

For mercy's sake, old chap, be reasonable. Some men never seem to know when they are well off. Can a girl break off too many engagements? Looking at it squarely from the masculine point of view, isn't this particular form of selfishness a boon and a blessing? Isn't the real trouble that, in a general way, the lady insists upon too much loyalty?

To read that magazine article anyone would think that a broken heart and blasted hopes were a genuine affliction. Whereas every honest man knows that a broken heart is a sublime possession. It gives a fellow a sense of spiritual importance that cannot be acquired in any other way. To say nothing of a complacent consciousness of sorrowful dignity and endless opportunities for exhibiting a lofty and romantic form of passive heroism, which makes a chap so deucedly interesting. The most ordinary, dull sort of fellow can acquire an "atmosphere" with a recently broken heart, one's most sincere remorse being that it wears off so ridiculously soon. I fostered and nursed a broken heart for years with extraordinary success, but it's the sort of thing that takes a lot of experience. The first time one's heart is broken it is generally a nice big clean cut that heals with healthy rapidity. And there is nothing so shameful as a broken heart with a prompt heal. Besides the danger of it. The heart that has once been broken shows a perfect passion for danger and gets one in the dickens of a scrape. Unless you can keep it comfortably disabled. But ordinary normal hearts are not like that. They are disgustingly recuperative and permanent disablement is a well-nigh impossible luxury in this practical, unromantic world.

A virgin, unscathed heart is all very well in theory. In practice it lacks poise, intelligence, sympathy, understanding. It is crude, inartistic. The heart that reaches maturity without a crack is worse than a stomach that reaches maturity on mush. Healthy, of course, but "the world unknowing, by the world unknown." Desirable in its way, but tame.

Hospital Babies.

IT IS no longer fashionable for babies to be born at home. They begin their careers in the great outer world at more or less luxurious hotel-hospitals according to father's income. We do these things so sensibly nowadays on a sound business basis, with a reception committee of experts to welcome the little stranger.

The theory is excellent. The moment the little fellow arrives he is tabbed with mama's name and address and popped in a basket. But it sometimes happens that several of him arrive at the hotel-hospital on the same day and nurses, being human, are apt to get a little flustered. Sometimes the tabbing is omitted till several hours later. Then, of course, the darling is one of a row of potential Adonises, blushing all over at the unfortunate disturbance he has caused. They all look exactly alike at that stage, and as far as nurse is concerned one baby is as good as another. None of your class favoritism for her. So she writes out seven tabs and sticks them on seven babies, and there you are.

Six or seven years later the Smiths, pere et mere, will sit discussing the problem of little Willie. "Well, I can't make it out. He is so totally different from anything we have ever had in either of our families. I don't understand him at all. Such an odd child. I don't feel as if he belonged to us at all."

But there, there. It's all the same a hundred years hence. And any old baby does.

Baby's Bath.

WHILE on this enthralling subject of babies, a classic little animal that is fast becoming extinct, I observe that the Ladies' Home Journal has ordained that the unfortunate little brat should have two baths a day. Two, mind you. And yet they say our children are pampered!

This question of baths is getting serious. Baths are a thing that are quite admissible in moderation—just to loosen the soil. But, like irrigation, it can be overdone and a flood is more serious than a drought. Much more serious.

John Wesley was responsible for that fateful creed that cleanliness is next to godliness—but he meant just cleanliness, not perpetual immersion.

Nothing hastens on degeneracy like too many baths—the cult of the body replacing the cult of the mind. And there is nothing quite so wholesome as a little dirt, those earthy mineral salts that tone up our bodies to god-like health and strength. Very strong people are rarely very clean people and very clean people are hardly ever very good. The case of the degenerate Roman empire tottering to its fall has been cited often enough—and baths were the pet recreation of the ultra-civilized Romans in those days. What a brutal shame to damn a poor babe in its infancy with two baths a day! And if this is the exacting standard of cleanliness that mothers are expected to maintain, no wonder babies are becoming obsolete.

American Fashions.

SO THE government of the United States has been turning its kindly attention to fashions for women. How beautiful to think that nothing is too small, too inconsiderable to engage their tender care. It appears that our consuls abroad were invited to inform the home government to what extent American influence in feminine matters sartorial had gained in ground in far distant states. And we learn that even in Peru, Central Africa, New Guinea, Burmah and funny places like that, there is a strong tendency to follow American fashions in dress!

Now isn't that nice? Oh, you poor little Paris! Now I pride myself on being a well-informed person, so I hastened to get a book of French fashions and a book of American fashions and study the difference. They are very, very subtle. I was irresistibly reminded of that dear old lady who dropped a bottle out of her muff on the station platform and explained volubly to the gentleman who went to her assistance, that it was a tonic she used for her hair. "Sure," he said, "mighty good tonic, too. I use it for a nightcap."

Our American fashions are just such versatile affairs—they are the latest New York styles in New Guinea and imported Parisian models in Los Angeles. Or what is even more likely, those Paquin-Poiret-Bierre johnnies shamelessly steal our ideas—but New Guinea and Burmah and Peru are not such silly asses as to be taken in. They recognize them for American right away and don't mind saying so.

So we are well on the way to establish our claims to being the hub of the sartorial universe. New Guinea has recognized us. Peru has recognized us. Burmah has recognized us. We may have to take the ultimate settlement of the great question to the Hague Tribunal, but there is little doubt that the European powers will subsequently be brought into line.

Our Very Own

A GENTLEMAN had a cataract carved out of his eye last week, and a few days later expressed a wish that the doctor would let him have the growth, as he would like to keep it as a memento.

"Certainly," said the doctor in my hearing; "very natural desire." He took a little bottle out of a chest with a dozen little hard bits of gelatine lumps inside. He fished one out, stuck it in a little box and handed it to the gratified patient.

"How on earth do you know which was which?" I asked curiously when the patient had retired happy.

"I don't," he confessed amiably, "but what on earth difference does it make?"

And of course, it doesn't make the slightest.

It's curious, this morbid desire to treasure up bits of ourselves. I know a fellow who has carefully preserved all the teeth he ever had drawn, and one lady friend of mine treasures a toenail that was once removed whole from her own fair foot. Another has a piece of the bridge of her nose which had to be carved out for some catarrhal operation—anyway, she thinks she has. It's a bit of the bridge of somebody's nose, anyway. The doctors pop them all into their little bottles of alcohol for preservation in case a patient wants some day.

This Human Body of Ours.

Plain Truths and Simple.

By C. L. McCleery, A. B., O. D., N. D.

Nature a Hard Worker.

NATURE is a hard worker without any suggestion or pushing on the part of anyone or anything. You have seen the way grass and weeds will push themselves up through the hard sidewalk, or beaten-down road, or you have noticed a bulge in a cement sidewalk, where roots or some other growth is seeking to rise to the sunlight. Nothing that man does will hold back the forces of Nature for but a brief time unless they be divided so that concentration is prevented. The forces of Nature are moving forward all the time. There is no rest, no slackening of effort. The earth rolls through space at the steady speed of eighteen miles a second. The force of gravitation is constant. The atmospheric pressure remains at fifteen pounds the square inch on every part of the body. The blood makes an entire circuit of the body every twenty-two of twenty-three minutes. Should the forces of Nature be suspended for a moment everything would be chaos. When riding on a train the brakes of which were suddenly applied you have seen how much easier it was for the train to stop than it was for yourself. Absolute annihilation would occur to the earth and everything on it were it to stop its forward movement, the force of gravitation be suspended, and the atmospheric pressure cease. The human body is thus held together by the forces of Nature without which there would be no cohesion of its particles.

Man is just beginning to understand these things and to turn them to his own benefit. He is learning the value to his bodily health of the plants growing so luxuriantly about him without his aid and many times to his annoyance. He is learning also that disease is his own responsibility for having neglected the performance of the duties imposed upon him, and that to regain health and keep it he must come back to Nature and be obedient to its demands. Excessive exercise, or excessive emotion creates poisons in the blood by disturbing the harmonious action of the organs of secretion.

An elaborate investigation of the effects of pain, rage or fear, just concluded by Prof. W. B. Cannon of Harvard University, shows that when these emotions are unduly excited, the adrenalin glands pour their juices into the blood and cause the liver to loosen up its storehouse of sugar, having the same effect upon the character of the blood as in a case of diabetes, the sugar disease. At such a time muscular fatigue is not apparent, but is forgotten, until the reaction comes, when nature exacts its penalty and the individual suffers until the process of reparation is complete. The same effect is apparent in the blood of animals when they are excited. The muscles of the stomach and the rest of the alimentary canal stop action. The flesh of animals killed at such a time is in a diseased condition and unfit for food. Nevertheless little, if any attention is paid to this fact. In the time of the old Roman Empire, the flesh of the bulls killed in the amphitheater was disposed of for food, and it became customary for eating places to locate in the neighborhood of the amphitheater.

Government inspection of the flesh of animals killed for food has not become so exacting as to discover whether the animals were in a proper frame of mind—glad to yield themselves to the demands of man for flesh food, or whether they were diseased as the result of abuse—and the subtle poison combined with whatever putrefaction may occur during the process of "ripening" the meat is added to the blood of the flesh eaters who demand that kind of food. It is quite possible that to the eating of such meat is due many simple ailments, or states of indisposition, which is not attributed to anything in particular. The outbreak of boils and some skin affections have been attributed to the flesh of animals killed when in an unhealthy condition.

The Daily Ration.

A reader of the Human Body wishes more information than we gave last week regarding the proper combinations of foods as to supply both the tissue and energy elements required daily by the average man.

According to Prof. Moleschott, an ordinary person doing a fair day's work, requires a quantity of mixed food that will yield 300 grains of nitrogen and 4800 grains of carbon. Here we have the old familiar 16 to 1—16 times as much food energy as tissue builder. This could be obtained by consuming daily four ounces each of lean beef, white bread, oatmeal and potato. As we cannot here give any extended dietary we will give a list of foods with the number of ounces of tissue and energy constituents per pound of the same, as follows:

	Tissue.	Energy.
Fowl	3.6	0.5
Beef	3	0.5
Fish	2.9	0.5
Oatmeal	2.5	11.7
Eggs	2.25	1.75
Bread	1	8.5
Potato	0.4	3.2
Cabbage	0.3	0.3
Sago	0	12.8
Figs	1	10.7
Spinach	3.1	4
Lettuce	1.4	2.5
Onions	1.5	4.8
Walnuts	16.4	71
Almonds	24	61
Peanuts	24½	62
Beets	0.4	13½
Parsnips	1.2	10
Lentils	22.3	4.3

The full-grown man requires such a quantity of nitrogenous food as will repair the daily waste of the tissues of the body, which amount will be practically constant from day to day, but the amount of carbohydrates will vary according to the character of the daily work and the amount of energy required for its performance. A growing person will require not only enough to keep the waste repaired, but a quantity additional for the purpose of growth, with sufficient carbo-hydrates to furnish the amount of exercise and to protect it against the changes of temperature.

The nitrogenous foods are supplied by meats of all kinds, but they may be obtained from the vegetable kingdom by using as food beans, peas, lentils, wheat, oats, flour and oatmeal, rye, barley, Indian corn, rice, potatoes, vegetables of all kinds, and fruits of all kinds.

The carbonaceous foods comprise the sugars, starches, and fats—cane sugar, beet sugar, honey, syrup, treacle; sago, corn flour, arrow root, tapioca; butter, lard, oils such as olive and almond oil.

How easily an economical diet can be prepared is shown by experiments that were undertaken at the prison in Glasgow where ten prisoners (five men and five boys) all under sentence of two months' imprisonment, and all employed at practically the same light work, were supplied with the following diet: Breakfast: Eight ounces oatmeal made into porridge, with a pint of buttermilk. Dinner: Three pounds of boiled potatoes, with salt. Supper: Five ounces of oatmeal made into porridge, with half a pint of buttermilk. At the beginning, eight of the prisoners were in good health and two were in indifferent health; at the end, all were in good health, and they had on the average gained more than four pounds each in weight. One man only lost weight.

Few persons, except for the purpose of experiment, would want such a monotony of food, but we have said enough to show how economy can be practiced and the body be fully nourished, and such a variety of food be selected each day as will keep the appetite right and all the organs of the body in the best condition.

Cure Disease With Diet.

More depends upon proper food than upon medicine. No drugs can do what food, an abundance of fresh air and personal cleanliness will accomplish. Good testimony of this was developed at the recent meeting of the New York State Medical Society when notes were compared regarding the present prevalence of eye disorders among the school children in what is known as the "East Side" of New York. Formerly this was considered a hotbed of trachoma, and the children that came to school with sore eyes were sent home. "Now," said Dr. Anna W. Williams, "we know better." The children are put into special classes and are given the necessary medical attention and instruction regarding the manner in which infection is communicated, and attention is also paid to their food. The result is that there are no freshly-developed cases, and the children were able to go back into the regular classes after about twenty-five days.

In regard to bronchitis so frequent among school children in crowded districts, Dr. Charles G. Kerley said he had demonstrated that it could be cured by dieting when everything else had failed. He cuts down their supply of red meat to not more than three times a week, chicken twice a week, and no milk whatever. Reducing the proteids as well as fat in the child's diet and cutting out butter, sugar and other carbons had brought them out of a condition of coughing, bloodlessness, indigestion and inertia that had seemed hopeless.

Drugless healing is thus making progress despite the opposition of the drug dispensers. One of the first things a drugless healer looks after is the diet of his patient, considering this as important as to determine whether there is anything that prevents the forces of nature from exerting their healing influence. With the pressure removed by the methods of the drugless healer and proper diet many physical troubles have been cured that have baffled the regular drug devotees, and yet the drug dispensers are fighting the drugless healers with tooth and nail.

The Art of Keeping Well.

In the beginning the human race comprised only healthy persons, but since the Garden of Eden was abandoned degeneracy has developed along about all the lines of conduct permitted. We may lay present conditions on our ancestors because they cannot talk back, but a large proportion of present troubles are the result of the sufferer's own course of life. Nature needs to have men well because the world needs service, and it is the well man that furnishes the best quality and requires the least waiting on. A cheerful mind has more to do with health than foods, for the cheerful man usually has good digestion. He is an optimist and gets some good out of life, and helps others to enjoy life. The pessimist usually has poor digestion and takes a blue look at everything, being neither satisfied himself nor permitting others to be satisfied. He is the one that furnishes the physicians with business, not because he is suffering from any organic disorder, but because of some functional disturbance that is the result of his own way of living.

People suffering from organic diseases are usually the victims of too much medication, the system having succumbed to the burden of throwing off the poisons administered by an excess of food, imperfect breathing, irregular sleep, lack of exercise and improper stimulants. A rush is made to the doctor's office and he sizes up the apparent symptoms and prescribes another poison to overcome the others, and the patient's system secures another load to carry. Most of the work of the doctors is to prescribe for symptoms, the difference between actual disease and a symptom being something that the average man does not even know, and the doctors admit that they are in the same state of mind.

Most so-called "disease" is self-limitation, says Elbert Hubbard, and tends to cure itself. Ecclesiastes says the thing required is moderation. Buddha says the great thing is equanimity. William Morris says the proper thing is systematic, useful work.

Keeping Clean.

Much fun has been poked at Englishmen who take along a bathtub when traveling in parts of the world where bathing facilities are not of the best. My "tub" he calls it, and "tubbing" is his way of speaking of his daily bath. Nevertheless, the Englishman does keep clean. Proof of this is found in a recent soap test which showed that the soap annually used by the people of the United Kingdom amounts to twenty-one pounds to the individual. At the other end of the list is Russia, whose people use an average of only two pounds of soap each. The United States comes next to England.

In "Arms and the Man," George Bernard Shaw takes his usual sarcastic sling at the English custom, in his characteristic witty way. Mme. Petkoff complains of her usual sore throat, to which Maj. Petkoff replies: "That comes of washing your neck every day. All of this washing cannot be good for the health. It is not natural. There was an Englishman at Philippopolis who used to wet himself all over with cold water every morning. Disgusting. It all comes from the English; their climate makes them so dirty that they have to be perpetually washing themselves. Look at my father. He never had a bath in his life and he lived to be 99, the healthiest man in Bulgaria. I don't mind a good wash once a week to keep up my position, but one a day is carrying the thing to a ridiculous extreme."

Any kind of a bath is an aid toward cleanliness, but circumstances and the character of a person's work usually determine the kind of a bath that will give the best results. Besides the need of removing accumulations of dirt, a bath is necessary to open up the sweat glands so as to afford the proper elimination from the system of the poisons that are continually brought to the surface by the blood. The warmer the bath the more the blood is brought to the surface of the skin and the pressure relieved on the internal organs of the body. A cold bath has a reverse action; hence the custom of taking a cold douche after a hot bath, as it restores the natural condition of the system and serves as a tonic to the skin and frequently prevents a person from taking cold from the opening of the glands of the skin by the hot bath.

The proper temperature of the various kinds of baths is, for the cold bath 50 deg. to 70 deg.; warm bath, 96 deg. to 104 deg.; hot bath, 102 deg. to 110 deg.; very hot, 110 deg. to 120 deg.; hot air, 175 deg. to 212 deg. The last named would be unendurable unless the air were perfectly dry. It is, nevertheless, one of the most powerful ways of stimulating the activity of the skin, as it causes the perspiration to burst out copiously and the whole body is bathed in sweat. This extreme heat is the end of the usual Turkish bath, though there are many who take Turkish baths who do not go the limit, but stop with the hot bath.

The Way You Walk.

If you walk erect, or if you slouch forward, it reveals the habits of your youth. If you lean backward, it may be the result of a spinal curvature, or it may be an inherited action. If you lean forward and have to keep stepping to prevent yourself falling it is the result of weak muscles of the back, and probably a bad habit in the past. Anyway whichever way you walk now it is probably the easiest way, and it would be an effort for you to change it. Nevertheless in many cases it would be in the interest of health if a proper carriage were maintained.

The proper way to stand is erect, not leaning backward, but just slightly forward from a perpendicular, with the abdomen well drawn in. The proper way to walk is leaning forward enough so that it becomes necessary to advance the feet to prevent falling, no more, no less.

Children begin to get their curves wrong when they are very young. The older they get the greater their error in posture. At 12 years of age the skeleton becomes ossified, and after that it is not so easy to correct their errors of posture as it was previously. With care, change can be brought about between the ages of 12 and 16, but after that few will be persistent enough to overcome the defects from their previous bad habits, so that it is extremely important that attention should be paid to this matter during the early years.

Many times children will copy the habits of their parents in the matter of posture, sometimes because of inherited structural deformity and other times from natural disposition to copy what their parents do. Frequently the school desk is largely responsible for improper curves in the back. The seat may be too high, or too far away from the desk, or too near, or the light may be so that it requires the child to twist about, and if there be a poorly-developed muscular system curves in the back will be started before either the child or the parent is aware of it. An alert school teacher should take note of these things as a part of the scholar's department.

California Fruit Crops.

GENERALLY speaking, the fruit crops of California this year are excellent both in quantity and quality. The citrus-fruit crop leads all, and of this shipments for the season to date run over 30,000 carloads. The Valencia crop is beginning to move and is estimated at 10,000 carloads. With leavings of other varieties and lemons added, the output for the year should run to 45,000 carloads. The total crop value of California for the current year is estimated at $476,000,000, of which the orchards will stand for about $82,000,000. The citrus crop is estimated at $35,000,000, green deciduous at $18,000,000, dried $15,000,000, canned $12,500,000, and the rest of the sum is made up of olives, nuts and miscellaneous orchard products. The citrus fruit has brought fairly good prices in the eastern markets, and just now the canners of the State are competing sharply with the shippers for the deciduous-fruit crop, excepting peaches, which are very plentiful and selling very cheap. A good deal of this crop will go to the dryers and furnish excellent fruit food for eastern consumers during the winter at a low price. Bartlett pears are bringing as much as $50 a ton, and apricots up to $40 a ton.

Protection Against Floods.

ABOUT once in every three to five years Southern California is visited with torrential rains which overflow the river banks and do vast damage to farm and other property. The streams of Southern California are few, and ample protection should be provided at once against these destructive floods. The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors is now wrestling with the problem of protecting the county from the overflow of the Los Angeles River and its main confluent, the Arroyo Seco, and the San Gabriel River, the second largest stream in Southern California. The principal stream of the section is the Santa Ana, and it is below the pass at Yorba that this stream becomes most destructive in flood time. Just south of the point referred to that stream has broken out at times for hundreds of years, forming a wash of a very dangerous character between Anaheim and Fullerton. The people of Anaheim have taken the matter up, and are considering a plan of protecting their property from this kind of destruction by the construction of a dike along the west bank of the Santa Ana River from the Santa Fe bridge at Yorba to Olive.

Better Postoffice Service.

THE Federal government has had an inspector in the mail service going over Southern California, with the result that better service is to be given at several points, particularly in Imperial county. At El Centro the receipts through the postoffice for the year ended March 31 showed an increase of 54 per cent. over the previous twelve-months period. At Hemet, Calexico and Holtville the offices are to be raised to second class, with a salary of $2000 for the postmaster and three clerks at each place. It will take seven clerks to serve the office at El Centro. At Holtville the receipts for the year defined above were $9587, compared with $7152 for the previous year and $6094 for the year before that. The receipts at Calexico for the year were $8713, compared with $6513 for the previous year and $5799 for the year before that. At Brawley, two more clerks are to be added, while Date City and Calipatria, new towns, are to have postoffices of their own. The inspector expressed great astonishment at the wonderful development of the valley.

The Right Way to Do It.

HEAVY property owners in that section of the Los Angeles city business district lying north of Sixth street are taking the right method to check the tendency of the business center to slip away southward and westward. An organization known as the Business Stability Association has been formed, and has put out its plans. The purpose is to construct Class A buildings in the district which will induce high-class tenants to remain there, and draw others in. The first building will be at the corner of Third and Broadway or on the block between Second and Third streets, to be followed by others on Main, Spring, Broadway and Hill. The capitalization of the association is $5,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares of $100 each. No stock is to be sold below par, and no commissions paid for selling stock. It is to be a kind of mutual-aid society, and all property holders in the district north of Sixth street are expected to take stock in the concern and help to anchor the business center of the town. The owner of the Broadway Department Store is setting an excellent example in the construction of a magnificent building on Broadway and Fourth. It will take something more than agitation and talk to accomplish the purpose in the mind of this organization. Property owners must be prepared for the same activity that has marked the property owners farther south who have attracted high-class tenants by offering them high-class premises. If all the property holders in the districts would follow the example of Arthur Letts and the erectors of the Washington building on the corner of Third and Spring streets and of the Higgins building on the corner of Second and Main streets and of E. P. Clark, the constructor of the Clark Hotel on Hill below Fourth, of the Wright & Callender people with their magnificent building on Fourth and Hill, the Black brothers on the opposite corner, and the Ferguson building at Third and Hill, the trick would be turned at once.

The Wonder of Van Nuys.

ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY, February 22, 1911, a little company of energetic business men met in the middle of a vast barley field in the San Fernando Valley, and like the founders of Rome and of Carthage, proceeded to delimit a city that was to be. The work that was accomplished in the three years has been nothing short of magical. The population now numbers 1500, and with access to the city of Los Angeles by the Pacific Electric Company's lines, constructed at a cost of about a million dollars, they are served by telegraph and telephone companies, express and steam railroad companies, an electric company and a gas company. One religious denomination has constructed a church at a cost of $10,000 and another at $8000. Several other denominations have organized congregations and are planning for church edifices. The new town's grammar school cost $50,000, and has nearly 200 pupils enrolled, served by six teachers. The people have voted bonds, and plans have been prepared for a high school to cost $120,000. The district has already forty-five high-school students, and when the new school is opened will have 100. The town has a national bank with a capital of $50,000 and accumulated surplus of $5000. Its resources are nearly $300,000, with 600 depositors. It has an organ and piano factory whose building cost $35,000, and the total plant an investment of $250,000, employing 100 persons. The buildings erected in Van Nuys and near there represent an investment of $500,000. The people are prosperously engaged in the poultry and fruit business mostly, over 1,000,000 trees having been set out in this vicinity in three years.

Half-Million Deal.

LARGE tracts of land in single holdings in the State of California are becoming very scarce. This makes the sale of the Grogan tract near Merced in the heart of the San Joaquin Valley the other day somewhat sensational. The tract comprises 3360 acres, and the price reported is $498,000, a large part of which was in cash. The tract is bought for a Los Angeles realty company which operates a large business and is probably for subdivision purposes. A large part of the tract is improved with the largest olive orchard probably in the State held by an individual.

White With Cotton Fields.

OF ALL the sensational developments in the Great Southwest in these marvelous times in which we live, perhaps there is none that has more thrill in it than the development of cotton-growing in the Imperial Valley. When the century opened the whole section was a wilderness seldom traversed by white men except trappers and hunters, a district practically unknown to the business world, and its present development is the creation of a few venturesome souls, hardy pioneers as ever operated in the West. These forerunners of civilization began by clearing the tangled brush off of the country, turning up the rich virgin soil and planting crops of wheat, barley, corn and alfalfa. These crops did marvelously well, and the industry naturally suggested live stock, and then followed the era of dairies, fat cattle and pigs. Then came fruit planting, and this year the shipments of melons from the district will probably be 5000 carloads. But these are things that can be done in many parts of the country. There is a very small area of the world where cotton can be produced to advantage, and of the cotton-growing area very little is suitable for the production of the long-staple variety of which the greatest part comes from Egypt. The Imperial Valley will rival the banks of the Nile in the quality of cotton, and more than rival it in the quantity per acre. The cotton crop of this year amounts to a value of $1,400,000, and the value of the industry to the valley including machinery is put at $10,000,000 There are twelve ginning plants in the valley, comprising forty-eight gins, and four more to be built this year. The cotton crop is so remunerative that it is estimated that the next season will see from 60,000 to 75,000 acres in cotton producing from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. One of the newest towns in the valley is Calipatria, and around this baby town 9000 acres have already been planted to cotton, and this will be increased next year to 15,000. Niland, another new town, is a district where cotton is to be grown, and some estimate that next year the cotton fields of Imperial Valley will cover possibly 85,000 acres.

A Gasser Sure.

THE Standard Oil Company's well No. 6 at Fullerton, a new hole in the ground, at a depth of 3400 feet is belching 40,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. It is expected that the well will yield gas enough to supply the entire city of Los Angeles. The outflow is under complete control, but is being let run wild to thoroughly test its capacity. The roaring of the escaping gas is said to be audible at ten miles.

A Thousand-Acre Lemon Grove.

IN THE western part of the San Fernando Valley near the new town of Owensmouth a syndicate of wealthy Los Angeles people, bankers and business men of various kinds, has purchased about 1000 acres of choice foothill land at a cost of about $400,000 upon which they intend to develop the largest lemon grove in the world. The district lies in the heart of the San Fernando Valley, whose marvelous development in the last three years has been astonishing. On Saturday, June 6, the celebration of the founding of Van Nuys was held, and the eye of living man scarcely ever looked upon a scene like that presented in this valley in the evening. Sherman Way winds through the valley, a magnificent boulevard such as the world has nothing to compare with, smooth as a floor, of immense width and parked its whole length with the choicest trees, flowering plants and shrubs the world knows. This magnificent boulevard is more than a dozen miles long and is lighted with ornamental electric lamps as brilliant as Broadway, New York, or as any of the great boulevards of Europe. This lemon grove will be subdivided and sold to settlers in small parcels, and the man who owns five acres of it will be as independent as a king and live in the finest earthly paradise on the footstool of the Most High.

Snake in Woman's Body.

[Philadelphia Record:] Mrs. George Preston, a farmer's wife, living near Towanda, who was supposed to be dying with cancer of the stomach, recently vomited a streaked snake two feet long and as large around as a man's finger.

Mrs. Preston has been in poor health for more than two years, and was treated for cancer without any hope of recovery. She became very ill, and was given a drink of milk followed by a cup of mustard water, which caused her to vomit.

Mrs. Ellison Crandell, a neighbor, who was called to the Preston home by the sudden illness of Mrs. Preston, fainted at the sight, and Dr. Bevan, the attending physician, has the snake. Mrs. Preston will fully recover, the doctor says.

[Kansas City Journal:] "Seems to be the style now to wear the hat resting on the ears."

"Yes. And I know an expert who, for $2 a treatment, will train your ears to stick out in the most fashionable way."

"Column Forward!"

FRESH REPORTS OF PROGRESS IN THE ADVANCING SOUTHWEST.

Hooray! June breaks into the business world with a rush like a football team making a touchdown. The bank clearings in the city of Los Angeles for the first six days of June amounted to $25,634,344. This is about a million dollars increase over the corresponding week a year ago. The real estate people report a growing activity in their line, and everything looks hopefully into the future.

The Los Angeles county Board of Supervisors are planning for the control of the flood waters of the streams of the county at a cost of possibly $9,500,000.

The growth of Phoenix, Ariz., is indicated by the platting of thirty-seven subdivisions of suburban property embracing 1789 acres in nine months.

Business at El Centro shows an increase for the month of May of 40 per cent., and for the first five months of the present year of 100 per cent., over the same period a year ago.

At Calipatria, a three-months-old baby town, a hollow-tile factory is being erected.

The original subdivision of the Nuevo ranch in the Perris Valley, comprising 480 acres, has been all sold out in small farms.

A millionaire Chicago merchant has bought a tract of land near Bishop, Inyo county, consisting of 2042 acres, at about $250,000.

The wool clip of Arizona is estimated at 8,000,000 pounds, and it has been sold at 22 cents a pound in Boston.

The city of Pasadena proposes a school bond election to vote $30,000 for enlarged school accommodations.

The Santa Fe Railroad Company is planning water development above Flagstaff, Ariz., at a cost of $100,000.

A year ago the town of Fontana, San Bernardino county, was founded, and the anniversary was celebrated by the dedication of an $18,000 schoolhouse.

At South Pasadena building activity is quite equal to that of a year ago, and most of the permits issued are for residences, one of which runs to $10,000.

A ledge of talc has been discovered near Exeter, San Joaquin Valley, which for purity is said to surpass any other similar deposit in the State of California.

Culver City, a municipality still in its swaddling clothes, is rejoicing in the completion of a building costing $14,000.

At the corner of Ingraham and Witmer streets, Los Angeles, a new apartment-house is about to be constructed at a cost of $100,000.

Culver City, about a yearling among the Los Angeles county towns, is growing very rapidly. A Denver woman the other day bought eight lots for improvement at a cost of $20,000.

The Dinuba raisin growers estimate the State crop for the coming season at 85,000 tons.

The Santa Fe Railroad Company will soon begin the construction of a new depot at San Diego at a cost of $230,000.

The Anaheim City Trustees have purchased a lot with a two-story brick building next to the City Hall with the intention of erecting a new hall at an early date.

Around Covina, new groves have increased the bearing walnut trees to 2250 acres.

The Cause of Neuralgia.

Almost any ache about the head is dubbed neuralgia, and yet not one person in a million probably ever stops to think what the word atually means. A compound from the Greek root neuron (nerve) and algos (pain) the person who has neuralgia believes it is true to its derivation, whether or not it is just as applicable to pains in other parts of the body. So far as the word goes, it is just as applicable to a pain in the knee as in the head.

The pain of neuralgia is evidence that something has happened to the aching nerve. It may be the result of pressure on the nerve or irritation from anemia, poisoning, strain, loss of sleep, gout, kidney distempers, or even a broken bone, a mass of scar tissue, a swollen gland, a muscle spasm, a growth or the dislocation of a joint. Things that you may have eaten, or poisons taken into the system may be the cause. The cure is to find out first if there be any impingement of the nerve; if not, then you want to change your habits of living. Any drugs that may be taken will also act upon all the other nerves of the body equally with the ones that are giving pain, so that they should never be employed unless absolutely necessary, when everything else tried has failed. The nutrition of the body is the one thing essential.

"Nerves" is evidence that the body's health has been neglected, and of course the nerves have suffered to an equal extent, and may show their neglect more than the body. Foods containing phosphates are needed in the daily menu, and attention should be paid to exercise of the body in the open air. You won't have nerves if you treat the body right.

A Clean-up Decalogue.

[New York Times:] In connection with a clean-up campaign which Hoboken is to undertake the Hoboken Board of Trade Bulletin contains, for careful memorizing by every true and housewifely resident, a decalogue worded in terms of cleanliness and sanitation. The ten rules, styled a "Clean-up Decalogue," are:

First—Remember thy garbage can to keep it covered.

Second—Thou shalt cut the weeds in thy vacant lot lest it become a hiding-place for old tin cans.

Third—Thou shalt bear witness against thy neighbor's rubbish heap.

Fourth—Thou shalt clean out the habitation of thy horse.

Fifth—Thou shalt prevent the breeding of the fly, that thy children unto the third and fourth generation need not swat him.

Sixth—Remember thy back yard and alley to keep them clean. Six days shalt thou labor. If yet the task is not accomplished thou couldst do worse than continue on the seventh.

Seventh—Thou shalt covet the air and sunshine.

Eighth—Look not upon the milk when it cometh from the unclean dairy.

Ninth—Remember thy cleaning-up day and keep it holy.

Tenth—If thou dost harken unto these sayings to do them thou shalt live long in the land and the "clean-up" spirit shall last 365 days in the year.

Electrifying School Children.

[New York Tribune:] School authorities in Stockholm, Sweden, have been experimenting with apparent success on the effect of electricity on the minds of pupils. A similar experiment has been started in New York under the name of "The Electrified Schoolroom to Brighten Dull Pupils."

The Stockholm method was to take two lots of fifty school children each, averaging the same age and physical condition, and to put them in rooms exactly alike, to all appearances. One room, however, has insulated wires cleverly concealed in its walls. Not even the teacher knew what had been done. The atmosphere of that room was impregnated with delicate electrical waves every day for six months. The results were as follows:

"The children in the magnetized room increased in stature two and one-half inches; those in the unmagnetized room increased but one and one-fourth inches. The former also grew heavier than the latter.

"Those exposed to the electrical rays averaged 92 per cent. in their school work; those in the other room averaged but 72 per cent. Fifteen pupils in the electrified room were marked 100 per cent.

"The teachers in this room experienced a quickening of the faculties and an increase of endurance."

Sleeping Back-Upward

SUCH A PRACTICE SAID TO BE ADVANTAGEOUS.

By Edward B. Warman, A. M.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion among medical men and those who have made a special study of the anatomy and physiology of the body that there are advantages gained by sleeping back-upward—or nearly so. Let us consider the subject in its various relations as regards health—and health means longevity.

In the first place, the circulation is certainly better with the viscera downward and the weight thereof off the great aorta artery, which carries the blood from the heart, and the large venacavas, which carry it back to the heart again. These large vessels lie against the vertebral column and behind the heart, stomach, liver, intestines, uterus and bladder. Therefore, when lying on the back, these heavy organs press upon these vessels and naturally retard the circulation, and throw more work on the heart all night.

For many years I have cautioned my pupils about going to sleep on the back whether at night or in the daytime, and more especially soon after eating a hearty meal. In many cases it has proved fatal. It is likely to cause nightmare in consequence of the interference with the circulation. A nightmare is nature's last resort to save you. This it does by making the dream as hideous as possible; otherwise you might not awaken and change your position. The next time you awaken as the result of the nightmare, thank God for the nightmare. Were the dream a pleasant one you might pass on to your eternal sleep.

A short rest on the back when very tired—a few minutes of complete relaxation—is very restful without being harmful. Did you ever notice a horse after a long drive or a hard day's work, how, after the harness has been removed and he is allowed the freedom of the barnyard or the pasture, he will lie down and try to roll over? He will make several attempts, although not always successful, but once over and he is satisfied. And a mule—well, a mule will not get up until he does roll over, usually two or three times. That's the nature of the mule. The temporary pressure on the vertebral column probably removes the nerve pressure, thus relieving the tension. I suspect that would pass as a satisfactory chiropractic explanation.

Man is the only animal that sleeps on his back. If you survey the whole field of the lower animals having a vertebral column of bones the same as man, you will not, I think, find one that sleeps on its back—except the sloth which sleeps clinging to the branches of the trees with its back downward; in fact, this is hardly an exception, as it does not have any pressure on the back. The dog, the cat, the horse, the cow—all of them sleep on the right abdominal side. They never fail to seek this position every time they seek repose.

Sleep is nature's provision for rest and repair; hence the importance of correct position. It has been remarked by physicians that old people when lying on their backs a few days prior to their death do not, as a rule, die of the disease that brought them to their bed, but in consequence of an effusion of serum from the blood into the dependent cavities, due to a retarded circulation of the blood. You may have observed that in hospitals, under intelligent management, such patients are made to change their positions frequently, when practicable to do so, to avoid this stagnation of the blood.

Women, especially, suffer by sleeping on their backs because of the pressure of the rectum and intestines on the left ovarian vein that lies behind them on the psoas muscle. This vein makes a right-angled turn where it empties into the large renal vein which empties the kidney on that side. This anatomical fact is the reason why women complain of more pains on the left side than on the right. Any pressure on this small, long ovarian vein is sure to cause congestions of the left ovary as well as the uterus. But by lying on the right abdominal side, the loaded rectum hangs in its peritoneal sac away from this vein and the best possible freedom to the circulation in these parts is attained.

The Correct Position for Sleeping.

The body should rest on the right side of the chest and abdomen, with the left arm extended at full length along the upper side of the body, the right arm and the left leg both half flexed and acting as braces to the body to take the tension from the neck which would otherwise become very tired. The head rests on the right cheek, and the right leg should be fully extended. When tried it will be found to be the most restful position that one can possibly take, and no one will experience any discomfort whatever in lying in this position for a number of hours. This is the position to which I once referred as lying on one's liver—your own liver. There is no harm to change for a short time to the left side, but it will usually be of short duration, as the anatomical structures in the chest and abdomen call for sleeping on the liver, or right chest and abdomen, and thus, also, avoid crowding the heart. Therefore, to comply with the demands of nature, we should attempt to assume those positions at all times that will allow of the greatest freedom of each organ to perform its functions with the least possible restriction, friction or hindrance.

As a rule, patients recover more rapidly if allowed to sleep face downward as described. When they assume this position I am informed that they rest easier, have less pain, and recover sooner. This recalls to my mind the case of a doctor who had typhoid fever. He claimed that by resting on the right side of his chest and abdomen—on his liver—he had less aggravated symptoms in the bowels, and in many other respects was benefited, and his return to health was more speedy.

Other Benefits Gained.

Constipation, that terrible foe to health, which seems to be an almost universal trouble, especially among women, may be traced, in part, to improper positions during sleep. While sleeping on the back—in case of a heavy, inflamed uterus and an ever-filling bladder, the tendency is for them to gravitate downward upon the rectum, thus cutting off the circulation and at the same time paralyzing the nerves of the secretory glands, and thereby stopping the flow of fluids in the rectum that, otherwise, would produce easy evacuations. But when assuming the position of the face downward, these heavy organs gravitate away from the rectum, giving the free circulation nature intended, thus avoiding the paralyzing of the nerves by undue and unnecessary pressure.

Better digestion is also assured when sleeping face downward, especially if one retires with undigested food in the stomach. When sleeping on the back, the full stomach or partially filled stomach is resting upon the great solar plexus that lies just back of it. When this large mass of nerves—nearly as large as one's hand—is pressed upon or irritated, digestion is disturbed, retarded and, in some cases, stopped. Sour stomach, gas and heart-burn usually result, to say nothing of insomnia and bad dreams.

Sounder sleep is also the result of the correct position. Why? Because with the face downward, the blood, in coming from the brain, all collects at the back of the head just inside of the skull, at a place called torcular herophili. But when sleeping face downward, the flow of the blood from this point is downward and, therefore, freely drains the blood from the brain; hence, the sleep is sound, restful, recuperative, and the dreams, if any, are pleasant.

The prevention of snoring, also, may be considered under the benefits to be derived from a correct sleeping position. This nocturnal songster—sometimes songstress—which never receives an encore from a listening audience of one or more, may be—and should be—eliminated from the programme.

As snoring is caused largely by the tongue falling back into the pharynx during sleep, thereby filling the pharyngeal space so that the air has difficulty in getting into the lungs, lying with the face downward prevents this, because the tongue will naturally gravitate away from the pharynx, leaving it open and free for the admission of air.

During colds or any nasal or pharyngeal troubles that produce discharges, sleeping with the face downward gives a freer outlet to the secretions from the nose and mouth, without first going back into the throat to irritate the membranes there and thus disturbing the sleep; or by drying out the mouth and thus inducing mouth-breathing. While on the back the turbinate bodies in the nose swell more than they do when lying on the face. This is an important item, for everyone knows that the most disagreeable feature of a cold is the closing of the nose at night so that mouth-breathing results.

It will thus be seen that there are certain laws of nature and certain restrictions that are just as necessary during sleep as in the waking hours. Psychologically we teach that the night time of the body is the daytime of the soul; physiologically, we should endeavor to see that this body of ours is as properly adjusted during our unconscious moments as during the conscious ones. We should see to it that we do not undo in the one period that which we have done in the other. This is the more important when we consider the fact that the average person sleeps away one-third of his life.

"Sleep, that knits up the ravel'd sleeve of care,
The death of each day's life, sore labor's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast."

The Women of Egypt.

[New York Herald:] On the women of Egypt depended the preservation of the purity of blood or breed, and the best marriages were considered those where there was a near alliance in blood. The offspring of such marriages took precedence over those of other alliances. When a king died leaving no pure blooded sons, but a daughter of his sister-wife, it was this daughter who succeeded him, though often a son of baser blood would be elevated to the place of her consort and their offspring would be hierarchically superior to the father.

So, also, if a husband died childless the woman was obliged to choose a mate, over whom she was sovereign mistress, to help her to perpetuate the race. Marriage contracts of the days of the Rameses accorded marvelous liberty of action to the wife, and, though the independence of women declined with the ancient history of Egypt, the respect and veneration paid to the mothers of the race were sufficiently remarkable to impress the historian Herodotus.

In the literature of ancient Egypt, its love lyrics, satires and ethics, women play a great part. So also do women figure prominently in mural decorations, but, judging from the literature, the lecturer was of the opinion that the women of 4000 years ago were neither much better nor much worse than their modern sisters, a deduction which was greeted with loud applause from a distinguished audience.

Prodded His Father's Memory.

[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times:] Mr. Urban was always late to dinner. He lived on the Fort Worth Interurban and arrived home one evening, as usual, twenty minutes behind-hand. His wife was entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Fortune. Greeting the guests with effusive cordiality, he said:

"If I had known this pleasure was in store for me I should certainly have arranged my business so as to be at home earlier."

"Why, Harry," sighed his wife, "I told you."

"I beg your pardon, love; but you are certainly mistaken this time. You probably forgot to mention it. On the whole, however, I am glad you did. It is a delightful surprise."

Mrs. Urban was a spirited woman. This unjust accusation came near overthrowing her courtesy. Her lips parted, then shut decisively; but a slight frown lingered on her forehead.

Little Tommy read her face. He knew all about his father's poor memory, and he felt it his duty both to refresh it and to defend his mother.

"Why, papa," he piped, "don't you recollect? Mamma told you to be sure to come home early tonight because the Fortunes were going to be here, and you said, 'Oh, the devil!'"

A Thing Easy of Accomplishment.

The writer the other day met on the street a citizen who is a great admirer of the present order of things in the Federal government. When reminded that the policy pursued at Washington was checking business and destroying the splendid prosperity prevailing previously he replied in substance: "It is a mighty good thing that most of us have less prosperity to enjoy, because we were living too fast, spending too much money, and the lesson of economy will do us all good."

If that is the purpose, aspiration or hope in the mind of any American, the way to its accomplishment is clear, broad and smooth as that that leads to moral destruction. All that has to be done is just to put the Democratic party in power, and bang goes prosperity as promptly as the Earl of Dewar's "saxpence" when he arrived in London.

Who Will Get Benefit?

The wonderful futurist reformers who are going to bring us back to the Golden Age propose to spread a law on the statute books of California which forbids any employee, in any capacity, under any circumstances, to be compelled to work more than eight hours a day, or in many cases to be permitted to work, however willing the toiler may be.

The intention of this law may be excellent, and then again it may be merely a little political play to get the votes of the unthinking. If the intention is ever so good such a law would surely go to construct a toboggan slide for the feet of many in a swift descent to Hades.

There are establishments in Los Angeles where as many as a dozen persons are employed in domestic service. If this law is made to apply to the cook, the nurse, the chambermaid, the gardener, the coachman, the chauffeur, and all the rest of the servants, including "my lady's maid," it will mean a doubling of the employees, or nearly so. Mark you, the eight hours must be consecutive, and there it would require two if not three cooks, and none of them will work four hours a day. So it would be with the lady's maid, so with the nurse, so with the man who drives the automobile, and on to the end of the chapter.

The effect of this would be to drive hundreds of families to live in hotels, and thousands of employees out of the way of earning a living.

Now the Accepted Time.

If any denizen of Southern California, old-timer or newcomer, intends to secure a home for himself and stop paying rent, now is the time of all times. He can secure more in a house per dollar today than he could any time in the last five years at least, and in our opinion more than he will ever be able to secure again in a thousand years.

Times in the building trades are slack, and many mechanics in this line are out of employment. Lumber has taken a tumble, and every other kind of building material can be had for less than heretofore. A good many builders and investors have a house or two on the market for sale, and will make concessions to a cash buyer. As for the realty, it too can be had much more easily than any time in the last couple of years. Property around Westlake that was held at $300 to $500 a front foot cannot be sold today within $100 to $150 of the former prices. Of course there are few sellers of this choice property, but there is always someone either compelled or willing to realize. Semi-business property to be in the very heart of things within five years along south of Seventh and west of Grand avenue cannot be sold for the prices going a year ago.

Now, this is not going to last. The exposition year is sure to bring a big revival of business here, and with demand sellers' ideas will stiffen, concessions be refused and full prices asked.

A Purblind View Fails.

Whenever the tariff in America is interfered with the business of the whole world is necessarily disturbed. If lower tariffs are put on in America, including raw material and finished products, it is necessary to look the world over in any attempt to estimate the specific effect on our own industries.

If wool were put on the free list and the duty maintained in full measure on woolen manufactures, it might stimulate the industry in America. But when the duty on woolen clothing is removed or lowered it opens the great American market for woolens to the competition of the world, and European manufacturers, able to obtain much cheaper labor than the American competitors, are able to bid higher for the raw material, undersell the American manufacturer, and hit a stunning blow first on the left ear, then on the right, and down go our industries in the dust.

That is just what has taken place, for England is bidding higher for raw wool than for some years past, and American manufacturers have to compete with the London market. There is only one way for them to compete, and that is by selling at as low a price as imported English goods, and this can be accomplished only in one way, by lowering the wages of American operatives to the English standard, or even lower, to that of Belgium. Q. E. D.

A Wanton Waste.

From along the seacoast adjacent to Los Angeles complaints that foreign fishermen, mostly Japanese, and immigrants from the Mediteranean shores, are taking more fish than the market will absorb at the prices they demand, and in order to maintain the high price are casting tons of valuable food back into the ocean, where it is lost to human use.

There are two points in this. The first is that it artificially maintains an exorbitant price on fish foods in the local markets, doing a gross injustice to people, many of whom probably suffer from too scant meals. The other and a graver matter is that it is exterminating the fish and destroying the supply for future years.

If our lawmakers would only open their eyes and ears and cease playing to the gallery by making laws meant to attack business men who are doing something worth while in the world and turn their attention to the suppression of gross abuses like these, they would be fulfilling their mission better than they are. As politicians read these words they will laugh in their sleeve, or out of it, reflecting that big business has but few votes and the unionized fishermen have many.

Funston's First Battle.

Whenever there is trouble between the United States and any foreign country the name of Gen. Funston is sure to get into the headlines of the press. He is in command at Vera Cruz, and the newspapers are naturally enlightening their readers on his very spectacular career.

None of the sketches that we have seen have given the details or even hinted at Fred Funston's battle. It was down in Kansas or Missouri where he was a train man on a railroad, and rose to be conductor of a freight train. A lot of hobos tried to board Funston's train one day, and he drove them off. The "Weary Willies" began to stone the train, and Fred stopped it, got off and pursued the whole band, stoning them until they were out of sight. His train was late, and when he told the officials why, with a good-natured laugh they informed him that stoning hobos was no part of a conductor's functions on that line.

The Question.

Postmaster-General Burleson sadi at a banquet in Washington:

"One of our postoffice stories concerns a postoffice census taken a number of years ago.

"A question in this census was: 'What are your marital relations?'

"The answers to this question were startling. One postmaster answered: 'Fair to middling.' Another answered: 'Fine.' A third, poor fellow, made the tragic answer: 'The worst.'"—[Chicago Record-Herald.

The Drive.

HOW THE BOSS FOUND HIS MONUMENT.

By L. Worthington Green.

The great herd of cattle plodded dejectedly through the biting alkali dust. Now and then there was a low bellowing call, answered by another in a distant part of the herd; otherwise there was little sign of animation, unless a couple of thousand head of cattle moving steadily forward may be considered animated from the mere fact of motion.

"Colburn made a big mistake when he reported water at Laguna Amarilla, Dave," said one of two men riding on a flank of the herd. "I tell you it's as dry as it is here."

"I reckon Colburn is not to blame, Jack," replied the other. "It's nearly a month since he was out there, and this weather would dry up a bigger hole than Laguna Amarilla in a month. I knew he ought not to go so early, but the old man wouldn't listen to reason."

"You can't take the herd north through the Panhandle, either, Dave. I met up with a couple of Pete Maxwell's men just down from the Canadian, and they said the water in every hole up that way is boiled down so strong that the alkali in it would kill any critter on hoof, if you could get them to drink it, which you probably couldn't."

"But we can't get this bunch of cattle to the Pecos, Jack, if there's no water at Amarilla."

"Well, there's a little good water at a place they call Dulce, in south of Amarilla, and pretty good grass. I figured you could hold the stock there a couple of days and let them fill up, and then make a long drive to the river."

"It would be a mighty long drive, too, but I reckon we'll have to risk it. I wanted to start the herd a month earlier, then those holes wouldn't have been dry, but no one can tell the old man anything. Can we make Dulce tomorrow?"

"I reckon we can, for we are going to make this next water early, and the stock are in good fix."

It was in the heyday of the Texas range steer, in the late seventies, and the Half-Circle Seven ranch on the headwaters of the North Concho was sending 2000 beeves north to fill a government contract, designed for Indian issue and for military posts.

It was planned to pass up through the western side of the Panhandle, for that section was not grazed over and it was expected the grass would be so good that the cattle would take on flesh on the way instead of losing weight. The spring, however, had granted very little rain, and Jack Davis, whom Dave Powell, the drive boss, had sent on ahead to look up waters, reported that the holes on which they had depended were nearly all dry. The only recourse, then, was to go west to the Pecos and follow that stream up until they could cross to the upper waters of the Canadian River.

There was one serious objection to this route, even if they were able to cross the broad intervening dry space and reach the Pecos River in safety. The section of that stream which they were approaching was cut down through the plain, leaving perpendicular banks, and sometimes for stretches of many miles it might be difficult, or even impossible, to get the cattle down to water. It was, however, the only thing to be done, so with true frontier confidence and resourcefulness Dave Powell and his cowboys set about doing it.

The last day they were at Dulce the cattle were kept out on the grass away from water all day. Just before dark they were brought in and allowed to drink all they wanted, which, as the day had been hot, was a good deal. After they had stood around the water for an hour or two and were well filled up they were started out on the trail and kept moving all night. The next morning when the sun had climbed half way to the zenith they were allowed to pause and graze.

The grass was good, and all the rest of that day the cattle fed, the cowboys only taking care that whatever traveling they did was toward the Pecos. When night approached the herd was again put in motion and crowded forward as fast as possible.

By that time the steers were showing some signs of thirst, but the cool night of those high plains brought relief before they had begun to be at all distressed, and they traveled well all night. When the sun came up, however, on the second morning from water, it shone hot and still and the suffering of the herd began.

The cattle then were not allowed to pause, but were urged on with shouts and the cracking of the long blacksnakes. As the hot day wore on the men were obliged to work incessantly to keep the reluctant herd in motion. Finally, Powell, with three or four of the men, separated a thousand of the foremost cattle and pushed them on ahead, the less active ones following those leaders more willingly, and thus making a little better time.

At last the cattle were driven on with sheer force of whip and voice wielded by the tireless cowboys on their equally tireless ponies. Tongues were hanging out, swollen by the stifling dust, and eyes were dulled. All day long the struggle was kept up without pause for rest or bite, and the herders and their mounts were beginning to show punishment nearly as much as the animals of the herd.

Then there was a change; as the sun, a ball of fire, was sinking below distant rounded hills, the foremost cattle began to show a little animation. Heads were raised and the pace was quickened a trifle. This change gradually worked back over the entire herd. At first it was almost imperceptible, only relaxing a little of the pressure from the driving men, then it increased, until the cattle were traveling freely in advance of their herders, with only an occasional laggard that needed the reminding lash.

"Why do you reckon they've chirked up like this, Dave! It hasn't cooled off much yet," said Jack Davis to the drive boss, who had dropped back to the rear.

"I don't exactly like it, Jack," replied Powell. "I should think they smelled water, but there's no sign of the river yet."

"We won't see the river till we're in it," said Davis, "and it may not be far off."

"I believe that's what they're after," declared Powell, as he spurred his pony to the front again.

The pace had increased perceptibly, and the cattle were traveling now with heads up and a decided air of animated eagerness. Powell rode ahead to the men who were behind the first half of the herd.

"Don't crowd them, boys," he directed.

But there was no longer a question of crowding the cattle, it was more a matter of keeping up with them.

"Ride ahead of them, boys, and check them!" and Powell galloped with his men in advance of the now swiftly-traveling herd.

The men strung themselves out in front of the cattle, and employed the same means now to retard them that they had used before to urge them forward, but it had very little effect, and the herd swept on with ever-increasing speed. If a cowboy planted himself, with circling lash, in front of a steer, the animal merely swerved to one side and maintained his course.

Jack Davis and his men were making equally strenuous efforts to check their half of the herd, but with similar poor success, and those cattle were following closely on the ones in advance. The entire herd was moving over the plain at a gallop, with a dull roar of hoofs that drowned the shouts of the cowboys. To this noise of the myriads of feet were mingled bellowings from all parts of the herd, that added weirdness to the confusion.

Dense clouds of dust rose from the dry plain and the men who worked between the two sections of the herd were hidden from sight and nearly suffocated. Still the cattle increased their speed, and while the cowboys had at first ridden back and forth in front of the advancing steers, they now had difficulty in keeping out of the way of the stampeding animals by riding straight ahead.

Powell, the drive boss, worked in front like a demon, cutting the indifferent cattle with his writhing blacksnake, and shouting to his men to check the stampede. But all his efforts were to no purpose, the speed increased until the great herd swept over the plain like a solid resistless body.

Gradually the cowboys, as they realized the futility of trying to stop the terrific rush of the cattle, worked their way to the outside and dropped back, one by one, following in the wake of the herd with the best speed their ponies could make. Finally Powell was the only man left, and he refused to give up, though all he could do now was to race on with the thirst-maddened steers. He saw before him the possible destruction of the entire herd, $60,000 worth of beef, and the thought made him desperate. His reputation, won by years of hard work and intelligent effort, was at stake. He knew exactly what the danger was in remaining with the herd, but if he were to save himself and be disgraced, life would be worth nothing. Right at the center of the foremost of the stampeding cattle he rode, his horse making frantic, but ineffectual efforts to get away. The load the pony carried was too great a handicap, and slowly the steers drew past him on either side, until the horse was enclosed in the crush of cattle a little back from the front.

Then suddenly the foremost steers disappeared, swallowed by a gulf that opened at their feet, and in a flash Powell and his horse were propelled into space and down into the muddy waters of the Pecos. Over the twenty-foot bank the great herd poured, blindly, resistlessly, until the mountain of flesh that was piled up served to receive and save the laggards of the rear, and the assembled cowboys looked down in awe on the drive boss's monument.

Dr. Mocker.

HE CURES THE ILLS OF TIMOTHY M'SHANE.

By F. H. Mason.

Timothy McShane had led an active life up to the time that he was 40, and then rheumatism claimed him as a victim. Some money had been put by, and Timothy went the round of allopathic, homeopathic, osteopathic and chiropractic physicians, hot springs, nature cures and patent medicines, without avail. Then, as funds were shrinking, he bought a place in Southern California, and pottered miserably about with the aid of two sticks, lamenting the stiffness of his limbs and the money he had spent in trying to cure them.

Beside chronic rheumatism, he developed a chronic grouch, and his acrid remarks on everything and everybody more fortunate than himself soured his disposition. Any kind remark by a neighbor or a passer-by was met by such a fusillade of abuse against every one, from the Maker and Giver of All Things down to the unfortunate person who happened to make the remark, that people voted Timothy a grouch and shunned him. So, left to his loneliness and his grouch, Timothy grew worse and worse, now that he had no one to vent his wrath upon. He pottered around his garden, and longed for the time to come when he could lay his aching limbs beneath the soil and be done with it all. There seemed to be nothing left for him in life.

The birds came and built their houses in Timothy's shrubs and vines and trees, but seemed to take no more notice of him than did his neighbors. Occasionally a hummingbird, more insistent than the rest, demanded a bath from the sprinkler in Timothy's hand, and his heart would soften enough to indulge the bird, for it amused him to watch the abandonment with which the tiny creature gave itself up to the delights of the bath. The mocking birds, too, would command Timothy's attention, for a while, sometimes, but he generally turned away from them with a grouch, averring that they would not sing so festively if they had his aches and pains to contend with.

One day Timoth saw a mocking bird hopping from limb to limb, and he noticed that the bird always alighted on one leg and that the other leg was held back level with the wings. Timothy's interest was aroused, and he watched the bird instantly, for a while. Then his indignation arose, and he picked up a stone and deliberately aimed it at the bird, saying, as he did so: "Confound you! Can't you be satisfied with imitating all the other birds without directing your infernal sarcasm against me?"

Luckily Timothy's aim was bad. The bird flew off, alighted further away on one leg again, and piped an injured chirp at Timothy.

Timothy was disgusted, and went into the house to brood over his latest affliction.

For days Timothy watched the mocking bird, and aimed not a few stones ineffectively at it. But the bird was forgiving, determined to be friendly, and stayed around, so, at last, Timothy caught on to the fact that the bird was really lame, and not mocking him at all. "Why, you poor, wee mite!" Timothy said when he made the discovery. "Some mischievous kid's aim has been truer than mine, and he has broken your little leg. Perhaps he had a catapult or an air gun. I wish I could lay my hands on the brat." It would have been a bad moment for the brat if Timothy could have found him just then.

Timothy devoted much time, during the weeks that followed, to the study of the lame bird. He noticed that the good leg tired under the extra burden, and the bird would try to rest on its breast, but it slipped on the round, smooth limbs of trees and could not rest comfortably. Timothy had been fond of birds in his young days, and was wise in bird lore. He knew that mocking birds were fond of all kinds of berries, so, with his stiff fingers, he tied some laths up in the trees, near to where berries grew, so that his new friend might rest comfortably on the flat laths, when it had partaken of its food. He nailed laths on the top of his tomato trellis, so that the bird could get a comfortable sun bath, and he tacked some coarse chicken wire around an old crate and kept a dish of water inside, for the bird to have its bath without fear of interruption from preying cats.

The mocking bird soon recognized the change of front on Timothy's part, and became so friendly that, after a time, it would perch on his wrist and eat smilax and asparagus berries from his open hand. But it let Timothy know that it had other things to do beside cultivating an intimate friendship with a human being. Spring had arrived again, and there was a mate to be found and a family to be brought up, and Timothy soon realized that a broken leg was not going to be allowed to interfere with these duties. He noticed, too, that the lame male bird was as diligent in gathering building material as its better equipped mate, and, when the family arrived in the nest, safe among the prickly leaves of an Araucaria imbricata from prowling cats, the lame parent did its full share of the foraging. And with all this work it found time to perch on the one good leg on the house top and offer up its praise in many and varied notes that more of its kind had been born to gladden the hearts of the people of the Sunny Southland.

Timothy's interest in the bird drove away his grouch. He would buttonhole his neighbors and tell them about the bird—of the mistake he had made and of the friendship between bird and man—and he would tell the tale with so much life and vim that it was a delight to both the teller and the listener. With the departure of the grouch, Timothy's joints began to loosen, and soon, like the mocking bird, he found something better to do than grumble and lament over his ills.

If you met Timothy McShane today, walking sprightly and uprightly, and asked him who cured his rheumatism, he would tell you it was Dr. Mocker, and, if you had time to listen he would tell you much more that would be worth hearing.

The Sunrise Cure.

[Chicago News:] Sleep—that is what gunmen, pickpockets, divorcees, speeders, tango maniacs and many others need, if Prof. Carl Ludwig Schleich has the right idea.

"The civilized man or woman of today"—the professor is speaking—"must learn to sleep at least ten hours of the twenty-four if he or she expects to check the increased wear and irritability of his or her modern neurasthenic life and temperament. Sunset and sunrise are nature's time for sleeping and awakening. Sleep quietly one-half of your life away. You will have twice as much out of the other half. Sleep is the preserver of the spiral electricity of the blood vessels—it is the key that winds up the timepiece of life."

Rather neat, what?

The trouble with our criminals is neurasthenia—expressed in a confusion between their possessions and other people's. Our society women have neurasthenia—expressed in the feverish tango, bridge parties and shopping orgies. Then there are our business men, whose neurasthenia is expressed in a foolish fancy that dollars plus dollars equals happiness. The American family's neurasthenia has produced a divorce record that is not pretty to look at.

When men or women are hungry they do desperate deeds. When they are hysterical from lack of sleep they are fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils. Many are so sleepy that they think they cannot sleep.

Going to bed at sunset and getting up at sunrise is a particularly rational policy on the threshold of June. The sun rose today at 4:19 o'clock and it will set tonight at 7:15. It will get up still earlier tomorrow morning. Neurasthenic city people, without taking the professor's extravagant dose of ten hours of sleep out of every twenty-four, could do a great deal worse than go to bed early for the next four weeks and then get up in time to gather, for their health's sake and for the peace of their souls, a glorious bouquet of June sunrises.

[Cincinnati Enquirer:] "Do the companies use anything besides coal when they are manufacturing gas?" asked the Boob.

"Sure," replied the Grouch. "I hear that they are making light of complaints."

GOOD LITTLE POEMS.

How a Little Girl Danced.

Oh, cabaret dancer, I know a dancer
Whose eyes have not looked on the feasts that are vain.
I know a dancer, I know a dancer,
Whose soul has no bond with the beasts of the plain:
Judith the dancer, Judith the dancer,
With foot like the snow and with step like the rain.

Oh, thrice-painted dancer, vaudeville dancer,
Sad in your spangles, with soul all astrain;
I know a dancer, I know a dancer,
Whose laughter and weeping are spiritual gain;
A pure-hearted, high-hearted maiden evangel
With strength the dark cynical earth to disdain.

Flowers of bright Broadway! You of the chorus
Who sing in the hope of forgetting your pain:
I turn to a sister of sainted Cecilia,
A white bird escaping the earth's tangled skein!—
The music of God in her innermost brooding!
The whispering angels her footsteps sustain!

Oh, proud Russian dancer, praise for your dancing!
No clean human passion my rhyme would arraign.
You dance for Apollo with noble devotion;
A high-cleansing revel to make the heart sane.
But Judith the dancer prays to a spirit
More white than Apollo and all of his train.

I know a dancer who finds the true Godhead;
Who bends o'er a brazier in heaven's clear plain.
I know a dancer, I know a dancer,
Who lifts us toward peace from this earth that is vain:—
Judith the dancer, Judith the dancer,
With foot like the snow, and with step like the rain.
—[Nicholas Vachel Lindsay, in Little Review.

His Pipe.

Though grandpa left us long ago, with years and labors ripe,
Yet still upon the shelf we keep his old black briar pipe,
And when we take it down we seem to see above the bowl
The keen blue eyes that mirrored forth his wise and kindly soul,
We took our sorrows to his knee, he listened to them all,
From sister Letty's love affair, to Benny's "losted" ball,
And when he filled and lit his pipe, we knew that he had found
The end of all the troubled skeins our careless hands unwound.

So when my grown-up heart is sad with life's eternal pain,
With reverential touch I take the old black pipe again,
About it hangs the aroma of good tobacco still,
And calls his sturdy spirit back to brace my weakened will.
Through that old pipe he speaks to me, just as he used to do,
And bids me face the world again with strength and courage new,
And hope around me fold once more her rainbow colored cloak.
And all my little troubles fade as once they did—in smoke.
—[From Leslie's Weekly.

Today!

This is God's day that He lent to me,
That I may use for good or ill;
Fair and fresh as a day can be—
This is God's day that He lent to me;
He took a wave from eternity's sea,
Fashioned a day, all blemish-free,
This is God's day that He lent to me,
That I may use for good or ill.
—[Annette Wynne, in Youth's Companion.

The River.

Little lad, little lad, that played along the shore,
I hear your mother calling you, do you hear her no more?

There flows a little river through Catskill town,
And there the little fishing-boats go slowly up and down.

I can hear the windlass where the wet ropes run,
I can see the dripping net shining in the sun.

Slow and heavy barges with their freight for human needs
Follow where the guide-rope of the little tugboat leads.

Silver, iridescent, the little river lies,
Never asking anything, making no replies.

Green bank and ragged dock, bridged from shore to shore,
And a mother calling for a child that comes no more.

Little lad, little lad, still the river flows,
Still, upon its shining tide the ferry comes and goes.

There's glint of little pleasure craft, and as the night comes down,
I can see the window lights gleaming in the town.

And the night wind, come from far, is whispering to me:
"There's always toll of weeping where streams run to the sea!"
—[Louise Driscoll in Harper's Magazine.

Sanitariumisms.

Mabel, darling, what do you think,
He wouldn't give me a thing to drink;
Potatoes or meat—not a single pound,
But only what grew above the ground,
The dryest of bread—no scraping of butter—
And sugarless tea—'twas too utterly utter.
Six weeks of all such savorless rounds,
Result—I have lost just eighteen pounds!

Molly, dear, just listen to me,
I was allowed only sugarless tea,
No hint of butter, and bread so stale
'Twould have made a hungry dog turn tail.
Flesh food—no—but vegetables green
That above the material earth are seen.
Six weeks in all I have refrained,
Result—just eighteen pounds I've gained!

And Molly, who dieted to get plump,
Envied Mabel, that shapeless lump;
While Mabel quiv'ring her double chin,
Wished she was Molly, just bones an' skin;
The doctor chuckled, "Sure, it's bluff,
They want to fall for that diet stuff."
Quoth Nature, "I'll keep 'em what I mean,
The fat ones fat, the lean ones lean."
—[Edith Miniter, in Boston Truth.

The Humming Bird.

Little green Hummer
Was born in the summer;
His coat was as bright
As the emerald's light;
Though his bill was long.
Short was his song.
And his weight, altogether,
Not more than a feather.
From dipping his head
In the sunset red,
And gilding his side
In its fiery tide
He gleaned like a jewel,
And swift darted round,
'Twixt sunlight and starlight
Without touching the ground;
Now over a blossom,
Now under, now in it,
Now here and now there,
All in a minute.
Ah, never he cared
Who wondered and stared!
His life was completeness,
Of pleasure and sweetness;
He reveled in lightness,
In fleetness and brightness,
This sweet little Hummer
That came in the summer.
—[Florence E. Winslow in Youth's Companion.

HUMOR.

[Boston Transcript:] "Green is a synonym for gullible, isn't it?"

"Sage green shouldn't be."

[Louisville Courier-Journal:] "What does Algernon call his motorboat?"

"Depends on how the engine is working."

[Judge:] Downand: What caused this money stringency, anyhow?

Outt: Why, the thing originated with me and spread over the whole country.

[New York Star:] Suitor: I want to marry your daughter.

Father: Can you divorce her in the manner in which she has been accustomed?

[Puck:] "Some day," cried the outraged poet, "you editors will fight for my work!"

"All right," sighed the editor resignedly. "I'll be a good sport if I get licked."

[London Opinion:] Father: What! You want to marry my daughter? Why, sir, you can't support her! I can hardly do it myself.

Suitor (blankly:) Can't we chip in together?

[Washington Star:] "All the world's a stage," said the ready-made philosopher.

"Yes," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes; "and when it comes to professional jealousy the explorers surpass the regular actors."

[Life:] Mr. Housefly: Well, dear, I begin to realize that our time on earth is short.

Mrs. Housefly: Yes, but we have little to regret. We have been sober and industrious, and have raised a family of ten billion children.

[Le Rire:] "We're late; they're playing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony."

"There! what a pity we missed the other eight!"

[Topeka Journal:] Wife: If you can't sleep, why don't you see a doctor?

Husband (grouchily:) And then have a bill to keep me awake!

[Smart Set:] "Isn't it a shame the prices those New York restaurants charge!"

"But isn't it worth something to entertain the class of people they have to?"

[Liverpool Mercury:] "In the good old days doctors used to bleed patients for most of the diseases."

"They still do, my boy; they still do."

[Detroit Free Press:] "The man next door to me won't wake me up at 4 o'clock in the morning mowing his lawn any more. I've hit on a way to fool him."

"How's that?"

"I borrow his lawn mower the night before."

[Washington Star:] I'll never speak to you again as long as I live!" exclaimed the temperamental girl.

"Haw! Haw!" rejoined the practical youth. "You can't help yourself. I've got some of your songs and recitations on my phonograph."

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] The Pastor's Wife: What peculiar eyes young Ashley has! They always seem half-closed.

The Pastor: Yes, he has me guessing. I'm inclined to think he sleeps all through my sermons—but I can't catch him at it.

[Life:] Englishman: What have you in the States in the way of a deserted village?

New Yorker: Well, Reno is about what you're looking for.

[Chicago Herald:] "Pa, is retribution the worst thing a man can have?"

"No, it isn't half as bad as the feeling a man is likely to have after he has confessed and then become convinced that he would not have been found out if he had kept quiet."
